23664. But does it strike you from what you saw of the thing that it would be inconsistent for Harding to speak quietly to you, and also to behave in the same way as he did if Filbee accurately describes what he did?—No, I should not think so.

23665. I am suggesting to you that it may be that the man who spoke quietly to you in that way was not the same man who struck Cann?—I cannot say anything about Cann being struck.

23666. You are positive that the man who spoke quietly was Harding?—Yes.

P.C. T. Deller.

6 Dec. 1906.

23667. No doubt about that at all?—No doubt at all.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I have three other constables here who came up afterwards, but they did not see anything of it, and they did not see Harding.

(Chairman.) I do not think they can possibly throw any light upon it.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) No, I think not.

(Chairman.) Unless Lord Russell would like them to be called.

(Earl Russell.) No.

(Chairman.) I do not want to throw any burden on Lord Russell.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) As far as I know, they would not throw any further light on the matter at all.

(Chairman.) I may say we have the Notes of the evidence of what took place before the police magistrate in both cases, so I think I know the police constables you refer to.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) No. They have never been called before.

(Earl Russell.) I am quite willing to accept my friend's assurance that they knew nothing about it.

(Chairman.) We are content.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Then we will call Inspector Wright. As this may be our last witness perhaps I may ask you if we shall sit to-morrow?

(Chairman.) We shall take the part heard case in camera at 31, Great George Street at 11 o'clock.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I assume the lady will be there, because I think there are some questions which by your leave I shall have to ask her.

(Chairman.) Very well.

Inspector Arthur Wright, sworn.

23668. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) You are an Inspector of the H Division, and you were in charge of the Commercial Street Police Station shortly after midnight on the 12th and 13th September last?—Yes.

23669. When Police-constable Cann and other constables brought Williams and Callaghan to the station?—Yes.

23670. And those prisoners were charged?—Yes.

23671. Did any of the officers, first of all Cann, make any statement with regard to Harding?—Yes.

23672. What statement did Cann make with regard to Harding?—Cann informed me that after he had released his prisoner, or rather had been relieved by Police-constable Ashford (207), he faced the crowd for the purpose of keeping them back from the prisoner, and that Harding, who was foremost in the crowd, struck him a blow on the left ear, and it was bleeding profusely when he came to the station.

23673. You saw his ear?—Yes.

23674. Was the police surgeon called in?—He was.

23675. Did you hear anything said in the presence of the police surgeon by Cann with regard to the assault?—No, I did not; I was very busy that night, and I did not wait on the Divisional Surgeon as I should have done.

23676. Did you hear other officers who came in with Williams and Callaghan make any statement with regard to Harding?—Filbee (164), and Ashford (207), gave a similar version of the assault.

23677. Did you report those facts to the Subdivisional Inspector Hewison?—Yes.

23678. I do not know whether you saw the Subdivisional Inspector's report before it was sent off on the 14th September?—No, I did not.

23679. (Earl Russell.) This conversation about Harding took place, I suppose, after you had finished the charge dealing with Callaghan's case?—No.

23680. While they were telling you the particulars of Callaghan's case?—Yes.

(Earl Russell.) May I have the charge-sheet?

Mr. R. D. Muir.) Certainly. (Handing.)

23681. (Earl Russell.) Callaghan and Williams were charged together, were they not?—Yes.

Inspector A. Wright.

23682. For behaving in a disorderly manner, and further with assaulting Cann by throwing him to the ground, and kicking him about the arms and legs whilst in the execution of his duty?—Yes.

23683. Then you have got the names of the witnesses. They were given to you at the same time?—Yes.

23684. "A. Wright" is your signature?—Yes.

23685. While they were telling you about the trouble they had had in bringing Callaghan to the station they mentioned the trouble they had had in Sclater Street?—They gave me a version of the affair right from the first arrest.

23686. From the trouble in breaking the window right up to going to the station?—Yes.

23687. And they told you that they had had special trouble in Sclater Street?—Yes.

23688. Did you make any written note at the time of what they told you?—Their statements?

23689. Yes, their statements so far as it concerned the affair in Sclater Street?—None.

23690. You did not make any written note of that?—No.

23691. Cann told you, of course, that he had been assaulted by both prisoners when he first arrested them?—Yes.

23692. In Bacon Street, or wherever it was started?—Yes.

23693. And that the prisoner Callaghan, whom he brought in, had given trouble all the way with violence?—Yes.

23694. Did he tell you there was a very hostile crowd most of the way?—He did.

23695. And that he was very much exhausted?—Yes.

23696. Are you able to charge your memory with certainty that when he told you about the injury in Sclater Street he did not say that someone in the crowd had struck him?—No, he gave me the name.

23697. Arthur Harding?—Yes.

Inspector A. Wright.
6 Dec. 1906.

23698. Did he tell you whereabouts it took place?—Yes.

23699. Did he tell you where Harding had struck him?—The locality.

23699A. No; whereabouts in the face?—He pointed to the injury on his left ear.

23699B. And said that it was Harding?—Yes.

23700. Filbee, I think you told us, told you something about it, too?—He gave me a similar version of the assault.

23701. Did any of the three constables say anything to you about what was shouted out by anyone?—No, the constables did not, so far as my memory serves me. They might have done, but I cannot remember.

23702. Nothing like "I know you, Harding," or "All right, I know you, Harding," or "Don't kill the man," or anything of that sort?—No; a private witness said that to me.

23703. He told you that that sort of thing had been shouted out?—Yes.

23704. A private witness did not say anything about "All right, Harding, I know you," did he?—No.

23705. He told you the crowd had been shouting out because they thought the man had been ill-treated?—Yes.

23706. Did you hear the charge against Harding at the police court?—I did not.

23707. You did not go there?—The Sub-divisional Inspector went.

23708. Hewison?—Yes.

23709. Where is the Certificate of the Divisional Surgeon when he examined Cann?—There was no certificate.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) He put him on the sick list.

(Earl Russell.) Who made out this sheet called a charge-sheet?—I cannot say whether I did now.

23710. It is signed by "A. Wright Inspector on duty." That would be you?—Yes.

23711. Let us take the memorandum of assault. In case of (——), "charged at 12 a.m. on the 13th September, 1906, for disorderly conduct and assault—medical aid—Dr. Clark Divisional Surgeon certified—called to (——)." Has this anything to do with the case or not?—Is there no name inserted in it?

23712. No, there is no name inserted in it. Do you mind looking at it? (Handing.) He did not give it to us. We knew his name. I entered it afterwards.

23713. Is that a certificate of Callaghan's condition, or of the police-constable?—Callaghan's condition.

23714. There is no name filled up?—He did not give his name when charged.

23715. This has nothing to do with the injury to Cann?—No, it is merely a memorandum to the Magistrate that the expense was incurred.

23716. This has nothing to do with Cann himself?—No.

23717. Was there a similar one made out for Cann, or is not that necessary?—It is not necessary.

23718. Were you told by any of these three Constables anything about an attempted rescue?—Yes.

23719. Which of them told you?—I was told by two or three of them that there had been an attempt at rescue, but no individual person was mentioned.

23720. You did not hear Harding mentioned by any of them as having attempted to rescue the prisoner?—They told me several persons had attempted to rescue the prisoner.

23721. I quite understand that. You did not hear Harding mentioned by name?—No, I did not.

23722. Nothing was said to you by the last witness about his conversation with Harding?—No.

23723. Was he there while you were being told this story by the other constables?—Yes, he gave his version.

23724. He gave his version of Callaghan?—Yes, nothing whatever about Harding.

23725. He heard them tell you about Harding. Perhaps he was there while they were telling you?—Yes.

23726. He said nothing whatever about Harding?—No.

23727. Not that he had spoken to him or anything?—No.

23728. I understand it was not your business to take a charge against Harding because he was not in custody?—No.

23729. Nor to make a written note of it?—No.

23730. And you did not, in fact, make any report of Harding, did you?—No.

23731. To whom did you leave it to report?—To the constables, and to the Sub-divisional Inspector.

23732. You made no note either formally or informally of what they told you?—No.

23733. Did you give them any orders in consequence of the complaint of Harding? Did you tell them to put it in writing or forward it, or anything of the sort?—No, they made out a report. That was with reference to the allegation made by private persons who came to the station.

23734. Yes, because members of the public said Callaghan had been ill-used—nothing to do with the Harding affair?—No.

23735. (Chairman.) Let me understand this. Complaints were made by members of the public that Callaghan had been treated badly by the police?—Yes.

23736. That meant that unnecessary violence had been used in effecting the arrest and in bringing him to the station?—Yes.

23737. Then you did ask for reports in the usual way I understand?—Yes.

23738. What became of them?—They were not required. I destroyed them.

23739. They were made, were they?—They were made for my information. I asked the private individuals in the course of my duty to make a complaint in writing against the individual constables whom they had seen using undue violence. They refused to do so. I put their names on the charge sheet, and I requested them to attend at the police court and give evidence.

23740. Did they attend at the police court?—Two of them did.

23741. Who were they?—Two men, but their names are not familiar to me now. I see one was Frederick May and another was Edward Weller. There was also a young lady. She did not attend at the police court. Her evidence would have been favourable to the police if she had.

23742. Did these persons, May and Weller, attend at the police court?—Yes.

23743. Did they make a complaint?—They gave evidence; they made no complaint.

23744. I mean they gave evidence on the hearing of the case on the 13th September?—Yes, the first charge.

23745. (Earl Russell.) I understand you called for these reports because of this complaint by members of the public?—Yes.

23746. Did you read the reports when they were made?—Yes.

23747. Did they contain any reference to the conduct of Arthur Harding?—They all referred to the assault on Policeman Cann—the reports of Filbee (164) and Ashford (207).

23748. Filbee's report and Ashford's report referred to the assault on Cann?—Yes.

23749. Did Cann's report refer to it?—Yes.

23750. Did Cann give the name in his report of the person who had assaulted him?—Yes.

23751. Did Ashford give the name?—Yes.

23752. Did Filbee give the name?—Yes.

23753. They all gave the name of Harding?—Yes.

23754. How came that to have anything to do with a report on the treatment Callaghan had received on the way to the station?—It was a general report of the circumstances.

23755. (Chairman.) A report was made by the Sub-divisional Inspector on the 14th September?—Applying for a summons.

23756. Your report is dated the 28th September?—I answered a newspaper attack.

23757. It was an extract from the "Daily Telegraph"?—I think it was the "Daily Telegraph."

23758. (Earl Russell.) You were the person who had charge of these reports?—Yes.

23759. When did you destroy them?—After the police court proceedings.

23760. Against Callaghan or against Harding?—Against Callaghan and Williams.

23761. They took place on the 13th September, did they not?—The following day.

23762. Did you not, by that time, know that it was a question of applying for a summons against Harding?—Yes.

23763. You still did not think it necessary or useful to preserve these reports?—No, I did not.

23764. Is it usual to destroy these reports as soon as they have served their purpose?—As they were asked for by me merely for one purpose as to the allegation against the police.

23765. Only to satisfy your own mind?—So that I should be in possession of the whole of the facts, and be able to submit them.

23766. If your superiors asked for them?—Yes, or if anything had transpired at the police court.

23767. But your superiors did not ask you for them?—No.

23768. Therefore you never had occasion to make use of them?—No.

23769. And it was not necessary for you to wait longer than the next day to make sure that you would not be asked for them?—I do not follow you.

23770. I understand that at the hearing of Callaghan's case at the police court some of these members of the public did attend, and said the police had been violent?—Yes.

23771. Could you be quite sure that Scotland Yard would not call for a report on that until a few weeks had elapsed?—I did not see any cause. I do not say that I destroyed them the next day.

23772. I thought you did?—I believe I kept them in my desk for several days.

23773. (Chairman.) Did the Sub-divisional Inspector or anybody else ask you for a report on the matter?—No. As no complaint was made against the police except by word of mouth, the matter dropped.

23774. I see what is in your mind. I have before me, dated the 14th September, 1906, a report signed "J. Hewison, S.D. Inspector." I suppose that is Sub-divisional Inspector?—Yes.

23775. He makes a report beginning: "I beg to report that at 12 o'clock, 12th inst., P.C. 47 H.R. Cann arrested two men, named Stephen Williams and Charles Callaghan, for disorderly conduct and assaulting him at Bacon Street, Bethnal Green, and while taking the prisoners through Sclater Street on the way to the station Arthur Harding, who is well-known to the P.C., suddenly stepped out from the crowd and struck him on the left ear with his fist and ran away. The P.C. was subsequently seen by Dr. Clark, Divisional Surgeon, who stated he was suffering from a lacerated wound on the ear, and dressed same. The Prisoners Williams and Callaghan appeared before T. Mead, Esq., at Old Street Police Court on the 13th inst., and were sentenced to one and four months' hard labour respectively. The P.C. was unable to arrest Harding at the time, and I respectfully suggest that he be summoned." Had you made any report to Sub-divisional Inspector Hewison at that time?—No.

23776. Did he ask anything about it?—He asked me about it. I presumed the constable would have made that report to him.

23777. Then the report of the Sub-divisional Inspector on the 14th September was not founded upon any document that you prepared?—No.

23778. Upon no report made by you?—No.

23779. (Earl Russell.) Nobody but you ever saw those reports that they prepared?—No.

23780. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) On the 14th September the Sub-divisional Inspector would have before him the report of the proceedings before the Magistrate on the 13th September?—Yes.

23781. So that he could have that as part of the foundation of his submission that a summons was required?—Yes.

(Chairman.) With regard to that, how does that help to clear up the manner in which Harding's name comes into the document of the 14th September.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) That was the next question I was going to put.

23782. In addition to that Cann was in direct communication with the Sub-divisional Inspector on the point of this summons?—Yes.

23783. That was a matter dealt with by the Sub-divisional Inspector?—Yes.

23784. It is just as well to have the process explained. When it is submitted by the Sub-divisional Inspector and recommended by the Acting Superintendent that a summons should be issued that submission and recommendation are sent to headquarters?—Yes, to Scotland Yard.

23785. Then does something come back to the station from Scotland Yard?—An intimation, which is invariably signed by an Assistant Commissioner, approving of the application for process.

23786. Is that what is called the yellow form?—The yellow form.

23787. Is that taken to the police court when you apply for a summons?—Yes.

23788. Is it attached at the police court to the original summons granted, or what becomes of it?—It is retained there, I believe.

23789. It remains in the hands of the police court?—Yes.

23790. So that if it is required it can be obtained?—Yes.

23791. That yellow form is a signed authority for one of your officers to apply at the police court for a summons?—Yes.

23792. That is the usual process?—Yes.

(Chairman.) In this case it appears that the summons was recommended by the Acting Superintendent.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) That is recommended to headquarters.

23793. (Chairman.) Mr. Monk is at headquarters, is he?—No.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) It is recommended to headquarters, and that is forwarded to headquarters.

(Chairman.) Are any inquiries made in the meantime? Before headquarters authorises a summons, is any further inquiry made?

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) If headquarters think the information before them is sufficient to authorise a summons being applied for, they authorise it at once, or they refuse it at once, or they recommend inquiries to be made. That is what I understand.

(Mr. Dickinson.) In this case there was a presumed suspicion.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes. It seems to have gone in the regular course.

(Chairman.) Yes, it seems to have been quite regular.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) And that summons was granted at once.

(Chairman.) That is all the evidence in this case.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes.

TWENTY-SIXTH DAY.

Thursday, 13th December, 1906.

PRESENT:

Sir David Brynmor Jones, K.C., M.P. (Chairman).
Willoughby Hyett Dickinson, Esq., M.P. (Barrister-at-Law).
Charles Algernon Whitmore, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law).
J. W. St. Lawrance Leslie, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law), Secretary.
J. F. Waley, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law), Assistant Secretary.

Mr. Livett: I appear for my friend, Mr. Schultess-Young, who is unavoidably detained to-day in the High Court.

Chairman: Very well.

Edward Emms, sworn.

E. Emms. 13 Dec. 1906

23794-5. (Mr. Livett.) You are a flower-seller, I think?—Yes.

23796. Where do you live?—10, Gibraltar Buildings, Bethnal Green.

23797. Do you remember the night of the 22nd October last?—Yes.

23798. Where were you then?—Coming through Brick Lane.

23799. At what time was that?—About five-and-twenty minutes past 12.

23800. Will you tell us what happened?—As I was coming along, I saw two or three people round a constable. I was on the opposite side of the road, and I crossed the road to them. The constable said to me, "What do you want here, Emms—" mentioning me by name.

23801. Did he address you by name?—He said my name like that. He said, "Out of it!" He shoved me. I never went away. He shoved me again. I never went away.

23802. To shove you away?—Yes. I did not go. He shoved me again; I never went then. He shoved me again, and then I shoved him back; and with that he drew his truncheon, and knocked me on the head insensible.

23803. Did you fall down?—Yes.

23804. What was the next thing you remember?—Being in the station. I was sitting in a chair.

23805. What happened there?—They sent for a doctor to attend my wounds. I refused to see the surgeon for the police. I wished to have one outside for myself, but they would not let me; so I refused to be attended by the surgeon for the police.

23806. Where were you?—In the police station.

23807. Where were you when the police surgeon came?—I was sitting in a chair.

23808. What was your condition then?—I was in a shocking condition, feeling seriously ill. I fainted. I could hardly sit in the chair. When they refused to let me have a surgeon on my side I got up off the chair, and I was pushed back into the chair again.

23809. By whom?—A police constable.

23810. By one of the constables there?—Yes.

23811. What did the surgeon do?—He dressed my wounds.

23812. After that what happened?—I was charged with assaulting the police.

23813. Were you charged alone?—Yes.

23814. Nobody charged with you?—No.

23815. Was no mention made of anyone else?—Yes; they mentioned a man of the name of Norrey.

23816. Do you know him?—Yes, I do.

23817. Had you seen him that night?—No; I had not seen him for over a week.

23818. More than a week before was the last time you saw him?—Yes.

23819. Did you see anybody assault the constable?—I never saw anything. I was not there a second before the constable shoved me.

23820. Then, I think, you were detained at the police station?—Yes.

23821. And taken before Mr. Cluer?—Yes.

23822. I think he remanded you on bail until the 30th October?—Yes.

23823. What happened on the 30th October?—Norrey was charged with me then.

23824. Norrey had been arrested in the meantime?—Yes.

23825. What was the result?—Mr. Cluer did not believe——

23826. (Chairman.) Before you come to that, were you represented by counsel or solicitor?—Yes, by counsel.

(Mr. Livett.) Mr. Schultess-Young, I believe, represented the prisoner at the police court.

(Chairman.) Did he represent Mr. Emms and Mr. Norrey?

(Mr. Livett.) No; not Norrey—only Emms.

23827. I think you have been convicted several times, have you not?—Yes.

23828. Did the police prove these convictions at the police court?—It was not necessary.

23829. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) This gentleman has asked you about convictions. You have got a shocking record, have you not?—Yes; it is my misfortune.

23830. I mean, you have been constantly in prison since 1899 down to the present year?—Yes.

23831. I may just as well prove them, to show the Commissioners the kind of offences. You have sometimes passed under the name of Fuller, have you not?—Yes.

23832. Sometimes as Emms?—Yes.

23833. And sometimes as Williams. I mean, you were not convicted under the name of Williams, I agree; but you sometimes passed under the name of Williams?—Once; yes.

23834. In January, 1899, you got a month, at the Central Criminal Court, for robbery?—Yes.

23835. In April, 1899, you got 21 days for larceny from the person?—No.

23836. Attempted larceny?—Yes.

23837. I beg your pardon. You are more familiar with these things than I am. Was that an attempt to rob a man in this neighbourhood of Brick Lane?—No.

23838. Where?—In the City.

23839. In the next year (April) did you get three months, at Worship Street, for stealing a watch?—Yes.

23840. Was that for stealing a watch in this neighbourhood of Brick Lane?—Yes.

23841. In September of the following year you got three months, at Worship Street, for being a suspected person?—Yes.

23842. And in the next year (December) you got three months, at Worship Street, for attempted larceny from the person?—Yes.

23843. Was that in this same neighbourhood of Brick Lane? You were convicted at Worship Street?—Yes.

23844. It must have been in the immediate neighbourhood?—Shoreditch somewhere.

23845. In the next year you got eighteen months at the Sessions for larceny from the person?—Yes.

23846. And in the next year, 1904, you got two months almost directly you came out, for an assault?—Yes.

23847. Was that for an assault in this neighbourhood of Brick Lane?—Yes.

23848. In the next year you got twelve months for attempting to pick pockets?—Yes.

23849. Was that again in this neighbourhood?—No.

23850. Where was that?—Clerkenwell.

23851. That is not very far away, is it?—It is not in the same district.

23852. You mean it is not the same police court?—No.

23853. It is not very far away, is it?—About a mile.

23854. Then there came two acquittals, and I will ask you about them in a moment. In this very year, on the 8th August, did you get a month for assaulting your own wife?—Yes.

23855. Amongst those records there is a charge of cutting and wounding a man in July of this year?—Yes.

23856. You were acquitted then?—Yes.

23857. Did you prove an alibi then?—Yes.

23858. Was Harding one of your witnesses?—Yes.

23859. That is the same Harding whose case we have been considering here?—Yes.

23860. Did Harding come to the police station on this night which you are now speaking about to try and bail you out?—Yes, he said so.

23861. He is a close friend of yours?—I live in his house.

23862. Are you one of his gang?—I do not know about "one of his gang." I never go with him as a rule.

23863. Not as a rule?—No.

23864. But you not infrequently go with him?—No.

23865. You have no regular work, have you?—No.

23866. Now a word about Norrey. You know Norrey very well, do you not?—Yes.

23867. You have known him intimately for eight years?—Yes.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I have similar evidence about this man as about Harding, but I do not think it necessary to go through the various statements.

23868. You do, do you not, hang about this immediate locality?—I have lived there all my life.

23869. And you spend all your time in the streets?—Not that I know of. I do not think so.

23870. Except when you are in bed, all your time is spent in the streets?—I do not think so.

23871. Where else do you go?—All over London—anywhere.

23872. The greater part of your time you spend in this immediate neighbourhood?—Of a night time, yes.

23873. And it is in this immediate neighbourhood that all these offences have been committed except the one in the City?—Yes.

23874. On this night in question that we are now speaking about you were with some young woman, were not you?—No.

23875. Are you quite sure you were not with a young woman?—Yes.

23876. Let me read you what the Magistrate's clerk wrote down. You are Edward Emms, are you not?—Yes.

23877. "Out of employment. I was on my way home and saw the P.C. and two or three people arguing, and I went up. My wife was not with me. A young woman was with me"?—No.

23878. Did you not say that?—No, I never said a young woman was with me. I said I was by myself.

23879. It is a very strange thing, is it not, that this statement should have been taken down? Think again?—The constable said I had a woman with me, but I denied that.

23880. No. This is your evidence: "My wife was not with me"?—Quite right.

23881. Did you say that?—Yes.

23882. How came you to say "My wife was not with me, a young woman was with me"?—No.

23883. You did not say anything of the kind?—No. I said my wife was not with me.

23884. Where do you say you were when you first saw the policeman?—Coming down Brick Lane towards Bethnal Green. I came from the Whitechapel district.

23885. You were coming down Brick Lane, were you?—Yes.

23886. On which side of the railway arch were you? On St. John's Street side?—Yes.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I will hand to the Commissioners a plan, and you will see that this is close to the locality in which the case we were investigating the other day took place, within a few yards. (The plan was handed to the learned Commissioners.)

23887. Do you see Sclater Street, which is the one we were talking of the other day.

(Chairman.) Yes.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) You will see Sclater Street runs into Brick Lane.

(Chairman.) Brick Lane runs at right angles to Sclater Street.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) It runs into Brick Lane.

(Chairman.) Yes.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Then you will see Brick Lane runs south of the plan and passes under the railway.

(Chairman.) Yes.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Then on the other side of the railway you come to Pedley Street.

(Chairman.) Yes.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) You will see there is a narrow passage there. Pedley Street is a narrow passage, I think.

(Chairman.) Pedley Street is at right angles to Brick Lane.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Yes, it is.

23888. Where do you say you were. I think you say you were coming from the north?—Yes; on the right-hand side.

23889. You were coming down on the right-hand side from the north?—Yes.

23890. Had you got so far as the railway arch?—Yes, just against it—just about a few steps.

23891. A few steps from the railway arch?—Yes.

23892. What was the first thing that attracted your attention?—Some people round a constable.

23893. Whereabouts was the constable?—He was standing with the people round him.

23893.* Whereabouts was it—on the further side of the railway arch from you? Supposing this is the railway arch, reaching from where you are now to that wall, I understand you were just coming to the entrance to the railway arch?—Yes.

23894. And the constable was under the arch, was he?—No, not exactly under the arch; at the end of the arch.

23895. At your end?—Yes.

23896. That means to say he would be somewhere close to you there by your left-hand side?—Yes; he was on the other side of the road. I was on a different side of the road. I was on the right-hand. He was on the left-hand.

23897. He was close to you, you say, only on the other side of the street?—Yes.

23898. And he was at the north end of the railway arch?—Yes.

23899. You are quite sure of that?—Yes, coming from Whitechapel.

23900. Pedley Street is down here and you are coming to the arch?—Yes

23901. We will assume that the arch begins just where this gentleman is?—Yes.

23902. You were just about as far off the arch as you are now?—Yes.

23903. Then the constable would be somewhere near where those books are?—No, because he was on the other side of the road.

23904. He was on the other side of the road, just where the books are?—Yes.

23905. So that he would be only a few paces from you when you first saw him?—Yes.

23906. Now, there is no mistake about the position, is there?—No.

23907. You are quite sure?—Yes.

23908. Was he only that short distance from you when you first saw him?—I do not know anything about that. I crossed the road when I saw the people round him.

23909. The road is not very wide, is it?—About as far from here to the wall.

23910. About the width of an ordinary street?—Yes.

23911. Do not let there be any misunderstanding about it. You were coming from Whitechapel, were you?—Yes.

23912. Which street did you come through to get to the arch?—I came round Whitechapel and straight through. It is a straight road.

23913. Down which road?—Whitechapel, and turned down Brick Lane.

23914. You got into Brick Lane. Brick Lane leads into Whitechapel?—It is one straight turning.

23915. You know Buxton Street and Pedley Street, do you not?—Yes.

23916. And you also know Sclater Street?—Yes.

23917. On which side of the arch were you? Were you on the Sclater Street side or on the Buxton Street side?—The Buxton Street side.

23918. I think you said you were coming from the north?—I was coming from Whitechapel to Bethnal Green, and I said I was on the right-hand side.

23919. Then you were coming from the south. Perhaps you misunderstood the points of the compass. You were at the other end of the arch?

23920. (Chairman.) Had you passed Buxton Street on your right hand?—Yes.

23921. Were you advancing then towards the railway arch?—Yes.

23922. You could see from the corner of Buxton Street and Brick Lane the railway arch?—Yes.

23923. On which side of the street were you walking?—On the right-hand side.

23924. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) We must begin again, because you have got into the wrong position. You are quite sure about that now?—Yes.

23925. You were coming up to the railway arch from the direction of Buxton Street?—Yes.

23926. You are quite sure?—Yes.

23927. You are quite sure you were on the right-hand side of the road?—Yes.

23928. That is the same side as Pedley Street, is it?—Yes.

23929. Do you say that the constable was on the other side of the road?—Yes, on the other side.

23930. Otherwise, is the description correct, that you were a few paces from the railway arch, and that the constable was in a corresponding position just outside the railway arch on the other side of the street?—Yes.

23931. You are quite sure of that?—Yes.

23932. There is no doubt about that?—No.

23933. So that at that time you would only be the width of the street from him?—Yes.

23934. Had you not noticed anything at all until you got that distance away from him?—No.

23935. Nothing at all?—No, and I will tell you for why. You can hardly see much on that side because as you come from the Bethnal Green side to where the constable was, there is a bend round like that (illustrating); there are some shop fronts like that, and you can hardly see round the bend until you get opposite Pedley Street.

23936. Where are the shops?—Near the railway arch. They stand out a yard.

23937. Do the shops go right up to the railway arch?—There is a wall just past there.

23938. There is a blank wall before you get to the railway arch?—A few yards long.

23939. On both sides of the road?—Yes, on both sides.

23940. (Chairman.) Brick Lane does widen, according to this plan, by Pedley Street?—Yes, it comes round a bend. You cannot see anything on the left-hand side coming from Whitechapel.

23941. You tell me you could see the railway arch?—Yes, but you cannot see anything on the left-hand side coming on the right-hand side.

23942. But the moment you get to Pedley Street you can see all right?—Yes, you can see all right then.

23943. Then you say, "Before I got to Pedley Street I did not see the constable"?—No.

23944. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) You say nothing attracted your attention until there was just the width of the street betwen you?—Yes.

23945. What was it that then attracted your attention?—Seeing three or four people round the constable. There was one chap pulling one way, and another was calling the constable a name.

23946. One chap was pulling another chap away?—Yes.

23947. And one chap was calling the constable a name, you say?—Yes.

23948. Did you hear that before you crossed the street?—No—when I stopped. I stopped on the side I was on, and walked across to have a look.

23949. Did you hear anything before you crossed the road?—No.

23950. Did you see anything before you crossed the road?—No. I saw the constable standing there, and people round him. That was all.

23951. You saw the constable standing?—Standing with like his back against the wall, and three or four chaps—I think there were some women, too—standing there.

23952. Three or four chaps and some women?—Yes. Standing on the kerb I did not have time to look round properly at all.

23953. As you crossed the road did you hear them call the constable bad names?—Yes. One was pulling another one away, and one was holloaing out.

23954. Did you see anybody strike the constable?—No.

23955. What was the constable doing with his back against the wall?—He was standing with his back towards the wall. He was not standing with his back against the wall, but with his back towards the wall.

23956. Do you know who the constable was?—Well, I knew him by sight, yes.

23957. You had never had any trouble or difficulty with that constable?—No.

23958. Had he ever spoken to you before?—Yes.

23959. He had spoken to you with reference to what?—He said, "Good night" many a time as I passed him going home.

23960. Only speaking to you in a friendly way?—Yes.

23961. Where had you been that evening?—In Whitechapel.

23962. But what had you been doing in Whitechapel?—Nothing particular.

23963. You do not go to Whitechapel for nothing. What had you been doing there?—I had been to see some friends up there.

23964. Who were the friends?—People I know.

23965. Yes, but let us know their names?—Some of them.

23966. I ask you the names of the people you had been with?—We do not call them by their proper names, you know—Mike, and one thing and another.

23967. Let us know what you call them by, their improper names. What names do you know them by?—There was Mike and Dicey, and a few more.

23968. Mike and Dicey. Who else?—A few more. I do not know their names.

23969. You do not pretend to these gentlemen you do not know their names?—I might see one man, and I might stop with him all night, and not know his name.

23970. Mike and Dicey?—Yes.

23971. What were you doing there?—Talking.

23972. Did you go up to Whitechapel to talk?—No.

23973. At what time had you gone up to Whitechapel?—About half past nine.

23974. Did you go up with anybody?—No.

23975. Did you go up to meet anybody?—No.

23976. What had you been doing at Whitechapel between half past nine and something after twelve?—Walking up and down, and one thing and another, and having a drink.

23977. Had you been drinking on and off between half past nine and twelve?—Yes.

23978. You had been drinking on and off between half past nine and half past twelve. How many were there in the company who had been drinking?—About five.

23979. Were you in public-houses practically the whole of the time from half past nine to half past twelve?—From one to another.

23980. The whole of those hours. Then you started to come back?—Yes.

23981. Did you come by yourself?—Yes.

23982. Quite?—I lived up that way. I had to go home. I lived in Bethnal Green.

23983. Was Norrey one of them?—No.

23984. Where had Norrey been that night?—I do not know. I had not seen him for over a week.

23985. Do you say it is quite untrue that you and Norrey and a woman were talking under the railway arch when the constable came up?—Yes.

23986. You have told us that you live in Gibraltar Buildings with Harding?—Yes.

23987. Where does Norrey live?—I do not know where Norrey lives.

23988. Does he live in that immediate neighbourhood?—I do not know where he lives.

23989. Do you know Poyser Street?—Yes.

23990. Do you not know that Norrey lives in Poyser Street?—No.

23991. Poyser Street Buildings are, as a matter of fact, only about four or five minutes' walk from Gibraltar Buildings, are they?—About ten minutes' walk, I should say.

23992. Do you tell these gentlemen that, although you have known Norrey intimately for eight years you do not know where he lives?—He has been travelling for about eight months, only when I see him I speak to him and go away again.

23993. Where did he live when you did see him?—In Gibraltar Gardens.

23994. Had the constable got his helmet on when you got there?—Yes.

23995. According to your story, you know nothing of the striking of a policeman?—I know nothing of the affair whatever.

23996. According to you, there would be seven or eight people there when you got up there?—I should say about that.

23997. Some men and some women?—Yes.

23998. Do you know any of the men or women who were there?—No.

23999. None of them?—No.

24000. Were any of the people whom you called as witnesses at the police-court there?—They said they were. I do not know. Two witnesses I had come to the station. They followed the ambulance, and came as witnesses, so that they must have been there.

24001. I will come to them in a moment. What I am asking you is this: When you got to the place there were seven or eight people there?—Yes.

24002. We know afterwards a large crowd collected?—I do not know.

24003. You do not know it, but we know it. Do you know of your own knowledge whether any of the people you called as witnesses were there when you first arrived there?—When I came to consciousness I could remember nothing hardly.

24004. I am asking you whether or not you are able to tell us who were there of the seven or eight people who were there?—I think I noticed Mrs. Allen, but I would not be sure.

24005. Was she a person you knew well?—No, I never spoke to her.

24006. Did you know her at the time?—Yes; I knew her by keeping a shop in the neighbourhood.

24007. Do you tell these gentlemen you think she was amongst those?—I think so. I would not be sure what happened.

24008. You think she was amongst the seven or eight people round the constable when you got there?—I think so.

24009. Those seven or eight people were close round the constable?—No; not close round him—standing round him.

24010. At any rate, as near as I am to you?—Yes.

24011. Are any of those seven or eight people who were standing round the constable here to-day?—I do not know.

24012. With the exception of Mrs. Allen, there is nobody whom you can suggest was one of that number?—No.

24013. All these people were between you and the constable, were they not?—Seven or eight are not many, if there were seven or eight.

24014. How was it the constable got so close to you, and you to him, that you began pushing each other?—I got to the kerb. He said: "What do you want, Emms?" He shoved me three or four times, and I shoved him back, and then he drew his truncheon and knocked me on the head. I do not remember any more.

24015. What did the shoving consist of on your part?—He told me to go away. I never moved. I never went away.

24016. What did he do?—Shoved me.

24017. What did you do?—I did nothing then. He shoved me again.

24018. You said he shoved you and you shoved him.—Yes, at the finish.

24019. You said he shoved you and you shoved him three times?—No. He shoved me three times, and the third time I shoved him back.

24020. You said just now: "He shoved me, I shoved him, he shoved me again, I shoved him again; he shoved me again, I shoved him again, and then he drew his truncheon and hit me"?—No. He shoved me twice, and I shoved him back, and he drew his truncheon and hit me on the head.

24021. How came you to tell these gentlemen ten minutes ago he shoved you and you shoved him three times?—Did I say I shoved him three times?

24022. Yes.—I do not recollect that. He shoved me, then he shoved me again, and then he shoved me again, and I shoved him back.

24023. You now say it was once you shoved him, do you?—Yes. The last time he shoved me.

E. Emms.
13 Dec. 1906.

24024. And then you were hit with the truncheon?—Yes.

24025. You do not remember anything after that?—No.

24026. Do you know where you were hit with the blow?—On the head.

24027. Where?—Here. (Indicating the top side of the head.) There is a scar there now.

24028. Did you walk away any distance from the place where you were hit?—I was shoved across the road. That is all.

24029. Who shoved you across the road?—The constable.

24030. After you were hit?—No, before I was hit. He shoved me from one side of the road to the other.

24031. After you were hit, did you move any distance away from the constable?—I do not know.

24032. Where was it you fell?—Against the corner of Pedley Street.

24033. In Pedley Street, was it?—At the corner of Pedley Street, I think. I am not sure.

24034. Where was the first blow struck with the truncheon?—Against Pedley Street—at the corner.

24035. At the corner of Pedley Street and Brick Lane?—Yes.

24036. So that, according to you, he did not strike you at all at the place at which you first went up to him?—No.

24037. According to you, both you and he had crossed the road again before he struck you, and, according to you, the blow was struck at the corner of Pedley Street?—Yes.

24038. What I suggest to you is this, that what happened was you never were on the left-hand side of the road at all, and that where the constable was on the right-hand side of the road under the arch?—Coming from Bethnal Green.

24040. I suggest that where the constable was assaulted, and where you were struck, was under the railway arch, and on the same side as Pedley Street?—He shoved me across the road, and that makes it the right-hand side coming from Whitechapel.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I have not the plan before me, and I think perhaps I have made a mistake. My recollection was that the constable was assaulted on the right-hand side.

(Chairman.) No, on the left-hand side. The witness seems to me to be agreeing with your plan in substance.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Yes, it was my mistake. I thought from recollection it was the other side.

24041. Now I must ask you a question about what happened at the station. When you got to the station you were bleeding very much, and were dazed?—Yes, I was insensible when I got to the station, I believe.

24042. They took you in an ambulance?—Yes.

24043. When you got there they suggested that the Divisional Surgeon should see you?—Yes.

24044. Did you say that you wanted to be seen by a private doctor?—Yes, for myself.

24045. Had you any means to pay for a doctor?—I could have got it.

24046. But you had not got it then?—No, not on me.

24047. Is there any doctor whom you regularly go to?—Yes, Dr. Rogers.

24048. Did you mention Dr. Rogers' name?—No.

24049. You did not tell them you had any means to pay a doctor, or were willing to pay a doctor?—No. I told them I was willing to pay for the doctor myself, as I did not want to be attended by the Divisional Surgeon.

24050. Did you tell anybody you were willing to pay for a doctor?—I said I wanted to see a doctor. That was as much as to say I would pay for it myself.

24051. Be careful. Did you ever tell anybody you were willing to pay for a doctor?—No, I did not mention that. If I asked for a doctor, it stands to reason I am going to pay him.

24052. It does not stand to reason that a man is going to pay a doctor when he has not any money?—I had means of paying him.

24053. The Divisional Surgeon was there, was he not?—Yes, he was there.

24054. And he came and asked to be allowed to examine you?—No, he did not ask me to allow him to examine me at all. As he walked into the room I got up off the chair, and I said, "I do not wish you to attend to me; if I cannot have a doctor myself, I will go in front of the Magistrate as I am." One of the constables got hold of me by my two shoulders, and put his knee in my stomach, and forced me down.

24055. As a matter of fact, you tried to resist?—I got off the chair.

24056. What do you say the constables did?—One of them got hold of me by the two shoulders. I should not think they wanted two constables to hold a man who was nearly insensible.

24057. I do not say it did require two constables, but two were engaged in assisting you and helping you while the Divisional Surgeon examined you?—Yes, in holding me up.

24058. You do not doubt, do you, that you were in a state in which you required the attention of a doctor?—No.

24059. You have said that the constable put his knee in your stomach?—Yes.

24060. Have you ever said that before?—Yes.

24061. Where did you say that?—At the police court.

24062. Did you say that before the Magistrate?—Yes.

24063. You said, "I was getting up from a chair and the constable knocked me back again"?—Yes.

24064. Did you say anything about his putting his knee in your stomach?—Yes.

24065. Who was the constable?—I know the constable.

24066. Would you recognise him?—Yes. He is that dark man over there.

24067. Is that the man there, who is standing up?—Yes.

(Chairman.) What is the name of the constable?

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Thomas Hawker.

24068. How many people were in the room at the time?—I did not take any note of it.

24069. At any rate, the Divisional Surgeon was there?—He had just come in.

24070. He was there, and if the constable had done that he could have seen him; he must have seen it?—Yes. There is another one sitting over there. He said to me, while I was bleeding in the chair, "You dirty bastard. I would murder you if I had my way."

24071. Is that the man there, who is standing up?—Yes.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) That constable's name is Payne.

24072. You say that happened when you were in that condition, and the Divisional Surgeon was there?—Yes. And he went like that (illustrating), as much as to put his two fingers in my face.

24073. You say he put his two fingers in your face and said he would murder you?—Yes.

24074. Was the Inspector there, too?—Yes.

24075. (Chairman.) What were the exact words?—"You dirty bastard, I would murder you if I had my way." And he put his two fingers in my face like that (illustrating). I never mentioned anything of that at the police court.

24076. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) All this was said in a room full of people?—Two or three constables there.

24077. And the Divisional Surgeon?—No, he was not there then. This was while they were waiting for the Divisional Surgeon to come.

24078. Do you mean that that was before you got up from your chair?—Yes, I was sitting in the chair then, or half laying in it like.

24079. You mean that was a purely gratuitous thing; there was no reason for it at all?—Certainly not.

24080. You were merely sitting there in a wounded state, and the man came up to you and made use of that expression?—Yes.

24081. Without any rhyme or reason at all?—Not that I know of.

24082. Had you anything to do with Payne before that occasion?—No.

24083. Was he a complete stranger to you?—Not exactly a stranger, but I had had no trouble with him, or anything of that.

24084. Do you know who were in the room at the time this happened?—No, I could not exactly recollect.

24085. How many minutes was that before the Divisional Surgeon came in?—Perhaps two or three.

24086. At any rate, the other constable was there?—I expect he was. I do not know. Yes, he must have been there. He was holding me in the chair.

24087. You say he was holding you in the chair?—Holding me in the chair. I kept falling forwards.

24088. He was supporting you and helping you?—Yes.

24089. At that time you were in a condition that you needed help?—Yes.

24090. And he was helping you?—Not that one, but the dark one.

24091. He was doing his best for you?—He was holding me up in the chair.

24092. And he was doing his best for you, so far as you know?—Yes.

24093. Whilst the constable was being kind to you and doing his best for you you suggest that the other constable came up and without any rhyme or reason said, "You dirty bastard, I would murder you if I had my way"?—Yes.

24094. Let there be no mistake about this. You say the man who was kind to you and was helping you was the man who afterwards put his knee into your stomach?—Yes.

24095. (Mr. Livett.) When you were before the Magistrate did you say anything about a woman being there?—They asked me if my wife was with me. I said no.

24096. Did you see any women there?—Yes.

24097. Did you mention that fact at the police court?—I said there were some fellows and some women standing round.

24098. Were they known to you?—No.

24099. And, as a matter of fact, you were quite alone?—Yes.

24100. Are the police in that district well aware of the character you bear?—Yes.

24101. Had anything happened that evening before you saw the constable, which was sufficient to excuse the way in which he struck you?—I had not seen him that night at all.

24102. (Chairman). Do you mean you had not seen Police-constable Jeffery?—No, I had not seen him.

24103. What day in the week was this?—Wednesday morning—after midnight.

24104. Then it was on a Tuesday evening that you went to Whitechapel in the way you have told us?—Yes.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Tuesday was the 23rd October and Wednesday was the 24th.

24105. (Chairman.) You told me it was a Tuesday you were thinking of. Mr. Muir says that Tuesday was the 23rd and not the 22nd?—Tuesday morning. It was after midnight you see.

24106. Am I to take it you are quite certain that when you told Mr. Bankes you had been to Whitechapel with four or five men, it was a Tuesday evening you went?—It was on the evening in question.

24107. On the evening in question. I was asking you that question with a view of testing you to see whether you knew one evening from another evening?—I did this, because I have cause to remember this evening.

24108. I know. That is common ground. How often in the week do you go to Whitechapel to spend an evening with your friends?—I go up very nearly every day.

24109. Yes, but I am talking of the evening?—Very often.

24110. About the same time—nine to half past?—Any time—I might get up there at 10, or I might get up there at seven.

24111. Do you generally spend your evenings in the way in which you told Mr. Bankes you had spent this particular evening?—Without I go to a music-hall, or anything of that sort.

24112. How often do you go to a music-hall?—About three times a week. It is only half a night.

24113. On this Monday evening or Tuesday evening, when you received this blow, had you been to a music-hall?—No, I had not been to a music-hall.

24114. Are you quite certain of that?—Yes.

24115. Why?—I remember—I have cause to remember where I went that day. I would not take any notice of another day.

24116. That you have cause to remember what happened when you came into Brick Lane, I suppose nobody will question, but why are you so certain of what took place before that evening?—I know I came away from Whitechapel. I do not know where I came from before, only in the morning part I was at Billingsgate. I came home and went to bed again until five, and I was walking perhaps in the neighbourhood of Brick Lane or Shoreditch that night.

24117. What were you doing about the streets?—Walking about. I have no work, and cannot get any.

24118. What time was it when you got into Brick Lane, do you think?—The top of Brick Lane, leading from Whitechapel?

24119. Yes?—It would take five or ten minutes to walk down there.

24120. From there to the archway?—Yes, it would take about ten minutes.

24121. You think you got there about twenty past twelve?—Yes, something like that.

24122. Where did you part from any of the friends you had been with?—They called at The Blind Beggars in the Whitechapel Road.

24123. What was the name of the last public-house?—That was it—The Blind Beggars, in Whitechapel.

24124. How far is that from the beginning of Brick Lane?—That is about five minutes' walk.

24125. Did you remain at The Blind Beggars until closing time?—No; we left just after 12 o'clock.

24126. It was not closed then?—No.

24127. Who was with you at The Blind Beggars?—Dicey.

24128. Who else?—Nobody else at that time.

24129. Did you and Dicey have drinks together at The Blind Beggars?—Yes, we had a drink.

24130. What was it?—Ale.

24131. Was it beer you were drinking all the evening?—Yes.

24132. No spirits?—No.

24133. Then you walked from The Blind Beggars, I gather, after talking at the corner, towards Brick Lane and towards the archway?—Yes.

24134. There are a good many people about, are there not, at that time of night?—Yes, it is very busy.

24135. Even as late as from a quarter to half-past twelve you see a great many people out in the streets?—Yes, because the public-houses are shutting.

24136. What acquaintances did you meet after leaving The Blind Beggars coming to this archway?—Nobody.

24137. Nobody?—Nobody at all.

24138. You know a lot of people there, do you not?—I know a few people. I might see people I know and pass them and not stop; I might say "Good-night."

24139. Are you certain you did not speak to some

E. Emms.
13 Dec. 1906.

woman, or some lady, or some friend of yours in walking to Brick Lane?—Yes; I spoke to nobody.

24140. That was rather odd, was it not?—I might have seen someone pass and said "Good-night," but not to stop and speak to anybody. I do not exactly recollect whether I stopped and spoke to anybody that night.

24141. But you did say, according to the clerk's note at the police court, that there was a woman with you?—No, not with me. I believe there is some mistake there.

24142. Was your wife out with you at all that night?—No.

24143. Where was she, so far as you knew?—At home.

24144. Do you know whether your wife came to the police station that night?—She never went there.

24145. Not at all,—No.

24146. You are positive of that?—Yes.

24147. Did any friend of yours go that you have heard of?—Yes—the man I am living with—Harding.

24148. When you had passed Buxton Street you could see the whole of the archway, you have told us?—I think you can see all the archway as you get past Buxton Street.

24149. You have told us that you saw the police constable?—Yes.

24150. Was he talking to anybody?—Yes. The crowd seemed to be hostile to him. One man was pulling another way, and another was holloaing out "f—— you."

24151. With whom did he appear to be talking?—The man who was being pulled away. Two or three were together, by the look of it, but I did not take much note: I was not there long enough for that.

24152. You were curious enough to cross the road?—Yes, I think anybody would do that.

24153. I am not suggesting any blame for crossing the road, but something unusual did attract your attention?—Yes.

24154. If it had been a police-constable simply talking to his friends you would not have stopped, I suppose?—No.

24155. Were the two or three men attempting to pull away some man from the constable?—Two or three—they were pulling another way, and another was halloaing out "f—— you," to the constable.

24156. Then your story is that you went up and stood there?—Yes, the same as anybody would do. I went and stood at the kerb, and I had not stood anything like a minute when the constable said, "What do you want, Emms?" I said "Nothing." He said "Out of it."

24157. What had become of the other people there?—They were there then.

24158. The people who had been struggling or disputing with the policemen were still there when he turned his attention to you?—Yes.

24159. For no reason?—For no reason whatever, only my standing there and stopping.

24160. Why did the other people stop disputing with him, or leave him alone, when you came up?—They did not stop. The constable turned his attention to me in a minute.

24161. Then the story you are telling us seems to be this: you cross the road because you see a police-constable engaged in a quarrel or something of the kind with two or three men, and two men are trying to pull another man from the policeman?—Yes. He was not in the constable's hands. The constable was standing there, and they were trying to pull him away, to take him home.

24162. He had been attacking the policeman?—Yes, it seemed like that.

24163. It looked like the end of something; either the policeman had struck him or he had struck the policeman. That was the sort of idea you had got?—Yes, that is what I came to the conclusion it was.

24164. You looked, and then the police-constable turned to you?—Yes, in a minute.

24165. And the other people did nothing?—I do not know what they did. I did not take any more notice of them. The constable shoved me two or three times, and I shoved him back, and then he drew his truncheon and hit me. I remember no more then, and I do not know whether the other people went or anything.

24166. You seem to have had a bit of a struggle with the policeman?—I shoved his hand off me.

24167. He put his hand on you?—He was shoving me. I tried to shove him away.

24168. He tried to shove you first, I understand?—Yes.

24169. Then you shoved him?—Yes.

24170. You do not know where the other people were then?—No; I do not know where they were then. I did not take any more notice of it. It was all done in a tick.

24171. It is rather extraordinary, is it not, that while the other people were still there, the people he had been struggling with, or with whom the dispute had been, he should simply, because you came up, attack you?—If they see the likes of me coming through there at any time of night, and there are three or four constables, they always set about us, and we cannot say anything. All we have to do is to run away. If they touch us we cannot do anything back to them, or we are charged with assaulting the police.

24172. The magistrate dismissed the case against you?—Yes.

24173. You can suggest no reason why the policeman should go for you?—No, only that he knew me; he knew I had a bad character, and knew of my going down Brick Lane. That is the thing I put it down to.

24174. Let me understand this clearly. I understand this man had never arrested you?—No.

24175. You had never been in Court when he was in Court giving evidence in a case in which you were concerned?—No, never.

24176. You had never come across him in the way of business at all,—No.

24177. The only thing you knew of him was seeing him in the street and passing the time, or something like that?—Yes.

24178. Had you ever had friendly conversation with him?—He has said "Good-night" to me when I have gone by. They most all do it.

24179. You think, however, he knew pretty well of the previous convictions?—Yes, he knew; I have not the slightest doubt about that.

24180. Is it your suggestion that because he knew of the previous convictions, he hit you on the head in this way?—He fastened on me. I take it this way: If the other people were working people, he would fasten on me, because he had a better case; it is twenty to one on me not getting out of a case at the police court, or anywhere else.

24181. What do you think he has to gain by it?—I cannot see anything to gain by it.

24182. We will take it that this police-constable knew all about you, that there was a crowd there, and that there had been some kind of disputation. Then, I understand, your suggestion is that he went for you because he would be most likely to be able to get a conviction against you?—Yes.

24183. That is the suggestion you are making?—Yes, that is all I can make, I think.

24184. What was he to gain by that?—I do not know what he could gain by it. They might know what they gain by it, but I do not know what they gain by it.

24185. I suppose you know that in this case the police-constable was himself damaged?—Yes. I did not know anything of that.

24186. But you know that he himself received hurt upon this occasion, so he said. You were not in a condition to judge of his condition, whatever be the truth of the matter?—No.

24187. But you know now, do you not, as a matter of fact, that, somehow or another, he had received injuries on that night?—Yes.

24188. (Mr. Dickinson). I understand you to say that the policeman hit you on the head, and you dropped at once?—I do not know if I walked a few steps or not; I do not remember any more after I got the hit.

24189. That took place close to the arch?—Yes.

24190. On the left-hand side of the road?—Yes.

24191. How did the policeman shove you; in which direction did he shove you?—He shoved me across the road to the other side of the road. There is the arch, and there is Pedley Street. If you shove a man like that—(illustrating)—you would get right across to Pedley Street.

24192. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) He does not suggest that he had been struck on the left-hand side of the road?—On the right-hand—on the left-hand coming from Bethnal Green.

24193. (Mr. Dickinson.) He shoved you across Pedley Street?—Yes. E. Emms. 13 Dec. 1906.

24194. What distance is Pedley Street?—From where the constable first started to shove me?

24195. Yes?—It is only the length of the road.

24196. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Thirty yards?—No, nothing near thirty yards.

24197. (Mr. Dickinson.) What kind of a road is Pedley Street?—It is very narrow—about two yards wide.

24198. Do you call it a road or a court?—I should call it a court myself. It is called Pedley Street. It leads into the railway station there.

JOHN NORREY, sworn.

24199. (Mr. Livett.) You are a labourer, I think?—Yes. J. Norrey.

24200. Where do you live?—4, Poyser Street, Old Bethnal Green Road.

24201. Do you know Mr. Emms?—I did know him about a twelve-month ago.

24202. Previous to the 22nd October last, when had you last seen him?—Before that date?

24203. Before the 23rd October—before the last week in October?—I saw him some fifteen or sixteen days before this occurred.

24204. Were you with him at all on that day?—No, only spoke to him as I saw him, and then walked past, and that is all.

24205. You had seen him that day?—I had seen him that day.

24206. Where had you seen him?—High Street, Shoreditch.

24207. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Does he mean on this day, or fifteen days before?—When I saw him was fifteen days before I was arrested for the assault. Fifteen days before I was arrested I saw him.

24208. (Mr. Livett.) You were arrested on the 27th October. You had not seen him at all on the 23rd October, the day the affair took place?—No.

24209. Where were you on the evening of the 23rd October?—Walking about.

24210. Were you at all in Brick Lane?—No.

24211. (Chairman.) You said you were walking about?—Yes.

24212. On the evening of what day—on the evening of the 22nd, on which this occurrence took place?—Yes.

24213. The evening before the beginning of the 23rd?—Yes.

24214. You have heard Emms tell his story this morning here, have you not?—Yes.

24215. Had you seen him on the day on which what he has told us happened did happen?—No.

24216. You had not seen him that day?—No.

24217. Where were you on the evening before the 12.30 a.m. on which that occurrence took place?—Walking about.

24218. That is what Mr. Livett was asking you. According to Emms, he was hit on the head at half-past 12; that is to say, at half-past midnight. He has told us what he did on the evening that had just ended. What did you do?—I was walking about all day long.

24219. (Mr. Livett.) Where was that?—Shoreditch and Bishopsgate.

24220. What did you do after you had been walking about that evening?—Went home.

24221. At what time was that?—About three minutes to 11.

24222. How do you fix the time?—Because I noticed the time.

24223. You noticed the time when you went in?—Yes.

24224. What did you do when you got in?—Sat down and played a game of draughts.

24225. Who with?—My sister.

24226. Was anybody else there?—No. Just as I got to the room, Mrs. Baker was coming up the stairs.

24227. What time was that?—That was about three or four minutes past 11.

24228. Directly you got in?—Yes.

24229. After you had finished playing draughts, what happened?—I played another game with Mrs. Baker.

24230. What time did you finish altogether?—I sat down in the chair, and went to bed about ten past 12.

24231. Did you go out again at all that night?—No.

24232. I think, on the 27th October following, you were arrested, were you not?—I do not remember the date I was arrested.

24233. You remember being arrested?—Yes.

24234. What was the charge?—A charge of assaulting a constable.

24235. Do you know his name?—I do not know the name.

24236. Had you ever seen him before the date on which you were arrested?—Seen who.

24237. This constable?—No.

24238. (Chairman.) Police-constable Jeffery?

(The Witness.) No, I never saw him before.

(Chairman.) Will Police-constable Jeffery stand up? (P.C. Jeffery stood up.)

24239. Had you ever seen that man before you were arrested?—No.

24240. (Mr. Livett.) What did you say when you were arrested?—I was walking along Virginia Road on Saturday night, at about twenty—or twelve—minutes past 10. Then I heard some people shout out, "Fire!" and I went to run to see what was the matter. When I got to the corner, the police-constable who arrested me—I do not know his name—said to me, "We want you." I said, "What for?" He said, "For assaulting one of our people last Monday night." I said, "Oh! you have made a mistake. I am innocent, and I can prove an alibi." After that I was taken to the station. I turned round and asked to be put up with other people for identification—to be picked out by the constable that I assaulted. I did not do it.

24241. Are you sure that you had never seen this Police-constable Jeffery before?—No.

24242. When was the first time you did see him?—On the morning when he was giving evidence against me.

24243. At the police court?—Yes.

24244. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) You were arrested on the 27th, were you not?—I forget the date.

24245. What day of the week was it?—The day I was arrested was a Saturday night.

24246. Was that on the Saturday night you were arrested?—Yes.

24247. You are quite sure about that?—Yes.

24248. That was the night you were taken to the station?—Yes.

24249. When you got to the station you asked to be put with other people to be identified, did you not?—Yes.

24250. Who was it you asked—the Inspector or the station sergeant?—I asked the constable that arrested me.

J. Norrey. 13 Dec. 1906.

24251. Was it not explained to you that inasmuch as you had been taken on a warrant, which was addressed to the constable to arrest you by name, no question of identification arose at all, because the warrant was to arrest you. They explained that to you, did they not? When you asked to be identified, they told you they had taken you on a warrant?—No, they never told me at all about a warrant. When the police constable arrested me, he said he wanted me for assault on one of his people.

24252. Yes, I know, but at the station when you said you wanted to be identified, did they not explain to you that you had been taken on a warrant?—They did not say anything at all about a warrant.

24253. Perhaps you do not understand it. Your name is John Norrey, is it not?—Yes.

24254. And this is the man whose name was in the warrant. There is no other John Norrey, so far as you know, is there?—No.

24255. Did you say that you were a bricklayer?—No.

24256. Or a labourer?—I said I was a labourer.

24257. You do not work regularly, do you?—I do when I get a chance.

24258. It is not often you get a chance, is it?—I do two or three days a week.

24259. Every week?—Yes.

24260. Just give me the name of the last person you have worked for three days a week.—A constant job?

24261. Yes.—Mr. Ingram Perkins, of Chiswell Street.

24262. When was that?—About 18 months ago.

24263. And you have not worked regularly since then?—No.

24264. Was that before you were convicted or after you were convicted?—I think that was before I was convicted.

24265. So that there was a time when you worked regularly?—Yes.

24266. And then you took to bad ways?—No. I did not take to no bad ways at all.

24267. But you attempted to steal a gold watch and chain, and you were sentenced to eight months' hard labour, at the North London Sessions?—Quite right.

24268. Do you not call that bad ways?—I never attempted to steal it; I was charged with being concerned in stealing the watch.

24269. And you got eight months for it?—Yes.

24270. (Chairman.) Did you plead "Not guilty?"—I pleaded "Not guilty."

24271. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) You were tried before a jury?—Quite right.

24272. At the North London Sessions?—Yes.

24273. And you were convicted?—Yes.

24274. You were charged with being concerned, with others, in attempting to steal this watch?—Yes.

24275. Were the others engaged in this stealing some of the Harding gang?—No.

24276. Who are the people who were supposed to be concerned with you in attempting to steal this gold watch and chain?—One was named Green.

24277. Who was the other?—I only saw the two men a couple of days before that. I never knew them before.

24278. Who was the other man besides Green?—I forget the other man's name; I only knew him by talking to him.

24279. Were you all three charged together at the Sessions?—Yes.

24280. Do you tell these gentlemen you do not know who the third man was? Be a bit careful. Were you all three convicted?—Yes.

24281. One was Green. Who was the other?—I do not know the man's name, but the name he gave I think was Brown.

24282. Have you seen him since?—No.

24283. Where did this attempt at robbery take place?—In Whitecross Street.

24284. How far is that from Brick Lane?—I should think half an hour's walk.

24285. That happened in 1905, and you got eight months?—Yes.

24286. Then in 1906, this year, in May, you got eight weeks for assaulting a barman?—Yes.

24287. That was in the Crown public-house in Brick Lane?—Yes.

24288. Were you alone on that occasion, or in company with others?—I was alone—by myself.

24289. I suggest to you that you are well known in Brick Lane to the tradesmen there, as associating with Harding and his gang. Be a little bit careful?—I do not associate with Harding or his gang at all. I associate with myself.

24290. You associate with yourself?—Yes—I keep by myself.

24291. Do you spend a great deal of your time in the streets in Brick Lane?—Never been in Brick Lane for the last four months.

24292. Four months is not very long. Four months ago you had a quarrel with these fellows, had you not?—Which fellows?

24293. Emms?—Seven or eight months ago.

24294. Emms is one of Harding's lot?—I do not know; I do not know whether he is; I cannot follow that man about; I cannot tell who he belongs to.

24295. But you know very well that Emms was in the same house with Harding?—I do not know that.

24296. Did they live together before you quarrelled with them?—No; I did not know it.

24297. What day of the week was it that you were playing draughts with Mrs. Baker?—On the Monday night.

24298. You are quite sure it was Monday night?—Yes.

24299. It was a Monday, was it?—On a Monday night.

24300. Have you ever played draughts with Mrs. Baker on any other occasion?—Yes; I had played two or three games the week before.

24301. You are in the habit of playing draughts with Mrs. Baker?—Yes.

24302. Does Mrs. Baker live in the same house?—Yes.

24303. So that there is nothing peculiar in the fact that you played draughts with Mrs. Baker?—No.

24304. You play sometimes on a Monday, sometimes on a Tuesday, and sometimes on a Wednesday, just as it happens?—I do not pick out certain nights to play; I play any night.

24305. And you are in the habit of playing draughts with your sister?—Yes.

24306. And you play any night?—Yes.

24307. You live in Pedley Street, do you not?—In Poyser Street.

24308. How far is Pedley Street from Poyser Street?—I do not know it.

24309. You know Brick Lane, do you not?—Yes.

24310. You know where the railway arch crosses over Brick Lane?—Yes.

24311. How far is Poyser Street from there?—I should think it would be about half an hour and ten minutes' walk.

24312. Half an hour and ten minutes' walk?—Yes, or half an hour and five minutes' walk.

24313. You say to these gentlemen that it is half an hour and ten minutes' walk, do you?—Yes.

24314. Am I to add those two together?—Yes.

24315. That would be 40 minutes altogether?—Yes; some people walk quicker than others. In my opinion I think it is half an hour and ten minutes.

24316. That is 40 minutes' walk?—Yes.

24317. I suppose that would be two miles, would it not?—I do not know. I am not a judge of walking.

24318. You do nothing else but walk now, do you not? You spend your time walking about the streets?—I cannot do that. I have to try and get my living.

24319. You do not work now?—No.

24320. When was the last time you worked for anybody?—Last Thursday, down by the side of Fresh Wharf.

24321. When was the last day before that?—A few days ago before that; Monday or Tuesday—Tuesday, I think it was.

24322. That is this week, is it?—Last week.

24323. You have not worked at all this week, have you?—No, not at present.

24324. And you had worked on Tuesday and Thursday last week?—Yes.

24325. Did you do any work the week before?—Two or three days before.

24326. Can you remember whether you did or not?—Yes, I did; one or two weeks before.

24327. Who did you work for?—If you do a day's work, you have not to put it in a book, have you?

24328. If you play a game of draughts, you do not put that down in a book?—I never put that down in a book at all.

24329. There is no reason why you should put down that you play a game of draughts any more than that you should put down that you do a day's work?—I do not think three or four days is a long time to remember.

24330. The day you were arrested was a Saturday?—Saturday night.

24331. Was that the Saturday in the same week that you had been playing draughts on the Monday?—Yes.

24332. Between the Monday and the Saturday had you heard that anybody said that you had been engaged in this assault on the constable?—No.

24333. You had not heard?—No.

24334. You heard nothing at all about your name being mentioned in connection with this assault?—No.

24335. Had you heard that a constable had been assaulted?—No.

24336. You had heard nothing at all about it?—No.

24337. If you had not heard that the constable had been assaulted, you could not have heard the day on which he was assaulted or the time at which he was assaulted?—No.

24338. And you had not only not heard that a constable had been assaulted, but you had not heard either the day, the time, or the place where he had been assaulted?—No; I heard nothing whatever about it.

24339. That is quite plain, is it?—Quite.

24340. (Chairman.) That was, when you were arrested you had not heard?—I had not heard at all before the constable arrested me.

24341. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) What had you been doing that week between the Monday and the Saturday?—I did one or two odd days' work.

24342. Let us see if you can remember what you had been doing that week between the Monday and the Saturday?—I was at work two days.

24343. Which days?—Wednesday and Friday.

24344. On Wednesday and Friday you had been at work?—Yes.

24345. Who did you work for?—Down alongside Fresh Wharf.

24346. Give me some information, so that I can go and test this. What sort of work had you been doing?—Carrying boxes down at Fresh Wharf.

24347. Who had engaged you?—You have to go down there and chance it.

24348-9. You go down and stand on the wharf, do you?—Yes.

24350. Would your name be entered in a book when you are taken on?—No; they give you a ticket.

24351. Do they know your name there?—No.

24352. Do you give your name?—No.

24353. Is there anybody there who knows you by name?—There might be a couple who know me.

24354. There might be one?—There might be two or three people who know me.

24355. What is the name of the wharf?—Fresh Wharf.

24356. Do you know the people it belongs to?—No, I do not.

24357. What sort of work were you doing?—Carrying boxes.

24358. From where to where?—From one place to another.

24359. In the wharf?—No.

24360. Outside?—Yes.

24361. Do you know the name of the ganger?—Lang.

24362. His name is Lang, is it?—Yes.

24363. Is he the man who engages the men?—Yes.

24364. Is he the man who engaged you on those two days?—Yes.

24365. Do you know where he lives?—I do not know where he lives.

24366. Is he in regular work at Fresh Wharf?—Yes.

24367. Can you say when you were there?—It was a Wednesday and a Friday, I think.

24368. You are quite sure about that?—Yes.

24369. No mistake at all?—No.

24370. Were you there the whole day?—No, I left off about half past eleven.

24371. Each morning?—Yes.

24372. How long would you work there?—From about half past eight or eight o'clock, to twelve, according to what there is to do.

24373. On each of these days you were working from half past eight or eight, to twelve?—Yes.

24374. Did you go home those nights?—No, not when I was early.

24375. Did you sleep at home every day that week?—Always did.

24376. You went home and slept at home every night, did you?—Yes.

24377. On the Saturday you were arrested?—Yes.

24378. Do you know the constable who arrested you? Do you know Greenfield?—No, I do not know him.

24379. Would you know him again if he stood up?—Yes, I daresay I should.

24380. Is that Greenfield who is standing up?—That is the constable who arrested me.

24381. Did you know him before?—No.

24382. Never seen him before?—I have seen him once or twice.

24383. I mean, you know him by sight?—Yes.

24384. And he knew you by sight?—I should think so, for him to arrest me.

24385. Were you standing in Virginia Road?—I just came along Virginia Road.

24386. Did you see the constable coming towards you?—No.

24387. But, somehow or another, when he was close to you, you started to run up Mount Street, did you not?—No, I never saw the constable.

24388. He must have been very close to you when you started to run?—No. Some people halloaed out "Fire!" I went to run, and, as I got to the corner, the constable said to me, "Oh! you are the fellow we want." I said, "What for?"

24389. Do you mean to say you were running before you saw the constable?—Yes.

24390. Did he not run after you down Mount Street?—I do not know if he ran after me or not.

24391. Think. You are telling these gentlemen you heard somebody call out "Fire!" and you ran accidentally up against the constable?—I did not run up against the constable at all. I ran to the corner and upon that the constable arrested me.

24392. In Mount Street?—Yes.

24393. Had he not been running after you?—No, not that I was aware of.

24394. Were you actually running at the time you fell?—Yes.

24395. You fell in Mount Street?—At the corner.

J. Norrey.
13 Dec. 1906.

24396. You trod on some orange peel and tumbled down?—Yes.

24397. And in a moment the constable was on you?—The constable said, "Oh, you are the fellow we want."

24398. Did you know that he had been running after you?—No.

24399. Then he said, "You are the man we want"?—Yes.

24400. Did he tell you what he wanted you for?—He told me he wanted me for an assault on one of his own people.

24401. What did you say to that?—I turned round and said, "You have made a mistake. I can prove I am innocent. When was it?" He said, "Last Monday." I said, "I can prove an alibi, and that I am innocent."

24402. (Chairman.) "You have made a mistake; I am innocent; I can prove an alibi"?—Yes.

24403. Then you went on to say, "I was at home on Monday"?—Yes.

24404. To the police-constable, then?—Yes.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I think the man said the policeman told him it was Monday.

24405. What I am suggesting to you is that when you fell down, directly you got up he spoke to you?—Yes.

24406. And then, before he said anything, you said to him, "I am innocent, and can prove an alibi"?—Yes.

24407. Do not do yourself an injustice. I suggest to you that the constable, when he came up to you, said he wanted you, and then you at once said, "I am innocent, and can prove an alibi"?—When he told me what it was for. He told me it was for assaulting one of his people. I said, "When?" He said, "Last Monday." I said, "You have made a mistake."

24408. Were you astonished at being taken by the constable?—I was that.

24409. Were you flustered?—What do you mean—excited?

24410. Yes, upset?—I was thoroughly surprised at being taken for nothing—what I did not know anything at all about.

24411. I suggest to you, you have made a mistake as to what took place, and that you said, before he had time to say anything to you, you were innocent and could prove an alibi?—I did not. I never thought of it until he arrested me and told me what he arrested me for.

24412. He never told you the time at which the assault happened?—No.

24413. So, for all he told you, it might have happened in the morning?—He told me it was for an assault on one of his own people on the Monday, and he said, "You know." I said, "I know nothing about it."

24414. Do you say he told you the time?—He did not say the time. He said, "Last Monday night."

24415. Not any time at night at all?—No, not any time.

24416. It might have been 8 or 9 o'clock?—I did not know what time it was.

24417. Of course, this alibi of yours would not apply to that. If you had known beforehand at what time the constable was assaulted this alibi of yours was all right, but if the assault had taken place at 8 o'clock the alibi you are talking about would not apply?—No.

24418. When you spoke to the constable and said, "I can prove an alibi," were you thinking of Mrs. Baker and your sister and the draughts?—No, I was not.

24419. What did you mean by an alibi?—I could prove that I was at home last Monday night at 11 o'clock when he told me it was done at 12 o'clock.

24420. You say now it was done at 12 o'clock?—He told me it was done last Monday night late.

24421. As I have pointed out to you, it might have been 8 or 9 or 10 o'clock?—I do not know. I do not know what time it was.

24422. You had no alibi which applied to 9 or 10 o'clock?—No.

24423. You say the alibi you were talking about was an alibi which applied after 11?—Yes, 11 and after.

24424. And you had got it in your mind that that was what you were going to prove—that Mrs. Baker and your sister had been playing draughts with you after 11?—Not when he came to arrest me. I did not think about Mrs. Baker or about my sister, but I was thinking I was at home at that time.

24425. Did you play draughts with Mrs. Baker or with your sister any other night that week?—Two or three nights before that—the week before.

24426. Can you fix a day?—I cannot.

24427. So that the week before it may have been either on Thursday or Friday?—It might have been Thursday or Friday or Wednesday.

24428. It might have been Wednesday, Thursday, or Friday the week before?—Yes.

24429. But this week it must have been on Monday?—You have to refer back, do you not.

24430. Did you play draughts with them any night that week between the Monday and the Saturday?—Yes.

24431. What night that week did you play draughts with them?—Wednesday night, I think.

24432. Are you sure of that?—Yes.

24433. You played draughts with both Mrs. Baker and your sister on Wednesday night?—Yes.

24434. You are sure?—Yes.

24435. Saturday night was when you were arrested?—Yes.

24436. Do I understand you to say point blank that you were never in Brick Lane, or never under that arch, or near the arch, on Monday night at all?—Yes.

24437. That is your story, is it?—Yes.

24438. One more question about these draughts. Did you play draughts on any other night in the week you were arrested, except on the Monday and the Wednesday?—Friday.

24439. Friday, now you remember?—Yes.

24440. So that you played the night before you were arrested?—I am talking of the Monday or Tuesday morning. I was playing that same week.

24441. I am speaking of the same week in which you were arrested. You were arrested on Saturday?—Yes.

24442. How many nights a week did you play draughts with Mrs. Baker and your sister?—Twice.

24443. Only twice?—Or three times at the most.

24444. Cannot you remember whether you played draughts more than twice or three times?—About three times.

24445. But was it twice or three times?—I cannot remember whether it was three nights or two nights.

24446. You cannot remember whether you played two nights after the Monday or one night?—I played three times in the one week.

24447. Are you quite sure about that?—Yes. I am certain.

24448. Three times in the week in which you were arrested?—Yes.

24449. Which nights?—I do not know the nights for certain. I know one night was the Wednesday night. I do not know whether it was on the Monday or Tuesday I was playing in the same week. I know I played three times that week.

24450. You are certain you were playing on Wednesday night in the week in which you were arrested?—Yes.

24451. But you are not sure whether it was the Monday night or the Tuesday night of that week?—Yes. I played three different nights that week, but I cannot say for certain whether it was Monday or Tuesday night.

24452. I do not want to catch you, but I want to be quite sure that you understand what I am asking you about. I understand you now say you played three times in the week in which you were arrested?—Yes.

24453. That is clear?—Yes.

24454. The only night you are quite sure about is the Wednesday?—Yes.

24455. And you are not sure whether it was the Monday or the Tuesday?—That is right.

24456. You are quite sure of that?—Yes.

24457. So that you are sure you played on Wednesday?—Yes.

24458. You are not sure whether it was the Monday or the Tuesday you played that week?—Yes.

24459. And you played one other day, but you are not sure which day it was?—Friday that was.

24460. Friday, you think?—I am sure that it was Friday.

24461. So you are sure it was the night before you were arrested?—Yes.

24462. You are quite sure about Friday, the day before you were arrested?—Yes.

24463. You are quite sure about the Wednesday?—Yes.

24464. But you are not quite sure it was Monday or Tuesday?—Yes.

24465. There is no mistake about that at all, is there?—No.

24466. You understand my question?—Yes.

24467. You are giving me now what your recollection is?—Yes.

24468. Now, let me point out to you that if you do not remember whether it was Monday or Tuesday——?—It is no good my saying it was Tuesday if I am not quite certain, is it?

24469. No, but I want to know what you are certain about. You are certain it was Friday and Wednesday, but you are not sure whether it was Monday or Tuesday?—No.

24470. (Mr. Livett.) You have been asked certain questions about what happened that week. Is the story you have told us to-day the same that you told at the police court on the 30th, when the facts were comparatively fresh in your memory?—Yes.

24471. Will you tell us once more what happened when the policeman arrested you?—Before the constable arrested me, or when he did arrest me?

24472. When he did arrest you?—He turned round and said to me he wanted me for an assault on one of his own people.

24473. And what did you say then?—I turned round and said, "When?" He said, "Last Monday night." I said, "You have made a mistake, because I was at home last Monday night at 11 o'clock."

24474. Are you sure that is all he said when you asked him about it?—Yes.

24475. (Chairman.) Let me know a little more about you, please. You say you live at Poyser Street?—Yes, at No. 4.

24476. Have you got a room there, and is that what you and your sister have?—No, we have three rooms—one room for me, and one room for my sister and her husband.

24477. One room for yourself?—Yes.

24478. And one room for your sister and her husband?—Yes.

24479. Is his name Gibbons?—Yes.

24480. Therefore, your sister is Mrs. Gibbons?—Yes.

24481. What is the third room used for?—That is the kitchen.

24482. How does Gibbons earn his living?—He is a market porter.

24483. Does Mrs. Gibbons, your sister, do anything?—Yes.

24484. What does she do?—She hawks.

24485. Does Mrs. Baker live at No. 4, Poyser Street, too?—In the same house as I do.

24486. She has got another room there, I suppose?—Yes.

24487. What is her business?—I do not know. I do not know her business at all.

24488. How long have you been living at Poyser Street together with the Gibbons?—About eight or nine months.

24489. And Mrs. Baker's acquaintance you have made since then, have you. Is that the case?—Yes.

24490. You told, I think it was Mr. Livett, that you had seen Emms about 15 days before this occurrence?—Before I was arrested.

24491. Where did you meet him?—I saw him in High Street, Shoreditch.

24492. Did you speak to him?—I nodded my head to him and walked on.

24493. No conversation with him?—No conversation.

24494. Have you not spoken at all since this dispute?—No, we had a row about six to eight months ago.

24495. Was there a row also between you and Harding?—No.

24496. No row?—No.

24497. No row with anybody else?—No. Only me and Emms had a few words together, and since then we never spoke for about six to eight months ago.

24498. What were the few words about?—About the drinking, and we had a row over a game.

24499. Did you come to blows?—No.

24500. Then you are perfectly certain you had not come together in any way and become friendly again?—No. We do not take notice of one another. If he is one side of the road and I am on the other I nod my head, but we have no conversation with one another.

24501. You are certain you never met Emms when you were both in the company of a woman?—Yes.

24502. Since the row, I mean?—Yes.

24503. The row had nothing to do with a woman?—I do not know. What row?

24504. The row with Emms?—I do not know what it was about. I never heard it.

24505. I am going back now to six or eight months ago, when you had this dispute. I do not quite gather what it was. Was it about a woman?—No.

24506. But about a game?—About a game.

24507. The reason I am asking you is this: That Police-constable Jeffery said at the police-court (you were there, and I daresay you heard him) that Emms and you, Norrey, were quarrelling?—No.

24508. With a woman, or, at any rate, that there was a woman with you, and that there was quarrelling going on on this very night?—No. I never saw Emms. The first time I saw Emms after I had a row was 15 days before he was charged.

24509. So you have said. Did you hear Jeffery give evidence at the police-court.—Yes.

24510. You were not defended, were you?—No.

24511. Not by counsel or solicitor?—No.

24512. Nobody appeared for you then?—No.

24513. Did you take any part in the proceedings? Did you ask any questions?—In the proceedings? Being charged?

24514. At the police-court, when you were before the magistrate?—Yes, I told him I was perfectly innocent.

24515. But you heard Jeffery say, did you not, that you and Emms and a woman were under the archway, or near the archway; that the woman was crying, and that he came up. You heard him say that?—Yes.

24516. All that, according to you, is untrue?—That is untrue, every word. Every word is untrue. I had not been to the place he said.

24517. If you were not there, you cannot be certain every word is untrue, because Emms and a woman may have been there?—I mean about me.

24518. That is another point. That is why I want to be very careful. You say you were not there, whatever Jeffery may have thought?—No.

24519. Had you been very much with Emms until this row took place?—We were very great friends. We knew one another for about six or seven years.

J. Norrey. 13 Dec. 1906.

24520. Did you know Harding as well?—I have known him by being about; that is all.

24521. Emms you were very friendly with?—Yes, for six or seven years before we had a row.

24522. You used to be about the streets a good deal together?—Yes.

24523. Spending the evenings together?—Yes.

24524. That evening, I think you said, you had been walking in Virginia Road?—On the night I was arrested?

24525. No; on the night in question, we will call it?—I had been walking there by myself.

24526. You had done no work that day?—No.

24527. It was not one of the days which you gave to the learned counsel on which you did work recently?—No.

24528. What had you been doing all the day?—Walking about down there to see if I could get a day's work. I could not get any work, so I came back.

24529. You do not walk about at four or five in the afternoon to see if you can get a day's work?—I mean in the morning.

24530. You had been out early to try to get work?—Yes.

24531. And, not being able to get work, what did you do?—Walked about, and when I found I could not get work down there I went home.

24532. You did not go home to dinner?—Yes, I did go home to dinner.

24533. About what time was that?—About half-past twelve.

24534. Is that the usual hour?—I do not make it a rule, a practical thing, to go home to dinner.

24535. You generally get home to dinner?—Yes.

24536. How did you spend the afternoon after you had dinner?—Sat at home till about four.

24537. When you went out at four, where did you go to?—Took a little walk.

24538. What kind of a walk?—I walked up Bishopsgate.

24539. Did you go out to meet some friends, or did you go out for a solitary walk?—I went out for a walk by myself.

24540. Without any purpose at all?—Yes.

24541. You met nobody you knew?—I met one or two that I knew.

24542. Do you mean that from four o'clock you were simply loafing about the streets, not meeting any friends or talking to anybody?—I met one or two. I meet plenty of friends that I know.

24543. Then you spent the time with your friends when you met them?—No; I only just spoke, that was all, and then took a little stroll again. It is a usual thing for me to be walking about by myself. I can enjoy myself the same as I can being in company.

24544. Do you go into public-houses by way of varying the solitude of your excursions?—Yes; I go into a public-house. If I meet a friend I should go into a public-house just the same.

24545. On that Monday did you go into several public-houses with friends?—I knew one or two people by sight.

24546. Then you would naturally go to a public-house?—Yes.

24547. And spend a little time there?—Yes.

24548. Then you would meet some more friends, and then you would go into another public-house?—You cannot always be going into a public-house.

24549. I quite agree. How many public-houses do you think you visited on this Monday before you went home and played draughts with Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Gibbons?—About three or four.

24550. Was that the usual number?—It might, perhaps, be eight or nine times, but this was about four times.

24551. Visits to public-houses I am talking about—meeting in public-houses?—Yes, to have a drink.

24552. Sometimes you go to eight or nine in the course of an evening?—In the course of the day.

24553. And in the course of the evening you think you went to three or four?—Yes.

24554. Which was the last one you went to?—The last one was the King's Head.

24555. You are sure it was not the Blind Beggars?—No, I do not know the Blind Beggars.

24556. But you have an extensive acquaintance. I should have thought you would have known the Blind Beggars?—There are plenty of different public-houses I do not know.

24557. There might be, but it is conceivable that you would know that one. The King's Head, you say, was the last one?—Yes.

24558. Where is the King's Head?—In Church Street.

24559. Where is the Blind Beggars—where was that said to be?

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) In Whitechapel Road, I think, that was.

24560. (Chairman.) Do you know the Whitechapel Road?—Yes.

24561. Is that a place where you sometimes walk as you describe?—No; I never go there.

24562. Why not?—It is a place that don't suit me.

24563. Is that since the quarrel you have referred to?—No; before that.

24564. Why does it not suit you?—It is my idea, I suppose.

24565. It is a personal dislike you have to Whitechapel Road?—Yes.

24566. It is no personal dislike to the people who spend their time there?—No.

24567. But it is a dislike to the road itself?—I do not dislike it, but it is a road that I never trouble.

24568. Trouble or travel?—Or walk.

24569. What time did you leave the King's Head on this Monday?—Half-past ten.

24570. What friends had you been with at the King's Head?—There was a man I knew by sight.

24571. You do not know his name?—I do not know his name.

24572. Did you stand him a drink?—He stood me a drink.

24573. Did he come away with you?—We came together out of the public-house. We were there about two or three minutes. He went home and I went home.

24574. He went home?—Yes; he said he was going home.

24575. Have you ever seen him again?—I have not seen him since.

24576. Had you seen him before?—Yes.

24577. You had seen him before?—Yes.

24578. Where did you part with him?—Outside the public-house we came out of.

24579. Outside the King's Head?—Yes.

Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, sworn.

Mrs. E. Baker.

24580. (Mr. Livett.) You are a married woman, I think?—Yes.

24581. Where do you live?—4, Poyser Street.

24582. Is that where the last witness lives?—Yes.

24583. Do you remember the night of the 22nd October?—Yes.

24584. Had you been out that evening?—Yes.

24585. What time did you get home?—About nine o'clock.

24586. Did you see Mr. Norrey that evening?—Yes.

24587. When did you see him?—I met him in the passage.

24588. About what time was that?—It might have been three minutes to eleven.

24589. Will you just tell us what happened after you saw him?—I went upstairs and I sat with his sister and him too.

24590. Who is his sister?—Mrs. Gibbons. He asked me to have a game of draughts.

24591. Did you have a game of draughts?—Yes.

24592. How long were you playing?—I sat up there till twelve o'clock, but I was not playing all the time.

24593. You were in the room till twelve o'clock?—Yes.

24594. What did you do then?—I went downstairs then.

24595. Did you go out?—No.

24596. When you had been downstairs, did you return?—No, I sat reading till ten minutes past 1.

24597. Where?—In my room.

24598. Where was Mr. Norrey when you left?—Upstairs in the kitchen with his sister.

24599. Did you hear anyone go out?—No.

24600. Could you have heard if anyone had gone out?—Yes, they would have had to pass my door.

24601. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Do you live on the ground floor?—Yes.

24602. Does your husband live there too?—No.

24603. You live alone, do you?—Yes.

24604. Are you separated from your husband?—Yes.

24605. How long have you been separated from him?—Since last Christmas.

24606. Where does he live?—I do not know. I could not tell you.

24607. When were you married?—When was I married to him?

24608. Yes?—Eight years ago.

24609. Did you live with him all the eight years until last Christmas?—Yes.

24610. Did you live in your house in Poyser Street when he lived with you?—No.

24611. Where were you living with him?—I lived in Tyrrell Street, Bethnal Green Road.

24612. You lived there with him, did you?—Yes.

24613. Since he left you at Christmas last, have you being doing anything?—Yes.

24614. What do you do?—I have worked at Lipton's, and then I got the sack for slackness, and I went out selling flowers and selling things.

24615. You have been keeping yourself, and earning your own livelihood?—Yes.

24616. Have you had this room in Poyser Street?—Yes.

24617. How long have you had that?—It might be four months, or it might be longer—from four to five months.

24618. Do you know Brick Lane?—Yes.

24619-20. How long would it take you to walk from your house in Poyser Street to where the arch crosses in Brick Lane?—It generally takes me about half-an-hour and five minutes.

24621. I am told it is about ten minutes' walk?—I could not do it in ten minutes.

24622. We will look at the map and find out. Of course, I am asking you if you went the shortest way, and not if you went all round. If you go the shortest way just tell these gentlemen how long it would take you to walk. Try again?—To Brick Lane arch?

24623. Yes. You know Brick Lane arch well, do you not?—I could not do it under half-an-hour.

24624. Did you know Norrey before you went to live in this house?—No.

24625. Did you know his sister?—Yes, I had spoken to his sister.

24626. You had spoken to his sister before you went to live in this house?—Yes.

24627. But you did not know him?—No.

24628. Are you a friend of his sister?—Yes.

24629. Do you often go up and sit with her?—Yes.

24631. I mean most nights of the week you go up and sit with her?—Yes.

24632. And Norrey is very often there, is he?—Yes.

24633. So that you see Norrey in his sister's room most nights of the week?—Yes.

24634. And, as a rule, you do not pay particular attention to what time you go up and see the sister, or to what time you come down?—No.

24635. Unless there was some special reason for it, you would not take any notice?—No.

24636. Do you often play draughts with them?—Yes, I played it the week before that Monday.

24637. A pretty good hand at it, are you?—No, I do not understand the game much.

24638. However, you play it pretty often with Norrey, do you?—It makes four times I have played.

24639. Four times altogether?—Yes.

24640. Have you played draughts with his sister?—Yes.

24641. More than four times?—Yes.

24642. Did you hear anything about this assault or bother during that week?—No, not until the Sunday morning.

24643. And there was nothing that happened on the Monday itself which could cause you to pay any attention to what time you went up there, or to what time you came down. Monday was just like any other day?—I went to get the sister some supper on this night. This is a thing I never hardly do. She asked me to go and get her some fish.

24644. On this Monday night?—Yes.

24645. Where did you go to get the supper?—At Cambridge Heath.

24646. How far is that away?—Three minutes' walk.

24647. What time did you go and get the supper?—I think it was about a quarter to 11 when I went to get the supper; and they kept me at the fish shop.

24648. Were you kept there some time?—It wanted about three minutes to 11 when I got back.

24649. What makes you remember that as Monday?—I had been out all that day.

24650. So you were on Tuesday?—Yes, every day. There were some flowers left from Saturday; that is what makes me remember it so well.

24651. You might have some stale flowers on Tuesday?—You could not have stale flowers from Saturday to Tuesday.

24652. You might have stale flowers sometimes on a Tuesday from the previous Saturday?—Yes.

24653. The fact that you had stale flowers would not enable you to tell whether it was Monday or Tuesday, would it?—No.

24654. Is there any other reason which makes you remember it was Monday, and not Tuesday, that you went to get the fish?—No.

24655. So that really this night when you played draughts with Norrey may have been a Monday, or a Tuesday, but you cannot remember?—I know it was on Monday night.

24656. Just tell us why. If you are sure about it there must be some reason why you are sure?—There is one reason why—I went and got supper for her.

24657. But you told me it may have been Tuesday you got the supper?—No.

24658. Why?—That is a thing I hardly ever do, because she goes and gets it herself.

24659. She goes and gets her supper every night?—Yes.

24660. Only on this particular night she did not go, and she asked you to go?—Yes.

24661. That might have happened just as well on a Tuesday as on a Monday?—No, because it is a thing I never do.

24662. You remember it was Monday rather than Tuesday?—I never went errands for her only on this

Mrs. E. Baker.

13 Dec. 1906.

Monday night. That is the only time I ever got anything for her. That is what makes me remember.

24663. I want to know why you say it was Monday rather than Tuesday? Have you any reason for remembering it was on Monday? You told me about the flowers. We have got rid of that?—I had to pay my rent. That is another reason why I remember. I did not pay my rent before half-past eight.

24664. On the Monday?—Yes.

24665. Did you pay your rent on the Monday?—Yes.

24666. Do you always pay it on that day?—Not always.

24667. Sometimes you pay your rent on a Tuesday?—Yes, when I can.

24668. Have you got your rent book?—No, I have not got it.

24669. The rent book would show whether you paid it on Monday or on Tuesday?—Yes.

24670. Can you remember whether that week you paid it at the time or not?—Yes; I paid it on Monday, because I had sold out what I had to sell.

24671. If you happened to sell out you would have no stale flowers?—I sold out the flowers on Monday, as I paid my rent on the Monday.

24672. You think you paid your rent on Monday?—I am sure I paid it on the Monday.

24673. You think you went for the supper the same night?—Yes, I am sure I went for the supper the same night.

24674. Let us come to some other night? What did you do on Tuesday night?—I was out very late that night. I was out till past ten. I am not always early.

24675. What happened when you got home, do you remember?—I went in my own room that night.

24676. Are you sure?—Yes.

24677. What makes you remember that?—I do not know.

24678. What did you do on the Wednesday night?—I think I went to sit with Mrs. Gibbons that night.

24679. You think so?—Yes.

24680. You do not remember very clearly?—No.

24681. Were there any draughts on the Wednesday?—I do not know, but I never played on the Wednesday.

24682. And you do not remember whether the others played on the Wednesday?—No, I do not.

24683. What did you do on the Thursday? It is getting nearer the Saturday when Norrey was arrested? Do you remember what happened on the Thursday?—No.

24684. You do not remember whether there were any draughts on the Thursday?—No.

24685. Or the Friday? Do you remember any draughts on the Friday?—No; I know there was not on the Friday, because I did some washing when I came home.

24686. Now we come to a domestic event which you remember?—Yes.

24687. You had some washing on Friday and some draughts to follow?—No, I had to do my washing.

24688. So that if Norrey says he played draughts with you on Friday he must be wrong, because that was washing day?—I did not play draughts on Friday. It may have been the week before.

24689. Did you hear Norrey tell us that he was quite sure he played on Wednesday and Friday this week. You are quite sure he did not?—No. The week before I played.

24690. You think it was the week before you played on Friday?—Yes.

24691. You are quite sure you did not play draughts with him on Friday before he was arrested?—Yes.

24692. I think you were examined before the magistrate, were you not?—Yes.

24693. Just let me read you what you said, "I live in the same place as Norrey. Norrey came in at 11 and stayed in till 12. We played draughts. Him and his sister played two games, and I played one with him. Just after 12 I went to bed"?—No; I went downstairs to go to bed.

24694. How came they to get this—"I went to bed"?—No, I went downstairs to go to bed.

24695. "Just past 12 I went down to go to bed. I have played with him before. It is a common thing." That was not quite right, was it?—That was the week before.

24696. You told us that you had only played four games before with Norrey?—With Norrey, but I played with his sister three times the week before.

24697. "We played Wednesday and Thursday nights last week"?—Yes, but that was the week before the row.

24698. No. You were before the Magistrate on the Monday. You heard about Norrey being arrested on the Sunday?—Yes, on the Sunday morning.

24699. To test your recollection, what day was it you went before the Magistrate. Norrey was arrested on Sunday morning?—On Saturday night.

24700. Yes, on Saturday night he was arrested. What day did you go before the Magistrate?—On the Tuesday.

24701. That is right. The week before that would be the week you have been telling me about the washing, would it not. You were before the Magistrate on the Tuesday, and you told me that on the Friday before you were washing. When you were before the Magistrate this is what you said: "We played Wednesday and Thursday nights last week." That was the week before the Tuesday when you were before the Magistrate. Then, you went on to say: "Norrey was there. I do not think I played the week before. We played all the evening on Wednesday night. He was in Wednesday and Thursday nights." Just now you told me you could not remember playing at all on Wednesday, and you were certain you had not played on Friday, but that you had played the week before; and what you told the Magistrate was rather different. Does not that show that your recollection is not very clear about these different days. Is not that right?—Yes.

24702. That is a fair answer. Now, let me ask you this one question. You went before the Magistrate on Tuesday, did you not?—Yes.

24703. When was it they asked you if you recollected about what had happened on the Monday night?—On the Tuesday morning.

24704. Just before you went to the Magistrate, was it?—No; no one asked me.

24705. Somebody asked you to go before the Magistrate, did they not?—Outside?

24706. No. You live in Poyser Street, do you not?—Yes.

24707. When Norrey was up before the Magistrate you went to the court, did you not?—Yes.

24708. Who asked you to go?—His sister.

24709. When did she ask you to go?—On the Sunday morning she asked me if I would be a witness for him.

24710. So that it was on Sunday morning she asked you if you would go as a witness for him?—Yes.

24711. Norrey had been taken by the constable late on Saturday night, had he not?—Yes.

24712. And he had been taken on a warrant, and locked up, had he not?—Yes.

24713. He had not been home?—I did not know that before his sister told me on the Sunday morning.

24714. We know now that Norrey was locked up on Saturday night, and remained locked up till Tuesday. His sister came to you on Sunday morning and asked you to be a witness for him?—On Sunday she came and asked me.

24715. What did she say to you?—She said to me, "You can prove my brother was at home last Monday night."

24716. How did she get to know that the row had taken place on Monday night?—I do not know.

24717. She knew it on Sunday morning?—Yes.

24718. Did she come and say to you, "You can prove that he was at home last Monday night"?—Yes.

24719. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I was just asking you what took place between you and Mrs. Gibbons on the Sunday morning. You remember I was asking you about that?—Yes.

24720. Have you been to lunch just now while we were out?—Yes.

24721. Did you go with Mrs. Gibbons?—Yes.

24722. So I suppose you have been talking over what happened in court?—No, not particular.

24723. Not particular, but just enough. Let me ask you about what happened with Mrs. Gibbons on the Sunday morning. She asked you if you would come as a witness?—Yes.

24724. Did she tell you what she wanted you to come as a witness for?—Yes.

24725. What was it for?—Because her brother had been locked up.

24726. Did she say anything else?—Yes.

24727. What was it?—She said to me, "You know very well my brother was at home last Monday night."

24728. She said that you knew it?—Yes.

24729. Then, did she ask you if you remembered playing draughts with him?—Yes.

24730. Did she ask you if you remembered anything else?—No.

24731. Did she ask you if you remembered what time he came in?—Yes.

24732. Did she say, "Do you not remember he came in just at 11 o'clock"?—No.

24733. She did not say that?—No.

24734. What did she say?—She said, "You remember the time my brother came in, because you met him in the passage."

24735. And you said you did recollect that?—Yes.

24736. Of course, that may have been either Monday or Tuesday?—No, it was Monday night.

24737. What else did she say to you?—She asked me if I could come as a witness, and I said, "Yes, I would."

24738. She reminded you of those incidents—that you played draughts and met him in the passage?—Yes.

24739. Did she remind you of anything else?—No, only that I went and got her supper.

24740. Did she tell you which day of the week it was?—No. I knew myself which day of the week it was.

24741. She told you he had been locked up for assaulting the constable last Monday night?—Yes.

24742. That is how it began?—Yes.

24743. And you talked it over together, and you thought it was Monday night, and so you went to say so?—Yes.

24744. Norrey told us he could not remember whether he played draughts on the Monday or Tuesday. Did you hear him say that?—Yes, I heard him say it.

(Mr. Norrey.) I beg your pardon, I thought you meant the week beforehand.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) No, I object to that statement. You have been out talking it over together.

(Chairman.) If Mr. Livett would like Norrey to come back we will consider such an application, but Norrey must not interrupt in any way.

(Mr. Livett.) If there is any doubt about it, perhaps he had better come back.

(Chairman.) Do you re-examine Mrs. Baker, Mr. Livett?

(Mr. Livett.) Yes, I wish to ask one or two questions.

24745. You have told us, I think, how it was you remember what facts brought this particular Monday night to your memory, and how you remember what happened on that day. I think you said that you had paid your rent upon that day?—Yes.

24746. And that your rent is entered in a book, is that so?—Yes.

24747. Have you that book with you?—Not with me, but I could bring it.

(Mr. Livett.) Will you allow me to recall this witness to-morrow to produce the book.

(Chairman.) You can produce the book at any rate, and the witness had better be in attendance.

24748. (Mr. Livett.) (To the Witness.) I think you told us that you had played with Norrey once before?—Yes.

24749. When was that?—A week before.

24750. How many times had you played the week before altogether?—It might have been two or it might have been three times.

24751. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) She said before the Magistrate, "I do not think I played the week before."

(The Witness.) Yes, I did play the week before.

24752. (Mr. Livett.) I think you said before the Magistrate that you played on Wednesday and Thursday nights. Was that you and Mrs. Gibbons, and Norrey?—Yes.

24753. You do not remember playing upon Friday night?—No.

24754. Would it be possible for Norrey to have a game with his sister upon the Friday night?—He might have done.

24755. He might have done, without you knowing it?—Yes.

24756. (Chairman.) What is the size of the house that you live in at No. 4, Poyser Street? How many rooms are there? Let me judge of the size by that?—There are six rooms and three kitchens.

24757. How many storeys is it?—Three.

24758. And you are on the ground floor?—Yes.

24759. I suppose people can come in and go out when they like—I mean, people living in the house can come in and go out?—Yes; but the last one up has to bolt the door.

24760. Supposing I were a lodger in this house, or living in one of those tenements, and having a kitchen, how am I to know, when I arrive at the door at half-past 12 at night, that everyone is in?—We generally holloa out "All in?" If they are not all in they say.

24761. When I arrive at the door, say, in the dead of night, I call out "All in"?—No; there is a string through the door, and you pull it; and if it is very late, you holloa out "All in," and you bolt the door.

24762. Supposing that has been done, there is nothing to prevent anyone who has gone in from going out again?—If you are up late, you can hear anybody going out.

24763. Of course, it is possible. But, supposing you are all in bed at a quarter to one, or at one o'clock, do you mean to say that no one could leave the place or come in without your hearing?—Well, they could do so.

24764. If you are asleep, you would not hear them?—I would not hear them if I was asleep.

24765. On this occasion which you are talking of, so far as I can make out, you think it was Monday night, and you had been out for the supper at about 11 o'clock, you say?—Yes.

24766. You are certain Norrey was there then?—Yes.

24767. There was nothing, I suppose, to prevent him going out afterwards?—No; but I am sure he did not go out because I sat reading until between 10 and twenty past 1.

24768. You went on reading?—Yes.

24769. Is that what you generally do?—Yes, I generally read of a night.

24770. Up to twenty past 1?—Not always to twenty past 1.

24771. But till quite late, like that?—Yes.

24772. Why do you do that?—Some nights I cannot sleep.

24773. Then it is nothing unusual for you to read?—No; it is the usual thing for me to read.

24774. If you heard anybody going out, you would not try to stop him or her?—Certainly not.

24775. So that as far as I can see, you cannot be quite certain that Norrey may not have gone out on this occasion?—Yes; because I bolted the door that night.

24776. Why did you bolt the door on that particular night?—I thought I was the last one out. It was all quiet in the house, and I holloaed out "Are you all in?" Mr. Gibbons answered me, and said "Yes."

Mrs. E. Baker.

13 Dec. 1906.

24777. You knew she was in. Why did she answer "Yes"?—I cannot say that.

24778. Are there other people in the house?—Yes.

24779. They did not speak?—They generally go to bed early.

24780. Then you are what I will call three parties in the house, or three sets of people?—Yes.

24781. Yourself, Gibbons and Norrey, and another party?—Yes.

24782. One set of people to each kitchen?—Yes.

24783. Those people go to bed early, and do not answer. I do not see still why Mrs. Gibbons answered on this occasion. Is it the custom, do you mean—is it usual for somebody to answer when you holloa out?—Yes, they generally answer.

24784. What does Norrey do to earn his living?—That I cannot say—I do not know what he does.

24785. Do you know him by any nickname?—No.

24786. Have you never heard him called Ginger Norrey?—Yes. I do not know that that is his name, but I have heard people say Ginger Norrey.

24787. (Mr. Dickinson.) Do you wholly occupy the bottom flat?—No, only the back room.

24788. Who else lives at the bottom?—Mrs. Deering.

24789. Have you spoken to her about this case at all?—No.

24790. She was in that night?—Yes, but she goes to bed early, because her husband has to get up early in the morning—at 5 or 6 o'clock.

24791. Then there are four families in the house?—Yes.

24792. Between the Tuesday and the Saturday did anyone come to your house to ask you about this case?—No.

24793. You never spoke to anyone about it before the Sunday morning?—No.

Mrs. Mary Ann Gibbons, sworn.

Mrs. M. A. Gibbons.

24794. (Mr. Livett.) Where do you live?—No. 4, Poyser Street.

24795. I think you are a relative of Norrey?—Yes, a sister.

24796. You have heard Mrs. Baker give her evidence about what happened on the 22nd October?—Yes.

24797. Do you agree with that?—Yes.

24798. I think you played draughts for some time during that evening. What time did you finish?—About 12 o'clock.

24799. What did your brother do then?—He sat up for a little while by the fire, and then went to bed a little after twelve.

24800. Did you see him in the morning?—Yes, I went in and woke him.

24801. You woke him up in the morning?—Yes.

24802. What time was that?—About nine o'clock.

24803. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Is nine o'clock in the morning the time you usually wake him?—No. It is earlier if he has any work to go after.

24804. Unless he has a job over night you do not wake him until nine o'clock in the morning?—Sometimes I do.

24805. Was your husband at home this night?—Yes.

24806. Was he there all the time you were playing draughts?—He was in bed and asleep.

24807. Is he in regular work?—No, only now and then.

24808. What do you call now and then—one or two days a week?—Yes, when he can get it to do.

24809. You knew by the Sunday morning what your brother was arrested for?—It was on the following Saturday night. I was out selling, and as I came along somebody said "Your Johnny is locked up." I said "What for?" and they said they did not know. As it was late, and I was coming home from selling, I did not trouble to go and ask until next morning—that was Sunday morning. When I asked, they told me he was charged with an assault on the police.

24810. Did you go to the police station to get the information?—Yes, at Commercial Street.

24810*. Did you see the constable there?—I did not take that much notice.

24811. You saw somebody?—Yes, who answered me.

24812. You made inquiry, and they gave you the information you wanted?—Yes.

24813. And they behaved quite civilly and nicely to you?—Yes.

24814. Do I understand that the policeman told you that he had been charged with assaulting a constable?—Yes.

24815. Is that all he told you?—Yes, that is all.

24816. Could you recognise the man you spoke to?—No, I did not take that much notice. I had enough trouble on my mind to get out and earn a shilling again.

24817. Did he say anything more to you?—No. I turned round and said "Oh, my God, why he was at home at the time."

24818. According to you, all he told you was that it was the last Monday night?—Yes.

24819. You are sure that is all?—Yes.

24820. So he did not tell you the time?—No—yes, he did tell me the time.

24821. You must be a little more careful. First of all, you did not tell us that he told you it was Monday, and then I asked you three or four times if that was all he told you, and you said yes. Now be a little bit careful?—I have no occasion to be careful in speaking the truth.

24822. I ask you again to be a little careful. Begin again. What did the constable say to you?—I was answered at the police station that he was charged with an assault on the police last Monday night at eleven o'clock. I turned round and said "Oh, my God, he was at home at the time."

24823. Have you told us all?—That is all at the police station.

24824. You are quite sure?—Yes.

24825. Did they tell you eleven o'clock?—Yes.

24826. You are quite sure of that?—Yes. Then he was supposed to be brought up at Old Street. Then it was supposed to be twelve o'clock. And then a little after twelve o'clock. They did not give me a satisfactory answer. They suit themselves whether they do or not.

24827. What time was it you went on the Sunday morning to the station?—I could not exactly tell you the time; it might have been from eight to nine.

24828. Between eight and nine, you think?—From eight to nine.

24829. Between eight and nine; is that right?—Yes, eight to nine.

24830. That is something that happened after this Monday. Can you not give these gentlemen at all any idea what time it was on the Sunday?—No, I did not take that much notice. I know I was up early.

24831. Is all you recollect about going to the police station that you got up early that morning?—No, I am always up early, because of my work.

24832. Was it between eight and nine or nine and ten or ten and eleven; which do you say?—Eight to nine. I do not know exactly the time; I did not take that much notice. I was too much upset to think he was there.

24833. You are a person, are you not, who does not take much notice of time?—I did not take much notice of anything when they had such a kind of thing as that against him.

24834. Are you not a person who naturally takes very little notice of time? (A pause.) Can you answer that? (Another pause.) Just think. Are you refusing to answer or are you thinking?—I do not always take notice of the time.

24835. Are you not a person who, as a rule, does not take notice of the time?—That may be so.

24836. But you know better than I do? Is it not so?—I do not know whether it is or not.

24837. Did you not tell the magistrate "I do not take notice of the time"?—I do not know whether I did or not.

24838. You do not even remember that?—No.

24839. Is your memory a pretty good one?—No, it is not.

24840. What time did you get up yesterday morning?—I do not know. I did not take notice of the time I got up.

24841. You cannot remember even what time you got up yesterday?—No.

24842. How is it you are so very precise as to the time Norrey came in that night?—The woman downstairs came up and said it was eleven o'clock when she came up with my fish supper. I had a clock in front of me.

24843. Have you a clock?—Yes.

24844. Does it go?—Yes, it is a little time-piece.

24845. Do you often play draughts?—Now and then I and my brother play if he is home early—it is all according.

24846. Do you remember at all how many times you played draughts that week?—About three times, me and him—three times or twice.

24847. There is a difference between three times and twice, is there not? Are you not able to say whether it was three times or twice?—No.

24848. Your memory is not good enough?—I have not taken so much notice.

24849. Unless this thing had happened you would not have remembered at all what happened on that Monday night?—No, I should not have if this had not happened.

24850. Of course, you were anxious to help your brother—I am not suggesting anything wrong—if you could properly?—It is only natural, but it is not because I am helping him that I am telling lies.

24851. It is not a question of telling lies; it is a question of whether your memory is accurate?—I would sooner be 10 miles away from here than come up in this place.

24852. Can you tell us at all how many times it was that week?—No, I cannot tell you exactly. It was twice or three times.

24853. Can you remember what you were doing on the Tuesday night of that week?—Sitting at home.

24854. I suppose you always do that?—Sometimes I read.

24855. I mean sitting at home; you do that every night?—Yes.

24856. So that that is a safe answer. Do you remember what time your husband came in on the Tuesday night?—Yes, 9 o'clock.

24857. Is that the time he always comes in?—No, he comes in at all times.

24858. Why do you remember he came in at 9 o'clock on Tuesday night?—I do not know.

24859. Do you remember what you had for supper that Tuesday night?—No, I do not.

24859a. That is the very reason I ask you if you remember what happened on the Tuesday. I could understand if there was anything special why you should remember; but if there is nothing special I want to know why you should remember?—I do not know.

24860. Do you really say that you remember he came in at 9 o'clock on the Tuesday?—Yes. Mrs. M. A. Gibbons. 13 Dec. 1906.

24861. You do remember it?—Yes.

24862. What makes you remember it?—I do not know what makes me remember it.

24863. You are quite sure he did?—Yes.

24864. You do not speak very confidently?—Yes, yes.

24865. You are quite sure?—Yes.

24866. What did he do after he came in?—He sat round the fire with me.

24867. And for how long?—Till he went to bed.

24868. When did he go to bed?—I do not know what time. I know he went to bed that night, but I do not know what time.

24869. I suppose he goes to bed every night?—Certainly he does.

24870. (Chairman.) What night of the week are you talking about?—That gentleman is asking me about the Tuesday night. That is what you are asking me about?

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Yes.

24871. (Chairman.) But it was on the Monday night your brother was arrested?—Yes. I am answering that gentleman. Now he is asking me where my husband was on the Tuesday night. What has that Tuesday night to do with the affair or my husband either?

24872. The question is what sort of a recollection you have. What time did your husband go to bed Tuesday night?—He is very bad with his chest, and he has been in Bethnal Green Infirmary. He was not out that night.

24873. (Mr. Dickinson.) What time was he in that night?—He was not out that night.

24874. Do you mean all day?—No, from 6 o'clock.

24875. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) There was nothing to call your attention to that particular night these events happened until the following Sunday morning?—No, nothing at all.

24875. (Mr. Livett.) Can you remember whether your husband was in bed during the evening any other night that week?—He generally goes to bed early.

24877. (Chairman.) What is your husband's occupation?—Market porter.

24878. Is he in regular employment?—No, only a job when he can get it.

24879. Had he been in pretty good work the week before your brother was arrested?—No, not for a long while. He was too ill to work, in a manner of speaking.

24880. His work is not regular because of the state of his health?—That is so.

24881. He could get the work if he were strong enough to do it?—I believe he could.

24882. You have been telling us about the Sunday after the Saturday on which your brother was arrested?—Yes.

24883. Had your husband been in work much that week, or had he been at home a great deal?—He was home a great deal with his chest.

24884. He is at home a great deal, and being, as I understand, often ill, goes to bed very early?—Yes.

24885. There is nothing special in his going to bed at six o'clock?—No. He only turned himself out of the Bethnal Green Infirmary yesterday morning. He has been over there for some time.

24886. I will put it to you frankly. On the Monday night when you played draughts with your brother and Mrs. Baker brought your supper you say your husband went to bed at six o'clock that night?—Yes.

24887. But there is nothing special in that: he often goes to bed at six o'clock?—Yes.

Mrs. Esther Bloom, sworn.

24888. (Mr. Livett.) I think you keep a stall?—Yes.

24889. Where?—Just next door to Mr. Southey's.

24889*. In what street is that?—In Brick Lane.

24890. Were you at your stall on the evening of the 23rd October?—No, not at that hour of the night. It was twenty-five minutes past twelve when I saw what happened. Mrs. E. Bloom.

Mrs. E. Bloom.
13 Dec. 1906.

24891. Were you in Brick Lane?—Yes, I was coming from Whitechapel away from Hanbury Street. I live in Hare Street. I had been to a concert with my sister.

24892. What did you see when you got to the archway?—I heard the whistle blow, and I ran and I saw a policeman and the prisoner struggling. With their struggling they fell to the ground.

24893. Was that struggle between the constable and Emms?—Yes, the prisoner. They fell to the ground, and the policeman hit him. What caused the policeman to interfere I do not know, but that is what I saw first of all.

24894. What did the policeman hit him with?—With his truncheon. When the bull's-eye shone on him the blood made a big show, and I knelt down by the side of the prisoner.

24895. What happened to him?—He was lying down, and looked horrible when the bull's-eye was shone on him. They both fell down.

24896. Did you see the policeman do anything after the man fell?—No; after the man got the blow the policeman got up. I only came up just at the time. I saw the policeman and the prisoner struggling together. They fell to the ground, and the blow fell to the prisoner.

24897. How many blows did you see struck?—I only saw one blow. I was not there to see the start.

24898. Was Emms standing up or on the ground?—Emms was on the ground lying down when the policeman put his bull's-eye down, and the blood made a show, and I said "My God, that man is dead." That is the answer I made.

24899. Did you know Emms at all?—I knew Emms. He has been past the stall. I have had that stall for 10 years, and I have seen him frequently pass. I never have anything to say to any of those chaps. In fact, I make no associations with anybody.

24900. Did you see anyone strike the constable?—I did not. Whether they did it previous to my getting there or not I do not know. I am just telling you what I saw.

24901. Did you speak to anybody?—Of course, the policemen came running up with the stretcher and put him on the stretcher, but I did not go to the police station. I went home, and I knew nothing more about it until I was spoken to by these gentlemen.

24902. Did you hear the policeman say anything?—No, or if I did I did not notice. The blood seemed to frighten me—I was really frightened.

24903. Did you give evidence at the police court?—Yes. I think you will find it just word for word with what I have said.

24904. Do I understand that you came up at the time when Emms was in the act of falling?—No, they were struggling together, as I said before, and they fell down, and the policeman struck him. What caused it I do not know. Whether he started with the policeman or the policeman with him I do not know.

24905. You say he fell down?—They both fell down.

24906. And the policeman struck him?—Yes.

24907. After he had fallen down?—Of course, while they were down. I do not know whether it was done because he was interfered with, or whether the other one did it in self-defence. I cannot answer that, because I was not there.

24908. Were there many people about there at the time?—A tidy few; there seemed more Jews than English people.

24909. How many?—I should think there were 30 people round. Of course, the stretcher was there very quickly. I never saw anything done so quickly.

24910. Did you go to the station?—I went to Old Street. I was asked to go to the police station, and I went.

24911. With the ambulance?—No, not to the police station with the ambulance. I went home, I just told you. It did not concern me to go to the police station. I ought to have been home before I was. I was out too late then.

24912. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I understand you had been out to a concert and were coming home?—Yes.

24913. Then you heard the whistle?—Yes, and then I ran.

24914. That was the first you heard?—Yes.

24915. Whereabouts were you when you heard the whistle?—I reckon I was outside Freeman's, the hat shop.

24916. You were coming from Buxton Street that way?—Yes.

24917. How far would you be from Pedley Street when you heard the whistle blow?—Do you mean where the railway station is?

24918. Yes?—I am no scholar, and although I live about there I do not know the names of the streets.

24919. How far would you be from the railway?—Only a second or two. Freeman's is close by; it was just outside there.

24920. At the same time you heard the whistle you noticed a crowd?—Yes, there was a crowd there.

24921. There was a biggish crowd there at that time?—I should think about 30 people; there seemed to be a lot of Jews, because they seemed to be frightened.

24922. The first thing, as I understand, that you saw was the man and the constable in the act of falling to the ground together?—Yes, they were struggling, and fell to the ground together.

24923. Up to that time you had not seen any blow struck?—No; it was like two men fighting.

24924. There was no blow with the truncheon?—Not until they got to the ground.

24925. They were struggling, of course?—Yes.

24926. They had both got hold of each other?—I suppose they were each trying their best. If anyone hit you, in self-defence you would try your best.

24927. Yes. Where were they when you saw them in that position?—Just by the post in the courtway.

24928. That is the little narrow street?—Yes, by the railway station.

24929. They were a little way down that?—Yes, outside a lot of hoarding or woodwork.

24930. How far would that be down from Brick Lane—how many yards in the court?—That is in Brick Lane. It is all Brick Lane.

24931. I mean how far down the court?—About eight or nine yards from there, or it might be a little more.

24932. You think at the time you saw them struggling they were eight or nine yards down the court?—Yes, from the gutter really in Brick Lane.

24933. I suppose there was a good deal of confusion, was there not?—I did not notice anything more than that I saw the policeman and Emms when they were falling.

24934. Do you say the blow with the truncheon was struck when they were both on the ground?—Yes, when they were both on the ground.

24935. They were both on the ground then?—Yes.

24936. Was the struggling still going on?—When I spoke and said "The man is dead," he shook his head. That was after the blow, of course.

24937. But at the time the blow was struck they were both on the ground according to you?—Yes.

24938. Did you notice the condition of the policeman?—No, I did not notice.

24939. Do you know Kemp?—I know them all by having my stall; they all pass together.

24940. Have you seen Mr. Kemp here to-day?—No, I have not. I have been by myself. I have been really to see my mother while I have been here.

24941. Did you hear Kemp give evidence at the police court?—No, I was not there then. I was called in afterwards.

24942. You did not notice particularly the state the constable was in?—No.

24943. Was his helmet on?—No, he had not got his hat on.

24944. Did you notice whether his armlet, which they put on on duty, was there?—I did not notice that.

24945. I suppose when you saw the blood you were rather upset?—I was frightened rather. I never have anything like that at my own home. Of course it is no use my coming here and telling you one thing and then another. I knew the chaps really because of having my stall there for 10 years. You know the people that pass, but the constables, no, I do not have them round my stall.

24946. Harding and his friend are very often near your stall?—Yes, I see them passing frequently.

24947. But you have nothing to do with them?—No, indeed I have not.

24948. I do not suggest that. You do not know who blew the whistle?—No, I only heard it. I was too far off.

24949. You have really told us all you know about it?—That is all I know.

24950. I suppose when the ambulance came up you went home?—I went home. The ambulance went round by the tobacconist's just under the arch. That went a different direction altogether to me, because I live at No. 6, Hare Street.

24951. (Chairman.) You had passed Buxton Street on the right hand when you heard the whistle?—Yes. I had got to a Jewish female hat shop, by the name of Freeman. That is about two seconds' walk from the place where the fight was.

24952. Did you actually see them fall down?—I did.

24953. And you said it was eight or nine yards down the courtyard, I gather?—It would be really from the gutter to the corner; it might have been more, but it was a little way down past the post.

24954. Nine yards?—It might have been longer; it was right out by some hoardings or some woodwork.

24955. You must have got up to the entrance to where the court turns from the street?—Of course. I knelt down by the side of the young man.

24956. I understand that when you heard the whistle you had passed Buxton Street, in Brick Lane?—Yes, you have to pass Buxton Street before you can get to there.

24957. When you heard the whistle did you still keep on?—I ran to see; like most other folks, I ran. If I had minded my own business I should not have been here.

24958. I am sure you are doing a public duty in coming here?—I am not very pleased to, I can assure you.

24959. I understand you had actually got up to where the court turns from Brick Lane and you looked down the court?—Yes, where they were struggling. I looked down, and I knelt down and said "Oh, my God, the man is dead."

24960. They were a considerable distance from the archway by that time?—Yes, it is a good way from the archway.

24961. I only want to follow your story?—Let me tell you—you do not know the neighbourhood, perhaps. It is not the railway archway that I came to. I came from Hanbury Street and Buxton Street.

24962. Buxton Street turns on the right hand towards Brick Lane if you are coming from the archway?—Yes. I am trying to direct you; and it would be this way if you were coming from Whitechapel. I am not a scholar, and you must excuse me.

24963. I mean you saw nothing of the policeman standing in the archway then?—No. It is no good coming and telling lies. I did not. I never saw whether it was the policeman's fault or the prisoner's. I do not know anything about it. I only say what I saw.

24964. You know nothing of how the matter began, but you told us exactly what you saw?—Yes.

24965. You told us to-day that you only saw one blow struck with the truncheon?—I saw them fighting together, like other men. If you were going to have a hiding yourself you would protect yourself, of course.

24966. You wish me to understand to-day that the policeman only hit him once with a truncheon?—In the struggle he may have hit him more or he may have hit the policeman previous to the struggle.

24967. You only saw one blow?—Yes, that is when they fell down.

24968. Is that what you said at the police-court?—Yes.

24969. Now let me read to you what the clerk wrote down, and which has been sent to us:—"12.30, on the 23rd, I was in Brick Lane, and saw police-constable struggling with a man in the courtway, and the police-constable hit the man with his truncheon, and the man fell"?—They both fell. That is where the mistake is. I have heard that from someone else.

24970. I am reading what the clerk took down:—"The policeman knelt, and hit him again"?—I did not say that.

24971. That is what the clerk took down at the police-court?—That is a mistake. I am sure I have told you the truth.

24972. I am not, at present at any rate, suggesting that you did not wish to tell the truth then and that you do not wish to tell the truth now. The clerk did take down what you were saying at the police-court; you know that?—Yes.

24973. That is the note that is sent from the court to us?—Yes.

24974. You think if you said that it is a mistake?—I am just telling you how it was. Whether I was excited on the day I was fetched I do not know, but that is really the truth. I said there, as I say now to-day here, I do not know who was in fault at all—I was not there.

24975. That I can quite understand, but you told Mr. Livett to-day that you saw the policeman, when they had both fallen, hit the man with the truncheon?—That is what I meant to have said. I have not explained myself enough.

24976. You told Mr. Bankes that, and you have also told it to me. Now I am putting to you for your explanation the note of what you said in the police-court?—Well, that is really the truth, I can assure you. Perhaps I did not explain myself enough then. I was told the other day I ought to have said that. When I said he fell I meant they both fell.

24977. That does not matter. So far the story you told in the police court agrees with the story you have told us. Where the story disagrees is in the following sentence: "The police constable knelt and hit him again"?—He hit him when he was down, but I only saw the one blow. They must have been exhausted through the struggle, and they fell down.

24978. You see your story to-day is very much more favourable to the police constable than the story you told at the police court?—I did not know that I made any difference.

24979. Stop a moment; just let us see, "The police-constable knelt and hit him again." If the man was down it was a very cruel thing for the police constable to do?—But they were both down.

24980. That is what you say now. I am referring to what you said at the police court. You will agree with me if the blow with the truncheon that felled the man had been given as you say, it was undoubtedly given, I think, in your presence?—Yes, I saw it.

24981. If the police-constable knelt down and hit the man on the head with the truncheon again, that would be a cruel thing?—Yes, of course; he hit him when they were both down.

24982. Would it not have been a cruel thing?—Yes, very cruel.

24983. That is what you said in the police court, and now to-day you do not repeat that evidence. I am asking you this question: Is not your story to-day very much more favourable to the police than the story you told before the police court?—I have no reason to speak more for the one than the other; neither has done me any harm.

24984. Has anyone spoken to you about this since?—Never; I have not spoken to anyone.

24985. You are too impetuous; I have not finished my question. Has anyone spoken to you since about the evidence you gave at the police court?—No.

24986. Nobody at all?—No. I did not know I was wanted until Tuesday, when an old gentleman came up to my stall and handed me this paper—(exhibiting)—and asked me to be here on Tuesday. I came here Tuesday and there was nothing here, and the gentleman outside knew I was here at 11 o'clock. Of course I had to bring it with me because I am no scholar, and had to ask people where the place is.

24987. Have you had any conversation with people as to what you said at the police court?—I heard last week there was a case about one of the young men. My son read it to me, because I could not read it myself. I was told I should be wanted—the other young man was going to be up this week. I said, "How could that be?" I knew nothing, and did not say above those words "Why should they want me?"

Mrs. E. Bloom.

13 Dec. 1906.

24988. (Mr. Dickinson.) On which side of the road was it you were walking before you got up to the courtway?—On the same side as the courtway.

24989. Could you see the railway arch before you heard the whistle?—Well, it is a few yards from the arch—a good distance; they could not have fought all that way.

24990. Before you heard the whistle, or when you heard the whistle, were you so near that you could see the arch?—I could see the arch if I really wanted to, but I had not looked that way.

24991. You were walking towards the arch?—Yes.

24992. Could you see the archway?—Yes, of course; it was not many yards from it.

24993. Could you see people in the roadway between you and the archway?—There was a lot of people; they all seemed to be in the roadway.

24994. Then the people you saw were in Brick Lane?—Yes.

24995. Was there any struggling and fighting going on there?—No, I did not notice.

24996. So that you did not notice anything of fighting until you had got round the corner?—Of course I saw the struggling as I got round the corner—that was the policeman and this prisoner.

24997. Did you see any struggle before you got round the corner?—No.

24998. You simply saw a crowd of people?—Yes.

24999. When you got up to the corner how did you manage to see what was going on in the corner?—I rushed up and had a look.

25000. There must have been a lot of people there?—There were several people there—a tidy few.

25001. Were they not stopping the way?—There were a lot of Jews there, and I pushed through them.

25002. You were anxious to see what happened?—Yes.

25003. How was it you were able to see so accurately what happened with people all round?—Because I was so set upon the very one person I did not look to see who the others were. I could not tell you them now because he was put on the stretcher before I came out of the court, and they went this way and I went that way towards my home. I live at the third house down Hare Street.

25004. Do you remember saying this at the police court: "I came up as the blow went. I was about three yards away"?—Yes; well it would be about that. There are not above four shops. Four shops would not be three yards, of course. I am not going to say I did not say that.

25005. You said: "I came up as the blow went. I was about three yards away." Does that not mean you were three yards away from the policeman when the blow was struck?—No, I was quite close to them. I was being pushed about. The Jews were all pushing this way and that way.

25006. You got quite close?—Yes, I knelt down by him when the bull's-eye was put on his head.

25007. Then you said: "The police-constable fell to the ground too" (this is the second time this was put to you) "and then knelt down and hit the man again"?—They both fell to the ground, and the policeman struck him.

25008. Then you went on to say: "I saw a short man strike a blow"?—No, I did not say that. I could not say that.

25009. But the clerk would hardly have invented that?—I could not have said that. It would have been wicked to have said that. I never saw any blow struck. I could not stand here and say that.

25010. This is what we have taken down by the clerk who was listening to what you said: "I saw a short man strike a blow"?—I did not say that.

25011. Did you see that?—I knelt down by the man. Whether that happened when I was kneeling down I do not know.

25012. No doubt you are trying to tell us the truth. Did you not see anyone hit the policeman?—No, I did not, any more than seeing that young man and the constable together. Whether they did previously to my getting there I do not know.

25013. Can you say at all what you said before the magistrate which made the clerk put this down?—I never said that. I would go right in front of that gentleman again. I never said it. I would not come here and tell you a lie like that. I never saw it, and how could I say it if I never saw it? It is as I say; I never mix up with any of them. They passed my stall frequently, and that is all I know.

25014. You know Emms, do you not?—I know them all by passing by like many young men do.

25015. You knew Emms?—I only know him just passing my stall.

25016. You knew Emms when you saw him on the ground?—I knew him when the bull's-eye was shone. When they were struggling I did not. When the light was shone on Emms' head, I said: "My God, that is Emms!"

25017. You knelt down?—Yes, I asked him if he knew me, and he shook his head and he fell back.

25018. You wanted to see if he was unconscious?—Yes; the blood made a big show too. Which side's fault it was I could not say.

25019. You said before the magistrate: "The ambulance came afterwards. The police-constable said: 'I did not know it was you. I thought it was one of our men.'" What did you say?—I did hear him say that. I heard the constable say as he came up: "I did not know it was you. I thought it was one of our men." They thought it was a policeman lying down and they ran for the ambulance.

25020. Which police-constable said this?—The young man that fetched the stretcher.

25021. Not the one that began the fighting?—No. They were really sweating with running; you could see they had been running. When he came he said: "I did not know it was you; I thought it was one of our men."

25022. Did he not know it was Emms?—No; he thought he was assisting one of his own men.

25023. How light or dark is it there?—It is very dark. It is shocking; I should not like to go down there of a night; it is a horrible place.

25024-5. When you saw them struggling you told me just now you could not recognise Emms at that time?—Not then.

25026. Was that because it was too dark?—Yes.

25027. Was it light enough for you to recognise any faces at all?—Yes. I did not see anybody but all these Jews—a lot of Jews live round there. I rushed as the bull's-eye shone on the man, and I looked down and said, "My God!"

25028. Do you happen to know Norrey, who has given evidence here?—I know them by passing my stall.

25029. You have seen Norrey in the box?—Yes.

25030. You have heard him give his evidence?—Yes.

25031. Do you know him by sight?—Yes; I have not seen him down Brick Lane for some time lately.

25032. I was going to ask you that. Can you tell whether he was there at that time?—No, I do not think so.

25033. I suppose it would have been too dark for you to distinguish?—I kept in the courtway. Of course, the crowd of people followed with the stretchers, and I do not know any more. I went home on my business, and did not think of anything like this.

25034. Did you see anyone run away at all?—No.

25035. All the crowd were looking on?—Yes. Whether it happened before I got there I do not know.

25036. Did you see the policeman standing after this in a dazed condition?—No.

25037. While the ambulance was coming?—No; I was kneeling down.

25038. What did the policeman do?—I do not know. I did not pay any attention to him.

25039. You did not see whether his face was battered or not?—No.

25040. What was he doing with his bulls-eye?—The policeman was standing up, and he shone his bulls-eye on the young man as he was lying down, and I saw the blood and said "My Lord, it's Emmsy." The policeman must have heard me say that.

25041. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Do you mean the policeman who came up or the policeman who had the struggle?—A tallish policeman came up and shone his bulls-eye.

(Mr. Dickinson.) I am speaking of the policeman who had been struggling with the man.

25042. What did you see him do?—I did not see him do anything.

25043. It was not he who shone the bulls-eye?—No, the young man that was struggling had no hat on. Mrs. E. Bloom.

25044. You seem to have lost sight of that policeman?—Yes, I did not see him. Evidently the other policeman thought it was him who was on the ground. 13 Dec. 1906.

25045. (Mr. Livett.) When these two men fell to the ground who was underneath?—Emms.

25046. Emms was on the ground, and the policeman was on top of him?—Yes.

(Mr. Livett.) I have two other witnesses subpœnaed to attend to-day, but they are not here. Will you allow us to call them to-morrow morning, if we can get them here?

(Chairman.) Yes.

PERCY JOHN CLARK, sworn.

25047. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I think you are the Divisional Surgeon at the Commercial Street Police Station?—Yes.

25048. What are your qualifications?—A member of the Royal College of Surgeons and licenciate of the Society of Apothecaries.

25049. I think you were appointed by the Home Office to your present position of Divisional Surgeon?—Yes.

25050. How long have you occupied that position?—I was appointed Divisional Surgeon on the 11th January last. I had previously done a great part of the police work for nine years as assistant for the late Mr. Phillips.

25051. Have you a private practice of your own in the neighbourhood?—Yes.

25052. I think you were called to the Commercial Street Station about one o'clock in the morning of the 23rd October to dress a woman's head?—Yes.

25053. Some woman had been brought in injured, and you were sent for to attend to her?—Yes.

25054. When you got there you found that Emms was there?—Yes.

25055. Did the Inspector ask you to examine him?—The station sergeant did.

25056. Where was Emms at that time?—Sitting on a chair in the charge room.

25057. As you got into the charge room, did he remain sitting, or what?—No, he half got up out of the chair.

25058. What happened then?—He was told to sit down. He said he would not have his head dressed.

25059. I do not know whether you were here, but he says that when he was told that you were the Divisional Surgeon coming into the room, and that you were going to attend to him, he rose from the chair, and then the constable who was looking after him kneed him in the stomach and forced him violently back in the chair?—That is not so. He pushed him by the shoulder.

25060. Is there any truth in the suggestion that the man used any improper or undue violence?—None whatever.

25061. Did you go up to Emms and tell him who you were?—No.

25062. He knew you?—I think he should do so.

25063. Have you any reason for knowing he knew you?—I have given evidence agains thim at the Old Bailey.

25064. You have given evidence against him in previous cases?—At a previous case.

25065. Did he express any disinclination to be examined by you?—He said he would not have his head dressed; he wanted the Magistrate to see it.

25066. Did he say anything in your presence about wanting a private doctor?—No.

25067. Then you proceeded to examine the wound, did you not?—I proceeded to dress the wound.

25068. At that time, who was looking after him—one constable or two?—There was a constable on reserve at the station, and another one—I am not sure whether they were both reserve men.

25069. At any rate, there were two men helping you at the time?—Yes. Dr. P. J. Clark.

25070. Was any improper or undue violence used to him whilst you were examining him?—Not at all.

25071. When you examined him, what did you find?—He had a contused wound on his forehead about ¾ in. in length, just at the commencement of his hair; he had another at the back of the head, about 1½ in. in length. They were both lineal wounds in a straight line.

25072. Were both bleeding?—Yes.

25073. Did they give the appearance of wounds inflicted with the truncheon, or not?—They did not.

25074. Why not?—I have seen truncheon wounds before, and they have almost invariably been a starred wound.

25075. Is the surface of the truncheon serrated?—No; it is perfectly smooth.

25076. But in the cases you have had before you, you have found they were starred wounds?—Yes.

25077. Would you explain what you mean by a starred wound?—A wound running in about four directions.

25078. You mean not one single clean cut?—Not a straight line.

25079. Of course, you are not able to say whether those were truncheon wounds, or not?—I could not say.

25080. But, assuming they were truncheon wounds, from your previous experience of that class of wounds, should you say they were delivered with a man's full force?—I should not think so.

25081. Assuming they were truncheon wounds—we do not know whether they were or not—did they give the appearance of wounds inflicted by a man himself exhausted, who could not hit with his full strength, or at a short distance?—If they were caused by a truncheon, they were not given with the truncheon's full force, in my opinion.

25082. Apart from the wounds, what was Emms' condition?—He was very excited, and talking the whole time, and protesting. He wanted to tell me all about the case. I told him it had nothing whatever to do with me.

25083. I think you dressed the wounds?—I did.

25084. And you gave directions as to what might be done with Emms?—Yes. I said he was fit to be detained in the cell.

25085. You did not examine Emms again after that?—No.

25086. After you had examined Emms, was it reported to you that Constable Jeffery had been injured?—After I had dressed Emms' wounds, I dressed the woman's wounds.

25087. I was leaving that out for the moment. After that, were you asked to look at Constable Jeffery?—Yes.

25088. What condition did you find him in?—He was in a very exhausted condition, as if he had been in a severe struggle.

25089. Were there any marks or bruises on him anywhere?—Yes; his face was bruised. One of his artificial teeth had been broken. He complained of injury to his chest, and to his legs, and to his head.

Dr. P. J. Clark.

13 Dec, 1906.

25090. Did he present all the appearance of a man who had been through a severe struggle?—Yes.

25091. Had he any wounds that required dressing, or were they only bruises?—Only bruises.

25092. What did you tell him to do?—Did you put him on the sick list?—I put him on the sick list. I told him to go home and bathe the bruises with warm water, and keep quiet.

25093. Did you see him again after that?—Yes, I saw him for 13 days afterwards.

25094. Do you see a man every day who is on the sick list?—No. During the 13 days I saw him every other day.

25095. Did he remain off duty for 13 days?—Yes.

25096. Was that rendered necessary owing to what he had gone through that night?—It was.

(Chairman.) Do you wish to cross-examine, Mr. Livett?

(Mr. Livett.) No.

25097. (Chairman.) You, I gather, expressed at the time, and have expressed since, some doubt as to whether the two wounds that you examined on Emms' head were caused by the truncheon or not?—What I wished to express was that they were not typical truncheon wounds. I do not say they were not caused by a truncheon. They might have been caused by any blunt instrument, or even by coming in contact with the pavement.

25098. You have anticipated my next question. Do you think that the wound on the back of the head might have been caused by falling on the pavement?—It might have been.

25099. Looking at it, do you think that was likely?—It is just such a wound as one does see from such a cause.

25100. Have you heard some of the evidence in this case?—I heard the last witness' evidence.

25101. There seems to be some doubt whether two blows were struck with the truncheon or only one; do you think it is possible the truncheon blow might have been the one on the forehead causing the man to fall, and the wound on the back of the head might have been caused by coming in contact with the pavement?—Yes, it was more typical of that than a truncheon wound.

25102. But a similar remark applies to the other wound as well, does it not?—No, it was not so severe as you get with a man falling with his whole weight on the pavement.

25103. Then the wound on the back of the head was undoubtedly the severer of the two?—Yes.

25104. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) There is a question I ought to have asked—which of those wounds is more likely to render the man dazed or unconscious?—The wound on the back of his head.

25105. (Chairman.) Then what you say is quite consistent with the policeman and Emms having a struggle, the policeman knocking him on the forehead with a truncheon, and the man falling and getting a wound on the back of his head?—Yes.

25106. You think that is a possible explanation?—Yes, quite.

Police-constable HARRY JEFFERY, 369 H, sworn.

P.C. H. Jeffery.

25107. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Are you stationed at the Commercial Street Police Station?—Yes.

25108. How long have you been in the police force?—Fifteen months.

25109. How old are you?—23 years and 9 months.

23109*. What were you employed at before you went into the police force?—I served as a gunner in the Royal Marine Artillery for six years and two days.

25110. That is what you did before you came into the police?—Yes. For a few months previous to that I had been out of the Marine Artillery—about nine months, when I joined the police force, and I had about three months' employment as a motor-car driver.

25111. During the time you have been in the police have you been at this station?—All the time.

25112. Did you know the man named Norrey?—I knew him quite well.

25113. What name did you know him by?—Ginger Norrey I knew him as.

25114. Did you know Emms?—I did not know his name until he was charged.

25115. Did you know him by sight?—I had seen him several times.

25116. Had you ever seen him and Norrey together?—Yes, I had seen them together several times.

25117. When last about, do you remember, before the 22nd or 23rd October?—I could not say; I could not fix any date.

25118. Can you say whether you have seen them together within the last six or eight months or not?—Yes, I had seen them. I should think the last date was in June or July. I could not speak with certainty.

25119. Together?—Yes, together.

25120. In the summer-time?—Yes.

25121. Were you on duty in Brick Lane about half-past 12 on the morning of the 23rd October?—Yes, I was.

25122. Were you near the railway arch?—Yes.

25123. What was it you noticed there?—I saw two men and a woman. They were quarrelling, and the woman was crying.

25124. You have seen this plan, I think (exhibiting plan)?—Yes, I saw the rough sketch of it before it was made.

25125. I daresay you pointed out the position to the man who made it?—Yes, I did.

25126. Will you point out where it was you first saw the two men and a woman who were quarrelling?—At the north edge of the arch, on the right-hand side, going south.

25127. That is on the left-hand side or west side of the map?—Yes.

25128. I believe it is marked with a dot and with a statement upon it?—Yes, "Position of P.C. 369 H when he saw two men and a woman quarrelling."

25129. That was your position?—Yes.

25130. What was the position of the two men and the woman?—They were at the further end or south end of the arch.

25131. Is that marked with a dot?—Yes.

25132. What is written opposite that?—"Position of men and woman in doorway."

25133. What did you do?—Seeing the woman crying I spoke to them.

25134. Did you go to the spot where they were?—Yes, I went to the spot where they were.

25135. What did you do?—I said, "What is the matter here?" The man Emms replied, "This is my wife."

25136. Emms was one of the men?—Yes.

25137. Who was the other?—The other man was known to me as Ginger Norrey at the time.

25138. Have you seen them here to-day?—Yes, he is here to-day.

25139. That is the man Norrey?—Yes.

25140. Emms spoke?—Yes.

25141. What did he say?—He said, "This is my wife. This is my brother-in-law. It is nothing to do with you." I then said, "If it is your wife, take her indoors. Do not keep a woman crying in the street at this hour of the night." The woman and the man Norrey walked away a few yards. The man Norrey almost immediately returned, and the two men assaulted me, striking me in the face and pinning me to the wall. The man Emms hung on to my throat and knocked the back of my head against the wall. Norrey kicked me just below the left knee, and beat me about the left side of the face and body. An artificial tooth was knocked off the plate, and my whistle and armlet were torn away in the struggle. My lamp was also damaged. I tried to get them to desist assaulting me, and to surrender to me, but they would not, and finding that I was being overpowered by them, I drew my truncheon. I struck the man Emms a light blow on the forehead. It did not cause him to desist, so I struck him again on the head with the truncheon. The man Norrey ran away to the south, down Brick Lane, and the man Emms released himself from me and ran down Pedley Street, and there he fell to the ground. I followed him, and stood over him. In the meantime someone had informed another police-constable, and he came to my assistance.

25142. Did you hear a police whistle blown?—There was no police whistle blown.

25143. You heard none?—No.

25144. Did you ever recover your whistle?—I could never recover that whistle.

25145. Or your armlet?—No.

25146. You do not know what became of it?—No.

25147. And your helmet?—My helmet was knocked off, and was given to me by a bystander.

25148. When was your helmet knocked off?—At the commencement of the struggle.

25149. Was it P.C. Death who came up?—Yes; he was the first police-constable to my assistance.

25150. And then the ambulance came?—Yes.

25151. Did you get to the station yourself?—I walked to the station.

25152. And Emms was taken on the ambulance?—Yes. P.C. H. Jeffery.

25153. At the police station, when you got there, what state were you in?—I was very exhausted. The station sergeant, seeing my condition, told me to sit down in the Inspector's office. 13 Dec. 1906.

25154. After the Divisional Surgeon had attended to Emms and a woman who was there, did he examine you?—Yes.

25155. And you were placed on the sick list?—Yes.

25156. And remained on the sick list for some thirteen days?—Yes.

25157. Do you know Mrs. Bloom?—No, I did not know her until I saw her at the Police Court.

25158. Did you strike any blow at all in Pedley Street on the man Emms?—No.

25159. With regard to the map, where was Emms when you struck the two blows which you have mentioned?—At this spot on the opposite side of the road. (Indicating on map.)

25160. How is it marked there?—It is marked here with a dot and a statement, "Spot where the police-constable struck Emms with the truncheon."

25161. That is the correct spot?—Yes.

25162. You pointed it out to the officer who made the plan?—Yes, I did.

25163. Did you tell the station sergeant who the other man was when you got to the station?—Yes, I did.

TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY.

Friday, 14*th December* 1906.

PRESIDENT:

Sir David Brynmor Jones, K.C., M.P. (Chairman).
Willoughby Hyett Dickinson, Esq., M.P. (Barrister-at-law).
Charles Algernon Whitmore, Esq., (Barrister-at-law).

J. W. St. Lawrance Leslie, Esq. (Barrister-at-law), (Secretary).
J. F. Waley, Esq. (Barrister-at-law, Assistant-Secretary).

(Chairman.)—I understand there are one or two witnesses in what we have called the Wells' case who have come this morning?

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes.

(Chairman.)—I think we will interpose them now in order that they may get back to their work.

John Miller, sworn.

25164. (Chairman.) Where do you reside?—53, Cannon Road, Blackstock Road. J. Miller.

25165. What is your occupation?—Watering motor buses for the Road Car Company.

25166. You are generally stationed outside the public-house at Highbury Barn, are you not?—Yes.

25167. Do you know Mr. Edward Wells, who made a complaint to us?—Yes.

25168. Have you known him for some time?—Yes, for very nearly 20 years.

25169. And you have seen him about the place getting orders from the busmen and talking to them about his business, and so on?—Yes.

25170. Do you remember his being arrested?—Yes.

25171. On what day was that, do you remember the day?—No, I do not.

25172. On a day in October?—Yes.

25173. Do you remember that it was on the 13th October that Mr. Wells was arrested?—Yes.

25174. About what time in the afternoon, according to your recollection?—I should have said about 5 o'clock.

25175. About 5 o'clock you think?—I should think so.

25176. Did you see Mr. Wells actually arrested?—Yes.

25177. Tell me what you had noticed before that?—I did not notice anything before that. I was watering my motor.

25178. You noticed nothing before?—No.

25179. Did you see Mr. Wells talking to a busman, named Hill?—No.

25180. You did not then, I understand, hear any extraordinary noise?—No.

25181. No noise of an altercation or the use of bad language?—No, I never heard him use bad language.

25182. Where was he arrested, according to your view?—In the middle of the road.

25183. What was it that called your attention to it?—I did not hear what was going on, but after I had watered the motor car I went to see what was the matter, and I saw the constable taking Wells away, and I was surprised to know what he was taking him away for.

25184. You were surprised at Wells' arrest?—Yes.

25185. Did you hear anything that passed between the constable and Wells?—No.

J. Miller.
14 Dec. 1906.

25186. That is really all that you know about the case?—Yes.

(Chairman.) Do you wish to ask any question, Mr. Muir?

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) No, sir, I do not.

25187. (Mr. Dickinson.) What does watering the motor bus consist of; how do you do it?—Pour the water in a funnel from a water-can.

25188. Does that make any noise?—It does. That is the reason why I did not hear what was going on. Then I was called away to another one.

25189. Does it make such a noise that when people are shouting at the top of their voices you would not hear?—No, you would not.

25190. (Chairman.) I thought the water was poured into a radiator?—That is right.

25191. (Mr. Dickinson.) Does the pouring of the water into the radiator make any noise?—No, but if you keep the engine going it does.

25192. But pouring the water in does not make a noise?—No.

25193. But the engine does?—Yes.

25194. Do you remember whether the engine was making a noise then?—Yes, it was making a noise. That is the reason I did not hear the noise.

25195. You are perfectly certain of that?—Perfectly certain.

25196. We have been told that the engine had been stopped?—No, not the one I was watering.

25197. (Chairman.) Was that just before the arrest or while the arrest was going on?—While the arrest was going on.

25198. (Mr. Dickinson.) After you poured the water in, was it still going on—when you saw the policeman take him away?—The car was ordered off the rank.

25199. Do you mean the car never stopped working the whole time?—No.

25200. You are certain of that?—Certain of that.

25201. Have you had any conversation with anybody since this happened?—With the inspector.

25202. When was that?—I do not know whether it was the next day after the hearing or not.

25203. You do not know if it was the next day, but it was soon after the hearing, was it?—Yes.

25204. The arrest took place on the 13th October, and the hearing took place on the 15th?—Yes.

25205 It was after the hearing, and not before. You are sure of that?—No.

25206. You are not quite certain?—No.

25207. Do you remember at all what he said to you?—Yes.

25208. Tell us what he said?—The inspector came and asked me whether I had heard anything of Wells' case. I only said I saw Mr. Wells going away with the constable, and I was surprised to know what he was going away for. That is all I know.

25209. That is all?—That is all.

25210. Have you had any communication with anybody since that?—I only had a letter.

25211. You have had a letter from the Secretary o this Commission, asking you to come here?—Yes.

25212. Have you ever spoken to Wells about it?—No, I have not spoken to Wells about it.

25213. Have you ever spoken to any of the drivers about it?—No.

25214. Or to anybody connected with the police?—No, I merely told the drivers I was coming here, and I should not be there till the evening.

25215. You warned the drivers that you would not be there?—Yes, I warned the drivers that I was comin here.

WILLIAM HUME, sworn.

W. Hume.

25216. (Chairman.) Where do you reside?—19, James-street, Mile End, E.

24217. What is your occupation?—A puller-up to the London General Omnibus Company outside Highbury Barn Tavern.

25218. You are a puller-up?—Yes; looking after horse 'buses.

25219. You are in the employment of the London General Omnibus Company?—Only in the summer months; then they pay me.

25220 You mean at Highbury Tavern, I suppose?—Yes.

25221. It is there that you generally do your work?—Always.

25222. Were you employed by the London General Omnibus Company in October looking after horse 'buses?—Yes, for very nearly four years there.

25223. Do you remember the incident of Mr. Wells being arrested on the 13th October?—Yes.

25225. Have you known Wells for some time?—For some years.

25226. Are you friends?—No.

25227. Has Wells been, so far as you know, a peaceable man?—I never knew him otherwise.

25228. Did you hear any bad language used on this occasion?—No; never.

25229. Did you see the arrest?—Yes.

25230. What did you do? Were you surprised?—Rather surprised. I simply walked to the end of the road and saw Wells going down the road with the constable, and, of course, I walked back again. That is all.

25231. That is all you can tell us about the matter?—That is all,

25232. Were you spoken to by the police about the matter at all?—After the second hearing here the inspector came to me and spoke to me. That is all.

25233. And you told him what you have told us, I suppose?—I believe so, to the best of my recollection. I do not think the inspector asked me many questions, if I remember rightly.

25234. What did he say?—He asked me for my name and address, and I gave it to him.

25235. (Mr. Dickinson.) When the inspector came to you was after the hearing here?—Yes. If I remember rightly, it was after the second hearing.

25236. The second hearing before this Royal Commission?—Yes.

25237. Before that had the police spoken to you about it?—I had no communication whatever about the matter. I did not trouble my head about the matter at all.

25238. I understand you are there always?—Yes; from 9 o'clock in the morning till just 10 o'clock at night I am there.

25239. You have been there for very nearly four years?—For very nearly four years.

25240. Do I understand you have seen Wells there for some time?—Wells comes there sometimes once or twice a week on business matters.

25241. Do you remember where you were standing on that occasion?—Yes, perfectly well.

25242. Just tell us where you were standing?—Of course, it was on the pavement.

25243. Just describe to us how you were standing?—The 'buses were standing here. I was on the pavement, and when the altercation, if it was so, took place, it was in the centre of the road, Wells being in the road and the driver on the seat of the omnibus.

25244. There is a urinal there, is there not?—There is.

25245. Where was the horse omnibus standing?—On this side of the urinal going towards Islington, as it may be.

25246. Where was the motor omnibus?—In front, and one behind.

25247. Am I right in saying that the horse 'bus, in order to pull out, had to pull to the right of the motor omnibus?—Yes.

25248. Between the urinal and the motor omnibus?—Leaving the urinal behind.

25249. With that picture in your mind's eye, tell me where you were standing?—On the pavement, directly opposite the public-house.

25250. That is to say between the omnibus and the urinal?—No. The urinal is in the centre of the road, and the omnibuses come between the urinal and the pavement. I was standing on the pavement.

25251. Then do I understand that the omnibus was between you and the urinal?—Decidedly.

25252. Did you see Wells and the driver go into the urinal?—No.

25253. Could you have heard anything that was going on in the urinal?—No.

25254. Would you have heard it if there had been shouting there?—Yes, I could hear the shouting.

25255. Did you see them come out of the urinal?—Who?

25256. Did you see Hill, the driver, come out of the urinal?—No.

25257. The first thing you saw was when Hill was on the box?—On the omnibus.

25258. Where was Wells?—Standing in the middle of the road.

25259. Did he move at all?—No. I believe he had one hand in his pocket. I am not positive, but I believe he had. He simply looked up at the man in that way, and said: "I'll see about that on Tuesday."

25260. Did the omnibus pull away?—He made an attempt to pull away, but he did not do so. The motor 'bus went on and allowed him to follow on without pulling out of the rank.

25261. Did you ever see Wells get in front of the horses?—Certainly not. He stood by the side of the horses.

25262. That you could see?—Yes; because I was standing in line with the horses' heads and where Wells was standing.

25263. Did Wells make any movement as if to prevent the horses going on?—No He could not have done it if he had.

25264. But he did not?—No.

25265. Did you hear Wells cry out: "You b——tyke"?—No, I did not.

25266. You are certain about it?—I am positive of it.

25267. You know the words "f——g" and "b——g"?—Yes.

25268. Did you hear those words used by anybody?—No.

25269. You are perfectly certain of that?—I am certain of that.

25270. One of the witnesses said to us that "When they came out the London General driver got on his box because his time was up to go away, and his 'bus pulled out from behind mine and Wells followed round and kept shouting at him all the time"?—That may be, but I did not see the driver come out of the urinal at all.

25271. After he got on the box the 'bus pulled out?—He got on his box to go away.

25272. "His 'bus pulled out from behind mine" (that is from behind the motor 'bus) "and Wells followed round and kept shouting at him all the time"?—The omnibus did not pull out until after Wells had gone away with the constable. Wells was taken away before the omnibus moved.

25273. Is your recollection good enough to make you certain of that?—Yes, it is. Wells had gone away.

25274. You say the motor 'bus had gone away?—The bus was round the corner when Wells was some few yards down the road.

25275. Had the motor 'bus gone away?—That I would not be certain of.

25276. Were you quite close to the 'bus?—Within ten yards of it, I suppose, or something like that.

25277. You had been there all the morning?—Yes.

25278. And Wells had been there all the morning?—No.

25279. How long had he been there?—Wells generally stays there about two or three hours as a rule.

25280. He had been there two or three hours?—Yes.

25281. You had seen him there?—Yes, I had seen him there.

25282. Had there been any kind of disturbance before that?—Never.

25283. He had been doing his business?—Doing his business with other men, but in a quiet manner, of course. There was no disturbance whatever before that.

25284. On this occasion Wells seems to have been, as you say, excited?—Yes, he was excited. Perhaps something was said to him by the driver. I cannot say that it was, but it may have been that. You see you cannot hear very distinctly.

25285. Did you see what happened when the constable took him up?—I saw the constable catch hold of his coat collar, and the words were, "Now then, out of this, I have had enough of that." Wells passed the remark, "What have I done?" I believe it was. "I am not drunk." That was it.

25286. You are telling us this from your memory?—From my memory.

25287. You have not spoken about it?—No.

25288. Wells said, "I am not drunk." What did the constable then say?—Then the constable walked him off.

25289. One witness said the constable said, "'We cannot have anything here of that, get away out of it. Wells said 'I am not drunk.' The constable told him then two or three times to get out of it. Wells said, 'No, I will not.'"—Not in my hearing.

25290. Were there a lot of people there?—When the constable got hold of him there were about twenty, I suppose—not more. Of course, there are always some few people—a dozen people or so—standing about the 'buses.

25291. Was there enough row to attract people passing by?—No, I do not think so.

25292. Not before the constable got hold of him?—No.

25293 (Mr. R. D. Muir.) I want to know about your duties. You are one of the pullers-up for the horse 'buses?—Yes.

25294. How many pullers-up are there for the horse 'buses?—Only one—myself.

25295. How do you do about getting a holiday in the week. Does somebody come to relieve you one evening in the week?—No.

25296. So that you are always there, are you?—Yes, I am always there.

25297. Do you remember Inspector Smith coming there and talking to the pullers-up and to the watering man?—I told these gentlemen that Inspector Smith spoke to me once after the second hearing here.

25298. Do you know Inspector Smith?—Yes.

25299. Did you see him on any occasion come to Highbury Barn, and talk to the horse 'busmen and motor 'busmen?—Yes, I saw him there.

25300. Did you see him making enquiries?—Yes.

25301. I daresay he made a note of them?—I believe he did.

25302. Taking down the names and addresses?—Yes.

25303. Did you go up to him?—No.

25304. Did you know what he was enquiring about?—No.

25305. Did you see the other men, the timekeepers and so on, speaking to him?—I saw Inspector Smith talking to the timekeepers.

25306. To all of them?—Yes.

25307. You never went near him?—Certainly not.

25308. Why did you not go and enquire what he was asking about?—Me enquire into that gentleman's business?

W. Hume. 14 Dec. 1906.

25309. Yes?—No.

25310. You were all fellow workmen—the timekeeper, and so on?—The timekeeper is not my fellow workman. There is only one—Mr. Miller; he looks after the motor 'buses and I look after the horse 'buses.

25311. Did you see the Inspector speaking to Mr. Miller?—I did not.

25312. Did you never have the curiosity to enquire from any of these people what the Inspector was asking about?—I did not.

25313. So far as you know the Inspector did not know of your existence as a man connected with the 'buses?—Possibly not.

25314. There was some shouting, was there not?—Yes.

25315. Who was doing the shouting?—Both of them.

25316. Both Wells and the driver?—Yes.

25317. Did you hear Wells shouting, "You don't mean to pay me"?—Yes, I believe he did make use of those words.

25318. He did?—I believe so.

25319. Was there any "f——g" and "b——g"?—I did not hear it.

25320. You know a good deal about 'busmen. Some of them do use language of that kind, do they not?—I admit that. I did not hear them use those words, but there is a certain amount of swearing going on amongst them, you know.

25321. There was shouting, there was excitement, and there was a 'bus driver taking part in it, and Mr. Wells who is associated with bus drivers?—He does business with them.

25322. And I dare say you know he has been a 'bus driver in his day?—Yes.

25323. You say there was no bad language used at all?—I never heard any—not then.

25324. Not a single "f——" or "b——"?—No.

25325. Not then?—Not then.

25326. What do you mean by "not then"?—Not when Wells was arrested. There may have been during the day.

25327. You mean from 8 o'clock in the morning there may have been one or two?—Yes, occasionally.

25328. During these excited moments there was no bad language used?—Not in my hearing.

25329. You say it is a fact that Wells shouted to the driver of the 'bus, "You don't mean to pay me"?—Yes, words to that effect.

25330. Could you hear the shouting going on in the urinal?—No.

25331. Outside the urinal?—Outside.

25332. You could hear the shouting going on outside the urinal?—Yes. You could not hear it inside.

25333. There is no doubt at all that Wells was shouting at the 'bus driver?—He had to make him hear because of the noise of the motor.

25334. It is true that he also shouted at him, "You will see what I will do"?—Yes.

25335. Just see if this is not what he said, and I will leave the "b's" out, because you say there were not any: "If I don't hear from you before Tuesday you will see what I will do"?—That is correct.

25336. This is a question which was put to Mr. Wells. It is Question 16379: "Would it be true that in his hearing you said to the driver of the 'bus who you were speaking to" (I will leave out the "f's" and the "b's") "'You twister, you don't mean to pay me.'" Did you not hear that?—I did not hear that.

25337. You did hear him say, "You don't mean to pay me?"—Yes, I heard that.

25338. No "twister" in it?—I do not remember word for word as far as that goes. What I told you just now was what I heard Wells say—"If I don't hear from you by Tuesday——"

25339. I am speaking of another thing altogether. I am coming to that in a moment. You told me you heard him shouting, "You don't mean to pay me?"—Yes.

25340. It may be a denial directed to the bad language but Wells' answer was that that was absolutely untrue. That is Question 16381: "Is it true that you were shouting at the driver as he was getting on to his box?—I was talking to him in a loud voice. Shouting at him?—Certainly not." What do you say to that?—He was speaking in a very loud manner.

25341. Was he shouting?—He had to speak loud.

25342. Was he shouting?—Shouting sufficient so that the driver should hear him.

25343. Was he shouting?—I do not know what you term "shouting."

45344. You have already said that he was?—Yes shouting so that the driver could hear him. I could hear him.

25345. On the other side of the 'bus?—Yes, on the pavement.

25346. "Would it be true that when the driver was about to pull his 'bus off the rank you were standing near the horses' heads and shouting: 'If I don't hear from you before Tuesday you see what I will do.'" You did hear that?—I heard it.

25347. Wells said in answer to that question "Certainly not." You do not agree with Wells?—No.

(Chairman.) Would you, Mr. Wells, like to ask any questions of this witness?—(Mr. Wells.) No, Sir.

25348. (Mr. Dickinson.) Did you hear any shouting or any loud altercation before the coachman got on the box?—No.

25349. Of that you are perfectly certain?—I was talking to somebody else at the time, I expect.

25350. When it is stated that Wells was halloaing and shouting and using the most filthy language to this 'busman at the urinal, are you in a position to tell us whether that is so or not?—I should say it is an untruth. He was not using any bad language, I know, because I was quite close enough to have heard it if he had been.

25351. This was before the driver got on the omnibus at all. Were you in a position in which you could not have heard it?—I did not hear anything of it until I saw the driver on the seat of the omnibus. I did not hear any shouting or anything else no more than ordinary.

25352. Are you able to say whether you saw the policeman speak to the driver before he got on to the omnibus or not. Do not tell us if you do not know?—No, the constable walked from Highbury Park direct to Wells and took hold of him by the collar and coat. Had he have spoken to the driver of the omnibus I think I should have seen him from the position in which I was standing.

25353. You remember when the policeman walked up from Highbury Park to Wells the 'busman was on the box?—Yes, he was on the box.

25354. You are perfectly certain of that?—Yes, the driver was on the box.

25355. Did you see the policeman walk from Highbury Park to Wells?—He was on the other side of the street and the constable walked in the road.

25356. Then you cannot be quite certain where this policeman came from?—No, but he came from that direction.

25357. You saw him come up to Wells the first time after the driver got on the 'bus?—Yes, after the coachman was on the box.

25358. (Mr. Wells.) Do you think I shouted loud enough to make people think I was mad or drunk?—Certainly not.

CHARLES MATLEY; Sworn

C. Matley.
14 Dec. 1906.

25359. (Chairman.) What is your address?—Devonshire House, Cross Street, Islington.

25360. What is your occupation?—Timekeeper in the service of the Road Car Company, stationed at Highbury Barn.

25361. Do you remember the 13th October last?—I do not know the date, I remember the affair concerned.

25362. You remember the day Wells was arrested?—Yes, I do.

25363. Did you see him arrested?—I saw the constable take him away. I did not see him lay hands on him in the first place.

25364. Tell us what you know about the matter?—I know very little about it because my duties take up all my time; I am noting and figuring all the time I am there, and I have no time really to look after other people's business.

25365. What first attracted your attention to the road and to what was going on there?—I heard some loud shouting in the urinal, but that is a common thing, because when drivers come up there they make for there, and if they have a quarrel they generally settle it there. It is not unusual to hear shouting That did not attract my attention at all.

25366. Did you hear anything that took place between the driver Hill and Wells?—No.

25367. Did you see Hill on the box of his 'bus?—I do not remember that. I saw him there, but I do not remember whether he was on the ground or on the box.

25368. Then all you saw was Wells go away with the police constable?—Yes.

25369. Have you known Wells for some time?—Many years.

25370. What sort of a man is he?—A very respectable man. I have always found him so.

25371. Is he in the habit of using strong language or of getting excited in conversation?—I have known him for about 13 years, and during the time he was driving a horse omnibus I saw him several times a day, and latterly, since he has been in business for himself, I have seen him almost daily, and I have never known him make use of a bad word ever since I have known him.

25372. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Where were you standing when you heard the loud shouting in the urinal?—I was passing backwards and forwards from one to another, because the men are always round me having their numbers entered.

25373. On the pavement?—Yes.

25374. The 'buses would be between you and the urinal?—Yes.

25375. And yet you heard the loud shouting there?—Passing, I suppose I heard it. I get the first one away, and then I walk to the last one that arrives, to take particulars, and I suppose that is where I heard it.

25376. (Mr. Dickinson.) You are a timekeeper of the Road Car Company?—Yes, of the motor omnibuses.

25377. Who is timekeeper for the horse omnibuses?—There was a relief man there at the time, and I believe his name is Preston.

25378. Have the police asked you anything about that case at all since it happened?—I have seen Mr. Smith twice. He came to me on the first occasion and said he was making enquiries with reference to this affair, but I told him I knew very little about it. It ended at this. He came one night, after the second hearing, I think it was, and he said he should like me to give him my name and address as he thought it likely the Commissioners would like to see me down here. I gave him my name and address. Very little more passed than that.

25379. Was there any conversation about this at the time it occurred, or immediately afterwards?—No, everybody seemed to say "What is he taking him away for?" Somebody said "for kicking up a row" or something of that kind, but not more than that.

25380. You did not even see him taken up?—No, I saw him pass by the end. I saw him in custody, but I did not know what led up to it until afterwards.

25381. You do not know whether the horse omnibus had gone?—The motor bus stood first, then the horse omnibus, and then a motor.

25382. I think your recollection is that the policeman took him before the 'bus went?—I believe so. The motor man got attending to the machine, I was endeavouring to get him away, and then the constable passed with Wells.

25383. You cannot remember whether Wells got in front of the horses of that omnibus or not?—No, I did not see that, I saw Wells a short time before, ten minutes, or perhaps a quarter of an hour before, but I do not remember seeing him again until the constable had him in custody.

25384. Were you in a place from which you could have seen it if it had happened?—I was passing backwards and forwards. Perhaps I was in one position for two or three minutes, and then I would go down again to another man. By chance I might have been in a position to see it, but I did not see it.

25385. We were told he was in front of the horses with the intention of preventing them coming out. Did you see that?—I do not think that was so. He could have got out if he had wanted to. The horse omnibus stands alongside the urinal, and there is plenty of room to get out when the motor is in its proper place. I think if there had been much row in the street I should have heard it, although my attention was taken up with my own duties.

25386. You think you would have heard a shouting between Wells and the driver when he was on his box?—I think I should, had it have been out of the way. They do shout and call out to each other in a way, and sometimes in a passion, but I do not take any notice of it.

25387. You do not take any notice of it?—No, I did not. I went on with my own duties.

25388. (Mr. Wells.) You have known me, I think, for 12 or 13 years?—All that.

25389. You have seen me under many different circumstances?—Yes, I have.

25390. During that time, have you ever known me, in the course of your knowledge, to swear at all?—I never heard you use bad language.

25391. If I had spoken that which has been said loud enough, shouting, do you think, standing where you were, or walking up and down, that you would have heard it?—I should think I should.

25392. You do not think I was speaking louder than was really necessary according to the noise the 'buses were making at that time?—Nothing unusual, I think.

HARRY PRESTON, sworn.

H. Preston

25393. (Chairman.) Where do you live?—Kelvey-street, Mile End-road.

25394. What is your business?—Ticket inspector to the London General Omnibus Company.

25395. Were you on duty at Highbury Barn on October 13th?—Yes, from two to four relieving the timekeeper while he went to his dinner.

25396. Have you known Wells for some time?—Yes for some 10 or 12 years.

25397. Did you see him arrested on the afternoon of the 13th October?—Yes.

25398. You actually saw the arrest?—Yes.

25399. Did you notice any of the circumstances that preceded the arrest?—No.

25400. Do you know the 'bus driver still?—Yes.

25401. Did you observe Wells in conversation with him?—Yes, in the ordinary manner.

25402. Where did the conversation begin according to your recollection?—In the middle of the road. Wells was standing in the middle of the road.

H. Preston. 14 Dec. 1906.

25403. Did you see the driver come from the urinal?—The driver was on his box, to my order, some time before the altercation commenced.

25404. You did not notice them together come from the urinal?—No.

25405. The first time you noticed them just before the arrest was after Hill had got on to his box?—Yes.

25406. What took place then?—Mr. Wells was in conversation with the driver talking a bit loud. That is a common thing for a 'busman. I very often get called over the coals at home about speaking loud. It is a common thing for a 'busman to holloa.

25407. Did you hear what passed?—No.

25408. Did you notice Wells at all particularly?—No.

25409. Was he excited?—No. He was looking up and in conversation with the driver, of course speaking a bit loud. That is a common occurrence.

25410. Did you catch any of the words?—No.

25411. If you caught none of the words it is no good my asking you whether bad language was used?—No.

25412. You could not hear?—No, I was signing the conductors' tickets and everything else.

25413. I take it what you wish us to understand is that, although you heard loud talking between the driver and Wells, nothing of an unusual kind was going on?—No.

25414. Then you were surprised when the constable took Wells?—Yes.

25415. (Mr. Dickinson.) Where were you standing at this time?—On the pavement walking up and down, from the horse 'bus to the corner and back again.

25416. Then the omnibuses were between you and the urinal?—Yes.

25417. Therefore you could not have seen everything that took place?—You could see across the horses' backs. Wells was standing a little further off than the off-side horse.

25418. Where were you standing in relation to that 'bus?—Level with the 'bus. Wells was standing there, and I was standing here.

25419. Were you standing a little in front of the driver?—Yes; I was walking up and down between the horses' heads and the motor 'bus in front.

25420. Where was Wells standing?—In the middle of the road.

25421. You saw him across the horses' heads?—He was standing on the off-side of the off-side horse.

25422. You saw him there?—Yes.

25423. Did you give the signal for that 'bus to move off?—No.

25424. Who did?

25425. (Chairman.) The ticket inspector?—The motor 'bus went first according to my knowledge.

25426. (Mr. Dickinson.) We have had this stated:—"When this happened did the 'bus driver move away or not?—The timekeeper put up his arm for the horse bus to pull out." That would have been you?—Yes, and in the meantime I think the motor 'bus driver moved off.

25427. You are certain that the motor 'bus moved off?—Yes.

25428. Leaving the place perfectly free for the horse 'bus?—Yes, to come up behind; and when this one came up away went the motor.

25429. Therefore the horse 'bus had not to pull round the motor 'bus?—No.

25430. That you are certain of?—Yes.

25431. It followed on?—Yes.

25432. There was this altercation going on?—While the driver was on the box.

25433. You gave the signal yourself?—Yes.

25434. You gave the signal while the altercation was going on?—Yes, during the time when the fourth motor 'bus came up and the horse 'bus pulled out. There was a motor here, a horse 'bus there, and a motor 'bus there; and another motor 'bus came up.

25435. You gave the signal. The statement that was made at the time was: "The timekeeper put up his arm for the horse 'bus to pull out. He turned his horses out—a slight triangle." Do you recollect that?—I have no recollection of that.

25436. Is your recollection sufficiently clear to say that that did not happen?—The man pulled off the stand.

25437. It was stated that Wells was there to prevent his coming out, and that he was still shouting at this man. This question was also asked:—"Did he make any effort to prevent the horses coming out?" and the answer was: "He stood there in front of them; no doubt if the 'busman had gone on the horses would have knocked him down?"—No.

25438. That you are perfectly certain of?—Yes; there was not room for a man to stand between. Wells was standing on the off-quarter of the off-side horse.

25439. The account here is that he tried to pull his horses out to the right of the motor 'bus?—That is the regular course. They always pull their horses that way so that people can get into the motor omnibuses behind.

25440. Is your recollection sufficiently clear for you to say that Wells did not at any time stand in front of the horses' heads?—Yes. He did not.

25441. You are sure of that?—I am positive he did not.

25442. Did you see the policeman come up to Wells?—Yes.

25443. Had the 'bus driven off at that moment?—No, the 'bus was standing there when he was arrested.

25444. Did he come up to him before or after the driver had got on to his box?—The driver was on his box some time—two or three minutes—before the affair happened.

25445. You are sure the policeman did not come up to Wells until after the driver was on his box?—Yes. After the 'bus driver was on his box the policeman came round to arrest Wells; he came round in front of the motor 'bus in that way and arrested him.

25446. Are you able to say whether the policeman had spoken to Wells before that?—Not to my knowledge he had not.

25447. You did not see where he came from, I suppose?—The constable?

25448. Yes?—He came from the corner point duty. He arrested him in the road.

25449. You saw him leave the point?—Yes, certainly; he came round by the side of the motor 'bus, and there was a horse 'bus standing there.

25450. How far was the point from where Wells was standing?—About 10 or 12 feet.

25451. So far as you are able to say you are pretty sure the policeman did not speak to Wells before he arrested him?—No, he did not, not to my knowledge.

25452. After he arrested him did Wells go quietly?—He made a bit of a show so (illustrating). I stood dumbfounded at the way he went.

25453. Were you astonished?—I was. I was surprised, and so were other people standing there. It would upset anybody.

25454. Was there any conversation about it afterwards?—No. They all could not make head or tail of it. They were surprised.

25455. Have you been asked about this by anybody?—No. I have not heard a word until I received a letter on Tuesday from the Commission.

25456. From Mr. Leslie?—Yes.

25457. Therefore the police never came and asked you anything about it?—No. I had not heard anything until I received this letter.

25458. Have the facts of this matter been investigated and talked about by yourself and others?—No.

25459. Not at all?—No.

25460. You are not generally at that place?—No, only once in three weeks. This week I am doing two hours from two to four. That gives the timekeeper a chance to go to dinner.

25461. I suppose you knew this case was coming before the Commissioners?—Yes; I read it in the paper.

25462. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Were you there on any occasion when Inspector Smith was making enquiries among the 'busmen?—No.

25463. What are your hours of duty?—I have three turns. I have a middle turn, a late turn, and an early turn.

25464. In October, how many days a week were you at Highbury Barn?—Seven days.

25465. Seven days a week?—Yes.

25466. What hours on the Saturday?—From half past seven in the morning to six o'clock at night, and two hours' time-keeping at Highbury Barn, from two to four, relieving the timekeeper.

25467. At Highbury Barn, what were your duties?—From two to four.

25468. I am asking you about your duties at Highbury Barn?—Very good.

25469. How many days a week were you at Highbury Barn?—Seven days—from Sunday to Saturday.

25470. What are your hours on the other days of the week?—I work on the roads as a ticket inspector.

25471. That is what I am trying to get from you, but you will not listen to the question before you answer it. At what hours of the week are you on duty at Highbury Barn?—From two to four.

25472. On what days of the week?—From Sunday to Saturday.

25473. So that it is only between two and four that you are ever to be found at Highbury Barn?—Yes.

25474. You say you were never there on any occasion when Inspector Smith came inquiring among the 'busmen about this case?—No, I was on late duty.

25475. (Mr. Wells.) Do you think it possible if the constable had come up and had spoken to me and asked me several times to go home, you would have been able to see me and hear it?—Certainly.

25476. Did he caution me before he put his hand on me at all?—No.

25477. (Chairman.) Did you see the actual arrest?—Yes, collar and cuff.

25478. How long was the constable talking to Wells before he actually took him?—Not two minutes; that is where the surprise came in.

25479. Then they did have a conversation lasting two minutes, I understand?—It seemed like two minutes Of course, I saw him march him down the street.

25480. Could you hear what the constable said?—No. H. Preston.

25481. That is what I rather gather. How came you to answer Mr. Wells so positively that the policeman did not caution him?—Because Wells was on the pavement before he spoke to the driver, Hill. 14 Dec. 1906.

25482. Very likely; but we have gone to a point several minutes after that. I suppose you agree with the other witnesses that the arrest took place in the road?—Certainly.

25483. You have told me that you did see the constable and Mr. Wells talking for a period you said of two minutes?—Yes.

25484. Do you say perhaps not so long as that?—No.

25485. Take it so. You have also told me you could not hear what the constable said?—I was standing away from him.

25486. How many yards away?—I should say four or five yards away and attending to my business at the same time.

25487. Then how came you to answer Mr. Wells as you did a moment or two ago? Mr. Wells asked you whether the constable told him to go away several times?—I never heard the constable say a word about going away.

25488. He may have done for aught you know?—Not to my knowledge.

25489. You could not hear what the constable said?—No.

25490. (Mr. Dickinson.) What is your recollection of what happened when the policeman arrested him. The policeman told us this: "Having refused to go away, having asked him several times, I caught hold of his arm and said 'I shall take you away.' He threw himself round and was very wild, and as he resisted and tried to get away I caught hold of his collar." Is that what you saw?—He took him by the collar and arm and took him away.

25491. Was there any resistance?—Wells went like this (illustrating), and said, "What are you doing?"

25492. You would not say it was correct to say he was very wild?—No.

25493. (Chairman.) That finishes the four witnesses in Wells' case, and I think that is all the evidence that we are likely to have. We will now go on with Emms' case.

Mrs. Martha Allen; Sworn.

25494. (Mr. Livett.) Where do you live?—55, Bacon-street, Bethnal Green

25494*. Are you married?—Yes.

25495. I think you keep a shop, do you not?—Yes.

25496. Where were you when you first saw anything of this affair?—I was coming along Brick-lane from Whitechapel end.

25497. From the Buxton-street side?—Yes. It is all on the road. I saw a few people standing and, of course I went to have a look.

25498. Whereabouts were they standing?—Just before you come to the archway opposite Pedley-street on the other side.

25499. On which side were you?—On the left hand side.

25500. Were they on the same side as you?—As I came down, yes.

25501. Just tell us what you saw?—I saw a few people standing, and, of course, I went to have a look. When I went there, there was a constable and a young man. I saw the police-constable had got hold of him, and he said, "Move on," and shoved him. He said, "Go away."

25502. Where was that?—Opposite Pedley-street—on the other side.

25503. What did he say?—The constable said, "Go on." He said, "All right." The constable kept pushing him until he got to the corner of Pedley-street, and all of a sudden I saw the policeman draw his truncheon, and he struck the man on the head with it. Of course the man fell.

25504. Where was that?—At the corner of Pedley-street. He pushed him across the road to the corner of Pedley-street. Mrs. M. Allen.

25505. Was he in the road then?—On the other side; on the pavement.

25506. In Brick-lane?—Yes.

25507. And opposite Pedley-street?—Yes, opposite.

25508. What then?—The man said, "Oh," and he fell, and as he went to raise himself up the policeman took his truncheon and hit him on the head again.

25509. Where did he fall?—At the corner of Pedley-street.

25510. What happened then?—He said, "Oh!" and, of course, he hit him again and knocked him unconscious. On my seeing the blood I went back a little, it frightened me so. All of a sudden some man in the mob struck the constable in the face, and ran away. Of course, I saw no more of that man.

25511. Did you continue to remain there?—Yes, I did. I heard the whistle blow, but who blew it I cannot say.

25512. When did you hear the whistle blow?—When the man was unconscious on the ground; who blew it, I cannot say.

25513. Were there many people there then?—Not so very many. I should think about a dozen, or something like that.

25514. Did you stay there any longer?—Yes, I did. I stopped until the ambulance came along, and they took the man on the ambulance unconscious to the surgeon. In the meantime a young woman asked me to go to the station with her, and of course I went.

25515. Who did you see there?—I saw the inspector, I expect; a gentleman there that answered us.

25516. Should you recognise him again?—I do not think I should, for I was too much upset; I did not take much notice.

25517. Did you speak to the inspector?—No, I did not, but the other young woman did.

25518. What was the result?—The other young woman said, "Please can I speak to the man?"

25519. Never mind about that.

25520. (Chairman.) Yes, I think she had better tell us what passed?—She mentioned the man's name, I think, but I did not know his name.

25521. "Can I speak to the man"?—To the man, mentioning his name.

25522. Were you in the charge room at the moment when she said that?—No, but I could see the man sitting in a chair.

25523. You were not in the charge room, but you could see Emms from where you were?—Yes.

25524. What did the constable say?—The inspector said, "What do you want to say to this man; tell me, and I will tell him." "No," the young woman said, "I would like to speak to him myself, if I could." Then he said, "You can't; get outside." She said, "I would like to speak to him," and he said, "Outside," and he got hold of us at the back of the neck, the two of us, and threw us out of the door.

25525. He did what?—And shoved us out of the door. We could not help being pushed out so quick.

25526. Do you know the inspector?—No, I do not.

25527. By sight?—No, I do not think I should recollect him. I was too much upset to take any notice.

25528. (Mr. Livett.) I want to take you back again to the time at the close of the struggle when the man was on the ground. How close were you to him?—I was about a couple of yards away, or about a yard and a-half, or something like that.

25529. When he fell?—Yes.

25530. Did you remain close to him until the ambulance came?—Yes, I did. I stepped back when I saw the blood. I remained there until the ambulance came 25531. What did the constable do?—He did not do anything. He stood by the side of the man. That was all.

25532 After the man had fallen he stood by the side of the man?—While the man lay on the pavement.

25533. How long was the man on the pavement?—I should think ten minutes or a quarter of an hour as well as I can recollect.

25534. Until the policeman came up with the ambulance did you see any other official there?—No, they were mostly women standing there with the constable and the man was on the ground then.

25535. How many policemen were there when the ambulance came?—Two or three as well as I can recollect.

25536. Did you hear anybody talking to Jeffery?—I do not know Jeffery.

25537. (Chairman.) There is police-constable Jeffery standing up?—I do not know his name, of course not.

25538. (Mr. Livett.) Is he the man you saw who used the truncheon?—Yes.

25539. (Chairman.) Do you recognise him?—Yes, I can recognise him now.

25540. (Mr. Livett). Did you or anybody speak to him?—No, I did not hear anybody speak to him, only some women in the crowd said "What a shame!" or something of that sort. That was all. Of course, what happened between the constable and the man beforehand I do not know, and I do not know what caused him to use his truncheon.

25541. Did you hear police-constable Jeffery say anything? No.

25542. I am talking now about while the man was on the ground, and before the ambulance came?—No, there was nobody for him to speak to, to my knowledge; I did not see any other constable there.

25543. Had you known Emms before this occurrence? No.

25544. Had you ever seen him before?—No, I had not 25545. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) I understand you are married. Is that right?—Yes.

25546. When were you married?—Seventeen years ago come next August

25547. Do you live with your husband?—I believe I do.

25548. You do?—Yes.

25549. Were you living with him on the 30th October last?—Yes, I have been living with him ever since I got married.

25550. When you were before the magistrate did you describe yourself as a widow?—No.

25551. Did you not?—No.

25552. Can you account for the magistrate's clerk writing down "Martha Allen, 55, Bacon-street, widow"?—No, I cannot. I never gave myself as a widow. I could not.

25553. That is a mistake?—It must be.

(Chairman.) A similar contradiction between the witnesses in the notes of evidence occurred yesterday. There are several indications that these notes are possibly wrongly copied, but, as a rule, I think they have been very accurate.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes, they have.

(Chairman.) I should think that must be a mistake.

(Witness.) That is quite a mistake.

25554. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Probably it is a mistake of hearing rather than of copying.

25555. You keep a coal shop?—Yes.

25556. In Bacon-street?—Yes.

25557. That I am told is north of the plan. It is straight up Brick-lane, is it?—Yes, it leads into Brick-lane.

25558. How far north of Sclater street?—Sclater-street is two or three minutes walk from my house.

25559. It is two or three minutes walk from the corner of Sclater-street?—Yes.

25560. Do you know Harding?—No.

25561. By sight?—No.

25562. Do you know either of these two men there (pointing) by sight?—I saw them at Old-street when I was up on the case. That is all I know them by.

25563. You do not know them except by having seen them at Old-street?—No.

25564. How did you come to give evidence at Old-street at all?—I had a gentleman come to my house for information. How he came to me I could not tell you.

25565. Did you know his name?—No, I did not.

25566. Had you ever seen him before?—No.

25567. Have you ever seen him since?—No, not since he came to my house.

25568. Have you any idea at all how he came to know you could give evidence?—No, I have not. I was very much surprised when he came to me.

25569. When did he come to you?—About two or three days before I went to Old-street.

25570. You went to Old-street on the 30th October, which was a Tuesday?—Yes, on a Tuesday.

25571. When did the gentleman come to you to ask you to give evidence?—He came on the Saturday before I went on the Tuesday.

25572. Did he come to your shop, 55, Bacon-street?—Yes.

25573. You have no notion of how he came there?—No, none whatever.

25574. When you were coming up Brick-lane towards the Arch, had you got to Pedley-street?—Yes, on the other side, opposite.

25576. You were walking on the left-hand side of the way?—Yes.

25577. When you first saw the constable use the truncheon where was he?—When he used his truncheon he was at the corner of Pedley-street.

25578. When you first saw the constable he was on the left-hand side?—Yes.

25579. Any people round him?—About eight or nine, I did not exactly count them. There were not such a great many.

25580. Any women there?—Yes, mostly all women.

35581. Any men?—I do not know. I did not look much to see who they were.

25582. Was this young woman who afterwards went to the police-station one of the women?—She was one standing there.

25583. Round about him on the left-hand side of the pavement?—Yes.

25584. How near was she to Emms when you first saw Emms?—She stood by the side of him.

25585. You were quite close, were you?—Yes.

25586. Did you ever learn that young woman's name?—No, I did not.

25587. Have you ever seen her since that night?—No, I have not.

25588. She knew Emms' name?—I do not know if she mentioned his name exactly in the station. I rather think she did.

25589. You swore before the magistrate that she did, did you not?—No, not that I know of.

25590. Did you not say that she asked for him by name?—It is rather a long time since it happened. I forget.

25591. Did you say this before the magistrate: "My friend asked to see Emms"?—I do not know that I said "Emms." I said the lady that was with me asked to see him.

25592. It has been taken down "my friend asked to see Emms"?—Yes, she did ask to see Emms.

25593. Is that how you described her when you were before the magistrate?—No, I think I said "the lady."

25594. It has been taken down as "My friend." That is the young woman, anyhow?—Yes.

25595. The young woman asked to see Emms?—Yes.

(Chairman.) I have had an opportunity of reading these notes of evidence, and with regard to the cross-examination I cannot help thinking that the clerk in more than one instance took part of the question and then adapted the answer to what he had already written. You know what I mean. Whoever was cross-examining used the word "friend," and he said "Did your friend ask to see Emms?" Then she said "The lady with me asked to see Emms." I cannot help thinking that the writer of the note began by saying "My friend," and did not alter it afterwards.

(Mr. Dickinson.) It is evident, to my mind, on reading this cross-examination, that it is the questioner's word, and that the answer either in the affirmative or in the negative has been put down.

(Chairman.) Mr. Muir would agree, I am sure, that nothing is more difficult to take a note of than cross-examination, and if it is to be used afterwards it ought to be taken down verbatim. I am not referring to the taking of a note of the examination-in-chief but of the cross-examination.

(Mr. R. D. Muir) Yes.

(Mr. Dickinson.) Three lines above that it says: "The woman with whom I went to the station was a stranger to me."

25596. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes. She asked to see Emms.—Yes.

25597. And she named him?—Yes.

25598. That young woman you have never seen since?—No.

25599. She did not give evidence at the police-court?—No.

25600. You say she was standing alongside of you at the time that the whole affair took place?—Yes.

25601. And she could see everything that you saw?—Yes.

25602. When you saw the constable first, how many people did you say were there?—I say eight or nine. I did not exactly count them.

25603. Did the crowd increase?—Yes, when the whistle was blown two or three more came.

25604. The whistle did not blow until after Emms was on the ground, I understand?—No.

25605. Before the whistle blew did the crowd increase?—No.

25606. At the time that you saw the constable pushing Emms, was there a crowd of about 40 people there?—No. I do not think so. I took it about a dozen or eight or nine. I did not count them. I could not tell you how many there were there.

25607. There could not possibly have been 40?—I should not think so.

25608. Did you say this before the magistrate?—"I saw a mob of people. I looked and saw the police-constable shoving Emms to get along. This was at the turning before Brick-lane—Pedley-street, I think, The man said 'All right,' and was going along"?—Yes.

25609.—"There were about 40 people there?"—I may have said so, but I did not count them. I did not look round to see who was there, and who was not there, or how many there were.

25610. Is it true that there were 40 people there?—I do not think there were 40. I may have been mistaken, I did not count them.

25611.—About 40 people?—About 40 you say, but I say I did not count them.

25612. "All at once the whistle blew"?—Yes.

25613. Before the constable was hit and before the man was hit?—No, after.

25614. "All at once the whistle blew." This is your account of it before the magistrate. "The police constable hit the man on the head with his truncheon, and he fell down——"?—Yes.

25615. So that in the account you gave to the magistrate you put the blowing of the whistle before the hitting of the man?—I do not think so.

25616. That is what appears to have been taken down?—I do not think I did.

25617. At that time, when the blow was struck with a truncheon, where was the man himself?—The policeman was holding him by the side, and then he hit him on the head, and, of course, the man fell to the ground.

25618. The policeman was holding him, was he?—Holding him by the side, and saying "Move on." That is all I heard the constable say.

25619. He was holding him by the side?—Yes.

25620. What was he doing?—I could not tell whether he had him, but he was shoving him—at the back of the neck.

25621. Shoving him from behind?—Yes.

25622. Was it at that time the constable struck him with his truncheon?—Yes, he struck him all of a sudden on the head with his truncheon.

25623. At the back?—I could not say whether it was in the front or at the back.

25624. Was the man facing the constable at the time the constable used his truncheon, or had the man his back to him?—No, not his back. He was facing him.

25625. How do you reconcile that with the constable pushing him from behind?—He would not push him in front. He had him at the back of the neck with one hand. He might have struck him with his hand.

25626. He might have done anything?—People rushed in to see, and I got back a bit.

25627. What did you do?—I have told you, what I say.

25628. Was the man with his face towards the constable?—Face to face.

25629. The constable was not pushing him then?—No, he could not have been.

25630. How long had he been pushing him before he struck him with his truncheon?—I could not tell you that. I saw the constable draw his truncheon and strike him. It was done in about five minutes altogether—the striking him, and the whistle blown, and all.

25631. What was this man doing while he was being shoved?—He was only saying "All right." That is all I heard him saying.

25632. What was he doing?—I could not tell you

Mrs. M. Allen.

14 Dec. 1906.

what he was doing—nothing else but moving on as the policeman asked him to do.

25633. Saying "All right," and moving on?—Yes.

25634. If he was moving on how did the constable get in front of him?—I could not tell you.

25635. You cannot explain that?—No.

25636. But he was moving on all the time?—Yes, and saying "All right." That is all I heard the man say.

25637. And the constable behind him?—Yes.

25638. Did the man turn round and face the constable?—Yes, of course. He said "All right."

25639. He stopped moving on, did he?—Yes, he stopped at the corner of Pedley-street, where the blow was struck.

25640. The man stopped at the corner of Pedley-street?—Yes.

25641. And turned round?—Yes.

25642. What did he do then?—I never saw the man do anything.

25643. He stood still?—Yes, what the blow was struck for I cannot tell you.

25644. How long did he stand still before the blow was struck?—Not many minutes.

25645. Five?—No, not five.

25646. How many?—I should think about two or three minutes.

25647. For two or three miuutes the man and the constable were standing face to face?—Yes.

25648. What was taking place between them while the man and the constable were standing face to face?—The man was saying "All right."

25649. He was not saying "All right" when he was standing face to face with the constable for two or three minutes?—He never said anything else. I never heard the man say another word.

25650. Did he use the words "All right" when he stood face to face with the constable?—Yes.

25651. How often did he say "All right" to the constable when he asked him to move on?—About twice.

25652. About once a minute or once in a minute and a-half?—I could not tell about once a minute.

25653. Do you ask these gentlemen to believe that that was what occurred, and that this man and the constable stood face to face for two or three minutes, the man saying nothing but "All right." Is that all that happened then?—That is all that happened then?—.

25654. What was the constable doing to the man during the two or three minutes?—He was doing nothing to him then.

25655. What was the man doing to the constable then?—Nothing—talking.

25656. Saying "All right"?—Yes, saying "All right."

25657. Twice in three minutes. Was this young woman, who was beside you, saying anything?—No, not at that time, only when he was taken on an ambulance she asked me to go to the station with her.

25658. There was no struggle at all between the constable and the man?—No struggle.

25659. There was no struggle between the constable and any man?—No.

25660. Had the constable got a whistle?—I cannot tell you. I do not think it was the constable who blew the whistle.

25661. Had the constable got a hat on at that time?—I did not notice. I did not take much notice whether he had a hat or not.

25662. Did you swear to the magistrate that he had his hat on?—I might be mistaken. I think he had a hat on.

25663. Did you swear to the magistrate that he had his hat on?—I cannot say, it is such a long time ago, but I think he had his hat on.

25664. Can you swear he had his hat on?—I think I could.

25665. Will you?—Yes.

25666. You swear he had his hat on at that time?—Yes.

25667. Did the constable appear to be damaged at all?—No. A man struck him in the face. I did not see what was the matter with him.

25668. He appeared to be all right?—Yes, to me. I did not look much at him.

25669. After he had stood there for two or three minutes he drew out his truncheon and hit the man on the head?—Yes.

25570. Are you sure the man was facing him at that time?—Yes.

25671. Absolutely certain?—Yes.

25672. No struggle going on?—No.

25673. When the man fell down did the constable fall down?—No.

25674. The constable stood up?—The constable leant down when he had him like that (illustrating).

25675. The constable was holding him when he struck him?—He must have been.

25676. Do not say "he must have been." Did you see the constable holding him?—Yes.

25677. With which hand was he holding him?—I think it was his left.

25678. What was he holding him by?—Just here (illustrating).

25679. You remember it quite distinctly?—Yes, it was just here (illustrating), and he struck him with his hand. That is quite right.

25680. So that he was actually holding him by the throat or by the collar at the throat with the one hand and he hit him on the head with his truncheon with the other hand?—Yes.

25681. Did he hit him hard?—Hard enough to drsw blood, and to cut him open.

25682. You know a gentle blow from a hard one. Did he hit him hard?—As I say, it was hard enough to draw blood. I cannot tell you how hard he hit him. I did not see how hard he hit him.

25683. But you could hear it yes?—Yes.

25684. Was it a loud blow?—It was not over loud, but it was loud enough to hear, because I was close to him.

25685. You could hear the crack of the blow?—Yes, I could, because I was so close to him I could not be off hearing it.

25686. The man dropped at once, did he?—Yes.

25687. Like a stone?—Yes.

25688. How long did he remain on the ground?—About 10 minutes.

25689. He dropped down. What happened next?—He said "Oh!" as he fell, and then he went to rise up again.

25690. How much did he get up again?—Not very much.

25691. Sitting up?—He just raised his head up from the pavement.

25692. Sitting up?—He came up like that (illustrating).

25693. Half sitting up?—Yes, half sitting up.

25694. Did he raise himself with his hands on the ground?—He raised himself up in that manner.

25695. And got his head well off the pavement?—Yes.

25696. Had the constable got hold of him then?—No, he had not got hold of him then.

25697. You are sure of that?—Yes.

25698. Was the constable standing up?—Yes.

25699. With the truncheon in his hand?—Yes.

25700. What did he do then?—He struck him another blow.

25701. Was that harder than the first one?—No, I do not think it was so hard.

25702. Where did it hit him?—Both on the head.

25703. What happened after the second blow?—Then some man who was behind punched the constable in the face.

25704. What happened to the man on the ground, Emms?—He lay unconscious.

25705. The blow made him absolutely unconscious?—Yes.

25706. The constable was standing up then, was he?—Yes.

25707. A man hit the constable, did he?—Yes.

25708. How soon after the constable had hit the second blow did the man strike the constable?—He struck him almost immediately.

25709. One blow, or more than one?—One blow.

25710. Where did it take effect?—I could not tell you. He hit him in the face.

25711. Was his helmet still on?—Yes.

25712. It still remained on?—Yes.

25713. Did the constable seem much damaged?—I did not look to see.

25714. He stood there?—He stood by the side of the man after he was struck. I do not know whether he was hurt much or not.

25715. It was not much of a blow?—I cannot say.

25716. What is the description of the man who struck the blow at the constable?—He was rather a short dark man.

25717. Do you know Esther Bloom?—No.

25718. Have you ever seen her?—Esther Bloom who sells pot-herbs in Brick-lane?

25719. I should think so?—Sometimes I go to buy things of her. I do not know her by any other name.

25720. Was she there that night?—Yes.

25721. She saw what you saw?—I do not know. I did not ask her what she saw.

25722 She was close to you?—Yes, but I had no conversation with her.

25723. You never had any conversation with her?—No.

25724. You went up to give evidence at the police court. The witnesses for the defendant, I suppose, were all outside together, were they not?—I should think there were three or four witnesses there walking up and down inside.

25725-6. You were one?—Yes.

25727. Mrs. Bloom was another?—Yes.

25728. Did you have any conversation with Mrs. Bloom?—Only passing the time of day to one another walking up and down.

25729. Did you mention to Mrs. Bloom that you had seen a short dark man or a short man hit the police constable?—I could not tell you. No, I do not think I did.

25730. Did Mrs. Bloom mention to you that a short man made a blow at the constable?—No.

25731. You gave your evidence before Mrs. Bloom gave hers?—Yes.

25732. Did you hear Mrs. Bloom give her evidence?—No, we were not in the court together; we were called in one at a time.

25733. But you remained in court after you had given your evidence, did you not?—No, we came out.

25734. You are quite sure about a short man hitting the constable?—Yes.

25735. Where was the man who hit the constable?—Standing behind the constable.

25736. He hit him in the face?—Yes.

25737. How did he manage that?—He went somehow like that—sideways (illustrating).

25738. You are sure the constable was standing up at the time that he hit the second blow at Emms on the ground?—Yes.

25739. He was standing up?—Yes.

25740. He was not kneeling down?—I beg your pardon—yes, he was kneeling down like that. He was kneeling by the side of Emms like that, with one knee down (illustrating).

25741. Why did you tell these gentlemen that he was standing up if he was kneeling down?—You forget that it is a long time ago, and I never thought I should have to come up on an occasion like this, and I did not think any more about it.

25742. You remember what took place?—Yes, but you forget if you have a lot of children to look after your mind is more on your children and husband than anything else.

(Mr. Dickinson.) I took her to say that the constable "leant" down.

Mrs. M. Allen.

14 Dec. 1906.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes, but I asked her several questions afterwards as to whether the constable was standing up, and she said it was quite clear that the constable was standing up.

(Chairman.) Of course there is an ambiguity about that. She did not use the word "knelt" down but "leant" down. If a man leans he is still standing, in a sense; he is on his feet.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Certainly. I put it to her quite distinctly on several occasions as to whether the constable was still standing up.

(Chairman.) If a man is on the ground, in order to deliver a blow with a truncheon some leaning would be necessary.

25743. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes, but the question between kneeling and standing is a very distinct one. Do you say he was kneeling?—Bending down.

25744. Which was it. Which way will you have it now?—When I saw the blood, I drew back a bit. I could not say exactly whether he was kneeling or bending.

25745. Now you do not know whether he was kneeling or bending?—I drew back a bit when I saw the blood on the pavement; it frightened me, and I drew back.

25746. Was it after the first blow you drew back?—No, after the second.

25747. That would not prevent your seeing the second blow. Which way do you say it was—was he kneeling or bending?—He was like this somehow (illustrating). I could not tell you whether he was on his knees or not, but I know he was like that.

25748. So you do not know whether he was kneeling or not?—No.

25749. When you got to the station you saw Emms in a chair, did you?—Yes.

25750. Was his head dressed at that time?—No.

25751. You were admitted, were you, to the station?—Yes, we went inside.

25752. Were you in a room or a passage?—I could not tell you what it was. It was a big place by the side of where Emms was sitting; we went in this way.

25753. Could you see Emms sitting in a chair from where you were?—Yes. As we passed by the door we saw him.

25754. It was through a door you saw him?—Yes.

25755. Were there any officers there?—Yes, I think there was an inspector.

25756. Why do you say there was an inspector?—I do not know what he was. He came in and asked what she had to say to him and he said he would tell him.

25757. Is that the gentleman (pointing)?—I cannot say whether it was that gentleman or not who came in.

(Mr. Dickinson.) Who is that?

25758. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Sergeant Anderson. One officer only came in and spoke to you?—That is all.

25759. You call him an inspector, but you do not know whether he is an inspector or not?—No, I do not know what you call them.

25760. Why do you say he was an inspector?—I do not know what you call them.

25761. But why did you call him an inspector?—I should say so now. I do not know what made me say he was an inspector. I took it in my own mind he was an inspector.

25762. Do you know an inspector's uniform?—No, I do not? I do not take much notice of them

25763. Do you know the difference between a sergeant's uniform and an inspector's uniform?—A sergeant has stripes, has he not?

25764. Yes?—That is all I go by.

25765. A station sergeant has got four stripes?—That is all I go by. I have never been in the hands of the police.

25766. Did you see his stripes?—I had no conversation with this gentleman at all when he came in. It was the other young woman. I had my head down.

25767. It is very important that we should be able to identify the person that you say came into the room and spoke to you. Cannot you tell us how he was dressed?—No, I cannot, I did not take any notice.

25768. Had he got stripes on his arm?—I could not tell you.

25769. Will Inspector Smith stand up for one moment? (Inspector Smith stood up.) Had he a coat on like that inspector has?—I could not tell you, I did not take any notice. I was not talking at all. I had my head turned the other way. It was the other young woman who was talking to him.

25770. Was it an ordinary constable who came in?—I do not know; I could not tell you.

25771. Can you explain to us at all, if you do not know the difference between a constable, a sergeant, and an inspector, how you came to tell the magistrate that it was an inspector?—As I tell you, I took it in my mind to call him an inspector. I do not know the difference between inspectors, sergeants, or anybody else. I think he had a long black coat on that night.

25772. All of them have that, have they not?—I could not tell you. That is what I go by.

25773. How long were you in this room before the inspector came in or before a person came in and spoke to you?—Not many minutes.

25774. Did you pass through the room that Emms was in?—No, we passed by the door.

25775. (Mr. Dickinson.) You have not a plan of the police station here, I suppose?—No.

25776. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) How long did you see Emms while you were there?—Not a minute. Just as we passed by we saw him bleeding in the chair. We only passed by to the other room.

25777. Do try to give us some idea of the time. How long were you there before the police officer came in and spoke to you?—About two or three minutes, that is all.

25778. Who spoke first—you or the young woman?—The young woman. I did not speak at all—not one word.

25779. Who spoke first—the young woman or the police?—I could not tell you. I did not speak at all.

25780. What did the young woman say?—She asked if she could speak to Emms.

25781. What did the officer say?—He said, "What you want to tell him tell me, and I will tell Emms." She said, "Oh no, I cannot; I want to speak to him myself." That is all that was said, and we were pushed outside.

25782. I want to know exactly what you say happened. Did the young woman say anything about bail?—No.

25783. Nothing at all?—No.

25784. Did she say she wanted to give evidence?—No.

25785. Did she say she knew anything about the case?—No, she never said one word. When we came outside she left me.

25786. All that she said to the officer was that she wanted to speak to Emms personally?—Yes, that was all.

25787. He offered to take a message, and she declined?—Yes.

25788. Tell us exactly what was done by this officer or by any officer to you personally. First of all, was any hand laid on you?—As we were going out of the door, then he pushed us out.

25789. Do not say us?—Me and the other young woman.

25790. Speak of yourself. First of all, as distinguished from the other young woman, what was done to you either inside or outside. Was anything done inside?—Nothing until I was coming out of the door, and then he pushed me.

25791. (Chairman.) Out of which door?—Outside Commercial-street police station.

25792. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) The street door?—I do not know what they call it, it is rather a big door.

25793. The door is on the street, is it?—Yes.

25794. Just describe exactly what he did?—He just pushed me, I must have missed the step, I suppose, and I fell to the ground.

25795. Was it a violent push?—No, not a violent push to hurt me.

25796. Were you walking out of the station at the time?—He said "Outside, outside." We made for outside, and he gave us a push, and the other young woman was pushed behind me.

25797. Let us deal with one at a time, or we shall get confused. You were pushed?—Yes, on to the pavement.

25798. What part of your body was pushed?—Between my shoulders.

25799. A hard push?—No, not such a very hard push, not to hurt me.

25800. What happened to you?—I fell on the pavement, but I got up again.

25801. Was that because of the push?—Yes, I do not know whether I caught my foot in the step and that caused me to fall, but I know I fell on the pavement.

25802. Was it because of the push that you fell on the pavement?—I expect it was.

25803. Was it?—I did not fall afterwards. I know I fell on to the pavement.

25804. Was it a gentle push?—Yes. It was not a push to hurt me.

25805. Is this what you said before the magistrate, "I went to the station and saw Emms in the chair"?—Yes.

25806. "A young woman said she would like to speak to him."

(Chairman.) "To us" it is in my copy.

25807. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes, but it must be "to him:" A young woman said she would like to speak to him. That is right, is it?—Yes.

25808. "The inspector came and threw us both on to the pavement and we fell"?—So we did. We both fell. She fell on the top of me.

25809. Is that a correct description of what took place at the police-station?—Yes.

25810. "The inspector came and threw us both on to the pavement, and we fell"?—Not before he asked her what she had to say. He said, "Tell me, and I will tell him."

25811. I am not asking when it was. I am asking you whether that is a correct description of what took place?—Yes, it is.

25812. "The inspector came and threw us both on to the pavement, and we fell"?—We did fall on to the pavement.

25813. Do you remember a few seconds ago you told these gentlemen that it was only a gentle push?—We both fell down, but we did not hurt ourselves.

25814. What did the inspector do to the other young woman?—He shoved the other young woman immediately after me.

25815. Did you see him shove the other young woman?—I could not see behind me, but I know she fell on the top of me.

25816. Was anybody there at that time?—No, I do not think so.

25817. Except this person you call the "inspector"?—That is all.

25818. Nobody else at the door?—I did not see anybody; the door was closed.

25819. No other constable about at all?—Plenty in the other room.

25820. But no other constable saw what was done?—Not to my knowledge.

25821. This street that you were thrown into in this way is Commercial-street?—Yes.

25822. Is that a busy thoroughfare?—I could not tell you; I very seldom go up that way, although I live near to it.

25823. Were there any people about?—I could not tell you.

25824. It would be about one o'clock in the morning. What time was it?—I should think it was getting near that way.

25825. Were there many people about?—I did not see any.

25826. No constables at the station door?—To the best of my knowledge I never saw any.

25827. Only the one man who you had anything do with at all in the station—one policeman?—That is it.

25828. Who interviewed you first and threw you out afterwards?—Yes.

25829. Do you think you would know him again?—No; I told you I should not; I did not take much notice.

25830. You could not give us any description of him either?—No, I could not.

25831. (Mr. Livett.) Although the push was a push, that did not do you any harm; was it a push which caused you to lose your balance?—It must have done, as I fell.

25832. Was it when you were descending the step?—No; just as he opened the door to let us out he gave us a push.

25833. Is there only one step?—I think there is only one step.

25834. Whether it was an ordinary constable, a sergeant, or an inspector, did he give you the impression of being a superior official?—I do not know what you mean.

25835. Did he seem to you to be somebody in authority?—He only said, "Outside," and as we were going outside he gave us a push. He did not seem to have much authority to push us out.

25836. You have been asked several questions about the time which elapsed when the constable struck Emms. Had you any reason to take special note of the time?—No, I had not.

25837. I think you told us that at the police-station you saw Emms as you passed the door?—Yes.

25838. And you said you saw him for a minute?—Yes, just as we passed the door we saw him sitting in the chair bleeding.

25839. You saw him as you passed?—Yes.

25840. You also told my friend that the time occupied in the struggle was five minutes?—Yes. It did not last more than ten minutes or a quarter of an hour altogether.

25841. You have told us that during the space of two minutes the policeman and Emms were standing face to face?—Yes.

25842. Might it have been less time than two minutes;—I could not exactly tell you the time. I did not take much notice of the time.

25843. You could not say exactly how long it was?—No, I could not.

25844. Any more than you could say it was a whole minute that you saw Emms at the police station——

(Chairman.) I understand you mean it took rather a long time. From your point of view ten minutes or a quarter of an hour is a good long time.

(Witness.) Yes; but I mean it ended then, because the ambulance came and took him away.

(Chairman.) Mrs. Bloom told us that the whole thing went so quickly that she could not be quite positive about any of the details.

(Mr. Livett.) That is my point—that the witness says two minutes was occupied by that conversation.

(Chairman.) Yes; but two minutes is a long time for two men to stand up to each other. This is not an adverse comment on the witness, but I do not think you will get any further by the re-examination. I do not want to stop you.

(Mr. Livett.) That is all I have to ask.

25845. (Chairman.) What is your husband's business?—A dustman.

25846. This was on the morning of the 23rd; but I suppose you do not remember the date?—No, I do not remember the date.

25847. It was a Tuesday?—Yes.

25848. It was rather late for you to be out, was it not?—Yes; but I can account for that, I came out late that night. That night my sister came to see me, and I went to see her a little way home to Whitechapel. At the other end of Brick-lane I left my sister, and on returning home I saw this.

25849. Your home is at 55, Bacon-street?—Yes.

25850. Your sister had been spending the evening with you?—Yes.

25851. About what time did you and she leave home that night?—I should think she left my home about five or ten minutes past twelve. It did not take us long to walk along Brick-lane.

25852. Which way did you come upon the scene of this fight or disturbance?—I was coming down Brick-lane. I must come straight along Brick-lane to get home.

25853. Where did you part from your sister?—At Whitechapel—at the top of Brick-lane.

25854. In order to come along Brick-lane to the archway, and Pedley-street where this took place you had to pass Buxton-street on the right?—Yes.

25855. When you had parted from your sister, you were walking along the pavement on the side opposite Buxton-street and past Pedley-street?—Yes, on the left-hand side.

25856. I will come back to that directly. Do you know at all what time it was when you got to the police station when you went with the young woman?—No, I could not tell you.

25857. You can tell me perhaps what time you got home?—I should think it was about a quarter to one, or something like that when I reached home, or it may have been just on one o'clock. It was no later I think than one o'clock.

25858. Was your husband at home?—Yes, in bed.

25859. Had he gone to bed before you and your sister went out?—Yes; he was in bed before my sister went home because he has to get up early in the morning. He goes to bed about eight o'clock at night.

25860. Was he surprised when you did not come home till just one o'clock?—He knew my sister was coming to stay late, after he went to bed, because I do not often see her.

25861. We have it that the blow was struck at 25 minutes to one?—I do not think it was quite so late.

25862. If the whole incident lasted ten minutes or a quarter of an hour, as you have said, and you went to Commercial-street police station, you cannot have been home by a quarter to one?—No, I think it is a mistake. I do not think it was so late as that. It was about 25 minutes past 12, as near as I can put it when it happened.

25863. How long did it take you to walk back from the police station to Bacon-street?—About five minutes.

25864. I suppose you went pretty fast?—Yes, I did.

25865. Where did you part from the young woman?—I left her outside the station.

25866. On the ground?—No.

25867. She had picked herself up?—She had picked herself up the same as I did.

25868. It was rather an odd thing. Did you have no conversation about it?—She said, "That is all right." She said, "Good night," and I said, "Good night" to her.

25869. Then she had not been much disturbed by this shoving down the steps?—No.

25870. In fact you did not think much about it, did you?—I was not hurt, and that is why I did not take much notice.

25871. The account that you give to-day does not suggest to me that the inspector, or sergeant, or police constable, or whoever it was, was intentionally rough?—I do not think he did it intentionally—to push us down to hurt us.

25872. You seem to have had a very sensible conversation with him?—Yes, he was all right. He told the young woman to tell him what she wanted to say, and she would not tell him.

25873. She would not do that?—No.

25874. Then he said, "You had better go outside," and as you went you fell down the step?—Yes.

25875. And you said, "Good night"?—Yes; I do not think I should know the young woman again.

25876. It looks a much more serious thing than you are now representing it to be when I come to read the notes of the evidence taken before the magistrate: "The inspector came and threw us both on to the pavement, and we fell"?—He shoved us out, and we both fell to the pavement.

25877. You rather agree with me, do you, that it sounds rather a serious thing for an inspector to come and throw out two ladies on to the pavement?—Yes.

Mrs. M. Allen.

14 Dec. 1903

25878. That does not read very nicely, does it?—No, it does not read very nicely.

25879. Did you tell the clerk that?—Yes, I did tell the clerk.

25880. The account you have given us to-day, whether it be accurate or not, is a very different one Did you wish the magistrate to think that you and the young woman had been treated badly at the police station?—No, I did not think that. We were not treated badly. We could not say we were treated badly.

25881. So I gather from you to-day?—No, we were not treated badly. She refused to tell the inspector what she wanted to say.

25882. He may have been right or wrong, we will not discuss that, but he said civilly enough: "I will tell him any message you like to give"?—Yes, he said: "I will tell him—I will tell Emms what you say."

25883. What you now wish to say is that at the Police Court you did not wish to make any charge against the police at all with regard to that?—No, it was nothing to do with me; I make no charge against the police for that.

25884. You did not mean it as a serious charge against the inspector, whoever he was, that he had treated you either uncivilly in the station, or brutally by throwing you out of the station?—No.

25885. It is an unfortunate form of words if they are accurately taken down?—Yes. I did not mean any harm to the inspector, because I was not hurt, and I am sure the other young woman was not.

25886. However, that is your explanation. Now, about this young woman. What aged woman was she? You have called her "a young woman."—I think she was a woman about my own age, that is, 35.

25887. I agree that is young. Did you gather that she was a married woman?—She had a wedding-ring on her finger.

25888. You did not know Emms before this night at all, I understand?—No.

25889. You did not know Mrs. Emms. We hear that there is a Mrs. Emms?—That I could not tell you.

25890. She was a married woman?—Yes, a married woman.

25891. About the same age as yourself—about 30 to 35?—Yes.

25892. Did not it strike you as rather odd for a lady whom you did not know, to ask you to go to the police-station with her?—Yes, I thought it rather funny, still I went. I did not like to see her go by herself.

25893. I am not suggesting it was not very kind, and very proper on your part to go, but still there were a lot of women there. Mrs. Bloom was there, and you said there were other ladies there?—I could not say whether they followed to the station.

25894. No, I am not suggesting that, but this young woman apparently picked you out, and she said, "Will you go to the station with me?"—Yes.

25895. You have told me that that was rather a surprise to you?—Yes.

25896. But you thought it was a kind thing to go?—Yes.

25897. On the way to the station did you not talk at all to her?—We were having a little conversation to ourselves about ourselves, about trade, business, and one thing and another, but we were not talking about that.

25898. When the young woman asked you to go to the station, did it not occur to you to think, whether you asked or not, "Why on earth does she want to go to the station?"—I thought that to myself, although I did not ask her.

25899. It was rather an odd thing that you should go to the station about a man that you did not know anything of, but you explain it in a very proper way—that this young woman asked you to go to the station with her?—Yes.

25900. It was a very kind thing of you to do, but do you mean to say you did not ask her why she wanted to go to the station?—No, I did not.

25901. Did she not say anything about her relationship to Emms, or why she took an interest in him?—No, she never mentioned a word to me going along, nor me to her, about that.

25902. You must have wondered why she wanted to go to the station?—That is what I say—I wondered to myself, although I did not say it.

25903. You thought it nicer not to say it?—Yes.

25904. What did you really think?—I thought to myself, I wonder why this lady wants to go to the station perhaps it is his wife.

25905. That is what I was going to suggest to you. You thought she was a married woman, and you thought she was his wife?—Yes, I thought so. I could not say whether she was or not.

25906. You thought she was his wife, and you did not make any further inquiries, but you went with her?—Yes.

(Mr. Livett.) Would you mind asking the witness the height and appearance of this other woman?

25907. (Chairman.) You shall ask any questions if you like afterwards in reason; I do not mean to say that you can go on for ever. I want you to bring your mind now to Brick-lane when you had just left your sister. Where did you leave your sister?—At the other end of Brick-lane, at Whitechapel-road.

25908. How far would that be from the archway where the disturbance took place?—About ten minutes' walk, I should think.

25909. Then you walked on the pavement for about ten minutes before you came in sight of the archway?—Yes.

25910. You think it was not as late as half-past 12?—No, I would put it about 25 minutes past 12 as near as I can tell.

25911. What was the first thing that attracted your attention?—I saw these people on the left-hand side.

25912. It was a group of people that first attracted your attention?—Yes.

25913. You did not run, did you, when you saw this group of people?—No.

25914. Did you hasten your footsteps?—I walked just the same as I did before.

25915. Then there was nothing very remarkable?—No.

25916. How near to you was the group of people when you first noticed anything that was out of the common, and when you first noticed the police-constable with a helmet on?—I noticed him within a few yards. I could see the policeman's hat above the ground.

25917. Up to that time you had only seen a group of people. Then when you got up a little further near the group of people you distinguished a policeman's helmet?—Yes.

25918. Was he surrounded by people at that time?—There were not so many people there, but I could not tell you how many.

25919. I did not understand you to say there were many. Were there more than four people besides the constable?—Yes, there were more than four.

25920. Do you think there were, at any rate, two men there?—I could not tell you how many men there were there.

25921. But as you got nearer you saw the group more clearly, and you saw the constable. Was there any particular man besides the constable that attracted your attention?—No, only the man named Emmsy was standing there in the crowd with the policeman.

25922. At that time, I understand, they were on your side of the road—on the left-hand side that you were walking on?—Yes.

25923. When you got near them what did you see that led to their going over to the other side of the road—to Pedley street?—I heard the constable say to Emmsy: "Move on; Move on." That was all.

25924. Was the police-constable standing with his back to the wall, and Emms facing him then on the pavement.?—On the left-hand side.

25925. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) I do not know whether it has escaped your notice that she calls Emms "Emmsy"?—I said the man Emmsy.

25926. (Chairman.) That is the name he is known by?—I do not know. That was the name given to me when I had to go to the Court—Emmsy, or something like that.

25927. Are you quite certain you did not know such a man as that before this night?—No, I did not.

25928. When that took place had the constable got his back to the wall?—I could not say. He said "Move on."

25929. As I understand it when first your attention was attracted to this place at all you saw a group of people?—Yes.

25930. When you got nearer you saw a constable?—Yes.

25931. And distinguished whom you now know to be Emms or Emmsy?—Yes.

25932. Was the constable standing on the wall side, and Emmsy on the road side?—Yes, Emmsy was more to the kerb, with the constable with his back to the wall.

25933. What did you see take place?—I only saw him shoving Emmsy, and saying "Move on; move on."

25934. And they gradually went across the road?—Yes, the constable forced Emms to go away; and he was saying: "All right."

25935. Did the constable loosen his grip on the man when they got to the other side of the road?—I could not tell you. The people were following up.

25936. So far as you know, the police-constable might have had hold of Emmsy all the time, and forcing him gradually across the road?—Yes.

25937. Until they got to the corner of Pedley-street?—Yes.

25938.—Then no truncheon blow was struck until they got across the road?—No.

25939. What was the effect of the first blow on Emmsy so far as you could see. Did he fall?—He did not fall till he had the blow.

25940. The first blow?—Yes.

25941. Are you certain of that?—Yes, I am quite certain.

25942. How far were you from the police constable and Emmsy when that blow was struck?—About two or three yards.

25943. You crossed the road, too?—Yes.

25944. Did you see the people make a movement?—Yes, to cross the road.

25945. So that what you say you saw was the police constable pushing or shoving Emmsy across the road to where the blow was struck?—Yes.

25946. And all the people following them; you amongst the number?—Yes.

25947. This was at night time. Was it rather dark?—Yes, it was about 25 minutes past 12.

25948. What sort of gas lamps have you got there?—It is not a very light place near the arch.

25949. It is not very easy to distinguish faces, I suppose?—No, it is not. It is at the corner of rather a narrow court.

25950. Do you know a man called Ginger Norrey?—I did not know him until I saw him at Old Street.

25951. Did you see him that night in Brick Lane?—No, I never saw the man they called Ginger Norrey there.

25952. Had you ever seen him before that night?—No.

25953. Had you ever heard him before that night?—No.

25954. Had you ever heard of him before that night?—No, I had not.

25955. Where did the man who struck the constable in the face come from as far as you could see or as far as you recollect?—I could not tell you any more than that he was standing right behind the constable.

25956. Did he come from your side of the crowd?—Yes, he followed on as well.

25957. In order to strike the constable did he come from behind where you were?—No, he was closer to the constable than I was.

25958. Had you noticed him before he struck the blow?—No, I had not.

25959. Which direction did he come from?—He was pushing between so as to get close up to us.

25960. From the archway direction?—Yes.

25961. He ran away?—As soon as he struck the constable he ran away.

25962. Where was the young woman standing when Emmsy fell?—At the side of me.

25963. Therefore about a yard and a half or two yards?—About a yard and a half or two yards, I suppose.

25964. Did she seem concerned then?—No.

25965. Was any exclamation made by you or by her when Emms fell?—No.

25966. (Mr. Dickinson): The evidence you gave this morning to us about what happened at the police station was this: "The Inspector said: 'You can't; get outside'; he got hold of us two at the back of our neck and threw us out of the door." That is what you said this morning. What did you mean when you said: "Got hold of us at the back of our neck"?—He put his hand at the back here, and shoved us out.

25967. Do you say he put his hand on your neck?—Between my two shoulders—about here. (Illustrating.)

25968. How was it you did not come here yesterday?—I had my baby very ill.

25969. You had the summons?—Yes.

25970. How is it you are here to-day?—The gentleman came again this morning or I should not have come. I had to get somebody to mind my baby while I came.

25971. When you were walking to the police station with this young woman did you give her your name?—No

25972. Have you no idea how it was that anybody found you out?—No, I have not. I do not know what they found out about me—only the gentleman came on Saturday.

25973. What did he say to you when he came on Saturday?—He asked me for particulars—all what I knew about this affair.

25974. What was the first thing he said?—He said: "Mrs. Allen?" I said: "Yes."

25975. What did he say?—He said: "I have come for information about what you saw about a constable striking a man in Brick Lane." He had a pen and ink, and he put it down. That is all I know.

25976. Did you give him a description of the man Emms?—No, I did not.

25977. Was the name of Emms or Emmsy mentioned?—No, there was no mention of the name. I did not know no name whatever; he only said "the man" to me.

25978. The man ——— what?—The man that got knocked about.

25979. On this particular night?—Yes.

25980. He then took down what you said?—Yes.

25981. Did you say anything to him about the other man hitting the police constable?—Yes.

25982. Are you sure of that?—Yes, I am almost sure I did. I have had a lot of trouble since then, and I forget what I really did tell the man.

25983. We are trying to get your memory now?—Yes.

25984. You say you did tell him?—Yes.

25985. What made you say that?—He wanted to know all particulars from the beginning almost to the end of what I saw, and of course I told him.

25986. I suppose he asked you questions very much like the questions we are asking you now?—Yes.

25987. Did he say to you, "Did you see another man strike him?"—No, he did not ask me, but I told him.

25988. You volunteered that?—Yes.

25989. Did you give him a description of the man?—No, I could not give him a description of him.

25990. I do not think you mentioned that at the police court. Did you mention that at the police court?—Yes.

25991. "A man behind the police constable hit him in the face and ran away"?—Yes.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) And in cross-examination she describes him as a short man.

25992. (Mr. Dickinson.) Just describe to me the police station. You went in at a door. Did you go up steps?—Only one step, I think it was.

25993. One step from the level of the street?—Yes.

25994. Then what did you go into?—We went by a lot of rooms. There is a room there, and a room there and we went this side.

25995. There was a passage in front of you?—Yes.

Mrs. M. Allen.

14 Dec. 1905.

25996. A room on the right side and a room on the left side ?—Yes.

25997. Where did you go to ?—On this side.

25998. On the left side ?—Yes.

25999. Why did you go in on the left side ?—I think we were told to go there. I followed behind.

26000. You think you were told to go in on the left ?—Yes.

26001. Where was it you saw Emms ?—Sitting in a chair.

26002. In which room ?—On this side.

26003. On the right ?—Yes.

26004. Was there anybody in the room at the time ?—There were other police-constables.

26005.—Where was the chair ? Could you see through the door or through the window ?—There was no window, and I do not think there was any door.

26006. You could see into the room ?—Yes, as we went by.

26007. Where was the chair ?—Like in front of a table like that.

26008. In the middle of the room ?—Yes.

26009.—How was Emms sitting ?—He was sitting in a chair.

26010. Looking which way ?—I think he was looking towards the door.

26011.—Looking towards you ?—Yes.

26012. Did you recognise him ?—I did not hardly recognise him. When I saw a man bleeding, I put it down it was him.

26013. You saw a man bleeding ?—Yes.

26014. Was he sitting quietly in the chair ?—No, I think he went to get up, and the policeman said : "Sit down."

26015. You saw that ?—Yes, I saw that as I went by. He went to get up and the policeman said "Sit down," like that. (Illustrating.)

26016. Was the policeman holding him down ?—I did not see him holding him down after that because we passed by. I know he said "Sit down" as we went by. He saw the young woman.

26017. Do you think he recognised her ?—I cannot say whether he did or not. I know he went to get up.

26018. Did he see you ?—I cannot tell you. He did not know me. He had never seen me before.

26019. Would he not know you ? How long have you been in business there ?—I have been in my place where I am now about two years or two years and a-half.

26020. That is close to Brick-lane ?—Yes.

26021. I suppose the people about there do know you by sight ?—I could not tell you. I daresay we know one another by sight.

26021*. I was just asking you about the police-station. You said that you went in and you saw on the right-hand side a room in which there were some policemen, and Emms was sitting down ?—Yes.

26022. Now tell me what you saw on the left side ?—I went in the other room. There was no one else there except the young woman.

26023. You went in the other room ?—Yes.

26024. I want to know why you went in the other room ?—When the inspector opened the door, he said "Enter, please."

26025. What door did he open ?—The door in Commercial-street.

26026. Was the front door shut ?—Yes.

26027. Did you have to ring ?—No, I think we only just tapped and went in.

26028 You tapped and the inspector opened that door ?—Yes.

26029. You walked in ?—Yes ; he said "Come in," and we walked in.

26030. Then he motioned you into the side room ?—Yes, the other room.

26031. On the left hand side ?—Yes.

26032. Did he follow you in ?—Yes.

26033. You were not going first ?—No, the other young woman went first.

26034. And you went second ?—Yes.

26035. And he went in third, you say ?—Yes.

26036. When you were in that room just tell us exactly what happened ?—The inspector, as I say, came into the room.

26037. Was that the same man who had admitted you ?—Yes.

26038. Did he ask you what you wanted ?—Yes, and this young woman said could she speak to Emmsy. He said, "You cannot speak to him. What you want to say to Emmsy you tell me, and I will tell him." She said, "No, I would like to speak to him myself." That is all that passed. He said, "You cannot speak to him. Outside !"

26039. He said to you "outside" when he was in the inner room ?—Yes.

26040. And you went out and he followed you out ?—Yes.

26041. Out of that room ?—Yes.

26042. Was the front door open or shut then ?—Shut.

26043. Did he open it to let you out ?—The inspector as we went out said, "Outside," and just gave us a shove.

26044. He was opening the door when he did that ?—Yes, with one hand.

26045. How did he have his hand on the backs of both of you ?—Well, one after the other—not both at once ; me first, and the other young woman after.

26046. You went out first ?—Yes, I went out first and the other young woman after me.

26047. His push, you think, made you fall in the street ?—Yes.

26048 Did the other young woman come tumbling on top of you ?—Yes.

26049. Do you mean you were underneath her ?—Yes.

26050. Then the policeman must have seen you fall before he pushed the other one ?—I do not know whether he saw or not, I could not answer for that.

26051. You have no doubt that it was the push that caused you to fall ?—No. I do not know whether we slipped over the steps or there was a piece of wood over the steps and we fell over that, I never noticed. There was only one stone step to go down ; it was not very high.

26052. Would you recognise the policeman whom you saw ?—No, I would not.

26053. You did not look at him sufficiently ?—No.

26054. Was the room light ?—Yes, it was light.

26055. You cannot tell whether he was a man with a moustache ?—No, I cannot tell you what sort of a gentleman he was at all.

26056. What did you say to this woman when you picked yourselves up, because you must have been rather irritated then ?—She said, "That's all right, isn't it." I said, "Isn't it." She says, "I must be off." I said, "So must I or I shall get in a row for being late." She said, "Good-night," and I said, "Good-night," and he went her way and I went mine.

26057. She went her way and you went yours ?—Yes.

26058. Which way did she go ?—I think she went to the right to go to the top of Commercial Street. I came across under Wheeler Street arch through Sclater Street into Brick Lane.

(Mr. Dickinson.) Have you a map there, Mr. Muir ?

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes. It does not show Commercial Street, but it shows Sclater Street and Brick Lane. (Handing map.)

26059. (Mr. Dickinson.) Coming out of Commercial Street Station did you walk together at all ?—No, we only just went two or three steps together to the edge of the kerb. That is all.

26060. Was that because your paths parted at that time ?—Yes.

26061. You went in which direction, do you say ?—I had to go across the road and that brought me to Wheeler Street arch. As you go under Wheeler Street Arch you are in Sclater Street, and I have only to go down Brick Lane to my home.

26062. She went in what direction ?—She turned to her left to go up Commercial Street to the top end.

26063. Do you know where Emmsy lives?—No, I do not.

26064. Have you never heard?—No.

(Mr. Dickinson.) Is there any assistance in the map, Mr. Muir?

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) If I may have that map back I may assist you. It is at the end of Quaker Street, in this direction (indicating).

(Mr. Dickinson.) Your map does not show me the direction these two women went in when they went out of the Commercial Street Police Station.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) No, I am afraid it does not.

(Chairman.) But the police station is towards the end of Quaker Street.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes. The end, I understand, faces the end of Quaker Street.

26065. (Mr. Dickinson.) Which way did you have to go home? Where did you live?—In Bacon Street.

26066. Therefore you had to go home up Brick Lane again?—Yes, just into Brick Lane.

26067. And through the archway?—Yes.

26068. You went past the scene of this fight?—No, not again going home. You turn to your left when you get into Brick Lane, and that would be turning to the right coming under the arch. I did not have to go that way again.

26069. I understand the police station is at the end of Quaker Street. Do you know Quaker Street?—Yes, I know Quaker Street.

26070. Where did you cross the railway?—I crossed Commercial Street, and that brings you to Wheeler Street arch, and that is right up against it.

26071. That is a railway arch?—Yes. I came under that, and then turned to my left, and then I was in Sclater Street.

26072. (Chairman.) That I follow. You would avoid the scene of the occurrence?—Yes.

26073. (Mr. Dickinson.) Now which direction did the other woman go in?—From me she turned to the left to go up the open road into the Whitechapel Road. I do not know whether she went there or not, but she left me there—that is all I know.

26074. I want to ask you a little bit more about what you saw exactly. I understand, from the answers you gave to the learned Chairman, that you saw the police-constable pushing Emms across the road?—Yes.

26075. In the direction of Pedley Street?—Yes.

26076. What was the exact spot where you saw him strike Emms on the head?—It was just into this little court at the corner of Pedley Street. It leads down into a railway station. It was just at the top end near Brick Lane—near the corner—right against the corner.

26077. They had got into Pedley Street?—Yes, just into it, and that is all.

26078. Had any blow been struck before they got into Pedley Street?—Not to my knowledge.

26079. You saw the policeman before he crossed the road?—Yes, on the left-hand side.

26080. Did you cross the road with them?—We all followed across.

26081. You got up then, when they were on the left hand of the pavement?—Yes.

26082. And then they crossed, the policeman pushing Emms in front of him?—Yes.

26083. Was Emms trying to get away?—No, he did not seem to me to try and get away. He was only saying, "All right, all right." That is all I heard Emms saying.

26084. What made them go into the court?—I could not tell you.

26085. Had the policeman got hold of Emms the whole way across the road?—No, he was shoving him across like that with his hand (illustrating).

26086. Emms did not try to run away?—No.

26087. You did not see Mrs. Bloom at all?—No, I never noticed her there.

26088. But you do know her?—Yes, by buying pot-herbs from her.

26089. And you know her now. Did you see anybody with a bull's-eye lantern?—No.

26090. Was there another policeman with a bull's-eye lantern making it shine on the face of the man?—I did not see that. Of course, when I saw the blood I got back a bit. I did not like to see the blood.

26091. When did you see the blood? Was this flow of blood immediate?—Yes, as soon as the blow was struck almost the blood was on the pavement. Then, of course, when I saw that I got back.

26092. Was there so much blood that you got back on the pavement?—Yes.

26093. Another policeman did come up. Did you see him come up?—I never noticed him until the ambulance came up. I never noticed any more police.

26094. Before you saw them cross the road you say there was a crowd round them?—Yes, a few people.

26095. So that something must have been going on before you got there?—Yes, before. I could not answer for that, because I know nothing at all about what happened before then.

26096. When did you first see this woman?—She was standing on the other side of the road when I came along. She was there before me.

26097. Was there anything in her appearance which made you notice her at all?—No.

26098. Was she crying?—No, I did not notice her crying—not the person who spoke to me. She says to me, "What a shame." I said, "It is a shame. He is not doing any harm, poor chap." That is all I could know the woman by.

26099. She said, "What a shame"?—Yes; of course, I did not know what it was for.

26100. I suppose she seemed peculiarly interested in him?—I did not take much notice of that. That is all she said. She did not seem to be upset.

26101. Did you think she was a mere stranger, like yourself, or had anything to do with it?—At the time I took her for a mere stranger.

26102. When she asked you to go to the court you thought there must be something in it?—She looked a nice respectable woman. I thought she was too experienced to interfere in a thing like that. I did not think she knew them.

26103. When the man struck the policeman did you see his face—was it light enough?—No, I could not. It was very dark in the court. I could not see his face. He was a darkish man, and short. He no sooner struck the blow than he ran away.

26104. You have seen Norrey since then, have you not?—No, only to-day, when I saw him sitting here.

26105. You have seen him sitting here since?—Yes, to-day. That is the first time I have seen him.

26106. Was the man who struck the blow like Norrey?—No, he was not so tall.

26107. But Norrey is a dark man?—No; that gentleman sitting there looks rather carroty to me.

26108. You are sure that is not the man?—I am positive it is not.

26109. (Mr. Livett.) With regard to this woman, did you notice anything about her dress?—No.

26110. Could you say how she was dressed?—She was dressed in black, I think. It was a very dark dress if it was not black.

26111. Was there anything special about her dress?—No, I did not notice anything special about her. She was merely a woman something like myself.

26112. You did not notice the colour of her hair, for instance?—It was about the same colour as mine—it was dark; and she was a little taller than I am.

(Mr. Livett.) I have one other witness, who is not here, as I mentioned just before lunch.

(Chairman.) I understand that is Mr. Kemp. Will you hand in his full name and address?

(Mr. Livett.) Yes, I have done so.

(Chairman.) We will consider whether it is necessary to summon him or not. We will now proceed with the cross-examination of Police-Constable Jeffery.

P C. H. Jeffery.

14 Dec. 1906.

Police-Constable HARRY JEFFERY, H. 369, recalled.

26113. (Mr. Livett.) I think you told us you had been in the force for fifteen months?—That is right.

26114. I want to know something more about what happened before this affair took place. You have told us, I think, you were on the Bethnal Green Road side of the railway arch?—Yes.

26115. Were you on point duty?—No, I was on night duty.

26116. Where had you been when you came on duty. Where did you go to first?—I worked through Sclater Street, Brick Lane, and round the beat.

26117. Then you turned to the right down Brick Lane?—Yes.

26118. When did you first see this group of three which you have told us about?—As I approached the railway arch from the north side.

26119. And you were on the right hand side of the road?—Yes.

26120. In the direction you were going?—Yes.

26121. Did you stop there?—No, I just walked straight through to them.

26122. Where were they when you first saw them?—Just under the south end of the arch.

26123. Did you say, when you gave your evidence, that they were standing in a doorway?—Yes, that is right. There is a doorway just at that end of the arch.

26124. Where did it lead to?—Into the Great Eastern Railway goods depôt.

26125. It is just at the edge of the arch where the road begins to go over the other railway?—Yes, that is right.

26126. What is the distance from the one side of the arch to the other?—I could not say exactly—28 or 30 yards probably.

26127. About 30 yards, you think. When did you first recognise Emms?—I did not know him.

26128. You did not know him?—I did not know his name.

26129. Did you recognise anybody?—Yes, I recognised the other man.

26130. At what point were you when you recognised him?—Close to him.

26131. You did not recognise him until you were close to him?—No.

26132. I think you told us they were on the same side of the road as you?—Yes.

26133. Did you get right up to them?—I did.

26134. You say there were two men and a woman there?—Yes.

26135. And the woman was crying?—Yes.

26136. You spoke to them, I think?—I did.

26137. Who did you speak to?—I spoke to them collectively—to the three of them.

26138. Who answered?—The man Emms.

26139. He said, "She is my wife, and he is my brother-in-law," that is what you told us yesterday?—Yes, that is right.

26140. Did you say at the Police Court he said, "She is my wife, but I knew it was wrong"?—No, I do not think I did.

26141. You do not recollect saying that?—No.

26142. You have told us that you did not know Emms?—Not his name.

26143. You did not know him by name?—No.

26144. Did you know him by sight?—Yes, I had seen him.

26145. Did you know him in the way of your business?—No, I had never had any dealings with him.

26146. You had never had anything to do with him?—No.

26147. Had you ever heard of him?—Yes. I had heard of this man named Emms.

26148. Was he a man upon whom you had your eye?—No; in fact, I did not know the man.

26149. You know he had a bad record?—I knew the man had.

26150. But that was no reason to keep an eye on him?—I did not know the man to keep an eye on him.

26151. Was there anybody else about there?—There was no one else in the street at all.

26152. Nobody in sight?—No, no one.

26153. How long were you talking to them on this right hand pavement?—Hardly a minute.

26154. Then there was no time for anybody else to come up?—No.

26155. Do you mean to say that you had never seen Emms before?—I had seen him before, but at that time I did not know his name.

26156. Where had you seen him?—In the neighbourhood of Brick Lane, and in the district.

26157. You knew him by sight, but you did not know him as a convicted man?—I did not know his name then.

26158. But you knew him by sight?—Yes, certainly.

26159. And as a convicted man?—Oh, no. I did not know that he was a convicted man.

26160. You had your attention drawn to him?—Just seeing him with the other man who was with him that night.

26161. Seeing him with the other man?—Yes.

26162. You told us yesterday that the last time you had seen the two men together was about June?—Yes, that is right.

26163. You had not seen him since?—Not with the other man.

26164. I want to know what drew your attention to him in the first case?—Do you mean on that evening?

26165. No, the first time that your attention was drawn to him when you came on that beat?—That was the first night I had seen him during that month.

26166. Had he been pointed out to you in any way?—Not in that month.

26167. Had he at any time been pointed out to you?—No, he had not.

26168. Now about this woman who was with him. When you were asked about her you said, "This woman was not Emms' wife. I know Emms' wife." How did you come to know Emms' wife?—I knew a woman who was pointed out to me as Mrs. Emms.

26169. Did you know she was the wife of this man?—No, I did not.

26170. If you did not know that she was the wife of this particular man, how did you come to say that this woman was not Emms' wife—not the wife of this man here?—When the man was charged then I knew that he was Emms, and then I knew the woman he was talking to that night was not his wife.

26171. But you told us that you knew Emms' wife, but you did not know her as the wife of this particular man?—Not until he was charged, and then I became aware of whom he was.

26172. I fail to see how that brought the fact any more clearly to your mind. Did Emms know that you knew his wife?—I cannot say that he did.

26173. He might have done?—Yes, he might.

26174. He probably would have done?—I do not know.

26175. When did your acquaintance with Mrs. Emms begin?—You would hardly call it an acquaintance.

26176. When did you first know anything of her?—About two months before the occurrence.

26177. Was she pointed out to you?—Yes, I believe she was.

26178. Who pointed her out to you?—I could not say who it was then.

26179. When you turned round the corner into Brick Lane, was this the first sight that you saw?—Yes.

26180. You saw these people standing on the pavement. Is it a well-lighted place?—Yes, very well lighted.

26181. How many lamps are there there?—On the right hand side of the road there are two gas lamps under the arch.

26182. And further on towards Buxton Street?—Further on there is one lamp on the left hand side of the road, at the corner of Pedley Street.

26183. At the corner of the passage?—Yes. Overhead there is a lot of electric lights on the Great Eastern goods yard.

26184. You said when you were before the Magistrate that you would not know this woman again. How is it that you are so certain as to the identity of Emms and Norrey?—I am positive it was those two.

26185. You had plenty of time for seeing them?—I knew the man Norrey. The man Emms never got away. When he was charged his name was given as Emms.

26186. You did not take any particular notice of the woman?—I could not. The woman went away as soon as I spoke to them.

26187. She went away?—Yes.

26188. And you did not see her again?—No.

26189. When Emms told you she was his wife, you had no reason to disbelieve him?—No, none.

26190. Did the woman go away alone?—No, the man Norrey walked away a few yards with her.

26191. How far?—About three yards, I should say, at the most.

26192. Then he turned back?—Yes.

26193. And she went on?—Yes, she went right away.

26194. Where did the struggle, according to you, commence?—About six feet on the outside of the arch.

26195. Which side of the road?—On the right hand side of the road.

26196. (Chairman.) The right hand side looking which way?—Coming from the north looking to the south.

26197. (Mr. Livett.) Coming from Sclater Street?—Yes.

26198. (Mr. Dickinson.) It is on the west side?—Yes.

26199. (Chairman.) That would be on the left side of Mrs. Martha Allen and the other woman?—Yes, as they came up from Whitechapel.

26199* (Mr. Livett.) On which side were you pinned against the wall —The west side.

26200. Did you not tell us yesterday that it was on the left side of the road that you were assaulted?—I told you yesterday that I was assaulted on the right hand side of the road, and during the struggle I was pulled from the wall, and we got across on to the other side, to the left side of the road.

26201. How did you get across the road?—Walked across.

26202. How was the whole affair taken across the road?—The man Emms had me by the throat. My left hand was on his shoulder or the front of his coat. The other man was hanging on my left arm, and so we went across in a bunch.

26203. Who went across the road?—The three of us.

26204. Did they pull you across the road?—Well, we struggled across; probably I did most of the pulling.

26205. Do I understand as you went across the road you had hold of Emms with your left arm?—Yes, with my left hand.

26206. Where did you strike Emms first?—With the truncheon?

26207. Yes?—On the forehead.

26209. (Chairman.) That is on the east side?—Yes.

26210. (Mr. Livett.) So that Mrs. Allen was quite correct to-day when she said you held Emms with one hand and hit him with the other?—Yes.

26211. That is quite correct?—Yes. I held him with one hand and hit him with the other.

26212. You held him with one hand as you went across the road, and at the other side, finding you could not get rid of him, you hit him?—Yes.

26213. Did you say anything to him, when he assaulted you?—Yes, I told him when he assaulted me I should arrest him and take him to Commercial Street, and charge him with the offence.

26214. You told him all that?—Yes, of course.

26215. While you were struggling across the road?—No, before that, as he struck me. I got hold of him by the front of his coat, and said, "I must take you down to Commercial Street, and charge you with this."

26216. Did you use the words "move on"?—No.

26217. Not at all?—Not at all.

26218. And you did not hear him say "All right"?—No, he did not.

26219. According to you there was no provocation whatever for this assault upon you?—No, none at all.

26220. You had merely spoken to this group, and the next thing was they assaulted you?—Yes.

26221. Absolutely no provocation at all?—None whatever.

26222. You had never spoken to Emms before?—No.

26223. Had you spoken to Norrey before?—No, I had had no dealings with him either.

26224. They had no grudge against you?—No, I do not suppose they had beyond my being a policeman.

26225. And you certainly had nothing against them?—No, I had no grudge against them.

26226. Do you really say that you struck no blow in Pedley Street at all?—I struck no blow in Pedley Street.

26227. So that the three or four witnesses who have sworn you did are absolutely false?—They have not told the truth.

26228. They have not told the truth. It was on the right-hand side of the street where you say Norrey hit you in the face?—Yes, at first.

26229. Both blows in the face on that side of the street?—Yes.

26230. And you said at the police court you were dazed at the time?—Yes, I was.

26231. Was everything in confusion?—Not from those two blows—no.

26232. Were you at all confused by any blow?—Not at all, it was finished then. I felt the effects of the blow.

26233. When it was finished?—Yes.

26234. You have a perfectly clear recollection?—Yes, I became dazed only when the assault ceased and when there was no excitement to keep me still going.

26235. How long did the whole affair take in your opinion?—Probably five or seven minutes.

26236. From the time you were first assaulted?—From the time I was first assaulted until the man ran away and the other man fell.

26237. Five minutes?—Five or seven minutes.

26238. Was your truncheon drawn before the struggle took place?—No, certainly not.

26239. According to your story Emms had you by the throat?—Yes, he had, he had also knocked my head against the wall.

26240. You also had Emms by the throat?—No, I had him by the front of the coat.

26241. Listen to this, it is the evidence at the police court: "The first blow had no effect, Emms went on struggling. I had Emms by the throat with my left arm"?—That was some time after, that was not the commencement of the struggle.

26242. "Norrey had my right arm" you go on to say?—That is a mistake there.

26243. Whereabouts were you when you freed yourself from Norrey? Norrey had hold of your right arm, had he not?—No, holding on my left.

26244. Norrey I am talking about?—Yes, Norrey.

26245. They were both on the same arm?—The man Emms was in front with both hands on my throat, the other man was on the left-hand side.

26246. Two or three witnesses have sworn that a whistle was blown?—Yes.

26247. I think you said that your whistle was gone?—My whistle was gone; it was not blown.

26248. You heard no whistle blown?—There was no police whistle blown at all there.

P.C. H. Jeffery.

14 Dec. 1906.

26249. As far as you know?—Certainly there was no whistle blown.

26250. You have told us that you felt very dazed after the man was down, at the end of the whole thing?—Yes.

26251. And that is when the whistle is said to have been blown. May not it have been blown without your hearing it?—Unless a man were unconscious he would hear a police whistle.

26252. You were very much exhausted then?—Yes, I was very much exhausted.

26253. You were not able to take much interest in affairs for a few minutes?—No, I did not.

26254. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Did you see Mrs. Allen there at all?—No.

26255. Did you recognise her?—No.

26256. Did you see her at the station?—No.

26257. Did you see any woman who called at the station for the purpose of seeing Emms?—No, I saw no woman at the station.

26258. Will you look at this plan which we have had prepared in the interval. (Plan handed to witness.) As the office was arranged then the charge room was on your left hand, is that right?—Yes.

26259. As it is arranged now, that is the Inspector's office?—Yes.

26260. At the top—there is a door at the top right-hand corner?—Yes.

26261. That door has been made since October?—This one here. I cannot follow this.

(Mr. Dickinson.) I do not know that anyone can, there is no name on the door. You had better put where the front door is.

26262. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) You see the words "new door" written there in red?—Yes.

26263. Is that a new door made since October?—Yes.

26264. It was not there before October at all?—No.

26265. At the words "old door"—that is the door that faces Quaker Street?—Yes.

26266. That door has been in existence, of course, since the station was built?—Yes.

26267. And is in existence now?—Yes.

26268. A person coming in at that door as the station was arranged in October last would first of all come into the lobby?—Yes.

26269. On the right hand would be the charge room?—Yes.

26270. It is now the Inspector's office?—Yes.

26271. Facing them as they entered from the outside door is a little waiting-room?—Yes.

26272. That may be said to be on the left as compared with the charge room?—Yes.

26273. Of course, the furniture was different at that time?—Yes.

26274. Whereabouts was Emms sitting?—He would be sitting in the charge room on the furthest side, I believe, but I am not quite certain.

26275. And a person coming in from the outer door would be able to see, if the door were open, Emms sitting in his chair?—I could not be quite sure of that, because when I went into the station I was given a seat in the Inspector's office, and I could only see him as he went in first. He may have been shifted or not.

26276. You saw no woman come in to the station to inquire for Emms?—No.

(Mr. Dickinson.) It is clear upon this plan anyone coming in through the lobby could see the greater part of the charge room.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes.

(Mr Dickinson.) That agrees with Mrs. Allen's statement.

26277. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Certainly. Does anyone remain in that little room called a waiting-room there—any police officer?—No, that room was hardly in use then, I think.

26278. Just look at the room, it is marked "waiting-room"—it is just opposite the main entrance—would there be any officer there?—No.

26279. Would there be any man on the door?—There should be a man opposite to the door.

26280. On this 23rd of October, before Emms was charged, did you know that there was a man with a bad police record called Emms?—I knew there was such a man as Emms.

26281. Did you know he was identical with this man that you knew by sight?—No, I did not.

26282. Did you learn that at all before Emms was charged?—No.

26283. Do you remember when it was that Mrs. Emms was pointed out to you, if she was pointed out?—I could not fix the date.

26284. Was she pointed out as being the wife of the man who had the bad police record?—No.

26285. Just explain how it was she was pointed out to you?—There were two women walking down the street. I cannot say who it was now, which police officer, or whether it was a private individual, said, "That is Emms' wife."

26286. Meaning the man with the bad police record?—Yes, meaning that man.

26287. Had you seen Mrs. Emms at all in connection with the charge against Emms of assaulting his wife?—No.

26288. You had not seen her in connection with that at all?—No.

26289. That is the only way in which you knew her—by sight?—That was all.

26290. (Chairman.) You were well enough when you got to the police station to make a charge against the men, were you not?—Yes.

26291. What did you charge them with?—I charged the men with assaulting me in the execution of my duty.

26292. That was the charge which was entered in the charge sheet, I think?—Yes.

26293. You told the Police Magistrate in substance what you told us yesterday to the following effect:—"I saw the prisoner and another man quarrelling with a woman. Prisoner said it was his wife, and that it was nothing to do with me. She went away." Then I take it that the first thing that attracted your attention when you were proceeding to your beat in Brick Lane was the fact that these two men were quarrelling with a woman?—Yes.

26294. You saw no blow struck?—I saw no blow struck.

26295. May I ask you why you felt it your duty to go and speak to them?—The woman was crying, and, knowing the man Norrey, I thought that probably they might be up to some mischief with her, so I asked as she was crying what was the matter.

26296. Knowing the man Norrey?—Yes, knowing the man Norrey.

26297. If you had not known the man Norrey you would not have felt called upon to interfere?—I should have done in that place at that time of night, seeing there were only those three persons in the street.

26298. In any case you would have interfered?—Yes, in any case I should have interfered.

26299. What do you mean by your answer—by saying "knowing the man Norrey"?—That was an extra event which would call attention to it.

26300. An extra event?—Knowing that man.

26301. Yes. I am only trying to ascertain what was in your mind. You wish me to understand, quite apart from what you knew of Norrey, you would have felt it your duty to interfere?—Yes, I should have done so.

26302. Why?—Because seeing the woman crying, with two men very close to her in a lonely part of the neighbourhood, I was naturally suspicious.

26303. Suspicious of what?—Of some wrong being done.

26304. The woman did not feel that suspicion, as I understand?—No, she did not.

26305. Please do not assume I think you are wrong from my question—you must not assume that from my question—but whether you are right or wrong in speaking to them, it was perfectly clear that no offence had been committed by them in your sight?—No offence had been committed in my sight.

26306. It would have been quite wrong for you to arrest the man or woman, or all three, on that which you had then seen?—Yes.

26307. The man who turns out to be the man Emms does not appear to have resented your interference?—No.

26308. He answered you, did he not?—Yes, he told me it was his wife.

26309. "It was nothing to do with me"?—Yes.

26310. That answer was given civilly, was it?—Yes.

26311. It seemed reasonable, did it not?—Yes.

26312. Did you say anything further?—I said, "Well, if it is your wife, why do not you take her indoors? Do not keep the woman crying in the streets at this time of night."

26313. Was there any reason under the circumstances you should have said that?—No, except for the lateness of the hour.

26314. And the character of Norrey?—Not taking that into consideration, of course.

26315. Well, we will exclude that. Do not you think it was a little provocative when the man said it was his wife, and the wife made no appeal to you? I am only trying to find out how the affair began. Do not you think it was a little provocative?—No, I do not think so.

26316. It was advice?—It was intended that way.

26317. Did they resent that?—Only that the woman walked away. There was nothing more said.

26318. And Norrey walked away?—Norrey walked about three yards.

26319. Did Emms move on?—No, he remained there.

26320. Why do you think he remained there?—He stood in the same position.

26321. Why should not he?—There was no reason why he should not.

26322. What happened next?—I was preparing to walk away, and I should have carried on round my beat, but these two men at once assaulted me. The man Norrey returned almost immediately.

26323. Who assaulted you first?—The blows were struck almost together, it would be difficult to say which one struck first, but I believe Norrey struck the first blow.

26324. Had you given them any cause, do you think, for it?—No.

26325. And you had never taken Norrey into custody, or had any dispute with him, as I understand?—No.

26326. And you did not know the man before you was this man of bad character?—No, I did not.

26327. Does it not strike you even now as an extraordinary thing for them to have done?—No.

26328. Why should they do it?—Because when I found out who the other man was, no doubt they knew I was a young officer, and they thought they would be able to give me a thrashing and leave me there discredited.

26329. When you have been using the words "bad character" and "record," and so on, I rather was taking it (correct me if I am wrong) that you were thinking of offences against property, and that they were thieves, and that was principally the reason of their bad character?—I do not quite understand.

26330. You have said Norrey was a bad character?—Yes.

26331. And that there was a man named Emms whom you knew as a bad character?—Yes.

26332. By that I rather gathered that you meant persons who had been convicted for larceny and offences of that kind?—Yes.

26333. And that they were thieves and criminals belonging to the criminal class?—Yes.

26334. Taking it so, does it not strike you as an odd thing that two members of the criminal class should, if your story be true, without any provocation on your part assault you?—They thought I did not know them.

26335. What was their object in assaulting you?—Just to leave me discredited, I take it.

26336. You take it that it was part of a warfare against the police?—Yes, I should describe it in that way.

26337. And you think that these men were only too glad of the opportunity, apparently with impunity, of assaulting a policeman?—Yes, of assaulting me.

26338. This was in a thoroughfare, Brick Lane, where people were coming and going, were they not?—There was no one in that street at the time of the occurrence, the street was perfectly empty.

26339. (Mr. Whitmore.) When it began?—Yes, when it began.

26340. (Chairman.) The view you took, or take, of the origin of this disturbance is that it was an absolutely unprovoked attack by two persons of the criminal class upon a policeman who happened to be alone?—Yes.

26341. At the same time you had gone up to them, had you not?—Yes, I had spoken to them.

26342. I have been asking you these questions upon the assumption that you have asked me to make—namely, to put the character of Norrey out of consideration—but I ask you again, supposing you had not known Norrey to be one of these criminals, would you have spoken to the man?—Yes, I should have done.

26343. Did you make a report of this case?—Yes, I did.

26344. Did you, in the report, feel it necessary to explain how the disturbance began?—I explained in the report that I saw the two men and the woman, that I spoke to them, the answer that I received, and the answer that I gave, and a description of the assault.

26345. Yes. You made your report on the 31st October. That was the day after the police court trial?—That was a copy, I expect. I made a report out the same evening as the occurrence.

26346. But you were very ill then, and put on the sick list?—It was after the charge had been taken. It is usual in the case when a constable has to use his truncheon that a short report should be made on the occurrence.

26347. I know that is so, and you made a report on the morning of the 23rd?—Yes.

26348. Was that before you went away?—Yes, before I left the station.

26349. The report I am thinking of is the report that was made after the police court proceedings; that is to say, after the case had been dismissed by the Police Magistrate?—Yes.

26350. You made a report then?—Yes.

26351. I have been rather pressing you as to your reasons for going up and talking to these men, and why I did so was because of a sentence which I find in the report. Just listen to this: "With reference to the report called for, I beg to state that while on duty at Brick Lane, Bethnal Green, at 12.30 a.m. on the 23rd instant, I saw an altercation between two men and a woman. The woman was crying. Knowing the men's character I thought there might be something wrong between them and the woman." You put down in your report, "Knowing Emms' character"?—That was a report which I made when I was called upon to explain, as you are asking me to do now, the reason I spoke to them.

26352. But you felt it necessary in making that report to give as a reason for your going up to speak to them, "knowing the men's character." Look at the report yourself (handing)?—Yes, it is there.

26353. What I understand by that report is that you, knowing Norrey was a criminal, and knowing Emms was a criminal, and that they were talking together to a woman, and that she was crying, you thought yourself justified in going up to speak to them?—Yes.

26354. Did you know Emms' character?—No, I did not. I did not know the man at the time.

26355. You see in the report which you made on the 31st October you say nothing about the men's characters. You do not distinguish in your report between Norrey and Emms?—You can take it that the other man, being an associate of Norrey, that would be a just inference.

26356. What I infer from your report of the 31st October is that you thought you could hardly have justified your going up and interfering, except by reference to your knowledge of the character of the two men?—Yes, I understand your meaning.

26357. That was your view on the 31st October

P.C. H. Jeffery.
14 Dec. 1906.

evidently, was it not?—On that date even I should consider myself justified in speaking to them if I had not known their character.

26358. You put it in the report, and you are inaccurate even in your report, because you did not know that Emms was Emms?—No, I did not.

26359. Therefore you did not know the character of the man?—Not that man.

26360. He was a man simply to you at that moment. There is one thing which strikes me about your account, and that is with regard to the whistle. These two men were attacking you, I understand. I am not going over that again; you have given the account twice if not three times. I do not understand why you did not blow your whistle?—The whistle was snatched as soon as the struggle began. I could not use it; it was taken from me.

26361. That does not seem to me to quite follow the story which you told us to-day. Of course, from the very nature of the thing it is very difficult to give an account which would be strictly in chronological order, because we are dealing with three men, but I certainly should have gathered from the account which you gave that at first Norrey and Emms were so busy striking you and pinning you to the wall that there was no time to pull the whistle away at the beginning?—With the first two blows Emms pinned me to the wall, the other man beating me, and the whistle went at that time. I had no opportunity of using it.

26362. Where was the whistle kept?—Here, in this position (explaining).

26363. Was it Norrey who pulled the whistle away? Do you know that, or do you infer that?—I should think it was him from being on the left side of me.

26364. Of course, it might have been thrown away. When Emms was taken to the station I presume he was searched, but we have no evidence about that?—Yes, he was searched.

26365. No point turns on it, but I suppose it would have been found on him?—Yes.

26366. You think it was Norrey who took it?—I should think it was him.

26367. Did you feel for the whistle?—I tried to get it, but it was gone.

26368. At what point did you feel for your whistle?—At the first opportunity I could get my right arm from the wall. There was about that amount of chain hanging (indicating), and the whistle was broken off from there.

26369. No whistle was blown so far as you know?—No whistle was blown that night.

26370. You heard Mrs. Bloom say she heard a whistle?—Yes, I did.

26371. You were pretty heavily engaged, according to your story, and the whistle may have been blown without your hearing it?—I could have heard it. There was no noise but the struggle. There was no noise sufficient to drown a police whistle.

26372. Was Norrey engaged with you until you got right to the place where you used the truncheon the first time?—Yes.

26373. Still holding on to you?—Yes, still holding on to me.

26374. Right across the road?—Yes.

26375. And the whole thing, you say, took from five to seven minutes?—Yes, about that time.

26376. From the time you began the conversation until the time when the man fell under your blow?—Yes.

26377. You seem to have hit him, according to your own story, twice on the head?—Yes.

26378. Was that not rather a serious step to take?—It was necessary to release myself from this man.

26379. Could you not hit his arm first or his leg first before you touched his head?—With that man hanging on to me by the throat I had no time where to judge to hit him. Had I hesitated much longer I should probably have been strangled.

26380. Have you the truncheon here?—Yes. (The Witness produced the truncheon.)

26381. Is that the same truncheon?—Yes.

26382. You had your right arm free enough to get at it?—Yes.

26383. The reason I am asking you about that is because I recollect what is said in the white book about the use of the truncheon?—Yes.

26384. Do you remember it: "If necessary, a constable will blow his whistle for assistance"?—Yes.

26385. You say you could not blow your whistle because you had lost the whistle?—Yes.

26386. "Truncheons are supplied to the police to enable them to protect themselves if violently attacked, and if a constable is likely to be overpowered he may draw his truncheon and use it, taking care to avoid striking anyone on the head"?—Yes.

26387. You do not seem to have taken care to avoid that in this case?—I had no time to.

26388. You said you did not know exactly where you were hitting?—Well, if you had no time you would not be able to.

26389. "The arms and legs should be aimed at to disable the prisoner or parts of the frame least likely to suffer serious injury"?—Yes.

26390. You say you did use every care to avoid hitting the man on the head?—No, I cannot say I used every care. I had no time to be that particular.

26391. (Mr. Dickinson.) You told me that you knew Norrey?—Yes.

26392. And you could see quite clearly that it was he?—When I got to them closely I recognised him.

26393. How soon did you recognise him? You were walking under the arch, were you not?—Yes.

26394. I understand there is a lamp at the south end of the arch?—Yes, there is a lamp at both ends of that arch.

26395. There is one at the south end where they were standing?—Yes.

26396. Were they standing in the full light of the lamp?—The men were. The woman was partly in the shadow. The gateway in question just goes back about the width of a brick—about six or seven inches.

26397. Do I understand you to mean that this is the gateway? (Pointing on a plan.) There is the arch, and this is the way you were coming?—Yes.

26398. You have the spot marked "Where P.C. 369 was assaulted." With regard to where they were in the doorway, that is the doorway they were in?—Yes.

26399. Where is the lamp?—The lamp would be just about here. (Pointing.)

26400. They stood on that side of the doorway?—Just by the side of that doorway.

26401. The south side?—Yes.

26402. Could you see the lamp from where you were walking through the archway?—Yes, you could see the lamp.

26403. They were between you and the lamp?—Yes, they would be.

26404. When you came up you say you could see the two men, but you could not see the woman?—She was in the shadow. I could see it was a woman.

26405. Could you distinguish her features?—No, I could not. She had her hands up to her face, as she was crying.

26406. How are you able to say she was not Mrs. Emms?—When she moved away I got a glimpse of her face.

26407. You were certain she was not Mrs. Emms?—I am certain she was not. This woman was probably taller.

26408. I understand you are not sure that the Mrs. Emms you think you knew was the wife of Emms?—I am sure she is now.

26409. How are you sure?—Because I have been told so by other people. I have not seen them together at any time.

26410. You have been told the woman pointed out to you as Mrs. Emms is the wife of this man Emms?—Yes.

26411. That you have been told?—Yes.

26412. So you are perfectly certain now the woman who was here on this occasion was not that woman?—That is so.

26413. Now to go back to Norrey. You say you knew

Norrey. How long have you known him?—About 12 months.

26414. How did you first come across him?—He was pointed out to me by a police officer on duty in Brick Lane as being Ginger Norrey, and one of the gang that hang about that neighbourhood.

26415. I suppose you have seen him often since?—I have seen him on and off during that 12 months.

26416. If he hangs about the neighbourhood you would see him very often, I presume. Have you always been on that beat?—Not always on that beat. I have been shifted around.

26417. How often have you seen him in the 12 months?—Perhaps eight or nine times, and perhaps more; it would be difficult to say.

26418. Have you ever spoken to him?—No.

26419. I suppose he would know you?—Yes, he should do during the time I have been there.

26420. I suppose he would know that you knew him?—I could not say about that.

26421. You said just now you thought the reason they attacked you was because you think they thought you were a young constable, and wanted to thrash you and get you into disgrace?—Yes.

26422. But then, even if they thrashed you, if they knew that you could find out who they were, was it not a rash thing?—If they knew I knew them they would not have attempted it.

26423. You think they did not know that you knew them?—That is so.

26424. Do you know where Norrey lives?—No, I could not say where he lives, except that he gave his address as 4, Poyser Street.

26425. You mentioned Norrey's name at a very early stage?—Yes.

26426. When did you first mention Norrey's name?—I think when the other police constables came to my assistance they asked me what was the matter. I told them I had been assaulted by that man and by Ginger Norrey, and that he had run away.

26427. That you said that very same evening?—At the time before we went to the police station.

26428. Then you have no doubt yourself that this was Ginger Norrey?—I have no doubt at all.

26429. Who was it ran to call the other policeman?—I could not say.

26430. Somebody did?—Somebody informed him.

26431. And he must have come very rapidly?—Yes.

26432. He came almost immediately as it happened, did he not?—I should think the man had been lying there for perhaps two or three minutes when the first police-constable arrived.

26433. What was it exactly that happened according to you between the time that they got you with your back against the wall on the east side of the road?—It was on the west side to start with, on the right hand side coming down.

26434. I understand you to say that they pinned you to the wall on the east side?—Yes, after we crossed the road.

26435. Had they done it before on the right side?—Yes, on the west side of the archway.

26436. The first thing they did was to pin you to the wall?—Yes.

26437. How did you manage to get across to the other side then?—By great exertion on my part in getting rid of their weight and freeing myself from between them and the wall. During the struggle I was worked into the road, and seeing I was getting into an exposed position where I could be attacked from every side, I made for the wall on the other side.

26438. When you were crossing the road there were people round you?—I saw no people there.

26439. You saw no people?—Not until the man had fallen in Pedley Street.

26440. According to you the story we have heard from these women that there was a crowd of a few people on the west side of the road where it was first seen is untrue?—It is untrue. At the most when the man fell and the second police-constable came to my assistance there were not seven or nine persons in Pedley Street at the same time.

26441. But before you got to Pedley Street there was no one there?—I saw no one, and when I was assaulted there was no one in that street except us three people engaged in that struggle.

26442. The description Mrs. Allen has given of your crossing the road and saying that there were people around you then is untrue?—Yes, it is untrue.

26443. When you got across the road I understand you to say you got your back against the wall in self-preservation?—Yes.

26444. At that time were both the men on you?—Both the men were on me, and beating me on the left side of the body then.

26445. Beating you on the left side of the body; how were they beating you?—With their fists, punching me on the chest. I was kicked on the left knee, beaten about this side of the face—(indicating)—and a tooth was broken from here.

26446. I know you got a serious blow on the face, but do you mean to represent with what must have been a very serious struggle going on, two men against one, struggling across the road, that they did not belabour you a good deal more than they did?—The thickness of my tunic would soften the blows.

26447. They were fighting for their lives, so to speak. They would not hesitate to hit you on the face?—I was beaten about the face.

26448. You had one blow which raised a lump on the side of the face and you had a tooth knocked out, but that was all?—That was all. I could not say, of course, the number of blows I was struck on the face.

26449. These men must have had one arm at least free each?—Yes.

26450. They were both hanging on your arms?—The man Emms was hanging on my throat, and Norrey was on my left arm.

26451. And that is how you were able to get your truncheon out?—Yes, that is how I got my truncheon out, after I got away from the wall a second time.

26452. But going across the road you had both arms occupied?—Yes. I was trying to force them away. I used my truncheon as the last resource.

26453. When you fought with them on the east side of the road with your back to the wall, what was exactly the next thing that happened?—I found I was being overpowered, and I drew my truncheon and used it.

26454. You used it first on Emms' head?—Yes, on Emms' head, on his forehead.

26455. That made Emms drop hold of you?—No, he still hung on, and the two men continued to try to get at me.

26456. Then what did you do?—Then, finding that he would not leave go or the other man would not go away, I struck him a harder blow. When he got the second blow he let go of me. The man Norrey ran to the south of Brick Lane, and the man Emms ran into Pedley Street, and fell a short distance down.

26457. The man Norrey ran away to the South?—Yes, to the south towards Whitechapel.

26458. And Emms also ran away? Therefore you were free from both of them?—Yes.

26459. And he ran away and turned into Pedley Street?—Yes.

26460. What made him fall?—He must have stumbled.

26461. Were you following him?—I was close behind him when he fell.

26462. Trying to arrest him?—Yes, trying to arrest him.

26463. And you saw him fall?—I saw him fall.

26464. But he fell almost unconscious?—No, he was not unconscious the whole time.

26465. You say he was not unconscious?—He was not unconscious.

26466. Not unconscious when he was on the ground?—No.

26467. Do you mean to say you think he was shamming?—Yes, I do, because when the other police constable came a few persons were standing there as he laid on the ground, and he said, "Have I got any witnesses?" or something which I took to be that.

P.C. H. Jeffery.
14 Dec. 1906.

26468. (Chairman.) What did he say about witnesses?—It sounded to me as if he said, "Have I any witnesses here?"

26469. (Mr. Dickinson.) At that time there was a certain number of persons there?—About nine, at the most, because as the other policemen came more people came with them.

26470. You say in your report, "Emms also ran a few yards into Pedley Street, and I at once arrested him"?—Yes, when he fell.

26471. What did you do to arrest him?—I stood over him to see that he did not get away. I put that down as arresting the man. I saw that he made no fresh attempt to escape.

26472. He was lying on the ground then. You say you stood over him?—Yes, I stood over him.

26473. Did you send for any assistance?—No, I was leaning against the wall. I thought he would not get up, and, being completely done, I leaned against the wall like that. After a few minutes P.C. 409 Death came, and when he came he took charge.

26474. That you have called in your report arresting?—I put that down as arresting.

26475. Where is this report which you made on the evening itself?—It would be in the Occurrence Book and in my official note-book.

26476. Let me see that. What does your official note-book say?

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) It is embodied in Sergeant Anderson's first report, which you have there, but it is in the Occurrence Book.

26477. (Mr. Dickinson.) The Occurrence Book says: "Harry Jeffery reports at 12.30 a.m., 23rd inst., whilst on duty at Brick Lane, Bethnal Green, he saw two men and a woman having an altercation. The P.C. spoke to them, and requested them to go away, whereupon the man not in custody, who is known to the P.C. as Ginger Norrey, struck him a violent blow in the face. The other man, Edward Emms, also struck the P.C. in the mouth, breaking a tooth and knocking his head against the wall. Norrey then kicked the P.C. on the left knee and struck him on chest and body. Then they both pinned the P.C. against the wall. The P.C., feeling that he was being overpowered, drew his truncheon and struck Emms on the head, causing him to release his hold. He (Emms) was then taken into custody, and Norrey made good his escape. In the struggle the P.C. lost his whistle and armlet, armlet strap off tunic torn off, also right sleeve torn, and lamp number 46 damaged. The P.C. was seen by Dr. Clark, and placed on the sick list." Was that taken down from your statement that evening?—Yes, from the pocket-book.

26478. You reported this?—Yes.

26479. Had you written it out in your pocket-book first of all?—Yes, after the man had been brought in.

26480. I see it was a mistake in the police report. They speak of "a man not in custody," but the report here is "the man not in custody."

26481. (Mr. Whitmore.) Tell me about your whistle. When was the new whistle supplied to you?—I cannot remember the exact date. It would be perhaps a fortnight after the occurrence.

26482. You reported the fact, I suppose, that you had lost your whistle?—Yes, at the time.

26483. Was a new chain supplied to you at the same time?—Yes.

26484. Do you remember what you did with the old chain?—I believe it is in an old serge pocket of mine at my home.

26485. It was broken off?—Yes, it was broken off.

26486. Supposing you had not used your truncheon at the time you say you did, and in the manner you say you did, what do you think would have happened?—I should have been strangled.

26487. And you used it at that time in that way because you really thought it was absolutely necessary for your own self-protection?—Yes, for my own safety.

26488. (Chairman.) Are you quite sure that Emms, when you struck him the second time, did not fall to the ground at the second blow?—Quite sure.

26489. I think other witnesses have said when Emms was struck the second time he fell, and remained on the ground?—Yes, they have said that.

26490. Whether he was shamming or not we will not inquire for the moment, but was not the blow violent enough to fell him to the ground?—No, it was not.

26491. Where was the second blow struck—just show me on the plan?—The spot is marked where I used my truncheon, and there is also a spot here where the man fell.

26492. I did not gather that you used your truncheon twice at the same place?—In the same place both blows were struck.

26493. The first was what I may call an ineffectual blow?—The first blow was struck on the forehead. Then, seeing that did not have any effect, I struck him a second time on the same spot.

26494. Then the shoving and so on and the struggling ceased at that point; Norrey ran one way and Emms ran another, according to you?—Emms ran into Pedley Street. The distance between where I struck the man and where he fell would be 20 or 25 yards.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) I have the original notes now. The copy is correct so far as it says that the young woman said she would like to speak to us, but the widowhood of Mrs. Allen is the invention of the copyist; in the original notes she is described as married.

(Chairman.) Very well.

TWENTY-EIGHTH DAY.

Wednesday, 19th December, 1906.

PRESENT:

Sir David Brynmor Jones, K.C., M.P. (Chairman).
Willoughby Hyett Dickinson, Esq., M.P. (Barrister-at-Law).
Charles Algernon Whitmore, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law).
J. W. St. Lawrence Leslie, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law), Secretary.
J. F. Waley, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law), Assistant Secretary.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Would you allow me, Sir, before we proceed to call the next witness in Emms's case, to mention the case of the constable Cann. You will remember he was the witness in Harding's case who was assaulted, and who gave evidence here, and who appeared by his demeanour not to be what I should call himself. Since then he has been examined by the Divisional Surgeon and by the Chief Surgeon as to his condition, and he has been returned as unfit to continue in the service owing to his condition, resulting largely from these injuries, and the surgeons state in their reports, which I will hand in, "The police-constable is in a nervous state, and complained of pains in his head, and his mental condition is, we think, worse." I think I ought to mention that with reference to your remark as to his condition when he gave evidence before you.

(Chairman.) Certainly. You will put in their reports.

(Earl Russell.) May I mention the matter of the clerk's notes in the case of Mrs. Braham? It was said that those notes should be supplied to me at some time so that we might see if there was any discrepancy between them and the evidence given here. If the Commissioners have them I should be glad to have a copy. We did not have them during the inquiry here, but it was understood they should be handed in later.

(Chairman.) The Secretary now says he has got them. I do not know that I have seen them yet, but there is not the slightest objection as far as the Commissioners are concerned, and there can be no objection in any quarter, to your seeing a copy of the notes of evidence in the police court proceedings.

(Earl Russell.) It was understood it should be so, but I did not know they had been handed in.

(Chairman.) We will now proceed with Emms's case.

Mr. Schultess-Young and Mr. Livett appeared on behalf of the complainant.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) Will you allow me, Sir, to recall P.C. Jeffery to ask him one or two questions further in cross-examination?

(Chairman.) We will consider that.

(Secretary.) Is Mr. George Kemp here?—(No answer).

(Chairman.) Mr. George Kemp has been summoned before the Commission; he has, as I understand, been served personally, but he does not appear. Mr. George Kemp must understand that if we think it right and proper and necessary to have his evidence we shall take steps to compel his appearance before us. Meanwhile we will go on with the other witnesses.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I think Kemp is a very important witness. He was before the magistrate.

(Chairman.) The Commissioners will consider the matter. Who is the next constable you call, Mr. Bankes?

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) The next constable I propose to call is P.C. Death.

(Chairman.) If Mr. Schultess-Young has any further question to ask P.C. Jeffery I think this is a convenient time. The examination of P.C. Jeffery was exhaustive the last time, but the Commissioners want to sift the matter to the bottom.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I think it would save discussion afterwards if my learned friend would indicate now the fresh point upon which he wishes to ask Jeffery questions, and upon which he has not previously questioned. I have not the slightest objection to any further questions being asked that are new, but I respectfully submit Jeffery was asked every question that was reasonable and necessary on the last occasion.

(Chairman.) I do not think we will put the terms as high as that. We will stop Mr. Schultess-Young if we think he is overdoing the matter.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) There are three private witnesses here, and I said I would endeavour to get their evidence taken at the beginning of the sitting, as Christmas time is a very busy time with tradesmen. Would you, Sir, have any objection to their being called at once?

(Chairman.) Not in the least. The police-constables must remain, of course, but if we can release these three gentlemen we will do so with pleasure.

Mr. John William Ward, sworn.

Mr. J. W. Ward.

19 Dec. 1906.

26495. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I think you carry on business as a stationer at 41, Church Street, Bethnal Green?—That is so.

26496. I think you are a member of the Bethnal Green Borough Council?—That is so.

26497. Have you been a resident and ratepayer in Church Street for over 20 years?—That is so.

26498. And a member of the Council for four years?—About four years.

26499. Have you come here voluntarily to give your evidence as to what you know about these two men, Emms and Norrey?—Yes.

26500. Do you know them as associates together?—Yes.

26501. Do you know them as associates of Harding?—Yes, I know them to be associates of Harding.

26502. How recently have you seen Emms and Norrey together?—Not since the Commission has been sitting.

26503. But before the Commission sat?—I should say about four months.

26504. Have you ever known Emms or Norrey to do any work?—Yes. I might say that I have known Norrey from his infancy. He was born at the back of my premises, and up till about six years ago he was in honest employment as a timber porter for Mr. Diamond. He was then double-ruptured, and was laid up for some considerable time. After that he was out of employment, and that is how I believe he drifted into his present living.

26505. For the last six years how has he employed himself?—As far as I know by associating with thieves and picking pockets.

26506. And how has Emms employed himself during the time you have known him?—The same game.

26507. Have you ever yourself actually seen Norrey do anything wrong?—Yes.

26508. When was that?—On the 1st November, 1902, the day Mr. Kensit died. I was standing at my shop door waiting for my boy, who had gone an errand for myself, and I saw two men run down the street. I looked, and I at once recognised Norrey as the foremost of the two. I wondered what they were running for. I looked, and I saw a foreign Jewess in front, and I also noticed that she had got her purse in her jacket pocket. It was on a Saturday afternoon about three o'clock, or shortly after. I immediately came to the conclusion that was what they were after, and I called out to her, "Look out for your pocket; they are after your purse." But she did not take any notice, because I found out afterwards she did not understand the English language. The next minute I saw Norrey dive his fingers in and take it, and he immediately went across the road. I turned round and said, "You ought to be ashamed of yourself to rob a poor devil like that."

26510. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) With reference to your observation as to the conduct of the police in that district, have you ever known them guilty of unreasonable violence towards people?—Never.

26511. And, speaking generally, what would you say as to their conduct in your district from your observation?—It is as well as you can expect, considering the treatment they receive themselves in return. If they arrest a prisoner and he is taken to the station, of course we know very well there is no difficulty in getting people to come forward and swear that they were not there, and so on, and they do not get fair treatment, I consider, at the police court.

26512. Speaking from your general observation, do the police appear to you to do their best under difficult circumstances, and to act without unreasonable or unnecessary violence in cases where they have to apprehend people?—That is so.

26513. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) What opportunities have you had of knowing what takes place when the police arrest prisoners and take them to the police station?—I am not referring to the police station. I am referring to the police court. I have been to the police court and heard cases.

26514. Never mind the police court for a moment. What opportunities have you had of knowing what takes place when policemen arrest a prisoner and take him to the police station?—I am not referring to the police station.

Mr. J. W. Ward.

19 Dec. 1906.

26515. I am asking you what opportunities you have had. Have you had any?—I have—the same as any other civilian.

26516. The same as I have had?—Exactly so.

26517. That is nothing—I know nothing about it at all. Are you in the habit of attending police courts?—I have attended the police court.

26518. And you have not been satisfied with the justice meted out by the Magistrates?—Certainly not.

26519. Is that what you have come here to tell us?—I have stated the question myself.

26520. I do not want you to state any question, but to give me an answer?—I consider that the police are not properly treated by some of the London Magistrates.

26521. Under the experience you have had?—Yes.

26522. What has that been?—I have been present in the police court and have heard prisoners tried.

26523. How often?—Several times.

26524. For what purpose did you go there?—I have gone there to pass the time away sometimes.

26525. You have not been satisfied with the treatment of the police by the Magistrates—is that what you mean to tell us?—It is.

26526. Have you taken any steps previous to this to make any complaint to headquarters?—No.

26527. You have been calling this man Norris all the time. Why did you call him Norris?—Norreys, I said.

26528. You said Norris?—No, Norreys. He is known as "Ginger Norreys" all round the neighbourhood. I have known him ever since he was one or two years old.

26529. And you say that to your knowledge he has associated with thieves and pickpockets all this time?—I said five or six years.

26530. When do you say you knew him in work?—He worked for Mr. Diamond.

26531. When?—Some years ago.

26532. Not recently?—Not recently.

26533. What is your knowledge of his picking pockets?—My knowledge of Norrey is this, that nearly every day throughout the week he can be seen in Church Street.

26534. I did not ask where he could be seen. I asked you what your knowledge was?—If you will allow me, I will try and enlighten you on the subject. My knowledge is this, that nearly every day in the week I can see him associating with thieves; and not only that, but when people pass along they get two or three together, and if the man who is coming down the street tries to avoid them one way they go the same way, and they pick their pockets in that manner.

26535. That is what you see every day—you see them pick pockets?—I say I see him with them trying.

26536. You see these men every day trying to pick pockets?—I said they could be seen.

26537. My friend Mr. Bankes said you meant that you saw them. Can you tell the Commission that you have seen these men every day trying to pick pockets?—I will not say every day.

26538. Every other day?—No; I will not say that, but almost every day, I will say.

26539. But not every other day. How many times a week have you yourself seen these men trying to pick pockets?—Several times. I have never paid any particular notice of the number of times.

26540. Several times?—Yes.

26541. Three times a week?—Perhaps so.

26542. That would be every other day?—That may be so, but it would not be every week so. I am not always at the door to see it, but whenever I am in the street I have seen it.

26543. You have seen him several times a week with other men making an obstruction and trying to pick pockets?—Yes.

26544. What steps have you taken to remedy that as an honest citizen?—The same as any other individual would take.

26545. No you have not—not as I understand an honest citizen?—I have told them of it.

26546. Told who?—Themselves.

26547. The men?—Yes.

26548. You have tried to be a missionary to them?—Not at all.

26549. What have you done with regard to the police authorities? Have you given them information about these men who you yourself say you knew by sight and who you yourself have seen trying to pick pockets?—I have complained of them.

26550. Have you laid any information of any kind?—No, I have not laid an information. I have complained to the police about their being allowed to congregate there.

26551. That is all?—That is all.

26552. Do you mean to tell the Commission that having seen these men actually trying to pick pockets you have gone to the police and only complained about their congregating?—Certainly.

26553. Then I ask you nothing more.

26553*. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Is their conduct as well known to the police as it is to you?—I should presume it was.

26554. One question about your opportunities of seeing what goes on. Have you seen people arrested in your neighbourhood at different times?—Frequently.

26555. When you told me you never saw any unnecessary violence, you were referring to arrests which you yourself had seen with your own eyes?—Exactly so.

Mr. Thomas John Ward, sworn.

Mr. T. J. Ward.

19 Dec. 1906.

26556. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Are you any relation of the last witness?—No.

26557. I think you have for fifteen years been the licensee of the "Duke's Motto," 137, Brick Lane?—Yes, and a ratepayer.

26558. How long have you known Emms?—About five to six years.

26559. Has he ever done any work, to your knowledge?—Not to my knowledge.

26560. How have you seen him occupy himself?—Loitering, patrolling with sections of gangs—two or three or four or five.

26561. Do you know him to be an associate of Harding's?—I take them as one gang.

26562. You take them all as one gang?—Yes.

26563. With regard to Norrey, have you known him?—About three years he has come under my notice.

26564. What name do you know him by?—"Ginger Norrey"; some people call him Norrey, but when he has been asked for it has been by the name of "Ginger Norrey."

26565. Have you ever known him to do any work?—No.

26566. How have you seen him occupied?—The same as the other man Emms.

26567. Do you come here voluntarily to give evidence?—I do. I think it is my duty to do so.

26568. I want you to give the Commission your experience of the way the police endeavour to carry out their duties in your district. Are you satisfied with it?—More than satisfied. If this gang would let the police do their duty we should have a better neighbourhood, but as it is, it is a disagreeable one now for tradespeople.

26569. Have you ever seen the police guilty of unnecessary violence?—Never. I was a witness on one occasion last Boxing Day of the way they served a policeman.

26570. Do they seem to you to endeavour to do their duty under difficult circumstances with moderation?—Yes, and very gently.

26571. (Mr. Schultess Young.) You are not the only witness, I suppose, of respectable character, who can come forward and say the police never use violence?—I have never seen any violence used in the neighbourhood since I have been there for fifteen years.

26572. You do not watch the police constantly, do you?—When I have the opportunity; I have as much chance of seeing the police as a good many others.

26573. I dare say. Are you a licensed victualler?—I am a beer and wine retailer.

26574. Drunk on the premises?—Not if I know it.

26575. But I want to know?—Not so far as my eyes will allow me to prevent it.

26576. You are busy in your shop all day?—I have my rest as other people have.

26577. But except when you are taking your rest you are busy in your shop all day?—Not all day.

26578. How much of the day?—I put in ten hours a day, I suppose.

26579. You are open at what time?—Half-past seven in the morning.

26580. That is nice and early for the wine. What time do you close?—Half-past 12 at night, bar Sundays and Saturdays.

26581. What are those ten hours you are employed in the shop?—I am behind the bar serving my customers, and sometimes I go round and walk round and collect the glasses and do what I think best. I have servants to do my work as well as myself.

26582. You say you have plenty of opportunities of interviewing policemen?—Yes.

26583. You do interview a good many policemen, I suppose?—Those who go on the round.

26584. And you are a witness for them, too, as occasion arises?—I am here as a witness, as a tradesman.

26585. And a licensed man?—Certainly.

26586. You say that last Boxing Day you were a witness for the police, too?—No, I did not make that accusation. I said I saw a policeman cowardly used.

26587. No, I have got it down here, and you said you were witness for the police last Boxing Day?—I said no such thing.

26588. We will take your correction, I must have made a mistake. Then you were not a witness for the police last Boxing Day?—I was not a witness for the police.

26589. What did you do for the police last Boxing Day?—I did nothing at all.

26590. You said something about being a witness?—I said I witnessed an assault last Boxing Day.

26591. What happened about that assault. Can you give us any information?—No notice was taken of it.

26592. It was not a severe assault?—Was not it? I daresay the police can give you more information about that than I can.

26593. Then it was a very severe assault you witnessed?—It was.

26594. And nothing else came of it?—No.

26595. Did you volunteer your evidence?—No, I did not go off my doorstep.

26596. Do you mean to tell me you were a witness to a most severe assault on the police last Boxing Day and took no steps whatever to communicate with the police and say you had seen it?—I could not.

26597. Could you not call at the police station?—No.

26598. What was the difficulty? Were you afraid to?—This gang is a notorious gang, and if you were there they would set about you.

26599. I do not think I am frightened at anything, but supposing you were frightened at these gangs have you ever asked for protection from the police against these gangs?—No.

26600. It is a strange thing in a civilised country?—It is.

26601. You are frightened at these gangs of men, and so much so that having witnessed a severe assault on the police you took no steps with regard to it?—No.

26602. You are not, at all events, frightened about them to-day?—No.

26603. You can come here and tell us all this?—Yes, now I can.

26604. What has been the protection that has been afforded you?—Because all these matters are going to be looked into. We know who they are.

26605. You think the Commissioners are going to protect you?—I do not say that.

26606. You think the police are going to do it?—As far as they can.

26607. Did not they do that last Boxing Day?—No, there was only one policeman by himself. He was on his beat and tried to clear the mob away from the corner.

26608. Did you not go to the police station because you were afraid of these gangs?—Certainly not.

26609. You are not afraid of them to-day?—Certainly not.

26610. Have you made any provision for police protection to-night?

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Do you mean to say your people are so dangerous that it is necessary to have protection?

26611. (Mr. Schultess Young.) I am asking this witness what he says and contrasting his statement with his evidence. Have you made any special provision to-night for police protection?—Certainly not; not more than the police give us.

26612. Then you are not really afraid?—No.

26613. When was your fear removed? It was in full operation last Boxing Day, was it not?

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) He did not say so.

(The Witness.) No. If you will put any question to me I will answer you.

26614. (Mr. Schultess Young.) I asked you why you did not go to the police station and tell them that you had seen a policeman assaulted, and you said you were afraid to do so because of these gangs?—Simply because there was nobody arrested.

26615. How did you know that?—The police were on the scene to try and find out, and they could not find anybody from the gang.

26616. Did you have any talk with the police?—Certainly not.

26617. Nothing to say to them?—No.

26618. If you did not see anybody arrested then you thought, in addition to the fear you had of these gangs, that it was not worth while to go to the police station in case somebody was arrested later?—Because the police were on the scene soon after.

26619. You give us two different reasons. You first of all say you were afraid of the gangs?—We are afraid of the gangs when they are altogether in their strength.

26620. We will take it that was the reason you gave. I want to know when your fear of the gangs began to die off?—When we have proper protection we look to them to look after us.

26621. You did last Boxing Day, did you not? That was when your fear began?—I had no opportunity of being in fear then, because I was not outside. How could I be in fear if I was not outside?

26622. You told us you were in fear.

(Chairman.) I do not follow the use of this cross-examination.

(Mr. Schultess Young.) It is to show this witness was really not in fear at the time when this occurrence took place with regard to the assault on the police, and that the statement he has made is not worthy of credence.

(Chairman.) I do not think he has said that.

(Mr. Schultess Young.) I understood him to say that the reason he did not go to the police station and give evidence and inform the police of his being willing to give evidence with regard to this severe assault upon the police was because he was in fear of the gangs.

(The Witness.) No such thing.

(Chairman). Supposing that is the case, the fact remains that we should form our own opinion as to Mr. Ward's courage or timidity in the matter.

(Mr. Schultess Young.) I am using this cross-examination for the purpose of attacking his credibility.

(Chairman.) You were not here when Emms and Norrey gave their evidence.

Mr. T. J. Ward

19 Dec. 1906.

(Mr. Schultess Young.) I was at the police court when they gave their evidence.

(Chairman.) But not before us. They gave us an account of their careers, and they substantially tally with what this witness has said.

(Mr. Schultess Young.) I do not dispute that these persons were persons who the police might be supposed to be able to assault with impunity. They are persons who have been convicted, and convicted persons are the very persons who we, in our experience, have found the police most frequently do assault.

(Chairman.) The evidence given by Mr. Ward absolutely confirms the evidence given by Emms and Norrey about themselves, coupled with the previous convictions.

(Mr. Schultess Young.) I did not understand Mr. Ward was called with regard to that, because my friend would not dream of calling Mr. Ward to confirm what Emms and Norrey admitted.

(Chairman.) The effect of Mr. Ward's evidence is that Emms and Norrey are bad characters. We have that already; that they loiter about the streets, that they are a danger to the peace of the neighbourhood, and that he thinks the police have very great difficulty in dealing with them, and that, so far as he has observed, the police do not treat the people who they arrest brutally.

(Mr. Schultess Young.) That is not what he does say, and that is not what he has been called to say. What he says is that the police generally treat prisoners with gentleness and forbearance, not with regard to this particular instance, because he has not seen them in the custody of the police. He has not said for a moment that he has ever seen Emms and Norrey in the custody of the police.

(Chairman.) You cannot have been following what I have just said. The witness has said that he has observed the police do not treat any of these men in his district with unnecessary violence.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) Not Emms and Norrey especially?

(Chairman.) No. I did not say one word in that regard about Emms and Norrey.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I am taking this man as being called generally to testify to the forbearance of the police in the district, and he has said that on one occasion he has seen the police used with great violence.

(Chairman.) If you attack that proposition we will listen to the cross-examination, because that may be relevant.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) May I make an appeal to you, Sir, and that is that you will kindly protect independent witnesses who come to speak on behalf of the police from offensive and irrelevant cross-examination?

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I have said nothing offensive to this witness.

(Chairman.) I grant that appeal. I have already explained to Mr. Schultess-Young that the only cross-examination we want to listen to is cross-examination that will shake the credit of the witness in regard to the evidence he has given.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) And that I am wishing to do. The witness says that he did not give information at the police station because he was afraid of the gangs of these men.

(Chairman.) If he did it really is so remote from the inquiry and is so irrelevant that we need not pursue that line of cross-examination.

26623. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) You have a daughter who is engaged to a policeman, have you not?—That is my business, and not yours.

26624. I ask you not with the slightest intention to be offensive to you?—I shan't answer that question. I have not come here for child's play; I have come here for business.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Really is that a question that ought to have been put to the witness?

(Chairman.) I must beg of you, Mr. Schultess-Young and Mr. Bankes, to remember the conditions under which learned counsel appear. I will not stop you, Mr. Schultess-Young, from putting that question if you really think it is important.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I think it shows a certain amount of bias, and we should put it in a civil court.

(Chairman.) If you like to put it you shall put it, so that it cannot be said we have shut out anything important.

26625. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) It is not very important, but it shows an amount of bias. (To the Witness.) There is nothing objectionable in my question and nothing offensive?—If you put the question in a proper manner I will answer it.

(Chairman.) The fact that this man's daughter is going to marry a police-constable may set this witness against the police.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I will add the words "with his consent." If you do not think that shows any bias I will not put the question, but it is a question put every day as to whether there is any relationship present or proposed with a person involved. The question is constantly being put, "Are you a relation of So-and-so?"

(Chairman.) The Commission have expressed their view of the matter.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) Mr. Eldon Bankes asked this witness whether he was any relation to the last witness; but if you think this question is not a necessary question I will not put it.

(The Witness.) May I ask you, Mr. Chairman, whether it is necessary for a question like that to be put to me?

(Chairman.) I have indicated to Mr. Schultess-Young what my view is.

(The Witness.) I will answer it if you wish it.

26626. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) I will take it that it is to be omitted. There is nothing offensive in the question, or intended to be. (To the Witness.) Have you, too, seen these men going about in gangs?—Certainly.

26627. What have you seen them doing in these gangs. Have you seen them trying to pick pockets?—I have not seen that.

26628. Have you as many opportunities of seeing them as the last witness?—I see them constantly day after day.

26629. You have seen them day after day together?—Yes.

26630. You have never seen them trying to pick pockets?—Not exactly.

26631. "Not exactly"—what do you mean?—I have not seen anything direct by my eyes.

26632. Not directly. Do you give that as an honest answer?—I have seen them cover a person, but never seen them actually do anything further than that.

26633. Have you seen any person with them trying to pick pockets?—No, no more than that they have all been together.

26634. (Mr. Dickinson.) What made you come here to-day?—I think it is right I should come.

26635. What did happen. Tell me exactly?—If these people were driven away from the neighbourhood and from hanging about in the gangs they do we should have a better chance of getting a better class of people down the Lane to do their marketing.

26636. When did it first occur to you to come here?—Since the inquiry has been on, and before.

26637. What did you do? Who did you see and who did you speak to?—I thought it necessary I should come up. One or two of the tradesmen put their heads together and determined that it should be thrashed out.

26638. When was that?—It might be a fortnight or three weeks ago.

26639. Before this last case was mentioned?—Yes.

26640. You decided among yourselves to come up?—We thought it was necessary.

26641. What steps did you take?—No more than to come up here.

26642. Who did you communicate with?—We went to the station first.

26643. (Chairman.) What Mr. Dickinson means is this, you were not summoned through our Secretary?—No, not at all.

26644. Who did you communicate with?—I went to the station to make my accusation.

26645. (Mr. Dickinson.) You went to the police?—Yes.

26646. When did you do that?—It may be a week ago or a little more. I could not exactly tell what day it was.

26647. It was not before Norrey's case came on?—No.

26648. It was after you knew what had been happening here with regard to Norrey?—Yes.

26649. What was it that you spoke of among yourselves?—The man next door at the oil shop and certain tradesmen opposite said this thing ought to be stopped, and these gangs ought to be broken up.

26650. That was your object?—Yes, to try and see if we could stop this gang loitering about as they do.

26651. How long has this gang gone on?—A good time.

26652. What do you call a good time?—Several years, because some come and some go. The gang still remains.

26653. Do I understand you to say that there is a regular system of picking pockets going on?—Yes, along the Lane and in the market place.

26654. Are there a great many complaints that have come to your ears about it?—You have to hear what people say when they come in the house—"Somebody has been robbed."

26655. To what extent does that come before you?—Three parties came in the course of a week, and I have heard the same remark.

26656. So much as that?—It may be a week and you would not hear anything.

26657. Is there anything else besides picking pockets?—Yes, a watch going—"Someone has lost their watch."

26658. Is there much violence used in the streets against people?—No, the violence only seems to be against the police. I have never witnessed the gang assault any man—not a private person.

Mr. I. J. Ward.

19 Dec. 1906.

26659. How do you know this gang have a regular system of thieving?—One can see from your own house if you are upstairs for a quarter of an hour, they are right under your nose by the window. You must see it; you cannot shut your eyes.

26660. It seems, if that is so, a thing to be possible to stop?—It does not seem as if it can be stopped. It does not seem to me that the police can cope with them. The police tell them to move on, but they have a way of being saucy, and it seems to me the police are not quite strong enough in that neighbourhood.

26661. Do respectable people about there combine to assist the police?—There are so many foreigners in the lane that it is very difficult to go to your next-door neighbour. We do not know the foreign language, and we cannot be friendly with them.

26662. Is there any thieving from the shops?—I have never heard of any complaint from the shops.

26663. And not much violence, except against the police?—No; if one of them gets locked up the other gang tries to get them away. That is my explanation of it.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I have another witness, if you would like to hear him.

(Chairman.) We will hear him, if you think it worth while.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Personally, I do not think it is material, but I did not know whether Mr. Dickinson would like to hear him.

(Mr. Dickinson.) I do not think any of this is material for this particular case.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Very well, sir. Last time, you remember, Mr. Southey, a draper, came, and he said there were fifteen tradesmen here in Harding's case, and I made a selection. The witness was not one of the fifteen, and that is why I selected him. He was a fresh one. Then there is one question I should like to put to Norrey. I have the details of another conviction which I did not ask him about.

JOHN NORREY, recalled.

26664. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Were you convicted on the 22nd November for an assault on a constable, and sentenced to six weeks' hard labour before Mr. Cluer?—How long ago?

J. Norrey.

26665. 1902—four years ago?—Yes.

26666. That was an assault upon a police constable?—Yes.

26667. And you were sentenced to six weeks' hard labour?—According to the constable's evidence.

26668. It was Mr. Cluer who convicted you?—Yes, Mr. Cluer convicted me, but it was a number of falsehoods; they said so.

26669. (Mr. Schultess Young.) I should like to ask him whether he knows these two Wards. (To the Witness.) Mr. Cluer was the same magistrate who dismissed this case?—Yes.

26670. Do you know these two gentlemen, Messrs. Ward, who have given evidence?—Yes.

26671. As far as you know have they laid any complaint against you?—Never.

P.C. WILLIAM DEATH, 409 H, sworn.

26672. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Are you P.C. 409 H, stationed at Commercial Street Station?—Yes.

P.C. W. Death.

26673. I think on the night when this assault took place you were on duty in Sclater Street?—Yes.

26674. How far is Sclater Street from the place where this occurred?—About 120 yards.

26675. What called your attention to the matter?—A private individual came up to me.

26676. Somebody came up to you?—Yes.

26677. In consequence of that did you go to the Arch in Brick Lane?—Yes.

26678. Did you hear any whistle blown?—No.

26679. Did you blow a whistle yourself?—No.

26680. When you got to the place what did you see?—I saw Constable Jeffery leaning up against a fence.

26681. Look at the plan. Do you recognise that?—Yes.

26682. Whereabouts was the constable leaning up against the fence?—Just about here (pointing on the plan).

26683. Was that in Pedley Street?—Yes.

26684. Just at the end of Pedley Street?—Yes.

26685. What was the state of light there?—Very good indeed.

26686. Where is the lamp?—There are a couple of street lamps and the Great Eastern electric lights above it on the goods depot. There is almost light enough to read by.

26687. He was leaning up against the fence, was he?—Yes.

26688. Was he by himself, or was anybody immediately close by him?—There was the prisoner lying on the ground and people round him.

26689. Emms is the man you call the prisoner?—Yes.

26690. Was he lying on the ground in Pedley Street?—Yes.

26691. How far from the constable was he?—About a yard, that is all.

26692. What did you notice? Did you notice anything about the condition the constable seemed to be in?—He looked terribly wound up, and appeared as if he had had a rough handling. He had a swelling under the left eye, his uniform was damaged, and his whistle was gone.

P.C. W. Death.

19 Dec. 1906.

26693. He seemed as if he had been having a rough time?—Yes.

26694. Did you speak to him or did you look at the man on the ground next?—I spoke to him, and asked him what was the matter, and he said: "I have been assaulted by the man who is lying on the ground and Ginger Norrey, who has run away."

(Mr. Schultess Young.) Is what was said in the insensibility of the prisoner, if I may put it so, evidence?

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) It is not a question of whether it is evidence.

(Chairman.) It would not be evidence in a case inter partes, but in a case of an inquiry of this kind, where we are sifting facts in every direction, it is, I think, receivable.

(Mr. Schultess Young.) Very well, Sir.

26695. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Did you then look at Emms?—I looked to see who it was.

(Chairman.) Besides which, Mr. Schultess Young, for what it is worth, it may be said that Emms was present, and there is some evidence that he was shamming, in which case it would be admissible.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I do not suggest he was shamming.

(Chairman.) No, but there is some evidence before the Commission that he was shamming.

26696. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) (To the Witness.) Did you notice Emms' condition? Was he bleeding?—There was some blood on his head, but I cannot say whether he was bleeding or not. It may have left off.

26697. You noticed the blood on his head?—I noticed a little blood.

26698. Did he seem to be sensible or insensible at the time, or did you not notice sufficiently?—I should say he was shamming, because he spoke.

26699. What did he say?—He said: "If there are any witnesses round here I want them at the police court to-morrow morning."

26700. He said that to you?—He said that to anybody.

26701. What did you do then? Did you go for the ambulance?—I sent for it.

26702. Did you stand there till the ambulance came?—Yes.

26703. I think it was brought by P.C. Wood?—Yes.

26704. I think you and he then took Emms to the station?—Yes.

26705. Did you notice whether Jeffery had got his helmet on or not?—No, because a private individual came to me with his helmet in his hand.

26706. Did the private individual bring the helmet into Sclater Street, where you were?—He brought it to me in Sclater Street.

26707. Then I think you took the man to the station and left him there?—Yes.

26708. And then you were sent off to bring in another woman who had nothing to do with this case, who was drunk?—Yes, that is right.

26709. Then you brought her to the station and took her into the charge room?—Yes.

26710. Was Emms there at that time?—Yes.

26711. And did you remain in the charge room with the woman?—Yes.

26712. Were you there when the Divisional Surgeon came in?—I was.

26713. I think he examined the woman you had in charge and Emms?—Yes.

26714. While you were there?—Yes.

26715. It is suggested that the constable ill-treated Emms while the Divisional Surgeon was there, and put his knee in his stomach to force him into a chair. Is there any truth in that?—No.

26716. Did any woman come into the charge room while you were there to make complaint about the case?—No, only the matron.

26717. She came in to look at the drunken woman?—Yes.

26718. Did you notice Emms when the Divisional Surgeon came in?—Yes.

26719. The constables are here who were looking after him?—Yes.

26719*. You did not help to look after him?—No.

26720. Did they hold him in the chair while the Divisional Surgeon was attending to him?—Yes, he had to be restrained while the Divisional Surgeon attended him.

26721. Was there any unnecessary violence used?—No.

26722. Or did they hold him down or restrain him at all except in the presence of the Divisional Surgeon?—That is all.

26723. He stood by himself till the Divisional Surgeon came in?—Yes.

26724. (Mr. Schultess Young.) Did he not ask for another doctor to be called?—He said he would like a private doctor.

26725. That request was not complied with?—No.

26726. You told us to-day that Emms was shamming, and that he said "If there are any witnesses here, I want them up at the police-court to-morrow morning"?—That is what he said, or words similar.

26727. You gave evidence before the police-court before Mr. Cluer?—Yes, on the remand.

26728. Did you say a single word as regards Emms shamming?—I was only cross-examined on a statement.

26729. Did you say a single word?—I was not asked. I was only cross-examined on a statement.

26730. You did not say this in cross-examination, but you said it in examination in chief. Did you say a single word in cross-examination at the police-court about Emms shamming?—No, I was only cross-examined on a statement.

26731. Did you say a single word in your examination about Emms making a statement that if anybody was there he wanted them at the police-court to-morrow morning?—No.

26732. Until the remarks that fell from the learned President in this court, you never said a word about Emms shamming?—No.

26733. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) The question about shamming arose in this way: Somebody asked Jeffery whether it was necessary to take him on the ambulance. But you saw Emms lying there?—Yes.

26734. And he had got his eyes open, and he spoke?—Yes.

26735. He was not pretending to do anything. He was simply lying there with a bad head?—That is all.

26736. (Chairman.) Where was he lying when you came up?—On the ground, against the fence, in Pedley Street.

26737. Was he lying flat on the ground?—Yes, at full length.

26738. Was his head on the ground?—Yes.

26739. On the pavement?—Yes.

26740. Did you examine him at all?—I had a look at him. It was not much.

26741. How do you mean you had a look at him—simply that you bent down?—No, I turned his head over to see if he was bleeding.

26742. Then you had an opportunity of seeing the wounds?—There was only a small wound.

26743. Where was it?—There was one at the back of the head and a small one on the forehead.

26744. Did he, when you turned his head, make any remark?—No.

26745. Did he seem in pain?—No.

26746. Not in pain?—No; he did not appear to be in pain.

26747. Did he groan or sigh?—No.

26748. Did he try to get up?—He raised himself up when he asked if there were any witnesses around him.

26749. Did you notice while you were there any other incident?—No.

26750. None at all?—No.

26751. Nobody touched him?—I did not see anybody.

26752. No woman spoke to him?—No.

26753. There were some women near by when you came up?—No, I did not see any.

26754. No women at all?—I did not take particular notice. There were only about five persons there when I got there.

26755. Did you observe anything as to the sex?—I believe they were all Jews, if I remember rightly.

26756. But what sex?—Males.

26757. All male Jews. Did any of them speak to you?—No.

26758. Or you to them?—No.

26759. You are positive of that?—Positive.

26760. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Do you mean you are positive nobody spoke to you?—Yes.

26761. (Chairman.) Are you positive there were no women there at all?—I could not be absolutely certain on that point.

26762. That means that there may have been?—There may have been.

26763. Some, or one or more, of the five persons may have been a woman or women?—Yes.

26764. Did you see any lady raise his head?—No.

26765. In fact, I gather from you that your impression is there were no women there at all?—There may have been; it is eight weeks ago, and I do not recollect now.

26766. I know there may have been?—It was very late.

26767. Am I to understand from that that you are not in a position honestly to pledge your recollection as to whether there was a woman there?—No.

26768. One witness has told us that she raised Emms' head, and said, "Do you know me?" But he made no answer?—I should have seen it if she had done so.

26769. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) That is, while you were there?—That is, while I was there.

26770. (Chairman.) How long was it from the time you were first fetched by the private person to the time when you got to Pedley Street?—I was not many seconds going round. I ran all the way.

26771. You are positive that no such incident took place while you were there?—Not while I was there.

26772. Did Emms speak with an effort, or clearly, when he used the sentence about the witnesses?—In the ordinary way.

26773. You made a report in this case, did you not?—Yes.

26774. When did you make that report?—I believe it was about the 30th October.

26775. As a matter of fact, it is dated the 1st November, and the police-court proceedings were on the 30th October, so it seems that it was after the police-court proceedings that it was made?—Yes.

26776. How came you to make that report?—I was asked to do so.

26777. By whom?—By Station-Sergeant Andrews.

26779. And did you make it at the police-station?—Yes.

26780. Where did you write it out?—In the library.

26781. (Mr. Schultess Young.) We have not seen that report. It has not been supplied to us.

(Chairman.) What time of day did you make the report?—During the night. I was on night duty.

26782. But about what hour?—Between 2 and 4 in the morning, I believe it was.

26782*. That would be between 2 and 4 a.m. on the 1st November, and the police-court proceedings had taken place in the morning?—Yes.

26783. You were at the police-court during the hearing of the case?—Yes.

26784. You yourself gave evidence, I notice?—I was cross-examined on a statement I made.

26785. But you yourself gave evidence?—On the remand.

26786. That was on the 30th October. Did you hear the witnesses called for the defence?—No, I was out of court.

26787. What witnesses did you hear?—Only Station-Sergeant Andrews. He was called after me.

26788. What were you asked to make a report upon? What were the exact words used by the station-sergeant to you?—I believe it was owing to an allegation made by two women saying they were ejected from the station.

26789. My question to you is what the sergeant said to you in ordering you to make the report?—He told me to make a report out of what took place inside the station that night that Emms was brought in.

26790. He told you to make a report of what took place inside the station?—Yes, on the night in question.

26791. Was your report to be limited entirely to what you had seen at the station?—From the time of the arrest.

26792. You were not there at the time of the original arrest, as I understand?—From the time I got to Emms.

26793. Then you were to make a report of what you had observed and knew about the matter from the time that you came upon the scene?—Yes.

26794. That was the effect of what the station sergeant said to you?—Yes.

26795. Did you say in your report anything about Emms raising himself up?—No.

26796. Did you say that Emms spoke while he was on the ground?—No.

26797. That is rather important, is it not? Do not you think that if it was alleged that a constable had used his truncheon too violently, that it is of some importance that it should be known that the person hit spoke a minute or two afterwards?—I did not think it was at the time.

26798. As a matter of fact you do not say one word in your report upon that matter. All that you say is, "I was called to a disturbance in Pedley Street, when I saw the prisoner Emms lying on the pavement. I sent a private individual to Commercial Street Station for a police ambulance, and it was brought to me by P.C. Wood. Together we placed the prisoner upon it, and at once returned to the station." You do not say one single word about your having turned his head and found that the wounds were slight or that he raised himself or that he spoke. How came you to omit such matters as those?—That is chiefly for the information of what occurred inside the station that evening.

26799. That is why I asked you particularly what you were asked to report upon?—That is where I commenced to report.

26800. No; you commenced to report with your coming to the disturbance. Have you any doubt that what the Station-Sergeant Andrews asked you to report upon was the whole of the incidents connected with the arrest of Emms?—That is what I understood him.

26801. That you were to report upon all the incidents connected with the arrest of Emms?—Yes.

26802. How came you to omit so important a thing as the fact that Emms spoke while he was still on the ground, and was so collected that he could think about police court proceedings the following morning?—I did not think of it.

26803. It is important, is it not?—Yes.

26804. Have you been before this Commission during the time the other witnesses were examined last week?—Yes.

26805. You remember the story told by Mrs. Martha Allen, for instance?—Yes.

26806. She did not say one single word before the Police Magistrate about Emms speaking. Are you prepared to definitely pledge your recollection to the fact that Emms did speak then?—Yes.

26807. The point is his saying those words to you while he was on the ground?—Yes; he raised himself and spoke.

26808. He may have spoken while he was in the ambulance? We know, in fact, he spoke when he got to the station?—No, in Pedley Street.

P.C. W. Death.

19 Dec. 1906.

26809. Did you make any note at the time in your notebook about this matter?—No.

26810. None at all?—No.

26811. Have you got your notebook here?—Yes.

26812. Would it apply to the 21st October?—No.

26813. Just show it to me. (Book handed to the learned Chairman.) This is an old book, is it not? I do not find on the first page any month named at all. I see "25th and 29th instant." Then the 1st August, 1906, and the 13th August there is an entry. You told me that you had no entry relating to this matter?—The same one as in my report.

26814. I asked you whether you had any entry of this occurrence in your notebook?—I did not understand you then.

26815. I asked you most distinctly, and you said "No."

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) You asked him if he made a note.

(Chairman.) I think those were my exact words. I asked you did you make a note of the transaction in your book?—I did not understand you.

26816. As a matter of fact there is a very full one?—There is my report in there.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) He says it is a copy of the report.

26817. (Chairman.) Which did you write first—the entry in the notebook or the report?—I believe it was that one in the book.

26818. You do not say anything about Emms speaking, or anything as to his condition. Reading this I should certainly have inferred that Emms was practically unconscious. Let me read you your words: "I at once ran to the place directed, and there, in the entrance to Pedley Street, saw the prisoner Emms lying on the ground; Jeffery was leaning against the fence and appeared dazed and greatly exhausted. His mouth was bleeding, and there was a swelling under the left eye." You gave a very full description of Jeffery's condition—"his whistle and lamp were broken, and his tunic torn; he told me he had been assaulted by the man lying on the ground and a man named Norrey. I asked Jeffery if he could walk to the station, and told him I would see to the prisoner. I then sent for the ambulance, and another police constable conveyed the prisoner, who was suffering from a cut head, to the Commercial Street station, where he was charged." I understand that that note was made after you had been asked to make a report. Is that so?—About the time, yes.

26819. "About the time"? Was it made before or after you had been asked to make a report?—I believe it was before.

26820. Then that note or entry, call it whichever you like—you seem to have thought it was not a note—was made before even you were asked to make your report?—I believe so, Sir. It is dated.

26821. "28—10." Where do you say it is dated?—28th October, where it is initialled.

26822. (Mr. Dickinson.) That is not your writing?—No.

26823. (Chairman.) There is another ambiguity. When you told me it was dated I rather gathered it was dated by you. As a matter of fact the "28—10" applies to the time when it was initialled by your superior officer, does not it?—He received it immediately after I wrote it.

26824. That does not mean that the entry was made on the 28th October?—That is when I made it.

26825. In whose writing are those figures, "28—10"?—Station-Sergeant Anderson.

26826. It looks to me like, "A. W.," or something like that. The next entry is initialled, "A. W." Just look at it again, and see if that is Andrews' writing (handing)?—Yes, those are Station-Sergeant Anderson's initials.

26827. Let us see that there is no mistake at all about this. The incidents occurred on the early morning of the 23rd October?—Yes.

26828. Five days afterwards, that is, on the 28th, and two days before the police court proceedings, you made this entry in your book?—I was asked to do so.

26829. So it was before you had been asked to make the report? I asked you twice?—I was asked to make that report.

26830. I know you were asked to make a report, and you did make a report, in fact, on the 1st November, 1906?—Yes.

26831. You have told me that you were asked to make a report after the police court proceedings had concluded, and you made it between 2 o'clock and 4 o'clock on the morning of the 1st November. That is what you told me?—The other report.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) He means he was asked to make both.

(Chairman.) I do not think you ought to suggest anything to the witness.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I am only anxious to get at the exact facts.

(The Witness.) That report I made two or three days before the other one.

26832. Why?—I was asked to do so.

26833. By whom?—By Station-Sergeant Anderson.

26834. But at that time the prisoner was under remand?—I do not know why. I was directed to do so.

26835. Where did you make this entry or note in the book?—In the charge room.

26836. When?—On the 28th.

26837. About what hour and what time on the 28th?—Between 10 and 11 in the evening.

26838. Is it customary at this police station, or is it customary on the part of Station-Sergeant Anderson to ask you to make reports and enter them in your note-book, between the time of the arrest and the police court proceedings?—It has not occurred to me before.

26839. On the 28th October Emms was under remand?—Yes.

26840. That you knew?—Yes.

26841. You had not, in fact, in your note-book, made any entry at all, up to that time?—This was not my prisoner.

26842. You had not made any entry in your book?—No.

26843. You say the reason you had made no entry in your book was that he was not your prisoner?—No.

26844. You did not take his name and address and say you arrested him, and all that?—No.

26845. I understand that the station sergeant asked you to put a note in your book?—Yes.

26846. Is that a common practice?—It has not occurred to me before.

26847. I suppose this note-book is a book that you refer to when you are giving evidence sometimes, for the purpose of refreshing your recollection?—Sometimes.

26848. Do not you know that, if you are going to use the book for that purpose, you ought to make the entry at once?—I was not going to use it for that purpose.

26849. You were not going to use your note-book for the purpose of making these long entries after the occurrence. Is that what you mean?—Yes.

26850. It was only at the sergeant's request that you put this entry in the note-book?—That is it.

26851. Take that to be the case. I see that you very fully described the police-constable's condition. Why did not you describe Emms' condition more particularly?—I mentioned that he had a cut head.

26852. That is a very fair observation, and it is quite right you did mention that, but you do not say that you examined him and turned round his head and found there were two wounds on the head. You say you thought it was sufficient to say he had a cut head?—Yes.

26853. What I was going to put to you was this, and I put it now. I have read this note to you, and I will not trouble to read it again, but would you think it was a wrong inference on my part if I inferred from that note that Emms was unconscious all the time? Just read it through again yourself. Do not you think that the casual reader, or the ordinary reader, going over that would have inferred that Emms was unconscious all the time, was lifted, and put on the ambulance and never spoke at all?—He might walk, for all I know. He was not seriously injured.

26854. I know you say that now, but reading the account given in this note-book, I should think that many people would infer that Emms had been so seriously cut about the head that he could not walk, and he did not speak?—From the report?

26855. That is what I say. That we are agreed upon.

(Mr. Schultess Young.) May I call your attention, with great respect, to the evidence the witness gave—"I tried to pull him up, but he could not get up?"

(Chairman.) That was at the police court.

(Mr. Schultess Young.) Yes.

26856. (Chairman.) I have asked you about the report, and we have got your answer. I now call your attention to the fact that you told the Police Magistrate, "I tried to pull him up, but he could not get up." Did you say that to the Magistrate?—I do not recollect it.

26857. The Clerk was taking down your evidence as usual?—Is that my deposition?

26858. Yes.—I do not recollect saying such a thing.

26859. (Mr. Schultess Young.) I have it on my notes also, which were taken independently of the Clerk's notes at the time.

(The Witness.) I did not give any evidence.

26860. (Chairman.) You did not give any evidence?—On the remand I was cross-examined on a statement; that is all.

26861. Then, your recollection is faulty, because, according to the note of the Clerk of the Court, you deposed as follows, in chief:—"At 12.30 a.m. on 23rd October, I was at Sclater Street, and received information from a private person, who had a police-constable helmet in his hand. I went to Brick Lane, and at the entrance to Pedley Street I saw Emms lying on the pavement. The police-constable was about three yards away, leaning against a fence, appearing dazed and exhausted; his left eye was swollen, mouth bleeding, his whistle gone and lamp broken"—that is exactly what you have put in the note-book, and what you have consistently told us—"Emms seemed injured, so I sent for the ambulance"—not a word about your having turned round his head and examined the two blows yourself—"I tried to pull him up, but he could not get up." Did you say that?—I may have done.

26862. The clerk took it down, and the clerk had no interest in taking down anything that you did not say. You do not suggest that, do you?—No.

26863. That is what you told the magistrate. How do you reconcile that statement with what you have told us to-day as being your recollection?—You do not always recollect all that occurs at a time like that.

26864. That I entirely agree. No man can recollect all that occurs. What the honest witness does is to report, according to the best of his recollection, the things that struck him, but here you see at the police court either you volunteered this statement, or you were asked this question: "I tried to pull him up, but he could not get up"?—He raised himself up when he spoke, too.

26865. That is what you tell us to-day. That is inconsistent with what you said to the police magistrate—at least, I put it to you that it is—"I tried to pull him up, but he could not get up"?—He may have swooned away and fainted, for all I know.

26866. After he had spoken, you mean?—Yes, or before.

26867. You are inclined to think now that you did try to pull him up?—I may have done.

26868. But what is your recollection? If you do not recollect you had better say so?—I cannot swear that I did pull him up.

26869. Are you positive that he did speak?—I am positive.

26870. And did raise himself up?—Yes.

26871. Why are you so positive about the one, and so uncertain about the other?—I do not know.

26872. Is your recollection very fresh about the matter? If you will say to us candidly that your recollection is not very fresh, and that you have to rely on the note that you made in the book, I should not ask you any more questions?—My recollection is all right.

26873. Which recollection? Do you say that you did try to pull him up, but he could not get up, and yet that he did raise himself and did speak?—He did raise himself up.

26874. He did raise himself up?—Yes.

26875. That is the best explanation you can give of the discrepancy or inconsistency between your statement to the police magistrate and your statement to-day. You will not put it on your recollection?—I think I have told you all I know and saw of what took place.

(Chairman.) I do not think it is worth while pursuing it any further.

26876. (Mr. Dickinson.) I want to understand a little more clearly how these notes come to be in this book. You told the learned Chairman that Station Sergeant Anderson asked you to put this note in your note book?—Yes.

26877. Did he specially say that you were to put it in your note book?—Yes, he asked me to make an entry of it in my note book.

26878. Did he give you any reason for that at all?—No, I never asked him.

26879. What did he say to you exactly?—"Report on what you know about last week's affair."

26880. In the ordinary course there would have been an order for you to write it down on a separate piece of paper?—He told me to put it in my note book.

26881. Why did you do so?—He asked me to do so.

26882. Has what you have written in this book ever been copied out into a formal report?—It may have been put in the Occurrence Book. I do not know.

26883. (Chairman.) Do you mean that answer?

26883.* (Mr. Dickinson.) You say it may have been put in the Occurrence Book?—I expect it is in the Occurrence Book.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I will call the sergeant.

26884. (Mr. Dickinson.) You were asked on the 1st November to make a report?—Yes.

26885. On that occasion you were asked to make an ordinary report on another piece of paper?—Yes.

26886. You did not put that in the book?—No, I had already an entry of it. There are two reports similar.

26887. This report was drawn up by you on the 1st November in which you say the report is chiefly with reference to the question of the women coming to the station?—This is the report of the occurrence.

26888. This report was drawn up after instructions by the sergeant to you to draw up a report?—Yes.

26889. That is to say, pointing out what you knew about the women coming there?—Yes.

26890. In order to do that you drew up a formal report, and that report was handed in to the proper quarter?—Yes.

26891. You did not draw up a report at that time in connection with the occurrence?—No, I reported the occurrence there in the book.

26892. And you say you do not ever remember being asked to take that course before?—No.

26893. When the station sergeant said, "Write it down in your note book," did it occur to you as being an unusual thing?—No.

26894. What did you understand he wanted when you had not had to do it before?—He asked me to report on the occurrence, and I did so. I did not ask him why.

26895. If he had asked you to report the occurrence I suppose you would have sat down in the library at the police station and made out your report?—Yes. He told me to put it into the book.

26896. He gave you no reason for asking you to put it into the book?—No.

26897. After you had put it in the book would the station sergeant initial it?—Yes.

26898. How soon after you had written it out?—Immediately.

26899. Do you think it may be in the Occurrence Book?—It should be.

26900. All the reports are put in that?—Yes.

(Chairman.) I understand, so far as the Occurrence

P.C. W. Death.

19 Dec. 1906.

Book is concerned, it is a book that records occurrences at the police station.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Yes. I think I can give an explanation, if I am not interrupting.

(Mr. Dickinson.) No. We had better have it now.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Emms was brought up before the magistrate and remanded. Then, I think, legal aid was asked for and allowed. Then the statements of the witnesses had to be taken and supplied to the solicitor. It appears that the station sergeant asked this man for his statement, to put it in the book, and a copy of what appears in this book was supplied to the solicitor.

(Mr. Dickinson.) I see that.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) That is how it came into existence. The man did not know the purpose for which he was asked to do it, but, as a matter of fact, it was to give a proof to the solicitor.

(Mr. Dickinson.) We shall want to know why he says it was written in the book. It appears to me that that book is a very important document, and it ought to record the voluntary statements of fact after they occur.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I quite agree, but you will see in this particular case the fact of the sergeant initialling this as on the 28th would show that it was not a contemporaneous report of what happened. It may be the book has been used not for the usual or ordinary purpose, but it cannot be suggested that there was anything improper or that they were endeavouring to make a contemporaneous report, because of the date which clearly shows its origin.

(Chairman.) That is a matter of argument. We shall hear what the sergeant has to say about it. The point is about the Occurrence Book. I do not know how this could be in the Occurrence Book.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) We will try and clear that up.

26901. (Mr. Dickinson.) You told us you were in Sclater Street?—Yes.

26902. Where were you in Sclater Street?—On the north side of Sclater Street.

26903. How far from Brick Lane?—100 yards.

26904. 100 yards down Sclater Street?—Yes.

26905. You say a man came to you?—Yes.

26906. How did that man come?—I expect he was going to the point; there is a point a little further up Brick Lane, and he saw me first, and he came to me.

26907. A man was going to the point and he saw you down the street?—Yes.

26908. Was he running?—He was running with a policeman's helmet in his hand.

26909. Did he go back with you?—He went back. I went on in front.

26910. You do not know who he was?—No.

26911. Did you take the helmet?—No.

26912. How did the helmet get back to the constable?—I expect the gentleman gave it back to him, or it was sent to the station, perhaps. I do not know how he recovered it.

26913. This gentleman must have got back after you?—After me.

26914. You did not see him?—No.

26915. Do you know Emms?—Yes.

26916. You knew him when you saw him?—Yes.

26917. Do you remember saying to him: "I did not know it was you; I thought it was one of our men"?—No, I did not speak to him at all.

26918. Two other police-constables came up, did they not?—Yes.

26919. Wood and Payne?—Yes.

26920. How did you get Emms on to the ambulance?—Lifted him on.

26921. Did you all three help to lift him?—No.

26922. Who lifted him?—Wood and I.

26923. There is no doubt that then he was unconscious?—No. We thought it was the quickest way of getting him to the station.

26924. You would hardly put a man on an ambulance if he was able to walk?—A very hostile crowd began to gather.

26925. Then, when this happened, there were more than five people there?—Yes, a crowd began to gather.

26926. How many people do you think there were?—A fairly large crowd before we got the prisoner away.

26927. 30 or 40?—Perhaps more than that.

26928. Do you know Norrey?—Yes.

26929. Do you know him by sight?—Yes.

26930. And I suppose you know where he lives?—No.

26931. You have known him for some years, I suppose. You have been there for two or three years, have you not?—Very nearly three years.

26932. Did you hear any police whistle?—No.

26933. Did you whistle yourself?—No.

26934. You were running to rescue the police-constable. That was the thought that was in your mind?—That was in my mind.

26935. Why did you not whistle?—I wanted to see what really was the matter. It was not necessary when I got there.

26936. You are sure you did not blow your whistle?—Yes.

26937. I suppose a police whistle is very loud?—Yes.

26938. You say there was a crowd round you before the ambulance came?—Yes, a crowd began to gather.

26939. How long did you have to wait for the ambulance?—Perhaps about 10 minutes.

26940. In that time the crowd gathered?—Yes, began to gather.

26941. All that time Emms was on the ground?—Yes.

26942. Was Jeffery there the whole time?—Yes.

26943. Until you went away?—Until I went away.

26944. When did the Inspector arrive?—I saw him there before I went away. He stopped and helped to clear the crowd away.

(Mr. Schultess Young.) Will you allow me to ask the witness whether he did not say before the Police Magistrate, "I was present when the Divisional Surgeon examined him? He said, 'I don't want to see a doctor.' That was all"?

(Chairman.) Yes.

26945. (Mr. Schultess Young.) Did you not say before the Police Magistrate, "He said. 'I don't want to see a doctor.' That was all." To-day you tell us he asked to see a private doctor. Which is correct?—He said that, and also that he would not have our doctor—he would go before the Magistrate as he was.

26946. You say here, "He said 'I don't want to see a doctor.' That was all." Was it something more than that, do you think?—He said he would go before the Magistrate as he was.

26947. I ask you what you said before the Magistrate and not what you are telling us now. Did you say before the Magistrate, "He said, 'I don't want to see a doctor.' That was all." Is that correct or not. Was there anything more said?—I do not recollect anything more.

Police-constable ERNEST PAYNE, 285 H. sworn.

P.C. E. Payne.

26948. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Are you a police-constable at Commercial Street Police Station?—Yes.

26949. Were you called to Pedley Street, Brick Lane, by some private person, whom you did not know?—Yes.

26950. Where were you at the time?—In Hanbury Street.

26951. How far off is that from this particular place?—About 200 yards.

26952. Did you hasten to the place?—Yes.

26953. Did you hear any whistle blown?—No.

26954. Did you get there before Death or after Death?—After Death.

26955. At that time was Emms lying on the ground?—Yes.

26956. At that time were there a number of people collected there?—I should think there were about a dozen.

26957. When you first got up. Is that so?—Yes.

26958. Had the ambulance been sent for when you got there?—It arrived at the same time.

26959. You arrived at the same time as the ambulance?—Yes.

26960. Immediately after the ambulance arrived was Emms picked up and put upon it?—Yes.

26961. Then I think you accompanied it to the station?—I did; I pushed it.

26962. When you got to the station, what did you do?—I heard Jeffery say to the station sergeant "Ginger Norrey is the man we want besides this one we have here." I said to the station sergeant "I know him." He said "Go and see if you can find him." I went out immediately, but I saw nothing of him, and did not return to the station till six o'clock.

26963. I think you did not return again until six o'clock in the morning?—No.

26964. Were you in the charge room at all with Emms. Were you there a little time with him?—Yes, possibly two minutes at the most.

26965. Were you holding him or assisting to hold him in the chair?—Not after we once put him in the chair.

26966. You helped to put him in the chair?—Yes, certainly.

26967. After that did you hold him or touch him at all?—No. I was out of the station immediately.

26968. I think you are the man whom he identified as having said "You dirty bastard, I will murder you," or something of that sort?—Yes, he did say that.

26969. I think you are the man he identified as having put your knee into his stomach?—I do not think so. I think that was another man.

26970. Is it a fact that you spoke to him at all?—No, nothing out of the way.

26971. That you spoke to him at all?—No, nothing out of the way.

26972. Did you say anything like that to him?—No, not at all.

26973. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) Did Emms say anything when you arrived with the ambulance?—I had not time to hear him say anything. He was practically on the ambulance when I got there.

26974. Did you put him on the ambulance?—No—just put a strap on him. That is all.

26975. He could not be put on the ambulance until it arrived?—The ambulance arrived with me.

26976. You arrived just at the same time?—Yes.

26977. Did you help to put him on the ambulance?—You could not call it "help." I was there, and when the ambulance came I put the strap over him, and away I went with him.

26978. Did you see any signs of shamming?—I could not possibly say. I thought the man was apparently unconscious when I saw him lifted up, but he had plenty of life in him at the station.

26979. Did he show any signs of shamming when he was put on the ambulance?—I could not say. I should not like to answer that question.

26980. Why should you not like to answer that question?—Because I should not.

(Chairman.) The witness has said "I should think he was unconscious." You have got what you want.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I think so.

P.C. E. Payne.

19 Dec. 1906.

26981. You did not give evidence at the police court?—No.

26982. There is nothing else you can tell me about it?—No.

26983. (Mr. Dickinson.) When you went with the ambulance to the station the station sergeant said "You must go and find Norrey"?—To go and find Norrey if I could.

26984. And you went?—Yes.

26985. Where did you go?—Down Brick Lane, Bacon Street and Gibraltar Buildings—just the spot where he hangs about.

26986. Did you not know where he lived?—No, I did not know where he lived then.

26987. You knew him?—Yes.

26988. When you know these men who are criminals do you not know where they live?—I knew where Harding lived and where Emms lived.

26989. But you did not know where Norrey lived?—I knew he lived in the J Division, the Division adjoining ours, but I could not say where.

26990. You would hardly expect to find him out in the streets immediately after the occurrence?—There was a possibility if I left the station immediately.

26991. You walked about the streets and tried to find him?—Yes.

26992. Do you know the addresses of these well-known men?—I could take you to Harding's place, and I could take you to Emms' place.

26993. Now you could take me to Norrey's place?—No, I could not. I have heard the name of the street, but I could not take you to it.

26994. After that day you were looking out for Norrey?—Yes, we were looking after him.

26995. You were all after him until the Saturday?—Yes.

26996. What do you mean by saying you were all after him?—We knew he was wanted, and, of course, we were all looking for him.

26997. Do you mean to tell me that the police cannot find a man who is known to them in this way?—Not always, I expect.

26998. It is said that he was one of Harding's gang?—I believe he left Harding's gang; in fact, I know he did. I was out all day looking for him, and I could not find him.

26999. You were looking out for him every day?—Yes.

27000. But he kept out of your sight?—Yes.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) He was advertised for amongst people who were wanted.

(Mr. Dickinson.) I should very much like to know how it is that when a man is clearly known as a bad character and is always about, it is not known to the police where he lives.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) Ward said he knew him very well and knew all about him.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) You shall have such information as we have got. If anybody knows where he lives, that is one thing, but we must find out whether anyone did know.

27001. (Chairman.) What division do you belong to?—H.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Commercial Street Police Station.

27002. (Chairman.) Does Jeffery belong to the H Division, too?—Yes.

P.C. John Wood (422 H), sworn.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) This witness is only material on the question about the women having alleged that they were assaulted at the police station. I was not here myself at the time the witness was examined, but I was given to understand that she did not persist in the statement. Of course, if the Commissioners desire to hear the evidence we can give it.

(Chairman.) I think we ought to hear the evidence. Mrs. Martha Allen's statement was quite different to that which she had given at the police court, and it created a different impression in our minds.

P.C. J. Wood.

27003. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I think on the night of the 22nd October you were on reserve duty at the station, were you?—Yes.

P.C. J. Wood.

19 Dec. 1906.

27004. I think you were sent with the ambulance to Pedley Street?—Yes.

27005. You are one of the men who helped to lift him into the ambulance, are you not?—Yes.

27006. Did you notice anything special about his condition. Did he seem to you at that time to be conscious or unconscious?—He was certainly not unconscious.

27007. He was lying on the ground at the time you and the other man lifted him in?—Yes.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I do not know what the materiality of this point is. In this particular case the point is not whether the constable gave too severe a blow, because, if Emms is right, he never ought to have hit him at all.

(Chairman.) Quite so.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) The exact extent to which Emms was injured is not material, because he never ought to have been hit at all, if his story is right.

(Chairman.) Quite so; and we have Dr. Clark's account.

27008. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I think you brought Emms to the station on the ambulance?—Yes.

27009. After that you were directed to remain at the door?—Yes, but I was only there a minute.

27010. White went for the Divisional Surgeon?—Yes.

27011. Then you remained at the door some two or three minutes, I think?—No, I went away immediately for the matron.

27012. After that I think Death brought in a drunken woman?—Yes, the woman was there almost at the same time.

27013. Then you went to fetch the matron?—Yes.

27014. After you had fetched the matron did you remain at the door till P.C. White returned?—Yes.

27015. Did all that take but a few minutes?—Yes. The matron only lives about 30 yards down the street.

27016. After you had fetched the matron, and P.C. White had returned, did you then go and help with the prisoner Emms?—Yes.

27017. That would be in the charge room?—Yes.

27018. After you had finished with Emms where did you go?—I remained on duty at the station.

27019. During any portion of this time did any women came to the station to speak about this case, and is it true that any women were pushed down?—It is not true that any women were pushed down.

27020. Chairman.) Did any women come about the case?—Women came there before.

27021. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I am speaking merely of the time after Emms was brought in?—No.

27022. I am not asking whether women came at any other time, but did any women come about Emms' case after Emms had been brought to the station?—I did not see any.

27023. Were any women ejected from the station at any time during that night?—No.

27024. Just a question as to what was done to Emms. Did you assist in looking after Emms before the Divisional Surgeon came into the charge room or not?—No, not before.

27025. You were assisting whilst the Divisional Surgeon was there?—Yes.

27026. In what way did you assist?—Merely standing by him as he sat in the chair.

27027. And doing anything? Was he held?—Just took hold of his shoulder and steadied his head for the doctor to clip the hair away.

27028. You were rendering such assistance as the doctor required?—Yes.

27029. Was any violence used to Emms?—None whatever. Of course, he was placed in the chair by P.C. 420 and myself, because he got out and refused aid of any description.

27030. You placed him in the chair. Just describe how you did it?—I got hold of his shoulder at the back and Hawker pressed him from the front—just put him into the chair quite gently.

27031. Was that in the presence of the Divisional Surgeon?—Yes.

27032. Was he standing quite close to you at the time?—Quite close to us.

27033. (Mr. Schultess Young.) Emms did not want to sit in the chair, I understand?—He did not sit in the chair the whole time. He got up and walked about.

27034. You had put him in the chair?—When the doctor arrived, yes.

27035. He did not want to go in the chair?—He was in the chair and he got out of it.

27036. He did not want to sit in it?—No, he did not.

27037. So you, by gentle means, put him back in the chair?—Yes, we did. It did not take much trouble with the two of us.

27038. The other officer who was helping pushed him in the front?—Yes, just put his hand on him.

27039. Were you present when the ambulance came up?—I took the ambulance to the scene of the occurrence.

27040. You are sure that Emms was not unconscious?—I am quite certain of it.

27041. Let us know why?—Because he raised himself on his arm and said, "Have I any witnesses in the crowd?"

27042. Do you not think that is a very important statement?—Yes, it is.

27043. Were you present in court when the evidence was given?—I have not been to the police court at all.

27044. You thought it a very important statement?—Yes.

27045. Why did you not go to the police court and give evidence?—I was not a witness in the case at all.

27046. Why were you not?—I was not put on the sheet as a witness.

27047. You say it is a very important statement?—No doubt it is.

27048. Did you report that statement?—No, it was not necessary.

27049. I do not want any comment, if you please. Let the learned Commissioners comment if they like. Answer the questions. Did you report that statement?—No.

27050. Were you asked to make any report of the occurrence?—Of the occurrence?

27051. What you knew about it?—No.

27052. You were not asked by anybody?—Not until—I do not know the date, but the 30th, I believe—after all the police court proceedings were over.

27053. Where is that report?—I do not know where it is now.

(Mr. Schultess Young.) May I see it?

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) We do not produce it.

(Chairman.) I have the report, and I will cross-examine on it if I think it necessary. He says he did not report it, and it is quite right that he did not report it.

27054. (Mr. Schultess Young.) You did not report it at any time?—No, not at all.

27055. Although you say it was a very important statement?—My report was "Re women alleged to have been thrown from the station."

27056. You say now Emms was not unconscious?—He was not unconscious.

27057. Because he spoke?—Because he spoke, because he raised himself on his arm, and because he was speaking all the way to the station.

27058. Whatever he was doing he was not shamming then?—He was lying still to gain the sympathy of the crowd, no doubt.

27059. He raised himself, as you have told us, and he made the remark—do you mind repeating it?—"Have I any witnesses in the crowd?"

27060. To ask them to go to the police court next morning?—Yes.

27061. You think it would be very wrong for Death to say he could not get up?—I cannot understand

Death saying that. He was there 12 to 13 minutes before I was. He was there almost immediately. It is 8 minutes' walk from Pedley Street to Commercial Street station.

27062. Did you try to get Emms up?—Yes, I raised him on to the ambulance quite easily. He stood on his feet and sat on the ambulance, and we lifted his legs in.

27063. You cannot in any way explain why Death should say, "I tried to pull him up, but he could not get up"?—That was before I arrived.

27064. "I and P.C. Wood took Emms to the station on the ambulance"?—Yes, there were four of us going to the station with the ambulance.

27065. Did you see Kemp there, who gave evidence at the police court?—No, I did not. There was only one who gave evidence here that I saw there.

27066. How many were present when you were there?—About 40.

27067. There were about 40 people when you came up?—Yes.

27068. Who was the person you saw?—Mrs. Bloom. She has given evidence here.

27069. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) She gave evidence, did she not?—Yes, she gave evidence at the court, I believe. She gave evidence here; I recognise her as being there that night.

27070. Have you, or anybody, seen Mrs. Bloom, so far as you know, since the last occasion when she gave evidence at the police court?—I have not seen her until I saw her here.

27071. Do you know if anybody has?—No

27072. You have not heard that anybody has?—No, I have not heard.

27073. I suppose you made your report after the police court proceedings?—Yes, the next day, after the report in the papers.

27074. When the result of the police court was known?—I did not know all that was said at the police court; I only knew what was in the "Daily Telegraph" and in the "Daily Mail."

27075. You read it all?—No, I did not. It is very brief in the "Daily Mail."

27076. Who asked you to make a report?—Station-Sergeant Anderson.

27077. You did not think then it was worth while saying that Emms was quite conscious and was got up?—You know what my report is referring to.

27078. I do not know what it is referring to?—It is re women alleged to have been thrown from the police station—down the steps of it.

27079. Were you not expected to make a report as to what you knew of the whole of the circumstances?—No, not at all. I had nothing to do with the case—simply the women—because I was on reserve duty, and therefore if the women were thrown from the station it is quite possible they were thrown by me.

27080. Surely it is necessary for you to give the authorities information as to what you knew from the first, is it not?—On the subject of the report that is called for.

27081. On the subject of all you knew about the case?—That is the case of women alleged to have been thrown from the police station.

27082. Forget that for a moment. Is it not your duty to make a statement in some form or other as to what you know about the case. Have you a note-book?—Yes, I have.

27083. Have you a note in that?—No, none whatever. I was called on to report because of the report in the papers. I do not know whether that is the report that contained the paragraph saying that women went to the station and were thrown from it.

27084. Yes, but it says a good deal besides that?—I was only to report on that part that refers to the women alleged to have been thrown from the station.

27085. Were you specially told not to report on anything but that?—Not to report on anything but that?

27086. Were you specially told not to report on anything but what occurred to these women?—No, certainly not.

27087. Then, why did you not report the whole of the circumstances as you knew them?—I did report the whole of the circumstances as I knew them.

27088. From the first?—I answered the report that I was called to answer.

27089. You now tell us that these circumstances were of great importance?—But it is not important when the proceedings are over.

27090. Are they not?—I do not think so.

27091. What was the report made for at all?—What report?

27092. The report you made after the proceedings were over?—Because the report contained a paragraph saying that women attended the station connected with the case and were not seen, and were thrown from the station.

27093. I know, but it said a great deal more than that. It said that the man was not unconscious?—But I had nothing to do with it. I only took the ambulance there.

27094. But you know the man was not unconscious, according to your story to-day, when you took the ambulance?—Yes, I knew he was not unconscious.

27095. Trying to gain the sympathy of the crowd?—Yes, trying to gain the sympathy of the crowd.

27096. Death told us that in his opinion the man was unconscious?—I cannot understand him saying that. I understand he was there at least 13 minutes before I was.

27097. I am talking about the one who gave evidence just now—Payne. He said that, in his opinion, the man was unconscious?—His opinion is different to mine.

27098. You thought it was not necessary for you at any time to report to the station that the man was only shamming to get the sympathy of the crowd?—Yes, and so I did think so. I was not asked to report on it.

27099. Cannot we get away from this red tape, as to your not being asked to make a report?—If I had been asked to make a report from the time of taking the ambulance I should have done it; but when I make a report I do not want to report on anything that is not wanted.

27100. Did you come back to the station and inform your superiors of what you say is of importance?—I took the man to the station.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) It is no use going on with it.

(Chairman.) The witness is quite right in his statement. According to the written report he made, the report was only called for "re women alleged to have been thrown down the steps of the station."

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I was trying to get at the fact, before he made a report at all in his note-book, or, at any rate to his superiors at the station, why he did not make the statement that he has told us to-day, which he says was of great importance?

(The Witness.) It was apparent.

(Chairman.) You may attach importance to it: "About 12.35 a.m. 23rd, I was sent by Station-Sergeant Anderson with the ambulance to Pedley Street, where a man had been injured. After bringing him to the station I was directed to remain on the door whilst Police-constable 225 H White went for the Divisional Surgeon." Then, he proceeds to state what he told Mr. Eldon Bankes to-day, in effect.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I am asking, if he knows anything either for or against the prisoner, when he comes back to the station, why he did not make some report of it in his note-book, or in some other way?

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) It is not for or against him.

(Chairman.) It is "re women alleged to have been thrown down the steps of the station."

27101. The question put to you is why you did not say you thought the man you put in the ambulance was not unconscious, but that he was trying to get the sympathy of the crowd?—That is my opinion of it.

27102. I know, but the question Mr. Schultess-Young has been putting to you is why did you not say that in your report or in your note-book, or anywhere, at the station?—I do not see where I was to bring it in at all. I was not in the case. I had not assaulted the man, and I had not witnessed it. I simply took the ambulance, which the reserve man does. If the case had been further remanded, perhaps I should have had to give evidence. If Emms had said he was unconscious and persisted in it, and Jeffery said he was not unconscious, then, perhaps, I should have been called.

27103. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) If you had informed your superiors at the station what you have told us to-day, do you not now think you would have been called at the police court?—I do not think so.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) The question of Emms' actual condition, whether he was conscious or unconscious, has never been raised until it was raised on the last occasion before the Commissioners.

27104. There was no question about his actual state at the station?—No.

27105. The doctor examined him and he gave evidence?—Yes.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) That is what I say. At the police court there was no question about it.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) No, but then, why should he be called?

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) It was never denied at the police court, and it has never been denied until to-day.

(Chairman.) We have the notes of the evidence, and we have, I think it is the "Daily Telegraph" report, so that we pretty well know what did take place at the police court.

27106. I just want to find out a little more clearly what your recollection is as to the position of things when you arrived with the ambulance. Where was Emms when you arrived with the ambulance?—Emms was on the ground, about 4 or 5 yards down Pedley Street, raised on his elbow.

27107. When you say he was raised on his elbow, do you mean artificially raised on his elbow, or supporting himself on his elbow?—Supporting himself.

27108. Then you helped to lift him into the ambulance?—Yes.

27109. Did he speak at all while you were lifting him into the ambulance?—Actually while we were lifting him?

27110. Yes, actually during that time?—I do not think he spoke then. He spoke before we lifted him.

27111. You arrived with the ambulance, and you say he was then resting on his elbow?—His head clear of the ground and his eyes open.

27112. You are positive of all this?—Quite positive.

27113. That does not quite agree with the account given to us by P.C. Jeffery?—Jeffery was not taking much notice. He walked on in front of the ambulance. There was a crowd of about 40 people when I got there, all pressing forward.

27114. Was there blood on the pavement?—I did not notice blood on the pavement. I suppose there would be, for the blood was all in his hat.

27115. There was nothing when you arrived there which would enable you to form a judgment as to how long the man had been on the ground?—Nothing at all.

27116. It might have been 5 minutes or it might have been 10 minutes?—I should say it must have been 12 or 13 minutes, because they had to send to the station for the ambulance, and Payne was out of breath, and I ran nearly all the way with the ambulance.

27117. How long did it take to bring the ambulance?—I suppose about 5 minutes.

27118. Then you think Emms had been lying for at least 10 minutes on the pavement?—Thirteen minutes, quite.

27119. At least 10 minutes?—At least 10 minutes.

27120. Did you see any woman speak to him?—I saw Mrs. Bloom there, but I did not see any woman speak to him.

27121. Were there other women there at that time?—Yes. There were women at the back of the crowd, but I could not say how many.

27122. The phrase you use in your report is: "I was sent by Station-Sergeant Anderson with the ambulance to Pedley Street, where a man had been injured." That is rather an ambiguous way of stating it?—The Jew that came into the station said there was a policeman being murdered.

27123. "I was sent by Station-Sergeant Anderson with the ambulance to Pedley Street, where a man had been injured." You did think it necessary in reporting to say that you were sent by Station-Sergeant Anderson to Pedley Street. Why did you think it necessary to insert that?—That I went with the ambulance to Pedley Street?

27124. Yes?—Because it is quite possible, in my absence, that women might have been to the station. That is to explain my absence from the station.

27125. Your point is that you were on duty at the station, and that your report is therefore bound to account for every movement of your time?—That is right, and to show that there were no women thrown from the station whilst I was there.

27126. Supposing that to be the case, still the phrase "Where a man had been injured" is not quite what one would have put in in the light of what you have now told me?—When the ambulance is required in the street the officer on duty always wants to know what it is required for, so I say where I joined it. The ambulance might have gone out two or three times that night, and then it might be queried which occasion was that?

27127. It may be quite a proper course that you took, but what strikes me here is that this is consistent with the man being injured by falling down from a scaffolding, or anything of that sort?—Yes.

27128. It does not explain it?—No, it does not explain anything whatever.

27129. You have told us, I think, that Emms had to be put in the chair by force?—Yes.

27130. I am not suggesting unnecessary force for my present purpose, but he had to be forced into the chair?—Yes, he was placed in the chair.

27131. For what purpose?—For the purpose of the doctor dressing his wounds.

27132. Was he objecting to have his wounds dressed?—He did decidedly object. He said, "I want to go before the Magistrate as I am." I said, "You cannot go before the Magistrate as you are; you must have your wounds dressed."

27133. Who told you to make that statement to him? What superior officer was present?—The doctor wanted to dress his wounds, and we had to see that he was in the chair. It was necessary for him to be put in the chair, under the light.

27134. Your view is that he was bound to be put in the chair for the purpose of being examined by the doctor, and having his head dressed by the doctor?—Yes.

27135. And it was for that reason that you used the force that was necessary to put him into the chair?—Yes.

27136. Why was he bound to have his wounds attended to? Who told you to use force?—No one told us to use force to place him in the chair, but we knew he had to have his wounds dressed, and we know that all prisoners have their wounds dressed. It is no uncommon occurrence at Commercial Street Police Station to hold a prisoner in the chair to have his wounds dressed.

27137. I do not find that in the White Book. The paragraph in the White Book is this: "If prisoners are insensible from drink or any other cause, or appear to be ill or injured in any way, although they do not complain, the Divisional Surgeon is to be sent for immediately"?—Yes; that course was followed.

27138. We know that that course was followed in this case?—Yes.

27139. "This duty is imperative in all cases where a prisoner appears to be ill, whether or not he has been recently under medical or surgical treatment at a hospital or elsewhere." I do not find any direction that the man is to be medically attended whether he likes it or not.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) It is difficult, perhaps, but people would be thought to be very inhuman if a man's wounds required dressing and it was not done.

(Chairman.) I am not even suggesting that there was blame on the part of the police. I want to know what, according to this constable's view, the exact facts were.

27140. This was clearly a case, was it, in which Emms, who had been knocked on the head, as we know, refused to be treated by the Divisional Surgeon?—He did refuse.

27141. You were acting under the orders of the Divisional Surgeon?—Yes. The Divisional Surgeon was there ready to dress his wounds.

27142. Who else was present?—P.C. 420.

27143. Was not Sergeant Anderson there?—He was in the office.

27144. Did the Divisional Surgeon actually order you to put Emms in the chair?—No. We put him there before.

27145. Then you acted on your own initiative?—On our own.

27146. You say that is the practice?—Yes, we have them attended to.

27147. Even if they do not want the benefit of surgical attendance?—There would be a loud outcry if we put them away bleeding, and they died in the cell or something of that sort.

27148. I daresay there would be a loud outcry. I will not read you the paragraph in the White Book again. I daresay we shall have some of your superior officers called who may be able to throw a little more light on it. I only want to have the facts clearly from you, so that there may be no mistake about it. Emms was definitely refusing to be examined by the Divisional Surgeon?—Yes.

27149. You then think you had the right to put him into the chair, and hold him there while the surgeon was doing his duty?—Yes, I thought I was doing my duty.

27150. (Mr. Dickinson) How far can you say that no women did come to the station? After Emms had been brought in you did go away?—Yes. I had to be away for about five minutes.

27151. You went to fetch the matron?—Yes, who lives about thirty yards down the street.

27152. At that time Emms was not in the chair?—Yes, he was in the chair, but he got out of the chair before the doctor arrived. I could see him from the door.

27153. Of course, you have heard the evidence given by the woman who was here that she saw Emms in the chair?—She said she saw him.

27154. You were not there for five minutes?—No. It is not inconsistent with what I am saying.

27155. I want to ask you something about the way in which you keep these books. I see here between the 12th September and the 10th November there is no entry at all in that book. What do you think is your duty to put down in the book?—Occurrences of any description, taking names and addresses, collisions, fires.

27156. As far as I can make out, it occurs about once a month?—Not once a month always. If you are at some points you get a collision every day, or if you are in a rough neighbourhood you will have two or three alleged assaults.

27157. How is it that from the 12th September to the 10th November there is no entry at all in the book?—In October I was on reserve duty at the station.

27158. That would account for a month?—Yes.

27159. Then going back I find there is one in August, and the one before that I find is the 29th July?—They are all dated.

27160. Yes. These are very well kept. Then there are three or four in July?—Yes.

27161. On this occasion you have told us what was said to you, that there was a policeman being murdered?—Yes, the Jew said that.

27162. If there was a case which might have been a murder case—why do you not make an entry in a case like that?—In that case the man would be charged. There is no need whatever for me to make an entry in my book.

27163. Any entry you made that evening might be of immense value supposing it had been a case of murder?—Yes, if it had been a case of murder, but even then I was not the officer who had the case in hand.

P.C. J. Wood. 19 Dec. 1906

27164. I only want to get an idea of what the report is?—The officer on the scene of the occurrence reports. In the case of a large fire the superior officer takes it up.

27165. Then you think that you are only called upon to report about events you have seen?—Yes. When a policeman is called to a collision or witnesses a collision, or is called to take down a name and address, or there is an alleged assault.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) With regard to the last witness, I am not sure whether it was made clear—I do not care which way it is—that when the constable came on the scene Emms was leaning with his head on his hand, his arm on the ground, or whether he was, as the constable first said, lying on the ground, apparently dead, in order to excite sympathy?

(Chairman.) When the last witness came upon the scene of the occurrence with the ambulance he saw Emms resting himself upon his elbow.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) That would be inconsistent with the statement that he was lying on the ground.

(Chairman.) I do not know. The witness also pointed out there was at least ten minutes during which Emms might have been lying on the ground.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) Not that he himself saw. I understood him first to say he himself saw. Of course, he could only give testimony as to what he saw. I understood him to say he saw Emms lying on the ground, apparently unconscious, in order to excite sympathy.

(Chairman.) I did not take that down from him, and I do not think he said it.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) "He was lying still to gain the sympathy of the crowd."

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) That is another witness.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) No, it is the last witness.

(Chairman.) The witness said, "Emms was on the ground; he was lying on the ground; he was supporting himself on his elbow. I do not think he spoke."

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) That was when he first came up. It is very contradictory if that is so, because in cross-examination he said: "He was lying still to gain the sympathy of the crowd"; and then later he said: "When first I came up he had his head on his hand, resting himself on his elbow."

(Chairman.) He said he thought he was trying to get the sympathy of the crowd. I have not got the exact words, but they will be on the shorthand-writer's notes.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I wanted to get it perfectly clear, because it seems very inconsistent.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) The next witness, in the ordinary course, would be Police-constable White, but I have a certificate here saying that he is unable to be present. I should desire to put in the certificate: "No. 2, Spital Square, Bishopsgate, E., December 19th, 1906.—I hereby certify that Police-constable White, 225 H, is suffering from a badly blistered instep, and is unable to put his foot to the ground, which will prevent him from attending before the Royal Commission at the Guildhall, Westminster.—Percy J. Clark, Divisional Surgeon of Police." Then the next witness I propose to call is Constable Walker, 420 H.

(Chairman.) I understand that one of the witnesses we have summoned, Kemp, is now here?

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) Yes.

(Chairman.) He has submitted himself to us, and come, and I think we will take him before the next police witness.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) There are two other witnesses, Measures and Hoy, whom you expressed a desire to see.

(Chairman.) I think, Mr. Bankes, you will be able to take the police witnesses in this case very briefly.

GEORGE KEMP, sworn.

G. Kemp.
19 Dec. 1906.

27166. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) You gave evidence before the police Magistrate, Mr. Cluer, with regard to this matter?—Yes.

27167. You are a table maker, and reside at 4, Granby Street?—Yes.

27168. Will you tell the learned Commissioners what it was you saw on the morning of this day?—I was coming from Whitechapel towards Bethnal Green, down Brick Lane, and, just before the archway, there is a narrow courtway. I saw the prisoner and a constable, who seemed to be rowing with one another.

27169. A scuffle?—Yes. The constable got hold of the young man by the collar like this (describing), by the shoulder, and the young man pulled away like this (describing), and then the constable struck him a blow on the head.

27170. Did you see the young man do anything else except pull away, to justify the blow?—No, I could not say I did.

27171. Tell us what you know?—I am only going by what I saw. He knocked him to the ground.

27172. What did he knock him with?—His truncheon. As he fell he went down like this, and the constable gave him another blow.

27173. He hit him again as he fell?—Yes.

27174. That you saw?—Yes.

27175. What next happened?—The constable was standing there, near against the wall, and then somebody blew a whistle, and another constable came up.

27176. Did you see a man come out of the crowd and do anything to the constable?—Yes, he struck the constable in the mouth, or somewhere about the face.

27177. Do you know who that man was?—No.

27178. Was it the prisoner Norrey who you saw in the dock?—No, not that I am aware of.

27179. Would you have recognised him if it had been?—Yes.

27180. All this time what happened to Emms?—He was still lying there. He seemed as if he was dead.

27181. Did you see any blood anywhere?—It seemed as you stood at a distance, as if his throat had been cut, because the blood ran round here (describing).

27182. Do you know anything about Emms. Do you know him at all?—I know him by sight, through living down that way. I was born down there.

27183. Is he a friend or a pal of yours at all?—No.

27184. Had you ever seen Norrey before?—No.

27185. How many people were there when you first came on the scene?—Near about between 12 and 20.

27186. Did any more come up after that?—Oh, yes; a hell of a lot.

27187. Could you see exactly what took place?—Oh, yes.

27188. Did you see any women there?—Yes, plenty.

27189. Did you see any women do anything?—I never took that notice.

27190. After Emms was knocked down, you mean you did not keep an observation on him?—No. I was in a weak position myself. I had just come out of the hospital and been under two operations.

27191. You were in a weak position physically, you mean?—I was.

27192. What did you do next?—I waited there until an ambulance came, and the ambulance passed me with Emms on.

27193. What did he seem like then?—Just the same as if he was dead.

27194. Did you hear him say anything?—Not that I am aware of.

27195. Did you see him move or do anything after he was knocked down at all?—No.

27196. I do not think you went to the police station, did you?—No.

27197. I think some woman came and asked you to give evidence at the police court?—Yes.

27198. And to say what you saw?—Yes.

27199. And so you came?—Yes. I should like to know, Sir, if I can get a note to show my governor that I have been here.

27200. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) You mean an explanation of why you have been away from work?—Yes.

27201-2. Would not the letter you got from the Commission show that?—I showed it to him this morning, but he seemed very upset.

27203. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) Why?—Because I had to come.

27204. Were you busy?—Yes.

27205. Was he upset for any other cause?—He does not like me to come to such a place as this.

27206. I hope it is a respectable place?—It is a question. He does not want to be mixed up in anything like this. He is a Christian man.

27207. Cannot a Christian man let his employé give evidence?

(Chairman.) The Secretary will write a letter saying that you have attended here by order of the Commission to give evidence?—Thank you, Sir.

27208. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I understand on this night you yourself were only recovering from illness?—Yes.

27209. How long before was it that you had this operation?—I had been away two weeks in a convalescent home, and I had not long come from the convalescent home. I had come out of the hospital and gone into the home.

27210. It was the Monday night, or the Tuesday night?—Monday night, or Tuesday morning early.

27211. Why was it you were out so late that night if you were only just recovering from illness?—I met a friend and went for a walk round.

27212. Where had you been to with your friends?—Only one friend. We went for a walk round Whitechapel way, and towards home. It was only just a short round.

27213. It was a funny thing to go for a walk at twelve o'clock at night, was it not?—We started earlier.

27214. What time did you start for your walk?—Half-past nine or ten o'clock.

27215. Were you walking till twelve o'clock, or did you go in anywhere?—We went into one fish shop.

27216. Is that all you did between half-past nine and twelve?—That is all.

27217. You were coming from Whitechapel direction?—Yes.

27218. Was that to go home?—Yes.

27219. Where is your home?—No. 4, Granby Street.

27220. Is that the other side of the Arch?—Yes.

27221. You go under the arch?—Yes.

27222. How far were you from the arch before you noticed this, as you call it, scuffling between the constable and the man?—A very short distance.

27223. You were close to them?—Yes.

27224. When you first noticed them?—Yes.

27225. When you first noticed them had the constable lost his helmet?—No.

27226. Had he got it on then?—Yes.

27227. Did he lose his helmet at any time?—When the young man punched him it came off.

27228. Were they actually in Pedley Street when you first saw them?—I do not know the name of the turning, and yet I was born round there.

27229. A little court?—Yes.

27230. They were in that court when you first saw them?—Yes.

27231. You never saw them on the other side at all?—No.

27232. You never saw them crossing the road?—No.

27253. You did not see anything until they were in this court, as you call it?—Nothing at all.

27254. Were there a number of people round there at that time, or close to?—There were some few there.

27255. So that, before you got up, a number of people had collected there?—Yes, but not half so many, or quarter so many, as there were at the last.

27256. There were a great many at the end?—Oh, yes.

27257. But by the time you got up there was a considerable number collected there?—Not so many to speak of.

27258. Were there a dozen or fourteen?—Yes.

27259. Knowing that neighbourhood, would not that indicate to you that this scuffle had been going on for some time?—I could not tell you how long it had been going on.

27260. But, at any rate, sufficiently long to attract ten or twelve or fourteen people?—Yes.

27261. You do not pledge yourself to the number?—No.

27262. There were a number, but not nearly so many as came afterwards?—No, not nearly so many.

27263. Do I understand you to say that when you first came up the constable and the young man were in grip—they had hold of each other?—They were jawing, and one thing and another.

27264. Had they hold of each other?—A second or two afterwards.

27265. Can you say positively whether, when you first came up, they had hold of each other or not?—Yes.

27266. They had?—Yes.

27267. Do not let there be any mistake about this. Your impression is that when you first came up the man and the constable had hold of each other?—Yes, he had got hold of the young man here (describing).

27268. Either one or the other had got hold of the other?—Yes.

27269. They were holding each other?—Yes.

27270. You cannot tell what had happened before you got up?—No, not at all; I could not tell you.

27271. Did you notice when you first got up there whether the constable seemed exhausted?—He seemed a bit exhausted after the young man punched him.

27272. I asked you a question as to whether he seemed exhausted when you first got up there?—No, he did not seem exhausted at all.

27273. But, according to your present story, nothing had happened to make him exhausted, except that somebody had hit him?—That is all.

27274. But I think before the Magistrate you said in cross-examination: "I know Emms by sight only. I have known him two or three years by sight. He is not a friend of mine; he is not a pal of mine. I may have spoken to him." Did you know his name?—No.

27275. Where had you spoken to him, do you remember?—No.

27276. But you think you had spoken to him?—I may have done so.

27277. It is not a question of whether you may have done so. Do you think you had? Do you remember having spoken to him?—No.

27278. But you knew him by sight?—Yes.

27279. Where had you seen him?—I had seen him round the neighbourhood I live in—I cannot say how often.

27280. You had seen him about the street?—Yes.

27281. Is he constantly about the street?—That is the only place where I have known him from.

27282. He is constantly about there, is he?—Yes.

27283. Did you say: "I do not know Norrey. I never saw him before"?—Yes.

27284. Then you say this: "The police constable and Emms were a little way down the court, just off Brick Lane, through an arch, when I first saw them." They were not through the arch, were they?—There is an arch here, and they were just underneath the arch, and down by the side of the court.

27285. That is what you mean by that. Then you said: "There were plenty of people there"?—Yes.

27286. Is that what you meant to describe—the state of things when you first got there?—Yes.

27287. There were plenty of people there?—Yes, I have just said so.

27288. You describe it there as being "plenty of people." Then you said: "I was nearly the length of the court away." You were describing it by reference to the size of the room you were in when you were giving that evidence?—Yes.

27289. "There were some people between me and Emms"?—Yes.

27290. That is right, is it?—Yes.

27291. Is it the fact there were always some people between you and the constable and Emms all through the time? You never pushed your way to the front?—Yes, I did.

27292. When?—After the first blow was struck.

27293. After Emms was on the ground?—Yes.

27294. Then you pushed your way to the front?—Yes.

27295. But up to that time you had not?—No.

27296. Up to that time there were people between you and him?—Yes.

27297. "I did not see the police-constable with his back against the wall." Did you not see him with his back against the wall at any time?—Yes.

27298. When was that?—After the blow was struck by the constable.

27299. How long do you think elapsed between the time the blow was struck and the time the ambulance came?—I should think between a quarter of an hour and twenty minutes.

27300. And during the whole of that time was the constable standing leaning up against the wall?—Not all the time.

27301. Nearly all the time?—Yes.

27302. Did he appear to you to be leaning there because he was dazed and exhausted?—He seemed a bit dazed.

27303. And there was nothing to account for his condition, that you saw, except the one blow struck by the man?—That is all.

27304. Did not he seem to you to present the appearance of a man who had gone through a severe struggle?—No.

27305. He seemed so exhausted that he was leaning up against the wall?—He was there then, Sir.

27306. You had seen no struggle to produce that state of things, had you? You had not seen the constable struggling sufficiently to make him exhausted, had you?—No, only by the blow.

27307. You said "There were several women there"?—Yes.

27308. Was that at the time you first got up there, or afterwards?—There may have been some when I first got up there, and there were plenty afterwards.

27309. Did you notice whether there were any there when you first got up or not?—I did not take that notice.

27310. Then you said "There were several women there. I think there were nearly a dozen people there, perhaps more." That is, in substance, what you have said to-day?—Yes.

27311. "I saw that the police-constable's helmet was gone"?—Yes.

27312. Now you say that that was after the blow was struck?—Yes.

27313. And not when you first came up?—No.

27314. Did you see a man run away to fetch another constable?—I did not take that notice. There were plenty of people moving about, but I could not say whether I saw a man get a constable.

27315. We know now that somebody who had got the constable's helmet in his hand ran away into Sclater Street, and he had got the helmet in his hand when he got to Sclater Street?—Yes.

27316. Bearing that in mind, do you say the constable had got his helmet on when you first got up there, or are you mistaken?—No, I do not think I am much mistaken about it.

27317. You do not think you are?—No.

G. Kemp.
19 Dec. 1906.

27298. Now I want to put this to you, as to whether it is a thing about which you think you may be mistaken, or whether you are positive?—A decent time has elapsed between now and then.

27299. That is a fair answer. By that, do you mean to suggest that, although you think he had his helmet on when you got up there, you are not able to say for certain?—No.

27300. Is that right?—Yes.

27301. Then I will go on: "I saw a boy with him." Did you see a boy with him?—Yes.

27302. Is that the boy who went for the constable?—I suppose it was. I could not say whether he went for the constable or not.

27303. "I was not close enough to see that his whistle and armlet were gone"?—The helmet had gone—the boy had it.

27304. You said "I was not close enough to see that his whistle and armlet were gone." You were asked whether you noticed whether his whistle and armlet were gone, and you said you were not close enough to see that?—I never noticed it.

27305. "I would not like to say that Emms did not hit the constable in the mouth." That means to say that you were not there the whole time?—You cannot tell whether anybody hits anybody else when there is a scuffle on.

27306. You cannot tell whether anybody hits anybody else when there is a scuffle?—No.

27307. By that you mean that there was a kind of scuffle, and that you really could not tell which it was hit the other?—No.

27308. Then you said: "The police-constable did seem a bit exhausted, as if he had had violent treatment. Emms is the man who scuffled with the police-constable. The scuffle was before the police-constable hit him. After the police-constable hit Emms, the other man came and hit the police-constable. The other man was shorter than Norrey. I can't say who it was. The first blow brought Emms down close to the police-constable. Then the police-constable hit him a second blow, and knelt on him. Then I rushed towards where they were." Are you prepared to say that the constable and Emms did not fall down together?—No.

27309. We have been told that by one witness. We want you to tell us what you are certain about, and if you are not certain about anything you ought to tell us you are not certain. I suggest to you that in the struggle Emms and the constable fell together. What do you say about that?—After the constable hit Emms the blow, he went down, and there was another blow, and the constable went down like this (bending down on knee).

27310. Did he fall on to the ground?—No, not to fall down properly—not that I saw.

27311. What part of the constable was on the ground?—Like this (describing.)

27312. Do you mean bending down?—Yes.

27313. At that time were there people between you and him?—There may have been one or two.

27314. Was the place light or dark?—You could not call it light and you could not call it dark. There was a double light up high from the railway; but there is only one ordinary street-lamp, and the gaslight does not show much light at all.

27315. In your view it is not a very light place?—No, not light to speak of.

27316. Is it light enough to enable you to distinguish accurately what was going on there, do you think?—Yes.

27317. Do you say that the police-constable blew a whistle?—Somebody blew a whistle.

27318. Are you able to say whether it was the police-constable or not?—It may have been somebody among the crowd. I did not take that notice, but I heard the whistle blow.

27319. You heard the whistle blow, but it may have been somebody in the crowd?—Yes.

27320. Did you not say before the magistrate "The police-constable blew his whistle"?—I may have done so.

27321. Is not that an illustration of what I am suggesting to you, that you are one of those people who is apt to say a thing without being quite certain about it. You told the Magistrate as if you were certain that the police-constable blew his whistle?—I may have done so.

27322. And now you tell us fairly enough that it may have been somebody in the crowd?—I did not take much notice of who blew the whistle, but I heard it blow.

27323. You realise that that is a case in which you have said a thing as if you were positive about it when you were really not positive about it, do you not?—When there are a few people there you have not got your eyes on everybody.

27324. But you told the Magistrate positively that the policeman blew his whistle. Were not you wrong in being so positive about that?—I may have been wrong.

27325. I am suggesting to you, and I will come to it again in a moment, that you are equally wrong in being so positive about these blows. I admit it is your impression, but I suggest to you that you are wrong in being positive about it. The next thing I want to ask you is this: You went home, did you, after the ambulance passed you?—Yes.

27326. Did anybody speak to you then and there about giving evidence for Emms?—I walked up there, and there were some people talking.

27327. That night did anybody speak to you about giving evidence?—No.

27328. Nobody?—Not that I am aware of.

27329. Emms's case was before the Magistrate the next day, was it not?—I believe so. I do not know about that.

27330. How came you to give evidence before the Magistrate?—I was spoken to by a young woman in Brick Lane.

27331. How soon after that night was that?—I think it was on Saturday afternoon after I had done work.

27332. On the Saturday afternoon following?—I think so.

27333. So that this happened on the Monday night, and some young woman spoke to you on the Saturday night?—Yes.

27334. Were you in Brick Lane?—Yes.

27335. Did you know the young woman by sight?—Yes.

27336. Do you know who she is?—No.

27337. Do not you know?—No.

27338. Not now?—No.

27339. What did the young woman ask you to do?—She knew I was there, or she would not have come and asked me.

27340. How did she know you were there?—I suppose she saw me there.

27341. She came up to you in Brick Lane?—Yes.

27342. What did she say to you?—She told me that she went up to the police station on the night of the occurrence, and told me about her getting thrown out.

27343. She did, did she?—Yes.

27344. Should you know her by sight?—Yes.

27345. Did you see the woman at the police court who spoke to you and told you she had been thrown out?—Yes.

27346. Do you know what her name is?—I knew afterwards—Mrs. Allen.

27347. That is the woman we have had here?—Yes.

27348. I am asking you about the young woman who spoke to you on the Saturday night. What did the young woman tell you on the Saturday night?—She told me she went up to the police station.

27349. That she herself had been to the police station?—Yes, and she was thrown out.

27350. Have you ever seen that young woman since?—Yes, there she is (pointing to a young woman in court).

27351. That is the young woman you saw in Brick Lane?—Yes.

27352. She told you she had been thrown out?—Yes.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I do not know, Sir, whether it would be right for you to ask her what her name is.

(Mr. Schultess Young.) That is Mrs. Hoy.

27353. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Did you know her before?—Yes.

27354. You knew her before?—Yes.

27355. How had you known her?—Years, round the neighbourhood.

27356. Where had you seen her?—I had seen her at several places.

27357. Did you know her to speak to?—No.

27358. Did you know her name?—I know her first name.

27359. What is her first name?—Polly, I think.

27360. Had you ever seen her with Emms?—No.

27361. Had you ever seen her with Harding?—No.

27362. Do you know Harding?—No.

27363. Is she known about the neighbourhood as Polly?—Yes. I know her husband.

27364. She said she had been up to the police station and she had been thrown out?—Yes.

27365. What else did she say?—She never told me anything else.

27366. Is that all she said to you?—Yes.

27367. Did she not ask you to go and give evidence?—A young man asked me—a gentleman asked me.

27368. Was that the same night?—No, the same afternoon.

27369. Was he alone then or with somebody else?—He was alone.

27370. Do you know who the young man was?—No.

27371. Should you recognise him?—Yes.

27372. Have you seen him here?—I was taken to a house——

27373. No, no. Have you seen the young man here?—I cannot see him here.

27374. Have you seen him at all since?—I do not think I have.

27375. Do you know what his name is?—No.

27376. Are you sure you do not see him?

(Mr. Schultess Young.) It was someone sent on behalf of the solicitor, I am informed.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) That was on the Saturday afternoon?—Yes.

27377. Was that before or after you saw the woman?—I think it was before or after—I am not sure which.

27378. Where did you see the man?—I saw him in a house writing down on a paper.

27379. Whose house?—I do not know whose house it was.

27380. How did you come to go to the house?—The young woman asked me to go.

27381. Where did the young man meet you?—In Brick Lane.

27382. You met this young man in Brick Lane?—Yes.

27383. Is he a man you had seen before?—Yes.

27384. Where had you seen him before?—In our neighbourhood.

27385. Just see again if you cannot see him here. Look at this man (pointing to Harding)?—Yes.

27386. That is the man, is it?—Yes.

27387. That is Harding. Now just be careful. You saw that man before I pointed him to you, did you not?—No, I did not notice him. He was behind another man.

27388. That is him, is it not?—Yes.

27389. Now we have got you in communication with Harding in Brick Lane. That was on a Saturday afternoon, was it?—Yes.

27390. We will just go into this a little further. You had not seen Polly then, had you?—No.

27391. Had you ever spoken to her before?—I may have done so.

27392. In the same way you may have spoken to Emms?—Yes.

27393. In the same sort of way?—Yes.

27394. Did you know what he was?—No; I do not care what people are, so long as I am alright mysedf.

27395. You are not very careful about the people you speak to apparently?—You cannot help speaking to people if you are spoken to by them.

27396. What time in the afternoon was it that Harding spoke to you?—It was after 1, I think.

27397. What did he say to you?—He asked me if I saw it, and I told him. He took me down to a house and I saw a gentleman there.

27398. Where was the house?—In Bacon Street.

27399. Do you know the number?—No.

27400. Then, was something written down?—Yes.

27401. Did they tell you that the constable had struck the man twice on the head?—No.

27402. Are you sure?—Yes.

27403. Have you been at work all this morning?—I have been to my workshop.

27404. What time did you come to this court?—I could not tell you.

27405. I want to know. You arrived here some time after 2. Did you come to the court this morning with Harding and Emms?—No.

27406. Have you seen them this morning?—Not before I got here.

27407. Did you see them when you arrived here?—I saw one of them sitting down here—I think it was Norrey.

27408. Before you came into court did you not see both Harding and Emms?—No.

27409. Have you not been with both Harding and Emms to-day. Did you not go out with Harding and Emms when the Commissioners rose at 1.30?—No. Me and the young woman and this other young man here went out.

27410. And Harding and Emms?—Yes.

27411. You saw Harding here, did you not?—Yes.

27412. And you knew he was here?—Yes.

27413. And you knew he was here when you pretended to me that you could not recognise the man who spoke to you in Brick Lane?—I never saw him. He was behind somebody.

27414. But you knew he was here?—I never noticed him in the court here.

27415. You say you have been to your workshop this morning?—Yes.

27416. What time did you go?—Half-past 8.

27417. What time did you leave the workshop?—When the governor came.

27418. What time was that?—I stayed there about an hour, I think.

27419. You left the workshop at 9.30?—When I saw the governor.

27420. You have been free to come here at any time after 9.30?—I went home.

27421. You have been free to come here at any time since 9.30?—Yes.

27422. Why were you not here at 11 o'clock?—I went home and put my collar on and cleaned my boots, and brushed my clothes, and one thing and another.

27423. (Chairman) What time did you get here. You left your workshop at 9.30, and you went home to change your things. What time did you get down here?—I did not take any notice of the time.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I can tell you.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I must ask my friend not to interrupt.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I was informed at a certain hour when the witness came.

27424. (Chairman.) I want to know what the witness says. (To the witness.) What time do you say you got here?—I did not notice the time.

27425. Just refresh your memory. You were not here at 11 o'clock?—No.

27426. We called you, and there was no answer. How did you come from Bethnal Green?—On a 'bus.

27427. Cannot you tell us what time you arrived at the court?—I walked from where I live to Liverpool

G. Kemp.

19 Dec. 1906.

Street, and from Liverpool Street up to the Bank, and there I got on a 'bus.

27428. You came all the way by 'bus?—I walked from my house to Liverpool Street, and from Liverpool Street I walked to the Bank, and then I came on a 'bus.

27429. Almost to the door of this court?—No.

27430. Where did you get off in Parliament Street?—Charing Cross, just before you get to where the soldiers are.

27431. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) You did not come alone on the 'bus, did you?—No.

27432. There was a company of you—there were four of you, and some women?—No, there were two women and one young man.

27433. On the 'bus. Who were the two women—was Polly one?—Yes.

27434. And who else?—Her companion.

27435. Who was the young man?—There, he sits there. (Pointing out a man, who, in answer to the Chairman, stated his name was George Measures.)

27436. I ask you again, did you not come into this building with Harding and Emms?—No.

27437. Were you asked to sign the statement you wrote down?—I cannot remember now.

27438. Have you ever seen it since?—No.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I cannot keep anything of that kind back. Here is the statement signed by Kemp. The Secretary of the Society wishes it to be kept for himself, but, of course, the Commission must see it. (Producing document.)

(Chairman.) But Mr. Eldon Bankes is now cross-examining.

27439. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) You have not seen it since?—No.

27440. Whose house was it in which this statement was taken?—I could not tell you.

27441. You are sure of that?—Yes.

27442. Do you know any of the people who live there?—Not that I am aware of.

27443. Does Polly live there?—I do not know. I know some Yiddish people live there, and some Yiddish young women.

27444. Just listen to this: "I never saw the police-constable against the wall; they were scuffling when I came up. A young man asked me to come here on Saturday afternoon." We know that young man is Harding?—Yes.

27445-6. "So I came last week."

(Chairman.) "Here," I suppose, means the police court.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Yes. This was on the 30th [illegible] was it, the day you were giving evidence?—

[illegible]w, just listen. The case had been first [illegible] Magistrate on Tuesday, the 23rd?—Yes.

It came up again before the Magistrate on the [illegible]uesday?—Yes.

27449. A week elapsed between the two. Were not you up at the court the first time Emms' case was on?—I was, but I was not called.

27450. But you went there?—Yes.

27451. Did you go there because Harding asked you to go there?—No.

27452. We must go further back, because you told me that you went to the police court because Harding asked you?—That was the following week.

27453. Then how came you to go the first time?—I went of my own accord.

27454. You say you were not called as a witness?—No.

27455. Did you tell anybody you were prepared to give evidence?—Several people.

27456. You told several people?—Yes.

27457. Did you tell Harding amongst others?—I may have done, or I may not.

27458. Did you see Harding on the first day?—I should not say so.

27459. He was in the court, was he not?—I did not go in the court myself.

27460. But you saw Harding the first time Emms was brought up?—I cannot remember.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I understand Harding was not there.

27461. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) He was somewhere about. Let me read what you said to you again: "A young man asked me to come here on Saturday afternoon, so I came last week"?—Yes.

27462. Is that right. We know the young man was Harding, and did not you go the first time because he asked you?—No.

27463. Now listen, "It was Emms' wife or someone She lives in Bacon Street." Now think. Did not you know quite well that it was not Emms' wife who had anything to do with it, but it was this person you call Polly?—Yes.

27464. And you know now that Emms is separated from his wife, do you not?—No.

27465. How came you to tell the Magistrate that that woman was Emms' wife?—I do not remember saying anything about Emms' wife.

27466. But here it is written down, "It was Emms' wife or someone. She lives in Bacon Street. The woman asked me to go to her house. I went there and a gentleman saw me"?—Yes.

27467. Did you go to the woman's house who asked you to go?—Yes.

27468. Did you?—Yes.

27469. The woman who asked you was Polly?—Yes.

27470. Did you go to her house?—Yes, I suppose it was her house. She was there.

27471. Now did not you tell me a moment ago you did not know whose house it was, and you did not know who lived there?—No, I cannot say whether it was her house or not.

27472. Then why did you tell the Magistrate another thing you were not certain about. Why did you tell the Magistrate it was her house if you did not know whether it was or not?—It may have been her house. I could not say.

27473. It may have been, but there may have been two blows or there may have been none?—Yes.

27474. (Chairman.) Did she say, "Come with me to my house"?—She may have said something like that.

27475. That is exactly what you appear to have told the Magistrate. Now which is it. Tell Mr. Bankes which it is. He is asking you.

27476. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) First of all I must go back to the Saturday because you now say it was Harding who first of all spoke to you on that afternoon?—Yes.

27477. And it was Polly who spoke to you afterwards?—Yes.

27478. Now what did Harding say to you?—He only asked me whether I was a witness of it.

27479. Is that all he said?—Yes.

27480. Nothing else?—No.

27481. Absolutely nothing else?—No, not that I am aware of.

27482. And then how long after was it that Polly came?—I think I had had my tea then.

27483. Where were you when Polly came?—In Brick Lane, I think.

27484. The same place that you had seen Harding?—Not the same place; somewhere in Brick Lane.

27485. Do you remember where it was?—Near Bacon Street somewhere.

27486. Then did she ask you to go to her house. Now be careful?—She did not say whether it was her house or not, but she asked me to go and give evidence there.

27487. But what did she say about the house. It was because of something she said to you that you went to a house?—Yes.

27488. Did she ask you to go to her house?—We went to the house together.

27489. You went to her house together?—Yes.

27490. Then it was her house?—I suppose so.

27491. And you thought so at the time, and you have thought so ever since?—Yes.

27492. Then how did you tell these gentlemen you did not know whose house it was?—I do not say it is her house now. I do not know whose house it is.

27493. But if you believed it was her house why should you not have told us unless you had something to conceal about it. Why do you want to conceal that fact that it is her house if the thing is all right and above board?—(No answer.)

27494. What is your answer to that. Why did you want to conceal the fact that it was her house if this statement of yours is all right and above board?—I should not like to say whether it was her house or whether it was not, but she took me there.

27495. "The woman asked me to go to her house, I went there, and a gentleman saw me and asked me what I knew. He wrote it down. I don't see him here now. I did not come to this court last week. I knew the woman well by sight, I suppose she saw me there. One of Emms' friends saw me and that was why I came here on Monday week." Monday week was the first time that Emms was up, was it not?—I think so.

27496. Now listen, "One of Emms' friends saw me and that was why I came here on Monday week." Now was not "one of Emms' friends" Harding?—I cannot think now.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) Tuesday was the day of the hearing of the case in court—not Monday.

27497. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) "That was why I came on Monday week." Did you ever go to the court except on those two occasions when Emms was up?—Only twice.

27498. And the second time, you say, you went because of what the woman told you and meeting Harding. That is on the Saturday?—Yes.

27499. The first time you went, I have asked you two or three times, and you have persisted in saying you went of your own accord?—Yes.

27500. Now I read to you what you said to the Magistrate about that: "One of Emms' friends saw me, and that was why I came here on Monday week."

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) Go on. "I was not asked to come then."

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) "But I came to see the case. One of Emms' friends saw me, and that was why I came here on Monday week." Was not one of Emms' friends Harding?—I could not say now.

27501. Do you know any other of Emms' friends except Harding?—I may know some by sight. I should not like to say. I know some, and I should not like to say I do not.

27502. Do you know Harding as a friend of Emms'?—Yes, I have seen them together.

27503. I ask you again, when you said that to the Magistrate, "It was one of Emms' friends," did you not mean Harding?—I should not like to say who I meant now, because I forget.

27504. But Harding was the only friend of Emms' that you really knew by name?—No.

27505. Do you know any other by name?—No.

27506. Are you sure?—Yes.

27507. Now I want to go back to these blows. You see that you have on more than one occasion stated things as though you were positive about them when you really were not. You admit that now?—Yes.

27508. Now with regard to these blows, were you near enough or were you in a position to see really what happened?—I was near enough, I think.

27509. Near enough you think?—Yes.

27510. Were you able to see because of the people between you exactly what happened?—I saw what I have said.

27511. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) I think you told the Magistrate "One of Emms' friends saw me, and that was why I came here on Monday week"—meaning the first hearing?—Yes.

27512. "I was not asked to come then, but I came to see the case"?—Yes.

27513. You did not tell the Magistrate that one of Emms' friends had asked you to come?—Not that I am aware of.

G. Kemp.
19 Dec. 1906.

27514. When you saw Harding in Brick Lane were there any other men with him?—Not that I know of.

27515. And he conducted you, I think, to this house where the gentleman was who was taking down evidence?—Yes.

27516. All you were asked was what you knew about the case?—Yes.

27517. Did anybody at all, at any time, tell you what to say, because that is what my learned friend's cross-examination amounts to?—No.

27518. When you say a young man punched him, meaning the constable, was it anybody whom you recognised at all?—No.

27519. You have seen Emms occasionally about the street?—Yes.

27520. How often in a month do you suppose you have seen him about?—It would be hard to say. I live in the neighbourhood, I come out in the morning, I go back to dinner, and I come back at night-time and have a talk to one or two of my friends.

27521. You are a hardworking young man?—Yes.

27522. There is nothing against you in any way?—No.

27523. You are no associate of Emms at all?—No.

27524. Nor of Harding? You did not know Harding?—No.

27525. You say that part of the time the constable was leaning against the wall, that was before the ambulance came?—Yes.

27526. Was the part of the time that he was leaning against the wall just before the ambulance came or the first part of it?—Just before the ambulance came.

27527. Just before the ambulance came the constable began to get dazed and weary, and wanted to lean against the wall?—Yes.

27528. So that when the police-constable came up with the ambulance he found the constable, who seemed all right before, leaning against the wall?—Yes.

27529. The whistle that you heard; do you know what the sound of a police whistle is?—Yes.

27530. Was it a police whistle that you heard?—I think so.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Somebody took it.

27531. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) It was the sound of a police whistle that you heard?—Yes.

27532. Whereabouts did it seem to come from?—Somewhere about the crowd; somewhere among the people.

27533. Were the crowd round about the constable Jeffery?—Yes.

27534. I do not know that it amounts to very much, but is there any reason why you should conceal that you went to this house? Has it ever been suggested to you before that you had anything to conceal about this house where you went to in Brick Lane?—No.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I will put this in.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) It is not disputed that it is his signature.

27535. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) That is your signature?—Yes.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I should like this read.

(Chairman.) Then will you please hand it in to Mr. Leslie? You put that in, I understand?

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) Certainly.

(Chairman.) Then Mr. Leslie will kindly read it.

Mr. Leslie (the Secretary): "George Kemp states—I reside at 4, Granby Street, and work at table-making. On Monday night, 22nd October, I was coming along Brick Lane. In a narrow passage I saw several Jews and" (first "one or two" has been written, and then "three or four") "three or four others and a constable. The constable was having words with a young fellow. Suddenly the constable drew his truncheon and struck the young fellow a blow on the side of the head, and he fell on the ground. The constable fell on him, and, putting his knee on the man's chest, and hit him another blow on the head while he was on the ground. A young man ran from the crowd and called the police man a cowardly b——, and punched him on the face and ran away. The mob got so strong as the policeman blew his whistle, and everybody came running up. I was forced away. I saw him brought out on the ambulance. He appeared to be dead; his head was covered with blood, and so was his handkerchief around his neck, as though his throat was cut.—G. KEMP."

G. Kemp.

19 Dec. 1906.

27536. (Mr. Dickinson.) You have told us that, when before the magistrate, you did not know Norrey, and you had never seen him before?—Yes.

27537. You know Norrey now?—Yes. I have seen him here.

27538. Do you mean to say you have never seen him about there before?—No.

27539. Have you heard of anybody seeing Norrey?—No.

27540. You went to the court on the first day?—Yes.

27541. You went there to see what was going to happen?—Yes.

27542. When this event happened the evening before you knew Emms?—Yes.

27543. And you were in the crowd when this happened?—Yes.

27544. Did you see the girl you call "Polly" there?—I saw her. It was over—when the people had gone away.

27545. Did you speak to her?—I saw her. I might have done, I might not. I should not like to say.

27546. How did you know that the case was coming on at the police-court on the following day?—I thought it in my own mind.

27547. The police court does not sit every day?—I do not know whether it does or whether it does not.

27548. Do you know when it does sit?—No.

27549. How was it you thought of going to the police-court on the following day?—I had nothing to do. I was ill myself.

27550. What I want to know is how you knew that this case was coming on on the following day?—I had no idea of it coming on at all, but I went there. I only thought it in my own mind.

27551. You had no idea this case was coming on at all?—No. I was there, but I was not called.

27552. You say you were there, but you were not called. What I want to get from you is why you were there at all?—Seeing it, I went down there in my own mind.

27553. On account of your seeing what?—What I did the night before.

27554. In consequence of seeing what you did the night before you went down. How was it you knew it was coming on that morning?—I was not sure whether it was coming on at all. I only went up there.

27555. What did you do when you were up there?—Nothing particularly.

27556. Did you wait outside?—Yes.

27557. Did you hear what happened?—No.

27558. You knew what had happened?—No.

27559. Do you mean to say you did not know what had happened?—No.

27560. Where were you?—Going along.

27561. You were coming from Whitechapel?—Yes.

27562. Where were you exactly in Brick Lane?—Near the spot.

27563. Which way did you come?—From Whitechapel towards Bethnal Green Road.

27564. From Whitechapel towards the Archway?—Yes.

27565. On which side of the road were you walking?—On the right-hand side of the way coming towards Bethnal Green.

27566. When you were in Brick Lane itself you could see the archway, could you not?—Yes.

27567. And for some distance down the road?—Yes.

27568. As you were walking along the road towards the archway did you see any people in Brick Lane?—A few ran forward and backward. That was all.

27569. Did you see any crowd?—Not out in Brick Lane.

27570. You did not see anything at all, according to you, until you got up to Pedley Street?—That is all.

27571. How long were you walking in Brick Lane before you got up to Pedley Street?—Brick Lane is a long street. I came from Whitechapel to this spot.

27572. It is a straight road, is it not?—Almost.

27573. Then, I suppose, you were walking for three, four, or five minutes in Brick Lane before you got to Pedley Street?—Yes.

27574. And you say you saw nothing in Brick Lane until you got to Pedley Street?—No.

27575. If you had seen struggling going on across Brick Lane from one side to the other—if there had been a struggle going on across Brick Lane—you would have seen it?—It might have been going on, but I never noticed it. I never saw anything of it.

27576. You never saw anything, although you were walking towards that spot?—No.

27577. Do you know Mrs. Allen?—The coal shop?

27578. You know her?—Yes.

27579. Did you see her there?—No. There were plenty of women there.

27580. Did you see her there?—I did not notice her.

27581. (Chairman.) You have no doubt at all, as I understand your evidence, that you saw the policeman hit Emms with the truncheon?—Yes.

27582. And Emms fell?—Yes.

27583. You have no doubt at all about that?—No doubt at all.

27584. You are quite certain that Emms did not stagger or walk away a few yards, and then fall?—No.

27585. Where were you standing when you saw this blow, or where were you walking?—I was not walking at all.

27586. Standing?—Yes.

27587. Where?—At the courtway.

27588. Were you under the archway?—Not under the archway; just before you get to the archway.

27589. From where you were standing, if you turned and looked down the court, you could see the whole length of the court, so far as the light permitted?—Yes.

27590. How many yards from where you were standing was it that Emms fell?—About five or six yards, or something like that—a short distance.

27591. During the scuffle were the policeman and Emms moving at all further down the court?—Moving across.

27592. Moving further into the court?—Yes, this way (illustrating).

27593. Moving across the court?—Yes.

27594. And therefore further away from you?—It would be a few yards. The court goes like that (illustrating).

27595. Were there any people between you and the constable and Emms when the blow was given?—There might be one or two. I was not far.

27596. You think there were one or two?—Yes, there might have been.

27597. From the time that Emms fell until the ambulance came you were observing Emms?—What do you mean by "observing"?

27598. Looking at him?—Yes, I was looking at him.

27599. You watched, you say, what was happening all the time?—Yes.

27600. Could you hear anything that Emms said?—No.

27601. Too far off for that?—People were talking to one another like a crowd would do.

27602. It was continually growing, I suppose?—Yes.

27603. How many people were there when you saw the blow struck?—Nearly a dozen, I should think.

27604. How many people were there when the ambulance came?—A good many.

27605. Did you go near to Emms during the time you were waiting for the ambulance to come?—No.

27606. You remained in the same place?—I stood in the distance.

27607. Did you notice anything further that you think is worth mentioning to us?—No. I saw him coming out of the court on the ambulance.

27608. Did you see Police-constable Death (P.C. Death stood up). Did you see him come?—No.

27609. Did you see Police-constable Payne come (P.C. Payne stood up)?—I never saw him. There were one or two constables there.

27610. Yes, but they were not there when the blow was struck?—No.

27611. Do you mean you cannot say whether those constables were there?—Not one of those.

27612. You say constables did arrive?—Yes.

27613. But you cannot recognise them?—No.

27614. Did you see Emms move at all?—Not that I am aware of.

27615. Could you see him if he had moved?—Yes, he looked just as if he was dead.

27616. If he had raised himself on his elbow you could have seen it?—Yes.

27617. Did he raise himself on his elbow?—Not that I am aware of. He looked just as if he was dead.

27618. All the time?—Yes.

27619. He never moved at all during the fifteen minutes?—Not that I am aware of.

27620. It is no good saying, "Not that I am aware of." Were you looking at him all the time?—Yes.

27621. If, as you told me, you remained where you were, and did not go nearer Emms, and the crowd kept on growing, then some people got between you and where Emms was lying?—One or two may have got between us.

27622. Forty people had gathered in a quarter of an hour?—Yes.

27623. I asked you whether the crowd was growing, and you said it was growing?—Yes.

27624. It started with about a dozen, and ultimately you say there were forty?—At the end.

27625. You remained exactly where you were?—Unless I was shifted about like this (illustrating).

27626. Did you go nearer to Emms?—No, I kept my distance.

27627. Then I understand some people got between you and Emms?—After.

27628. How long after, do you think?—Before the ambulance came up.

27629. Did you see the police-constable come up and go to Emms?—Yes, once. G. Kemp. 19 Dec. 1906.

27630. Did you see what he did?—I saw him come through the court where the people were.

27631. What did the constable do when he got near Emms?—I did not take any notice.

27632. You are very particular as to what you noticed, and then when I come to ask you something else, you seem not to have noticed it at all. Why is that? Were you taking an interest in the matter? When you found the man had been knocked down, and was apparently lying dead, did you remain there with a view of seeing what was going on?—Not all the time.

27633. Do you mean you went away between the time the blow was struck and the time the ambulance arrived?—I was not in the same position, I was moving about. That is all.

27634. Moving about in the crowd?—Yes.

27635. Do you remember the first constable coming?—Yes.

27636. You do not recognise him?—No.

27637. You do not deny that that was the constable who came?—I do not know.

27638. What did he do when he came up?—I think he spoke to the other constable. I never saw him do anything else.

27639. He did not lean down and raise Emms' head, or do anything?—I never noticed it.

27640. Are you prepared to say he did not do so?—No, I would not like to say he did not, and I would not like to say he did.

27641. Are you prepared to say that Emms did not speak?—No.

27642. You have told us there was more than one woman there. Did any kind woman go up to Emms and raise him?—I never took no notice.

27643. I do not know what you were there for if you were not there to take notice?—I am only telling you what I saw.

(Chairman.) Is Mrs. Hoy coming?

(Mr. Schultess Young.) Yes.

(Chairman.) Do you wish to call her?

(Mr. Schultess Young.) If you please. You have subpœnaed her.

(Chairman.) Very well.

Mrs. Mary Anne Hoy, sworn.

27644. (Mr. Schultess Young.) You are a married woman, and live at 68, Bacon Street?—Yes.

27645. Do you remember, on Monday morning early, on the 22nd October, seeing something in Brick Lane?—Yes.

27646. What were you doing there so late or so early?—I was coming from Mrs. Jacob's shop in Sclater Street. I had been to get some milk for the baby. My mother lives in Code Street, and she had my baby.

27647. Tell the Commissioners what you saw?—I was coming under Brick Lane Arch, and opposite Pedley Street I saw a young man and a constable, and I heard the constable say to the young man, "Move on." He said, "All right." With that the constable pushed him. He said, "Don't push," and with that he got hold of his collar, as he did, and hit him with something in his hand, and he fell to the ground, and as the man fell to the ground the policeman went like that (illustrating), knelt on his stomach, and hit him another blow. I said, "Oh, my Lord, you have killed that man."

27648. Did you say that to the policeman?—What policeman?

27649. The constable who you say hit the man and knelt on his stomach. Did you speak to him, or was there any ejaculation?—A few people passing by stopped. I said, "Oh, my Lord, he has killed that man." Somebody in the crowd blew a whistle.

27650. How many people were there then?—About 15 or 20 people. There were a lot of Jews there from Code Street, where mother lives.

27651. You heard a whistle blown?—Yes.

27652. And a lot of people came up, I suppose?—Yes, and three or more police came up. Mrs. M. A. Hoy.

27653. When the man was knocked down and afterwards hit, what happened; did he lay where he was?—Yes, he laid flat on his head, and the blood was pouring. He had a white handkerchief on, and you could see the white handkerchief because it was smothered with blood.

27654. What did the policeman do to him after that?—He stood by the side of him. I think he was a dark policeman. You could not see very well. It was dark down there.

27655. Did you go near to the man who was hit?—No, I stood not very far away from him.

27656. I mean after he was hit did you go to see what was the matter with him?—Yes.

27657. Three more police came up?—Yes.

27658. You went up to see the man to see what was the matter with him. Did you speak to him?—Yes, and raised his head.

27659. Did he answer you?—No, he could not; you could not see his face for blood.

27660. Did you speak to the policeman standing by?—No, but there were three other policemen I spoke to.

27661. What did you say to them?—I said to the policemen, "Oh, my Lord, you have killed that man." One of them turned round (the dark policeman; I could tell you the man if he stood up), and said, "A

Mrs. M. A. Hoy.

b——y good job. He ought to have been dead years ago." That is the truth.

27662. Do you think you could recognise the policeman who said that?—Yes. He was a dark policeman, with rather a long nose. I think that is the policeman that hit the man.

27663. (Chairman.) Which one?—The first one.

27664. Jeffery. That is right.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) You say he was a dark policeman, with what kind of a nose?—The policeman who turned round and said, "A b——y good job; he ought to have been dead years ago," was dark, and had a long nose. He was the dark one with a cape on his arm. He is not here. That fair young man (P.C. Wood) was there.

27665. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) But the man who said this is not here?—He is not here.

27666. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) Was anything said about an ambulance?—Yes; they sent for the ambulance.

27667. Did you stand by?—Yes. I turned round and said to the policeman, "Why don't you take the man to the hospital? I believe he is dead."

27668. Did you wait till the man was taken on the ambulance?—Yes.

27669. Did he show signs at all of consciousness until he was taken on the ambulance?—He did not move. He laid flat in a pool of blood.

27670. It is not true that he raised himself on his hand?—No; I never saw him. I said to him, "Do you know me?"

27671. Do you know him?—No. I knew his wife before he was married to her. We went to school together, and she actually lived in the same street as mother did.

27672. You are friends of his wife?—Yes.

27673. We have been told that he is separated from his wife?—Yes, he is.

27674. Are you a friend of his wife?—Yes.

27675. I need not ask you about that. Did he speak at all before the ambulance came up?—Never a word. He laid in the blood, with his head back on the ground.

27676. Did you think you could recognise the man who came up—I do not mean Jeffery, but the other man?—The fair policeman (P.C. Wood) came up, and there were two more.

27677. Did you go to the police station?—Yes, me and another woman.

27678. Is that Martha Allen?—Yes.

27679. What happened when you got there?—We went to the station, and we asked to see Mr. Emms. We went to the station, and I think that gentleman there (pointing) put us in a little room.

27680. You say that gentleman put you in a little room?—Yes, he told us to wait there a few minutes.

27681. You did, I suppose?—Yes; we waited about five minutes.

27682. You were then taken out of that room, were you?—Yes. He said, "Who do you wish to see?" I said, "Mr. Emms."

27683. Were you taken where Emms was?—No. He was sitting in the chair.

27684. You saw him?—Yes. He beckoned to me, and he said, "Polly." He went like this (illustrating) and said "Polly." As he did that the fair policeman (P.C. Wood) had him by the shoulders and put him back in the chair, and another dark policeman put his knee in his stomach, and then he said "Oh!"—like that.

27685. He pushed him back in the chair?—Yes.

27686. He wanted to leave the chair apparently?—Yes. The fair policeman (P.C. Wood) had him by his shoulders.

27687. And put him back in the chair?—Yes.

27688. What was his condition then?—Still the blood was rolling down his face. He was smothered in blood.

27689. Do you know Norrey at all?—No.

27690. How did you leave the station after that?—I asked to see Mr. Emmsy, and as I asked to see Mr. Emmsy Mrs. Allen was thrown from the station, or the gentleman turned round and said "You come to see a man like him?" I said "Yes." As I said that he said "Clear out of the station," and he pushed Mrs. Allen, and he pushed me, and we both fell down.

27691. You fell down?—Yes, I fell down on Mrs. Allen, and he pushed me, and we both fell down.

27692. Who said that to you?—That dark policeman there—the inspector.

27693. The one who put you in the little room?—Yes. He said "You come to see a man like that?" I said "Yes." He said "Clear out of the station." He pushed Mrs. Allen and pushed me, and with that we both rolled out of the station.

27694. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Who is the man you say said "You come to see a man like that"?—I think it is that Inspector there. [Station-Sergeant Anderson.]

27695. He said to you "You come to see a man like that"?—Yes.

27696. Who is the person who pushed you out?—That man there. (Pointing.)

27697. The same man?—Yes.

27698. You are sure?—Yes, quite sure.

27699. You understand that you are on your oath?—Yes.

27700. It is not a joke?—It is the truth.

27701. He is the man who pushed you out?—Yes.

27702. Pushed you out of the charge room, was it?—Yes.

27703. You say he pushed you out of the charge room. That is the room Emms was in?—No, I am speaking of the little room. We were put in a little room first to wait. He said, "Wait there a few minutes; you will see him." I think that fair policeman—[P.C. Wood]—came and opened the door, and that gentleman there [Station-Sergeant Anderson]—said, "Who do you wish to see?" I said "Mr. Emms." He said "You come to see a man like him." Emms seeing me beckoned to me, as he beckoned to me that fair policeman—[P.C. Wood]—pushed him back in the chair, and another policeman put his knee in his chest, and he said "Oh."

27704. You heard that?—Yes, I saw that.

27705. Whilst you were in the little waiting room?—Yes.

27706. You are suggesting to these gentlemen that they pushed him in the chair because Emms recognised you?—Yes, he beckoned to me.

27707. That is your suggestion. Do you suggest that the station sergeant, this man, pushed you out of the waiting room?—Right on the station door.

27708. Do you suggest that he pushed you out of the waiting-room and out of the entrance down the steps?—Yes.

27709. He began to push you in the waiting room?—Not in the waiting room.

27710. Where did he begin to push you?—Just by the door.

27711. Which door?—As you come out of the little room there is like another door where you could see Emms sitting in the chair.

27712. Where did he begin to push you? Were you in the entrance lobby, or where?—No, just by the doorway.

27713. By the doorway of the waiting room?—Yes. He would not allow us to go in to see him.

27714. Could you see from the waiting room into the room where Emms was?—No. We saw Emms standing near the doorway.

27715. Was any other policeman there when you were pushed out by this man?—Not that I know of.

27716. No other policeman?—No.

27717. Was there a fair man there who asked you what you wanted?—No. He had hold of Emms' shoulders, and put him in the chair.

27718. So that there was no other policeman there?—No.

27719. You say, when you went up to see Emms on the ground, you said to some policeman, "You have nearly killed the man," and he said, "A b——y good job—he ought to have been killed years ago"?—Yes; "he ought to have been dead years ago."

27720. I want the constables to stand up one by one.

First of all Jeffery (P.C. Jeffery stood up). Was it that man?—No.

27721. Death (P.C. Death stood up). Was it that man?—No.

27722. Payne (P.C. Payne stood up). Was it that man?—No.

27723. Wood (P.C. Wood stood up). Was it that man?—No.

27724. It was none of those?—No.

27725. You are quite sure?—Yes.

27726. So that if it was said at all, it must have been said by some man other than those?—It was said by a policeman.

27727. And at the place where this happened?—Yes.

27728. Before the ambulance came or after?—Before the ambulance came.

27729. Now I want to ask you about some other matter. Had you been to this place before?—What place?

27730. This court?—Never in my life.

27731. Did you give evidence at the police court?—No. I would not have been here now, only I received a letter.

27732. Are you the person who is known as "Polly"?—Yes.

27733. Are you commonly known about that part as "Polly"?—Yes. I have not long lived round Bacon Street.

27734. Do you know Kemp?—I have known him, but never to speak to him.

27735. He knows you as "Polly," although he does not know you to speak to?—I never spoke to him.

27736. Does he live in the same neighbourhood?—I do not know where he lives; I could not tell you. I think it is somewhere round the back.

27737. Did you know Emms to speak to before this?—No. I had never spoken to him. I had known his wife. I never spoke to Emms before.

27738. Emms, we know, has been convicted for assaulting his wife?—Yes, he told me that.

27739. Do you know who Emms is living with now?—Living with?

27740. Is he living with Mrs. Callaghan. Do you know her?—No.

27741. But you know Callaghan, the man who was arrested, whom Harding tried to rescue, do you not. Do you know him?—I have heard of his name, but I have never spoken to the man.

27742. Do you know him by sight?—I know him by sight, but I have never spoken to him.

27743. Do you know his wife by sight?—I know his wife by sight, but I never spoke to them.

27744. Have you seen Emms and Mrs. Callaghan together?—No.

27745. Think again?—No, I have never seen them.

27746. Have you seen Emms and Callaghan together?—I may have done, but it is a long while since I have seen them together.

27747. Yes, I expect it is. Do you know Norrey?—No.

27748. Do you know him by sight?—No, I do not know him at all.

27749. You do not know him now by sight?—No.

27750. Do you know Harding?—I have seen Harding. I do not know him to speak to. My husband will not let me speak to none of them, you know.

27751. We will come to that in a moment. But you know him by sight?—Yes.

27752. Your husband will not let you speak to them?—No.

27753. Has he told you you must not?—He is a very jealous man.

Perhaps he has reason to be.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) My friend ought not to make such a suggestion.

(Mr. Elden Bankes.) I am going to follow it up.

27754. Has your husband spoken to you about speaking to these people?—No.

27755. Think. You told me a moment ago that your husband would not allow you to speak to them?—Yes. He told me when first I got married to him.

27756. How long have you been married?—Three years.

27757. Did you live in that district then?—No; I had lived in Hackney Road.

27758. At that time you did not know Harding or Emms by sight?—No.

27759. Do you suggest that when you were first married your husband told you you were not to speak to Harding and Emms?—Yes.

27760. When you were first married?—Yes. He told me never to speak to none of the boys.

27761. Was he referring to any particular boy?—No.

27762. Where do you live now?—68, Bacon Street.

27763. What does your husband do?—He is a carman.

27764. And you say you have been married three years?—Three years come April.

27765. Do you do any work yourself?—No. I used to.

27766. Before you were married?—When I was first married I did a good bit.

27767. What?—A cigar maker.

27768. Kemp has told us that you met him on the Saturday afternoon in Brick Lane, and you asked him to go to a house?—I do not remember it.

27769. I must ask you to be a little bit careful about this. You heard him say that in the box just now?—Yes.

27770. Was that the truth, or was it a lie?—I do not remember my saying that.

27771. Be a little bit careful. Did you go to a house with him?—I was bathing my two little children when a gentleman came to my house.

27772. Did you go to the house with Kemp at which his statement was taken?—How could I have gone to the house if I was in my own house?

27773. Was it your house Kemp came to?—It is not my house; it is my landlady's. I live upstairs on the first floor.

27774. Is it the house in which you live?—Yes.

27775. Is that the house to which Kemp came and gave his evidence?—Yes.

27776. How came Kemp to go to that house?—I do not know.

27777. You heard Kemp say that you asked him in Brick Lane to go to that house to give his statement?—I do not remember it.

27778. Is that true or false?—I do not remember it.

27779. But a thing like that does not happen without your remembering?—How could I have asked that man?

27780. Do not argue with me. Could a thing like that have happened and you have forgotten it?—I do not remember it.

27781. Have you ever asked anybody before in your life to give evidence?—Evidence?

27782. Yes. Have you ever asked anybody in your life before to come to your house to have his statement taken down?—No.

27783. Never?—No. This is the first time that such a thing has occurred in my place.

27784. If you had asked Kemp to do that you could not have forgotten it?—I never asked him.

27785. Therefore you wish these gentlemen to believe that Kemp told them a lie when he said that you asked him to come and give evidence—to come to your house?—I never asked him to go to my house.

27786. You are sure of that?—Yes. I was bathing my little children when the gentleman came to my house.

27787. Are you telling these gentlemen positively that you never spoke to Kemp in Brick Lane and asked him to come to your house?—Never.

27788. Listen. Is that absolutely untrue?—Yes, it must be.

Mrs. M. A. Hoy.

19 Dec. 1906.

27789. So that Kemp this afternoon here in this court told a deliberate untruth when he said that you asked him to go down to your house?—I never saw the fellow with my eyes. To tell you the truth, it caused a great bother in my place.

27790. Somehow or other he came to your house?—Yes.

27791. Kemp?—Yes.

27792. How did he come to go there?—I do not know. There was a gentleman there, and he was taking down my evidence.

27793. Did Kemp come in by himself?—I do not remember. I remember seeing Kemp's head outside the door.

27794. But how or why he got there you have not the remotest notion?—No.

27795. Now we will inquire how you were brought into it. You say a gentleman came to your house?—Yes.

27796. Would you recognise him?—Yes.

27797. Is he here?—He was the gentleman who brought this letter yesterday morning. (The letter was handed to the learned Commissioners.)

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I do not know by whom that letter is signed.

(Chairman.) It is signed by myself. It is the summons.

27798. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) You do not know his name, you say?—No.

27799. But it is quite plain that the same gentleman who brought you that was the gentleman who came to your house and took your statement?—Yes.

27800. How came he to go to your house?—I do not know.

27801. Was it the first time you had ever seen him?—Yes. I tell you I was surprised when I saw him. They told me a gentleman wanted me.

27802. Can you tell me what day it was?—It was on a Saturday.

27803. How long ago after Emms had been hit with the truncheon—how long after Emms had been assaulted?—I know this gentleman came on a Saturday.

27804. How long after Emms had been assaulted was it?—I think it was the following Saturday, but I am not quite sure.

27805. Had you not the remotest notion of how he came to go to you?—No. I never had such a thing before in my life.

27806. You know absolutely nothing about how he came to go to you?—No.

27807. Had you seen Harding during the week?—No.

27808. Do you know Harding?—No. I know him by sight, but never to speak to.

27809. Had you spoken to him, or he to you, during that week?—No. I have enough to do to look after my children to be out speaking.

27810. Did you go up to the police court the day after Emms was assaulted?—No.

27811. You did not go near the place?—No. I did not know anything occurred like that.

27812. Did you go up the second time?—No. This is the first time.

27813. Although you had given a statement, you did not go up the second time, and were not asked to go?—No.

27814. Did you sign the statement that the gentleman wrote down?—That I gave to the gentleman on the Saturday?

27815. Yes. Did you sign it?—Yes.

27816. Have you seen it since?—No.

27817. And you were not asked to give evidence at the police court?—No. This is the first time I had seen this gentleman—when he brought the letter yesterday morning.

27818. But you had seen him when he took the statement?—Yes. I mean the first time after.

27819. When was it he asked you to come here?—Yesterday morning between 11 and 12.

27820. From the Saturday when the statement was written down to yesterday morning has anybody spoken to you about this case at all?—No.

27821. Nobody?—No.

27822. Have you thought about it at all?—I did not know anything about it until the young man yesterday came to me.

27823. Have you thought about the case at all between the time it happened and yesterday morning?—I was thinking about it. I thought to myself it is a wonder I have not been called up.

27824. Did you read about it in the newspapers?—Yes, I read about it.

27825. Now I must ask you about the night it happened. Where had you been that night?—I was standing talking to Mrs. Jacobs in Sclater Street. She keeps a little provision shop—a grocer's shop.

27826. What were you doing out so late that night?—To tell you the truth of the matter, my mother ran short of milk. She had my baby round there, being bad, and I went to this shop to get some milk. Mrs. Jacobs said, "I have not got any milk—have a tin," so I took a tin of Nestlé's. My mother lives in Code Street, a turning round Pedley Street. She is a caretaker there.

27827. You had been going from Sclater Street with this tin of Nestlé's milk?—Yes.

27828. Where were you going to?—To mother's, near the station, just round the corner.

27829. Does she live in Pedley Street?—No, in Code Street.

27830. To go from Sclater Street to Code Street you had to go under the arch. You walked under the arch and towards Pedley Street?—Yes, to come from Sclater Street.

27831. You had to walk under the arch, and then Pedley Street would be on your left-hand side?—Yes.

27832. Did you see anything, or notice anything, or hear anything before you got to Pedley Street?—No.

27833. When you got to Pedley Street, was there a considerable crowd of people assembled?—There were a few Jew people up the street.

27834. They had been attracted by this quarrelling between the constable and Emms?—Yes.

27835. You judged by that that a quarrel had been going on for some little time before you got up there?—I saw the policeman shove Emmsy.

27836. Before you got there a number of people had collected?—There were a few at the corner of the street.

27837. But they had got there to see what was going on, according to you, had they not before?—No, they came after.

27838. I asked you whether, when you got up there, there were not a number of people, and you said "Yes"?—Not a number of people.

27839. A dozen?—About that. A lot of Jews live round there.

27840. They were looking at what was going on when you got up there?—No, I did not see that.

27841. I am asking you what were they doing when you got up there?—When I got up where?

27842. When you got to where you could see the constable and the young man, were not these people looking on and seeing what was going on between the constable and the young man?—No, they stood by.

27843. They stood by looking on?—Yes.

27844. Then you came up?—No, I was there. I was there when the people came up.

27845. But some of the people got there before you did?—A few.

27846. There were a few people up there when you got there, and those few people were looking on at the constable and the man?—Yes.

27847. Then you came up. How far down Pedley Street were they when you first came up to the corner of Pedley Street?—Here is the printer's, and here is the Jews' workshop (pointing). It happened just there.

27848. Were they as far down Pedley Street as from you to that wall?—No, not so far—about as far as that post there. There is a printer's shop at one corner, and there is like a little panelling in wood—that is the Jews' workshop.

27849. On which side of Pedley Street were they?—On the right-hand side where the woodwork is—where the panelling is.

27850. Did you see any struggle between the constable and the man?—I only saw Emms trying to get away when the constable got hold of his collar.

27851. Did you know it was Emms at the time?—Yes. I only spoke to him when he was on the ground and tried to lift his head.

27852. Is the place rather dark?—It is rather a dark place. There is only one lamp there just outside the printer's. The station lamp goes out between 11 and 12 o'clock.

27853. The station lamp is an electric light?—Yes. It is not alight at night.

27854. You say that lamp goes out about 11 o'clock?—11 or 12 o'clock.

27855. So there is no light from the station lamp?—There is a little light from one corner, and there is a little light from the printer's.

27856. Would the printer's be open at that time?—No.

27857. Then, according to you, the place is quite dark at that time?—It is a dark place. When I go through it I run when I go round to mother's.

27858. You run because it is so dark that you are afraid?—Yes. It is dark down that way.

27859. But is it light enough to see everything that goes on between a policeman and a man when they are struggling together?—You can just see, you know. It is not too light. It is the same as John Street.

27860. That does not help me very much. We want to know whether, in your opinion, it is light enough to be able to see distinctly what happens between two men when they are struggling?—Yes.

27861. You think it is?—There are two lamps, one at one corner and one at another.

27862. A moment ago you told me you ran through it because you are afraid?—Yes, it is dark. It is not too light.

27863. Is it light enough to be able to see what happens when two men are struggling?—I think so.

27864. Is it your suggestion that the constable hit the man without any reason at all?—Yes. Emms tried to get away.

27865. The constable was a bigger man than Emms, was he not?—I do not think much bigger.

27866. According to you, there was nobody else there attacking the constable?—No, I never saw them.

27867. Did you notice whether the constable seemed exhausted or not?—No.

27868. Did you notice at any time whether the constable seemed exhausted?—No.

27869. You did not notice that?—No.

27870. Your suggestion is that the constable drew his truncheon without any provocation at all and without any necessity?—Emms tried to get away from him. He had to hold him by the coat.

27871. Which hand had the constable hold of him with?—He had hold of him by the collar.

27872. But which hand of the constable?—I could not say.

27873. Had he got his truncheon out when you got there or not?—Yes, because he hit him across the head.

27874. He had drawn it before you got there?—No, I was at the corner.

27875. Did you see him draw it?—Yes. He hit him on the head with it.

27876. I am asking you whether you saw the constable draw his truncheon. Do you understand what I mean?—Yes.

27877. You saw him draw it, did you?—Yes.

27878. Which hand did he draw it with?—I could not tell you.

27879. At the time he drew his truncheon had he got hold of Emms?—Emms was on the ground, the first blow he hit him.

27880. He was on the ground the first blow. You are quite sure of that?—Yes.

27881. So that Emms was actually on the ground?—Yes, and he had his knee on him like that. (Illustrating.)

27882. That was the first blow?—Yes.

27883. Are you quite sure about that?—Yes, he fell with the first blow.

27884. A moment ago you told me the first blow was when he was on the ground?—I just now said the same, did I not?

27885. Do not let us have any mistake about it?—I say the first blow he fell to the ground.

27886. Then you misunderstood me, or I misunderstood you?—I have just answered the same thing over again.

27887. You say now you saw the constable draw his truncheon?—And hit him.

27888 Did you see that?—Yes.

27889. At the time he drew his truncheon had he hold of Emms or not?—Yes, he had.

27890. He had hold of him?—Yes.

27891. So that he had hold of him with one hand?—And hit him with his other.

27892. And drew his truncheon with the other?—Yes.

27893. That is right?—Yes.

27894. How near were you to him at that time?—Here is the Jews' workshop, and I was at the corner of the lamp post.

27895. How far would that be?—From here to there. (Illustrating.) I was afraid to go nearer.

27896. Was anybody between you and them?—There was like a couple of men passing by on the other side.

27897. The other side is not between you and them?—It is not very far.

27898. Was there anybody between you and the constable and Emms?—There were some women standing there.

27899. Between you and Emms?—Yes.

27900. So that these people were between you and the constable and Emms at the time you say you saw what you are now describing?—What people?

27901. Some women?—They were standing there outside the printer's.

27902. And between you and the constable?—They were standing there, and I was standing at the corner.

27903. Was anybody standing between you and the constable?—No, there was nobody passing. They were down at the courtway.

27904. Do you wish the Commissioners to understand that there was nobody between you?—No.

27905. So that you could see quite well what was happening?—Yes.

27906. And you saw that happen, did you?—Yes.

27907. And there was no necessity for it?—No.

27908. And no reason for it?—No, not that I know of.

27909. Did the first blow knock him to the ground?—Yes, he fell to the ground on the back of his head.

27910. Did the constable hit him on the back of his head?—Yes, like this, here. (Illustrating.) He fell back.

27911. How could you see that?—He fell back.

27912. Do you not think if a man was hit on the back of his head he would fall forward?—He fell back on the panelling.

27913. Do you say he was hit at the back of his head?—Yes.

27914. What makes you say that?—Because I saw it.

27915. Did you see the blow struck him on the back of his head?—Yes.

27916. You did?—Yes.

27917. And although it struck him on the back of his head he fell backward?—Yes.

27918. Please be careful. Do you say positively that that blow which you saw which knocked him backward struck him on the back of his head?—Yes, just here. (Illustrating.)

27919. You swear that?—Yes, and the man fell back against the panelling.

27920. We know he had a blow on the front?—Yes.

Mrs. M. A. Hoy.

19 Dec. 1906.

That was when he was on the ground and tried to rise, when the constable hit him again.

27921. You say after the constable had knocked him down in that way the constable knelt on him?—Yes. He tried to rise, and I could see his knee up like that. (Illustrating.)

27922. He knelt on him with both knees?—No, one knee.

27923. He knelt on him and hit him on the ground?—Yes.

27924. What did you do?—I screamed. I was frightened. There were two or three women and some men there.

27925. Were there a number of people there?—They did gather round. I said, "Look at that man. I think he is dead." He lay in a pool of blood.

27926. Did you see anybody do anything to the constable?—I saw a man hit a policeman. A short man he was.

27927. Was that when the policeman was kneeling on Emms?—No.

27928. When was it?—That was when he was standing at the side.

27929. Before he struck him the first time?—No.

27930. When?—That was after he struck him.

27931. After he struck him both times?—Yes, I saw a short man hit him.

27932. What happened after that? Did you stay there till the ambulance came?—Yes.

27933. How long was that?—That was a quarter of an hour or 20 minutes after.

27934. During that time what was the constable who hit Emms doing?—He went away.

27935. He went right away?—Yes.

27936. Did he go right away?—I do not know whether he went right away or stopped at the corner. I stopped where the crowd was in front of Emms.

27937. Do you say the constable who hit Emms did not remain there?—I did not see him go away, there was such a crowd round.

27938. And you cannot say what became of the policeman?—No.

27939. Do you know Mrs. Bloom, the woman who keeps a stall at the corner?—Yes.

27940. Did you see her there?—Yes, I saw her there.

27941. How long have you known her?—She knows my mother well.

27942. Do you know her to speak to?—I have never spoken to her, I think, but once or twice since I have been living there.

27943. Do you know her to speak to?—I know her just to nod to.

27944. Did you see her kneel down and speak to Emms?—No. It was me who spoke to Emms.

27945. It was not Mrs. Bloom at all?—I could not see Mrs. Bloom at all. I do not know what she did. I knelt down to him and lifted his head, but he could not speak.

27946. If Mrs. Bloom had done that you must have seen it—if Mrs. Bloom had knelt down on the ground?—To tell you the truth, the police would not allow anybody to go near.

27947. That again is something new. Are you suggesting that the police would not let anyone go near?—Yes.

27948. Do you mean that they prevented Mrs. Bloom doing it?—There were such a lot of women there.

(Chairman.) I do not think Mrs. Bloom actually said she raised him.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) No, but she knelt down and spoke to him.

(Chairman.) It was Mrs. Martha Allen who did say lady raised his head, but Mrs. Allen did not say was Mrs. Bloom.

(Mr Eldon Bankes.) I was speaking of Mrs. Bloom.

27949. However, you did not see Mrs. Bloom?—I saw Mrs. Bloom in the crowd, but I do not think it was Mrs. Bloom who raised his head. It was me.

27950. I understand you to say that you have not spoken to anybody about this between the Saturday you made your statement and yesterday?—Yes.

27951. You have not?—I have never spoken to anybody only to this gentleman who came yesterday morning.

27952. Who did you come to the court with to-day?—Mr. Measures, that gentleman there (pointing).

27953. Did you know him before?—I have known him a good many years.

27954. Did you two come alone?—Yes.

27955. What time did you get to the court?—I think it was just after 11.

27956. Did Kemp come with you?—I think he did; he was at the back of us.

27957. I ask you whether anybody came with you?—To tell you the truth, I did not know where he was. The gentleman who brought this letter said, "Do you know where it is?" He said, "Mr. Measures will show you where it is."

27958. I asked you a plain question, and that was whether Kemp came with you this morning?—Yes, he came with me.

27959. If he came with you, why did not you say so at first?—I never spoke to the man.

27960. Never mind whether you spoke to him. That was not my question?—I came with Mr. Measures.

My question was whether Kemp came with you, too.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I do not think that is fair.

27961. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Did you come on the same 'bus with Kemp?—I came with Mr. Measures.

27962. Was Kemp on the same 'bus?—Yes.

27963. Why could you not have told us so at first?—You never asked me. I did. I said he was at the back of us.

27964. Was anybody else on the same 'bus who is here now?—No, only Mr. Measures and Kemp.

27965. Were there not four of you?—No, not that I know of.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) May I see the statement that this lady made on Saturday? I believe you have got a copy of it.

(Chairman.) I have not got it at all.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I am told a copy has been supplied to the Commissioners.

(Chairman.) I see what you mean. You had better produce the original, because I do not know whether what we have is a copy.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) This contains my notes.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Somebody behind me says they are his notes.

(Chairman.) Where is the document signed by Mrs. Hoy?

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) Here it is. (Producing.)

(Chairman.) Will you extract it from your notes, or your proof, or whatever it is, and hand it to Mr. Leslie or to Mr. Bankes?

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) On it there are notes for me, and I was simply folding that over so that it could not be read.

(Chairman.) Is there a note on the original?

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) On the original paper, but not on the original note. It might be torn off, leaving the original notes intact.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I ask to see the document in its present state.

(Chairman.) As it was signed by the lady?

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) Of course, as it was, when it was signed by the lady, it had not these notes on it.

(Mr Eldon Bankes.) I ask that the document may be handed to the Commissioners.

(Chairman.) I think anybody who writes on an original document takes a risk about the matter.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) That is for you to say. I am perfectly willing to hand it to you, but as the notes are addressed to me, rightly or wrongly, I submit that my friend has no right to look at them any more than he has a right to read my brief. (The Witness's statement was handed to the learned Commissioners.)

(Chairman.) I have not read this yet, but I understand this is something which has been written with a view to instructing Mr. Schultess-Young. Is that so?

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) That is so.

(Chairman.) Then I will not read it.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) You are perfectly welcome to do so.

(Chairman.) If I read it, then Mr. Bankes ought to read it.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I ask you to read it so that you may instruct yourself as to what is in it.

(Chairman.) They are instructions not to me, but to Mr. Schultess-Young.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) The gentleman behind me does not say so.

(Mr. Timewell.) Yes.

(Chairman.) It is really part of Mr. Schultess-Young's brief, with written notes in an improper place.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) The gentleman who wrote it keeps on saying it is not so, and that is the reason why I ask that you should judge as to what it is, because they cannot agree between themselves.

(Chairman.) There is nothing of substance in it.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) Mr. Bankes is entirely wrong. The gentleman who wrote it does not say so; it is quite the reverse. (The Witness's statement was handed to the learned Counsel.)

27966. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I will read this. The date on the top of it is 22nd October:—"Mary Ann Hoy, married, states—I reside 68, Bacon Street, E. On Monday, 22nd October, I was in Sclater Street at 12.30 a.m." Now listen. This was written and then struck out:—"I saw a lot of people running. I went to the corner of Pedley Street, and saw four policemen." Did you say that?—I said that, but it was a mistake.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) Is this the way to put a question—This was written, and then struck out? It was struck out before it was signed. Now what she did not say is put to her in cross-examination.

(Chairman.) What its value is is another matter. Mr. Bankes is clearly within his right in putting the question.

27967. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Had the gentleman got this ready written out before he came to you?—No.

27968. Did he only write down what you told him?—Yes.

27969. Did you tell him those words that are now struck out? Did you tell him, "I saw a lot of people running"?

27970. (Chairman.) There is no harm in it?—I said it because I was a bit nervous.

27971. You said something, and then, on reading it over and further conversation, it was struck out?—Yes, I was so nervous when you see a man coming into your place that you have never seen in your life before.

27972. Those words not struck out is what you did tell this gentleman, and is the evidence you told him you were prepared to give?—Yes.

27973. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) When he first came you were so nervous that by mistake you told him this?—Yes.

27974. That was the first thing you told him?—It was the first time I had seen the man in the place—it is enough to frighten you.

27975. Did he say to you, "Now that is not right," and did you strike it out, and did you then begin again?—I forgot myself.

27976. This is how it is written here: "I saw a lot of people running. I went to the corner of Pedley Street, and saw four policemen." Then it begins again: "I was in Brick Lane, and saw a man who I knew by sight." Is this what happened—that you began to tell him: "I saw a lot of people running. I went to the corner of Pedley Street, and saw four policemen," and then did he stop you, or tell you that that could not be right, or something of that sort?—No; I bethought myself then, you see.

27977. You began by telling him something you had not seen? Is that right? How came you to tell the gentleman this?—Tell him what?

27978. To tell him: "I saw a lot of people running. I went to the corner of Pedley Street, and saw four policemen"?—I tell you I said that because, seeing the man, I was afraid.

27979. Do you mean you were afraid of the gentleman who came to speak to you?—Yes. Mrs. M. A. Hoy. 19 Dec 1906

27980. So that you told him what you knew was false to begin with?—No, that was not false. Anybody is liable to make a mistake.

27981. Everybody is liable to make a mistake?—This is the first time I have entered such a place, and I hope it will be the last.

27982. This story begins in a way which would indicate that you had not come up to that place until the four policemen had got there?—No.

27983. I will read it again: "On Monday, 22nd October, I was in Sclater Street at 12.30 a.m."—that is right, is it not?—Yes.

27984. Were you in Sclater Street at 12.30 a.m.?—I was coming from Sclater Street.

27985. At 12.30 a.m.?—Yes.

27986. So that you were in Sclater Street at 12.30 a.m.?—I was in the shop at Sclater Street; it did not shut before a quarter to one.

27987. You were there at 12.30?—Yes.

27988. You started from Sclater Street at 12.30?—Yes.

27989. Then you went on to tell the gentleman: "I was in Sclater Street at 12.30 a.m. I saw a lot of people running. I went to the corner of Pedley Street, and saw four policemen." If that is right you did not get on to the scene until the four policemen had got there. How came you to tell the gentleman that which is struck out in the sense that it is inaccurate, because you begin again with another story altogether.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I do not know whether the Commissioners have a copy of this. I expect your statement is a statement that does not indicate this.

(Chairman.) Our statement does indicate it. It is a facsimile of that document. It is a very proper course for the gentleman to have taken, and I am quite following your cross-examination.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I will not be too long. "I was in Brick Lane and saw a man who I know by sight. He was going under the arch." Did you tell the gentleman that?—I do not remember it.

27990. That is something quite different from what you have told us to-day, is it not? I will read on. "He was going under the arch. He stopped there talking to a man. A constable came along and told him to move on and pushed him. He said, 'All right, don't push me,' and the policeman pushed him down." Did you tell the gentleman that?—I do not remember. It is a long time ago. I might have done.

27991. At any rate, when you said this, it was much nearer the time the thing happened than to-day. I will read on. "He got to his feet, but he was knocked down again by the constable, who had something in his hand, I did not see what it was." You have sworn to me to-day that in Pedley Street you saw the constable draw his truncheon when you were as near to him as I am to you, and hit the man a deliberate blow?—Yes.

27992. And yet you told this gentleman at the time that he struck him on the head "I did not see what it was," and you ask the Commissioners to believe that you have not spoken to anybody about this case between the time you gave this statement and to-day?—Who have I got to speak to?

27993. Do you ask the Commissioners to believe you have not spoken to anybody?—I have not spoken to anybody.

27994. I will read on. "It was just at the entrance of a dark turning. The constable then blew his whistle, and several others came up. The man laid there all in the blood. I went up and spoke to him. He could not answer. I said to the policeman, 'Who's done this?' He said, 'I did, and a b——y good job if he was dead out of it.'"

(Chairman.) I think it is only fair to say that Mrs. Hoy was really the Commission's witness. We have summoned her, and the gentleman who sent us the document which you are reading from, in sending it very properly called our attention to the erasure, and said, "The lines struck out at her request are believed to be correct, but the two paragraphs following are unreliable." The witness is not to be taken as a witness vouched for by Mr. Schultess-Young.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) It would only have been fair to show me that, because for a witness to come and tell the story Mrs. Hoy has told in face of this, one would think a very improper thing had been done.

Mrs. M. A. Hoy.

13 Dec. 1906.

(Chairman.) Whatever comment may be made on the lady herself, no adverse comment can be made on Mr. Schultess-Young and the gentleman instructing him. This lady is the Commission's witness.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I am very glad to hear it, but I think it very inconvenient that the document should have been put before me without that explanation.

(Chairman.) Mr. Schultess-Young did examine the lady in chief, and she is his witness in that sense; but what I want to make perfectly clear is that Mr. Schultess-Young's client has behaved perfectly fairly.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) In every one of these cases which may happen to go before a Magistrate I always know what evidence is going to be given beforehand—that is, before the case goes into court—and I say, if there is the slightest doubt about a witness's evidence, "Do not put that evidence before the court."

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) I think it is a great pity that somebody did not communicate with us about it.

(Chairman.) I do not know. You must remember the basis of the inquiry.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Certainly, but it is hardly fair to me, to you, my friend, or to the witnesses, that I should embark on this inquiry without the information.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) The Commission had the information, I understand.

(Mr. Eldon Bankes.) "I went up and spoke to him. He could not answer. I said to the policeman, 'Who's done this?' He said, 'I did, and a b——y good job if he was dead out of it,' and pushed me away. He said he would take the man to the hospital on the ambulance. I went to the station to see the man when they took him there with Mrs. ——. The constable or the officer there told us he would take our message. I would not tell him, and he pushed us out violently so that we fell down. We were put in another room at the station, and as we came out the Inspector asked us what we had to say. Emms beckoned me; I was going towards him. He was seated on a chair, and his head was covered in blood. A policeman kneed him in the stomach, and they were using him roughly." After that I think I need not ask any further questions.

27995. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) I am sorry Mr. Eldon Bankes has gone. Is there any foundation for the suggestion of the learned counsel that perhaps your husband has been previously jealous of you. Have you ever had anything brought against you in any way?—No.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) I think it is scandalous that the suggestion should have been made, and it must have upset the witness to begin with. We know there is a difficulty in getting witnesses here.

(Chairman.) It simply escaped Mr. Bankes in answer to what the witness said, but he did not press it. The lady will understand that we do not suppose there is anything suggested against her.

27996. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) Has ever anything been said about your moral character, or against your virtue as a respectable woman?—No, I am lawfully married and got two children, thank God.

27997. I think your evidence was taken by a gentleman who called at your house unexpectedly?—Yes, on a Saturday afternoon he came.

27998. From that day to this, or until a day or two ago, have you been interviewed by anybody at all on behalf of Emms?—No, I never got anybody coming to the place.

27999. So that you come here simply because the Commissioners requested you to do so?—I would not have been here to-day but for this letter that came. My husband did not like me coming, but he said, "You will have to go."

28000. (Chairman.) It seems that you have given some varying accounts of what you saw on this night on different occasions. That is so, is it not?—Yes.

28001. You did sign the paper that this gentleman wrote down in your presence?—Yes.

28002. You have made a statement that is not the statement you have made to-day?—Yes. The children were crying all round me.

28003. That is what you say. You have no explanation to give more than the fact that you were nervous on that occasion?—That is all I can say. He turned round and said to me when he brought him in "Do not be afraid, it is all right. You go up and say what you have seen."

(Mr. Schultess Young.) The evidence except just the first part of it is practically the same.

(Witness.) I would not have been here to-day had I not been ordered. I have never been to such a place before. I have left my two children at home now.

28004. (Chairman.) You quite understand you have been giving different accounts of what you saw, and you say you were nervous when these gentlemen came?—Yes.

28005. Perhaps it may have been that you were inattentive, and you say your children were crying?—Yes, I was bathing them when the man came.

28006. You did not read over very carefully what he took down?—No.

28007. Did you read it over at all?—No.

28008. And then you signed it?—Yes.

28009. I rather gather from what I have been observing while you have been in the box that when this young man was knocked down by the truncheon, and you saw him with the blood on him, you were greatly shocked?—Yes, and I screamed, and I said, "Oh, my God!"

28010. The other women who were there were also much shocked?—Yes.

28011. Then I gather also that you went with Mrs. Martha Allen to the police station?—Yes.

28012. You asked her to go, I think?—Yes, I did. I said "Are you coming to see how that poor fellow is, and whether he is dead."

28013. Was it curiosity only, or compassion, or the desire to help, that made you go to the station?—I was afraid of the blood, because he did not speak, and I thought he was dead on the ground.

28014. You knew he was in the hands of four constables, and three other constables had come up, and there was an ambulance, and he was taken away carefully in the ambulance?—Yes.

28015. If it had been a friend of yours who had been injured by an accident, he could not have been better treated?—But he was in such a state.

28016. Supposing it had been a friend of yours who had been injured by an accident in the roadway, he could not have been better treated so far as being put in the ambulance was concerned?—He was put in quick and run off very quick. I said to the policeman, "Take him to the hospital."

28017. You do not make that a grievance, do you, that they went away so quickly?—No.

28018. You observed they were taking him to the station?—Yes.

28019. What made you go to the station?—I thought perhaps he was dead, seeing such a lot of blood.

28020. But supposing he was dead, unfortunately, why did you go to the station?—I thought that perhaps me knowing he was married and knowing his wife, and knowing he had been separated from his wife, I thought he would perhaps like me to let his wife know. But I was not allowed to speak to him. I had known his wife a good many years before ever he thought of marrying her, or knew her. We were both girls together.

28021. Have you ever spoken to Emms?—No, I never speak to the fellows.

28022. But you knew his character?—Yes.

28023. His character is not a good one?—I don't know nothing about his character, because I never speak to the fellow hardly.

28024. Why do you treat him like that if he is a man of good character. Why should you not have spoken to him?—I do not know what you mean.

28025. His wife is a very old friend of yours, and you were at school together?—Yes.

28026. You knew she had married Emms?—Yes.

28027. Why is it that you have never spoken to him?—When a man is separated from his wife and she sees you speak to him——

28028. He does not bear a very good character, I imagine?—I could not tell you. I know nothing about his character. I have enough to do to look after my own business.

28029. But is that so. It was very late at night, and it was no business of yours to go to the station?—But from knowing his wife I thought perhaps he would like me to let his wife know what had happened.

28030. Then what you wish us to understand, whether we accept the explanation or not, is that you went there not because you cared much about Emms, but because you cared a good deal about his wife?—To let his wife know what had happened.

28031. It was friendship for his wife that was the real inducement?—Yes, my knowing his wife for a good many years.

28032. Did you mention that to Mrs. Allen. Be careful?—I do not remember.

28033. You asked Mrs. Allen to go with you?—Yes.

28034. Did you give her any reason?—I said to her I would like to let his wife know. I said, "He is a married man and got two children."

28035. Mrs. Allen could not recollect that. I asked her whether you had given any reason for going to the station?—I said to her, "I would like to go in to ask whether he would like his wife to know. He is the father of two children." I said that outside the station, too.

28036. (Mr. Dickinson.) Did you let his wife know?—No.

28037. Have you spoken to his wife since?—No, I have not seen her.

28038. If you were so interested in letting his wife know what happened, why did you not let her know?—I went down to see if I could see her, but she had moved.

28039. When did you go down?—On the Saturday night, when the gentleman came to take that statement on the long sheet of paper.

28040. That was sometime afterwards. This was on Monday night?—On the Saturday I went. I never knew how he got on because I never went up to the Old Street Police Court.

28041. Is that all you wanted to ask him?—That is all, because I saw him bleeding so from the head.

28042. Do you know Mrs. Allen?—No.

28043. You do not know her at all?—No.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) It is Mrs ——— in the original statement from Mrs. Hoy. She did not know the name.

28044. (Mr. Dickinson.) I know that. (To the witness.) What made you speak to Mrs. Allen?—I said to her, "Will you come to the station along with me, missis." She said, "I don't mind." I said, "Perhaps that good fellow is dead by now, because the blood is running from his head." She said, "If you like I will come with you," and we both went.

28045. You did not know Mrs. Allen—you never saw her before?—No.

28046. Mrs. Allen told us that she saw a lady raise his head?—Yes, that was me.

28047. And she said the lady said, "Do you know me?"—Yes.

28048. Is that what you said?—I said that to Emms.

28049. Why did you say that?—Because he knew me and his wife were friends together.

28050. You told us you never spoke to him?—No, but he knew that I was friends with his wife.

28051. How long has he been separated from his wife?—I could not tell you that exactly.

28052. Months or years?—I do not think it is a twelvemonth yet.

28053. Have you seen his wife since they were separated?—I saw her one night a few months back.

28054. Only one night since she was separated?—Yes, it is very rare I saw her, because they have moved.

28055. Do I understand that according to the statement you made the first thing you saw was when you were in Brick Lane?—Yes.

28056. On which side of Brick Lane were you?—Coming under the arch.

28057. On which side of the road?—Under the arch on the left-hand side coming down by Sclater Street.

28058. You were on the left-hand side?—Yes.

28059. Then you say that you saw a man?—Yes.

28060. That was Emms?—Yes.

28061. Where was he?—Standing outside the doorway of the printer's, and the policeman said to him "Move on."

28062. You said "I saw the man Emms who was going under the arch"—the railway arch?—Yes.

28063. That was before he got to Pedley Street?—I do not remember saying that.

28064. The statement that you wrote out was as we have heard it read, "I was in Brick Lane and saw the man, who I know by sight," and that you have assented to—that you did see Emms in Brick Lane. "He was going under the arch"?—I do not remember it.

28065. Was he, or was he not, going under the arch when you first saw him?—I do not remember it.

28066. Then you said, "He stopped there talking to a man under the arch." Who was he talking to?—I do not know; I do not remember.

28067. You do not remember what?—Him talking to a man.

28068. You have said that he stopped there talking to a man?—That is what I said to that gentleman who came to my house in a hurry. I did not think he was a man who would take it all down.

28069. You mean to say that was quite inaccurate what you said, and when you said a constable came along and told him to move on, and pushed him, that is when he was talking to a man under the arch, that was also inaccurate?—There was no other man there when the constable pushed him.

28070. Were there no other people there at all when the constable pushed him?—There were people going along the street.

28071. There was no other man when he pushed him at all?—I did not see any man there.

28072. Emms has told us that the policeman was in some kind of altercation with other people when he came up. You did not see that?—I did not see that.

28073. Then what, in your opinion, started this whole thing?—I do not know what you mean.

28074. Something must have started it. What started this difference with the policeman? You have said that the policeman came along and told Emms to move on, and pushed him, and he said, "All right, don't push me." You saw that happen?—Yes.

28075. What made the policeman say that to him?—I do not know.

28076. Was he standing talking to somebody?—No, he was standing in the doorway like—going down that way.

TWENTY-NINTH DAY.

Monday, 28th January 1907.

PRESENT:

Sir David Brynmor Jones, K.C., M.P. (Chairman).

Rufus Daniel Isaacs, Esq., K.C., M.P.

Willoughby Hyett Dickinson, Esq., M.P. (Barrister-at-Law).

Charles Algernon Whitmore, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law).

J. W. St. Lawrence Leslie, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law) (Secretary).

J. F. Waley, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law) (Assistant-Secretary).

28 Jan. 1907.

(Chairman.) The Commission desire to announce that in their opinion a reasonable opportunity has been afforded to members of the public desiring to complain of misconduct on the part of particular constables, to lay their complaints before the Commission. The Commission have received a number of such complaints, they have considered them, and have investigated those of them which related to matters within the terms of reference in the warrant appointing the Commission, and which appeared to them to be typical or likely to assist them in making their report. They have decided (without, however, precluding themselves from further inquiry, if it should be deemed necessary) not to investigate any further cases of alleged misconduct against particular constables in dealing with cases of drunkenness and disorder (except the cases of Mr. Riley, Mr. Higgs, and Mr. Gamble or Pearce). They will, of course, finish the part heard case of Mr. Emms. They will also finish the case of Mr. Platt, and will hear any further complaints of a similar character. The Commission will also proceed to take general evidence.

(Earl Russell.) May I mention a matter in which a proof has been sent in to the Commission in connection with Tresadern's case, with regard to a raid on the King's Arms. A proof has been sent in by Mr. Smith, the manager, who gave evidence in that case. I should like to know whether the Commission would like to hear the particulars of that raid. It is alleged it is connected with the evidence given in Tresadern's case.

(Chairman.) If there has been any illegal action on the part of the police or anybody else, the person complaining will have his remedy in a court of law. I do not think we can hear any complaint with regard to it.

(Earl Russell.) The suggestion is, it is an attempt to intimidate a witness because of the evidence he has given.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) The matter is sub judice in this sense, that instructions have been given by the Commissioner of Police to oppose the renewal of the licence of this house on the ground that it has been used for the purpose of gambling. That matter will be dealt with by the justices next month.

(Chairman.) We cannot go into it.

(Earl Russell.) May I call attention to the report of the proceedings on the 19th December. At the beginning of the proceedings Mr. Bankes made a statement about Constable Michael Cann, who was one of the witnesses in Harding's case, and in the course of that statement he used these words: "Since then he has been examined by the Divisional Surgeon and by the Chief Surgeon as to his condition, and he has been returned as unfit to continue in the Service owing to his condition, resulting largely from these injuries." The words I want to call attention to are "resulting largely from these injuries." I am instructed that that statement is not capable of proof, and I should like the Commission to allow me to see the reports from these two surgeons, if they have been put in, and to allow the surgeons to be called and examined on that point.

(Chairman.) I have not got the shorthand notes before me at the moment, but I will consider that matter.

(Earl Russell.) I am told that that statement cannot be supported.

(Chairman.) I do not know that it is relevant at all to the matters before us.

(Earl Russell.) The suggestion that it resulted from these injuries which the Magistrate as a matter of fact found were not inflicted by Tresadern is surely somewhat relevant.

(Chairman.) I will take an opportunity during the adjournment of considering the matter.

(Earl Russell.) Then on the same morning I asked about the clerk's notes in the case of Mrs. Braham which were promised to be supplied on the occasion when that case first came on. I do not know whether they have yet been supplied to the Commission. They apparently had not been on the 19th December, and I should be glad to be allowed to see a copy of those notes in accordance with the Commission's promise that I should see them if any matter arose on them.

(Chairman.) That is a matter of application to the Secretary, if we have made any promise in the matter. We have not had them ourselves.

(Earl Russell.) That is what I was afraid of, but my friend promised they should be sent in to the Commission when the case first came on. You recollect that I said from the beginning it might turn out there were some discrepancies which made it material to pay attention to them.

(Chairman.) We have not had them yet, and if necessary we will send for them.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) My impression is we did see them during the course of the hearing.

(Chairman.) We will now take Riley's case.

(Earl Russell.) In Riley's case the witnesses present are James Riley and Edward Sweeney. I think the Commission has been informed where the other witnesses are, and I do not know what steps have been taken about them, but the two I have mentioned are the only ones we have in court this morning.

James Riley, sworn.

J. Riley.

28077. (Earl Russell.) Is your name James Riley?—Yes.

28078. Do you live at 21, Loudoun Street, Wapping?—Yes.

28079. Is that where you are living now?—Yes.

28080. Your age is 21?—Yes.

(Chairman.) What Police Division is this in?

28081. (Earl Russell.) The H Division. On the 21st November last year were you having some dispute in Old Gravel Lane?—Yes.

28082. Who with?—With another man.

28083. What was his name?—I do not know his name.

28084. About what hour was that?—About ten past eleven I was having a row with him.

28085. Did a constable come up while that dispute was going on, or after it was over?—While it was going on.

28086. What constable was that?—I forget his number.

28087. Would you know the man if you saw him again?—Yes; he is over there (pointing to a police-constable).

28088. That is P.C. 134 H. Is that the man?—Yes.

28089. What did he do when he came up?—He came up and claimed hold of me, and as he was taking me he took me about ten yards away from the other man, and then the other constable came up, and the two of them took me down Prusom Street.

28090. Who was the other man?—He is over there alongside 134.

28091. That is 332 H?—Yes.

28092. Was anything said to you by the first constable?—He never said nothing; he claimed hold of me.

28093. Neither of them said anything?—No.

28094. How did they take hold of you?—134 H claimed hold of me first and took me a little way, and then the other one came up and got hold of the other side of my arm, and they both took me down Prusom Street.

28095. They were holding you by the arm?—Each one.

28096. What happened to the man you were quarrelling with?—They let him go.

28097. The two constables kept hold of you, and took you along?—Yes.

28098. Where to?—They were taking me down Prusom Street when P.C. 134, who was on the right-hand side of me, hit me with his right hand, which caused me to fall to the ground in a dazed condition. He dragged me about 200 yards.

28099. That was P.C. 134 H?—Yes.

28100. Where did he strike you?—In the right eye. It caused it to close immediately I got the blow.

28101. You say you fell down?—Yes.

28102. After you fell down what happened?—They dragged me along.

28103. On the ground?—Yes.

28104. How much of you was on the ground—were you lying down altogether, or were you only partly down?—I was only partly down. They were dragging me along, and each had hold of me by each arm.

28105. Did you try to go on foot?—I was in a dazed condition; I could hardly stand.

28106. What happened after you had been dragged 200 yards?—They let me sit down for a while, and gave me a rest.

28107. Where did you sit?—On the pavement.

28108. About how long?—About ten minutes.

28109. As long as that?—Yes, and then they took me along to the station.

28110. When you came to the station were you charged with anything?—Before I was charged I complained to the inspector about my eye, and he said, "Sit down," and I sat on a chair. He sent for the doctor, and when the doctor came the doctor bandaged my eye up, and I was bandaged all round my head. I could only see out of the one eye, and he said, "Walk up and down." I walked up the room straight first, and as I was coming back I happened to make a slip, and he said to me, "You are drunk."

28111. Who said that?—The doctor.

28112. What did you tell the inspector on duty had happened about P.C. 134?—I told him that the constable hit me in the eye.

28113. What did he say then?—He said "We will send for the doctor."

28114. Where was P.C. 134 when you told the inspector that?—In the room.

28115. Did he say anything?—He was mumbling, but I did not hear him say anything until the doctor came in, and I said to the doctor, "You might let that constable go out of the room. He said, "Why?" Then I said, "He will hear what I say to you, and what you say it is. The constable will say the same thing."

28116. Did P.C. 134 H say anything until the doctor was there?—The doctor said something about that it could be done by a fall, and then the constable said in the presence of the doctor that it was a fall. I said to the doctor, "No, it was a punch," and the constable said it was a fall.'

28117. Did the doctor ask you anything about drinking?—He asked me what I had had to drink, and I told him I had a Kola about 11 o'clock.

28118. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) What is a Kola?—A mineral water.

28119. (Chairman.) Where did you have that?—I had the mineral water in the public-house.

28120. (Earl Russell.) Did he ask you about any other drinks besides the Kola?—He asked me if I was drinking any beer in the afternoon, and I said yes, I had had a couple of glasses.

28121. Did he say anything about your condition as to being drunk or not drunk?—He said, "You are drunk."

28122. Were you charged with anything?—They never shoved me in the place to charge me with anything. They put me down in the cells afterwards.

28123. You were not put into the dock in the charge room?—No.

28124. Were you told you were charged with anything?—All the Inspector said was, "I charge you with being drunk and disorderly," and they bunged me downstairs.

28125. Was that before the doctor came or after?—After.

28126. Was no charge made against you formally before the doctor came?—No, none whatsoever.

28127. Did you make any answer to the inspector when he said that?—No, I never had any time. They bunged me down too quick.

28128. How long was it before you were bailed after you were taken down to the cells?—Seven o'clock in the morning. They would not allow bail before that time.

28129. Did any bail come for you before that time that you know of?—I had a brother who went up there for bail, and they told him to come up early in the morning.

28130. He told you that. You were not told he was there?—No, I was not told at all.

28131. The first you knew of anyone coming was when you were released at 7 o'clock?—Yes.

28132. Did any constable say anything to you that made you say they would not let you be bailed earlier?—No.

28133. The same morning as you were released you came up at the Thames Police Court before Mr. Dickinson?—Yes.

28134. What evidence was given against you then?—I was charged with being drunk and disorderly and using obscene language.

28135. You knew what the charge was, then?—Yes.

28136. Drunk and disorderly and using obscene language?—Yes.

28137. Who gave evidence against you?—Two constables.

28138. The same two?—Yes.

28139. Did you say anything to the magistrate then about being assaulted?—Yes; I told him the same statement.

28140. Was anything said about it or done?—He asked me if I would like to have the case put back, and I said yes.

28141-2. Did you have it put back?—Yes, till the following Saturday.

28143. What happened when it came on again?—When it came on again I know that the police had a solicitor defending them.

J. Riley.

28 Jan. 1907.

28144. Were there any other witnesses?—I had another witness.

28145. Who was that?—Shepherd.

28146. James Shepherd?—Yes.

28147. Did the police call the inspector?—Yes, they called the inspector on the first day that I was there.

28148. Then the case was put back so that you might bring another witness?—I do not think it was put back because of that. I think it was put back so that the police should have a solicitor to defend them.

28149. After you told your story to the magistrate, did he suggest that you should do anything, or was anything said at all about your complaint?—All he said was that there was not enough evidence, or something like that, to go on with the inquiry, and therefore he must give me the penalty of the law and fine me 2s. 6d. or one day.

28150. And that you paid?—No.

28151. You did the one day?—Yes.

28152. You have been convicted, I think, several times before, have you not?—Yes.

28153. You were convicted three and a-half years ago for stealing some horns from a barge?—Yes.

28154. You had three months' hard labour?—I do not think it was hard labour. I got three months in the second division.

28155. You have been convicted several times for drunkenness?—Yes.

28156. The heaviest penalty being eight days?—Yes.

28157. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) How old were you when this case of stealing horns from a barge was heard?—I was just turned 17.

28158. (Chairman.) What is your age now?—Twenty-one.

28159. (Earl Russell.) I think you complained once before of being ill-used when taken into custody?—Yes. Some time in the beginning of last year I was in my own street, and I was on my way to my house, when I was taken into custody by two constables, and while I was on the road to the station in Old Gravel Lane they hit me at the back of the neck and shoved me and knocked me quite unconscious, and I had to lay in a helpless state on the ground till an ambulance came and took me to the station. There must have been a rough-and-tumble somewhere else between the constables and two men, because one constable had a black eye and the other man was ill-used. They brought these charges up against me, and which I knew nothing about.

28160. You were charged with assaulting the police?—I was charged with assaulting these police constables.

28161. And with being drunk?—Yes.

28162. What were you convicted of?—I was charged with assaulting the police and being drunk, and when I got before the Magistrate the Magistrate asked me if I had any witnesses. I only knew of one.

28163. What did the Magistrate find you guilty of that time. Did he find you guilty of the assault or not?—No.

28164. Did he find you guilty of being drunk?—Yes.

28165. What were you fined for that?—10s. 6d. or seven days.

28166. On that occasion did you pay the money?—Yes.

28167. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) On that occasion was the doctor called in to certify as to whether you were drunk—that was in 1905?—Yes.

28168. The same doctor?—Yes.

28169. Were you very violent at the police station upon that occasion?—No.

28170. He certified you were drunk then, did he not?—Yes.

28171. You disputed that you were drunk?—Yes.

28172. What had you had on that occasion, do you remember—in July, 1905? Was that Kola?—No, I had some drink then.

28173. The same doctor on this occasion in November certified you to be drunk?—Yes.

28174. He had seen you before? When were you tried for stealing from the barge?—I was tried at Thames Police Court and the North London Sessions.

28175. Were other people with you?—Yes.

28176. How many?—Two.

28177. What name were you tried in?—James Riley.

28178. That would be in 1903?—I think it was that year.

28179. Or 1902 was it?—I could not tell which year it was.

28180. Were you charged with gambling at the Thames Police Court in 1904?—I was charged with gambling once in my life, and I was discharged.

28181. Was that on the 2nd July, 1904?—I could not tell you.

28182. That would be about the date?—Yes.

28183. Then on the 23rd July, 1905, was the occasion when you were found guilty of drunkenness and assaulting three police-constables?—Yes.

28184. On that occasion you were fined 10s. or seven days?—I was discharged of the assault on the police and fined 10s. 6d. or seven days for being drunk.

28185. I must clear that up if you say that. I suggest you were convicted both of drunkenness and of the assault?—I was discharged of the assault, because I had two witnesses to prove that I had nothing to do with it.

28186. You had never been convicted of drunkenness before, and you suggest you were fined 10s. or seven days for being drunk?—10s. 6d. or seven days for being drunk. I was discharged of the assault.

28187. We shall have to clear that up. On the 30th January, 1906, you were convicted on a summons at the Thames Police Court?—Yes.

28188. What was that for?—That was supposed to be for holloaing after the police. The reason why I was summoned on that occasion was that when I was charged with assaulting the police the police were after me on that occasion, and I got discharged, and one of the constables who had me on that occasion was down outside the door where I lived, and I was looking out of the window at him and two more. It was the same constable who was up on that other case, and that was how I got summoned. He never asked me my name and address because he knew it. That is the way he had his own back.

28189. You were summoned for using obscene language?—Yes.

28190. And convicted?—Yes, and I got eight days.

28191. You were find 10s. and 2s. costs?—Yes.

28192. You paid that?—No.

28193. What did you get?—Eight days.

28194. Then on the 6th June in the same year were you convicted of being drunk and disorderly?—Yes, I was charged with being drunk.

28195. And convicted?—Yes.

28196. And fined 10s. or five days?—Yes.

28197. Then the next occasion you came up was on the 24th of November, the occasion we are now dealing with?—Yes.

28198. You had a quarrel with a man outside a public-house?—Yes.

28199. Called the Angel?—I was not quarrelling with him outside that house. I was quarrelling with him outside another house.

28200. Outside the White Swan?—Yes.

28201. That is close by?—Yes.

28202. Was it one man you were quarrelling with or two men?—There were two men together, but I was only quarrelling with one.

28203. Were you drunk?—No.

28204. Did the constable Mizen, the first constable, ask you to go away?—He never asked me anything of the kind.

28205. Did the other man go away?—When the constable got hold of me the other man went away.

28206. You say the constable never asked you to go away at all?—No.

28207. Had you known that other constable before?—No.

28208. You had never seen him?—I had seen him.

28209. You had no dealings with him at all?—No.

28210. You say he claimed hold of you and took you away. Did you go quietly?—Yes.

28211. Where was it that you were claimed by the first constable, 134 H. Mizen?—Outside the public-house first.

28212. On the pavement?—No, in the road.

28213. That is outside the White Swan?—Yes.

28214. How far had you gone before the other constable came up?—About ten or twelve yards, because the other constable was behind on the kerb.

28215. You were going quietly at the time?—Yes.

28216. The other constable came up and claimed you, too?—Yes.

28217. You were going quiet?—Yes.

28218. Yet the two constables came and took you one on each side?—Yes.

28219. Then you walked on quite quietly?—Certainly.

28220. How far did you walk on in that way quite quietly before anything happened?—I walked about 170 yards 28221. Was any conversation going on between you and the constables during that time?—No.

28222. Not a word passed at all on either side?—No.

28223. Then one of them suddenly hit you?—Yes.

28224. Did he give you any warning?—No. I was looking straight in front, and I got the punch in my eye while it was open.

28225. Did he give any sort of explanation why he wanted to hit you at this time, 170 yards away, when you were going quite quietly and there was another constable on the other side of you?—No.

28226. No reason at all?—No.

28227. Did he say anything?—No.

28228. He used no expression at all when he hit you?—No.

28229. How often did he hit you?—Once.

28230. Only once?—Yes.

28231. You are quite clear about that?—Yes.

28232. Once in the eye?—Yes.

28233. It was the right eye?—Yes.

28234. Did you fall?—I just went down on to my knee like that (describing), and then he dragged me along.

28235. You did not go further down than your knee?—No.

28236. Your face was never on the ground?—No.

28237. Were you on the pavement at that time?—I was just on the edge of the pavement.

28238. The constable who was on your right was then on the pavement?—No.

28239. Was he in the road?—Yes.

28240. You were on the kerb and he was in the road?—Yes.

28241. With regard to the other constable, was he on your left, between you and the wall?—Yes.

28242. And all that happened to you was that you went down on your knee?—Yes.

28243. Then you were dragged along—how far?—About 200 yards.

28244. Did you see another constable there at all?—No.

28245. He was asked to go for the ambulance?—No, I was in such a dazed condition.

28246. Then you say you were set down on the pavement for some considerable space of time—you say about ten minutes?—Yes.

28247. To recover yourself?—Yes.

28248. The ambulance did not come, did it?—No.

28249. Then you got up and went quietly to the station?—Yes.

28250. Were there any more assaults?—No.

28251. It was just that one blow from this strange constable?—Yes.

28252. At the station did you see the Inspector there?—Yes.

28253. That is Inspector Sanders?—Yes.

J. Riley.

28 Jan. 1907.

28254. Did Mizen, when you got to the station, say to the Inspector that he had brought you in and charged you with being drunk and disorderly and making use of obscene language in Old Gravel Lane, Wapping?—Yes.

28255. The Inspector heard that?—Yes.

28256. Did the Inspector notice your eye, and ask you how you got your injury?—I told him the constable punched me.

28257. (Chairman.) Answer the question, did he ask you how you got the injury to your eye?—No, I told him.

28258. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) What I put to you is that the Inspector said to you, "How did you come by that injury to your eye"?—No.

28259. And you said, "He did it," pointing to Mizen?—No.

28260. Did the Inspector examine your eye at that time?—The Inspector looked at it, and sent for the doctor.

28261. He looked at it closely?—Yes.

28262. Had you got any mud on your cheek?—No.

28263. Had you got a scratch on your nose?—No.

28264. You are quite sure about that?—Yes.

28265. Had you any blood on your cheeks at all?—There was no blood at all. There was no cut or anything.

28266. No cut or scratch of the skin at all?—No.

28267. The Inspector sent for the doctor, and the doctor came. Did he put a bandage on your eye?—Yes.

28268. Did the doctor ask you, "Have you had a fall"?—No. The doctor never asked me if I had a fall.

28269. When he put the bandage on your eye did he tell you to take it off the next morning?—No. I went to the hospital the next morning.

28270. Did you still have the same bandage on your eye when you came up on the 24th?—I had an hospital bandage on.

28271. Another bandage?—Yes.

28272. You still had the bandage on your eye on the 24th?—Yes.

28273. Were your clothes muddy at all?—No; only the bottoms of my trousers.

28274. Was the constable Mizen on the ground at all?—No.

28275. Never off his feet?—No.

28276. Were his clothes muddy?—I never saw them muddy, and that is what they asked him up at the police court, and he said he had to brush them to go on duty.

28277. Were the constable Mizen's clothes muddy all over?—No, they were not.

28278. Not muddy at all, and he was never on the ground?—No, he was not on the ground.

28279. You called a man named Shepherd as a witness?—Yes.

28280. Did you hear Shepherd say that the constable—that is Mizen—struck you on the head about twice?—No, I never heard him.

28281. And on the ribs about three times?—I never heard him.

28282. Did you hear him say that "the prisoner fell to the ground and he hit him"? Did you fall to the ground?—Not right to the ground, but with my knee bending over.

28283. "Constable 134 hit him while on the ground." Did you hear Shepherd say that?—No.

28284. Did you hear him say this: "I suppose Constable 134 went to hit the prisoner, and missed and fell. I do not know otherwise how he fell." Did you hear Shepherd say that?—No.

28285. This was all given in evidence on the 24th?—I never heard him say that.

28286. If he said it, would it be true?—When the constable hit me on the eye it properly dazed me, and two of them had hold of me, so I cannot say whether the constable was on his knee, because I was in such a dazed condition.

28287. Did he fall to the ground when he hit you?—To my recollection he never fell to the ground. I hardly know what I was doing myself when I got the punch.

28288. Can you tell me the place where it was that you were struck and fell on your knee?—It was just outside a court.

28289. Is that a court called Choppings Court that bends round from Old Gravel Lane and leads up towards Raynes Street, and then comes into Prusom Street?—Yes.

28290. There is a post at the end of it?—Yes.

28291. That is the spot where you went down on your knee and where you say you were struck in the eye by the constable?—Just outside there.

28292. How long have you known Shepherd?—I have seen his face before, but that was the first day I ever had any conversation with him.

28293. Did you have any conversation with him that day?—How I came to get into conversation with him was that he asked me how I got on, and whether the case got heard on the Thursday, and I said to him: "I am put back till Saturday." He said: "If I had known it, I should have been up there, because I see it."

28294. That is the conversation that took place between the Thursday and the Saturday?—Yes.

28295. How long have you known Sweeney?—I knew him a long time, but I only had a conversation with him now and then.

28296. When did you first have any conversation about the case of the 21st November?—After I got tried on the Thursday.

28297. He came as a witness for you on the morning of the 22nd?—Yes.

28298. When did you first see him about your case? Was he in the witness-box before you had any conversation with him about it?—I saw him outside the Arbour Square Police Court.

28299. How did he know you?—He was coming up as a witness.

28300. How did he know your case would be heard that morning?—That I could not say.

28301. You saw him outside, waiting to go into the court at the same time that you came up yourself?—Yes.

28302. (Chairman.) About what time was it that you were talking to this man that you had a quarrel with when the police-constable came up to you?—About ten minutes past 11.

28303. What makes you think it was ten past 11?—Because I know I came out of the public-house at 11 o'clock.

28304. How long did it take you to get to the police-station?—That I could not say.

28305. Were you taken at once into the charge-room when you arrived at the police-station?—I was taken right into the charge-room.

28306. But not into the dock?—Not into the dock.

28307. Was the Inspector in the charge-room when you arrived?—Yes.

28308. Did he speak to you at once, or who first spoke to you?—He set me on a chair, and I said to him, "See what that constable has done," and I showed him my eye, and he had a look at it. It was right closed, and then he sent for a doctor.

28309. Did you see him sit down and take the charge in a book?—No.

28310. Was the charge never read over to you?—The charge was never read over to me.

28311. Who, according to you, first spoke when you arrived in the charge-room and you sat down on the chair?—When I was taken into the charge-room the Inspector said to the constable, "Sit him down there." That was in the charge-room, and then I said to him, "See what that constable has done. He has punched me in the eye, and it is properly closed; I cannot see out of it."

28312. You have stated what took place with regard to the doctor. The doctor came?—Yes.

28313. And up to the time the doctor came, I understand that no charge had been read over to you?—No, none whatever. I was set in that chair till the doctor came.

28314. After the doctor had gone, what took place between you and the Inspector?—As soon as I was seen by the doctor, and the doctor said "You are drunk," the doctor stood on one side, and I was taken downstairs into the cells.

28315. About how long was that after you had arrived at the police station, as far as you can estimate?—I should reckon about twenty minutes in all.

28316. Including the examination by the doctor and everything?—Yes.

28317. It was about midnight when you got into the cells, then, according to you?—Yes, about midnight.

28318. Was anything said in the charge-room by anyone about bail for you?—No.

28319. Did you yourself ask for bail?—No.

28320. You had been there before—or, at any rate, we know from what has been said here that you had been at other police-stations before?—No; that was the only police-station I had been at. I had been at no other police-station.

28321. But you had been to this particular police-station before?—Yes.

28322. And you had been bailed out before?—Yes.

28323. You did know you could be bailed out, and need not have waited in the cells?—There was bail come up for me.

28324. But you told me that after the doctor had gone, and while the whole proceedings in the charge-room had taken twenty minutes, you said it was a little after 12; and then, up to that time, you said, nothing had been said by anybody about bail?—No.

28325. How was it that you did not in the charge-room ask for bail, as you seemed to have known about the possibility of having bail?—I never asked for bail because I thought my brother would come up there without my asking—either my brother or my sister.

28326. From the story as told by you, I do not see how your brother or sister would know about your arrest at all. They were neither of them present when you were arrested, were they?—No.

28327. At any rate, you did not, before you got into the cells, ask the constables or the Inspector to send for bail for you?—No.

28328. Did you at any time while you were in the cells ask them to send for anybody?—No. As soon as I got in there I laid down and went to sleep. That was the way I felt.

28329. You said you did not leave till 7 o'clock in the morning, and I rather gather that you complained that you had been kept in the cells so long?—No.

28330. Then you make no grievance of that at all?—No. If you happen to make a complaint there you get such a nice answer from them.

28331. I am not on that question as to what you did or did not do at the police-station, I am asking: Do you complain that you were kept unduly long in the police-station?—I do not know what you mean.

28332. Do you suggest that you might have been bailed out sooner than you were bailed out?—Yes.

28333. You do suggest that?—Yes.

28334. Why? I understand you did not ask for bail?—No.

28335. You went to sleep when you went into the cells?—Yes.

28336. Who did, in fact, bail you out?—A man named Campbell came, and my brother came too.

28337. That would be about 7 o'clock?—Yes.

28338. You went away with them, I suppose?—Yes.

28339. What state were you in then? Were you sober then?—Yes.

28340. Quite sober then? Whatever your condition was before, you say you were quite sober then?—Yes.

28341. You went to the hospital, as I understand?—No, not that morning; the next morning.

28342. You attended at the police-court on the Thursday?—Yes.

28343. Were any witnesses for you in the court on the Thursday? Had you, between the time you got away from the police-station and the time when you went to the police-court, tried to get any witnesses to come and speak as to the assault, or speak in your favour?—I went down to one young woman, and I asked her whether she saw anything of it; and she said all she saw was the constables take me along, and she would not tell me any more.

28344. Were there any of the witnesses who were ultimately examined for you present on the Thursday when the case was put back?—Only one.

28345. Who was that?—Edward Sweeney.

28346. How did Sweeney come to be there on the Thursday?—I do not know.

28347. He came, as far as you know, of his own free will?—Yes.

28348. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Did the constable say anything to you when he took you into custody on that day, do you remember—No; he never said anything to me.

28349. Was there a crowd?—There was a bit of a crowd there.

28350. There was a bit of a disturbance going on?—There was no disturbance going on, but there was a bit of a crowd.

28351. You were quarrelling with some men?—Yes; that was in Old Gravel Lane.

28352. You were using strong language?—No; I was using no language.

28353. What were you quarrelling with him about?—I was in the man's company before that time, and I had 6d. off him.

28354. You were quarrelling with him about that?—Yes, that is what we were quarrelling about.

28355. Then when the constable took you and walked along with you did he say anything to you at all before he struck you?—No.

28356. Do you know how far you went before he struck you?—About 170 yards.

28357. Was he taking you quietly up to then?—Yes, we were going along quietly.

28358. You were not struggling?—No.

28359. He was not knocking you about?—No.

28360. Then after you had gone 170 yards did you say anything to him?—No.

28361. Did he say anything to you?—I only got the punch.

28362. He said nothing to you, but only punched you in the right eye?—Yes.

28363. Did you try to trip him up?—No.

28364. Nothing of that kind?—Nothing of that kind.

28365. Is that the only blow that you remember?—That is the only blow I remember, because I was dazed when I got the blow.

28366. Did you feel any blows afterwards?—No, I never felt any blows afterwards.

28367. You did not feel any pain afterwards as if you had been struck blows on other parts of your body?—No.

28368. No bruises about your ribs or about your head?—No.

28369. I understand you to say you did not see him fall at all?—No, I did not see him fall.

28370. You know his clothes were covered with mud?—No, I do not think they were covered with mud.

28371. Do I understand that you were quite sober that night?—Yes.

28372. What had you had to drink?—I had two glasses of ale in the afternoon, and I was going to make my way home when I had this Kola, and then I stood outside and started quarrelling with this man about the 6d., so I did not have more than five minutes walk to my home.

28373. (Mr. Dickinson.) P.C. Mizen took you up before you got into Prusom Street, did he not?—Yes.

28374. How did he arrest you then. How did he take hold of you?—By the arm, and then the other constable came up and took hold of my arm before I got to Prusom Street.

28375. Before the other constable came up how had Mizen himself got hold of you?—He had got hold of my arm and one hand on my collar.

28376. Which hand was on the collar?—The right hand was on my arm and the left hand on the collar, and then the other constable came up and took hold of me, and then he let go of my collar.

28377. The other constable came up on the other side?—Yes.

28378. Which side of Prusom Street were you on?—I was mostly on the left hand side of the road, going down Prusom Street.

28379. Had the constable hold of your collar the whole of that time?—No, he never had hold of my collar.

28380. I thought you said he had at first?—Yes, but he let my collar go when the other constable got hold of my other arm.

28381. Each constable took an arm?—Each constable took an arm.

28382. He had hold of your right arm, and he was holding your right arm with his left?—Yes.

28383. How did he give you this violent blow?—As the two constables—one was here and the other one here (describing)—were taking me down, and as my eyes were open I got the blow, and the knuckle of the man's fist must have gone in the ball of the eye, which shut it immediately and closed the eye right up, so that I could not open it at all.

28384. Did he bring his hand round?—Yes.

28385. What did the other constable do when you were hit?—As the constable hit me I went down on my knee, and the two of them were holding me up. The constables were holding me up one by each arm. I was in a dazed condition.

28386. Did you fall against the wall?—No.

28387. (Chairman.) I think that you came soon after the Police Court proceedings to the office of this Commission, did you not?—Yes.

28388. I ask that question, because I notice that you are represented by Lord Russell to-day?—Yes.

28389. Then it is subsequent to your coming to the Commission that you retained Lord Russell as your counsel—I am only putting it generally. You went to the society for which Lord Russell appears since you came to the Commission's office, or, at any rate, you sent your evidence to them?—Yes.

28390. You came within a day or two after the Police Court proceedings, and saw Mr. Leslie at the office of the Commission itself?—Yes.

28391. Was anything said by anybody in the charge room according to your recollection about your using obscene language?—No.

28392. In the charge sheet I notice that the charge is drunk and disorderly, and making use of obscene language at Old Gravel Lane. Did you hear the P.C. Mizen say anything about the use of obscene language in the charge room?—No, the only time I heard that was when I was before the Magistrate.

28393. What according to your recollection was said about the obscene language before the Magistrate? What did P.C. Mizen say. Have you any recollection?—No, I have no recollection.

(Chairman.) Lord Russell, I have had an opportunity of reading Mr. Eldon Bankes' observations in reference to P.C. Cann. I observe he did hand in the reports of the Chief Surgeon and of the Divisional Surgeon.

(Earl Russell.) I have not seen the reports.

(Chairman.) As you challenge the accuracy of Mr. Eldon Bankes' statements I think the best thing for us to do is to say we do not think the matter sufficiently relevant to be further discussed.

(Earl Russell.) If you please.

EDWARD SWEENEY, sworn.

E. Sweeney. 28 Jan. 1907.

28394. (Earl Russell.) You are a labourer?—Yes.

28395. You live at 6, Whitehorne Place, St. George's-in-the-East?—Yes.

28396. On the 21st November in the evening were you in Prusom Street?—Yes.

28397. What did you see when you were there?—On the 21st I was walking away from my home to tell the watchman to call me at 6 o'clock the next morning, but just as I got to Clegg Street and Choppin Court I noticed a few people coming down, and there were two constables with the chap Riley.

28398. Did you know Riley before?—Only just seeing him walking backwards and forwards when I went to work.

28399. (Chairman.) You only knew him by sight, do you mean?—Yes. When I got to Clegg Street and Choppin Court I saw the constable hit him—he swung his right hand and hit Riley in the eye. It is not a very wide pavement to walk along. I saw Riley stagger to the wall and fall, and no doubt the constable tried to lift him up.

28400. (Earl Russell.) What sort of a light was there where this happened?—It was a nice moonlight night.

28401. Was there any lamp there?—There was a lamp across the road.

28402. You could see plainly?—Yes.

28403. Could you tell which constable it was?—Yes; I picked the constable out at the police court when I saw him.

28404. Do you see him here now?—Yes.

28405. Is that the police-constable?—Yes; and that is the other constable who was against the wall. I did not see him do anything at all.

28406. (Chairman.) Is that P.C. Mizen (134 H)?—That is the man.

28407. (Earl Russell.) What was Riley doing at the time? Was he struggling at all?—No; I saw him walking along between the two police-constables.

28408. Was he doing anything violent at all?—No, not that I could see.

28409. Did you hear him using any bad language?—No.

28410. Did you hear him using any language at all?—No.

28411. Did he look as if he were drunk at the time?—I could not say whether he was drunk at the time, but I should think he was more dazed than anything from the blow.

28412. I mean before the blow?—I should not think so from the way he was walking along.

28413. Riley staggered, and I think you said he fell down. How far did he fall down?—The other constable more held him up. He fell more this way—to the wall. The other constable tried to hold him up.

28414. Did he go down beyond his knees. Did he go full length on the ground?—I could not say he was right full down on account of the few people there round him. They said: What a shame to do it.

28415. Did you see what happened to the constable who struck the blow? Did he fall?—He went with him towards the wall. He did not fall.

28416. After you had seen this what did you do? Did you say anything to the constable yourself?—I said nothing at all. I went right away. I did not go to the police station. Many a man gets arrested just for following up and doing nothing at all.

28417. Were you at the police court the next day?—The very next day.

28418. How came you to be there? Who asked you to be there?—The man I saw taken into custody on the 21st. On the next morning the watchman did not call me till 7 o'clock, and as I lost my day's work, I walked up Old Gravel Lane, and I saw the chap Riley, and I noticed a bandage round his eye. I said: "Hallo, is that what they have done to you?" He said: "Yes." I said: "I saw them do that." He said: "Do you mind coming up and telling the Magistrate that?" I said: "Yes, I will come up."

28419. That was how you came to go?—Yes, on the very next morning, the 22nd, on the Thursday.

28420. How soon was it before you went to the court—an hour or two?—I am not sure, but I met him again.

28421. Before you went to the court?—Yes.

28422. Then you went into court with him, did you?—A little while after. The constable called him, and I went in after him.

28423. Did you give evidence that morning?—Yes.

28424. Did you tell the Magistrate what you have told us now?—Yes.

28425. You are quite certain about a blow?—Yes.

28426. Quite certain?—Positive.

28427. You have been convicted three times, I think, for having been drunk and disorderly?—It has been put down for drunk and disorderly, and I let it go as that. I always believe the less you say at a police court the better for yourself, and if you do not have too much talk to the Magistrate you get off all the lighter. What they put it down I took as that.

28428. Did you get off lightly?—I got off very lightly.

28429. I think these gentlemen would like to know what you said it was?—If I had too much talk I should get a couple of months, but if I said nothing I get five days. The constable who charged me said it was a wonder I did not get six. The Magistrate took it to heart.

28430. The Commissioners would like to know what you say you had done?—I was just walking along, and a constable came and took me and generally charged me with being drunk and disorderly.

28431. Do you think you might have been drunk but not disorderly?—I own I had a drop of drink, but no assault of any kind.

28432. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I do not understand what you mean by "getting off lightly"?—When they put it down for drunk and disorderly and assault, you generally read in the papers a man gets two or three months. I think I got off very lightly when I only got five days.

28433. You were only charged with being drunk and disorderly?—And assault, too, which I was innocent of.

28434. (Earl Russell.) Was it five days instead of a fine, or was it five days with a fine?—Five days with a fine.

28435. What was the fine?—5s.

28436. 5s. or five days?—Yes.

28437. I think you once were convicted at the Sessions, were you not, of robbery with violence?—Yes.

28438. That, you say, was a mistake?—It was a thorough mistake. I had been in the place for 25 years without a stain on me or my family, and it was put to that.

28439. You were sentenced to six months?—Six months.

28440. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) I just want to get the particulars of the convictions. Were you convicted on the 2nd April, 1900, at the Thames Police Court for assault on a private person—not a constable—and were you fined 21s. or 14 days?—Yes, quite right.

28441. On a private person, and not on a police-constable?—It was a fight, that is what it was.

28442. On the 14th March, 1903, were you convicted of being drunk and disorderly and using obscene language, and with an assault on the police?—Do you mind telling me the constable's number?

28443. That was P.C. Thomas White?—P.C. Collins?

28444. I do not know. That was in March, 1903?—He said I kicked him from here to there. The Magistrate asked him to show him the place. He said there were no marks, but he felt the effects of it.

28445. The magistrate gave you ten days for that?—Yes.

28446. On the 8th April, 1904, did you plead guilty to being drunk and disorderly and using obscene language?—Four days.

28447. 4s. or four days?—Yes.

28448. You pleaded guilty that time, did you?—Yes.

28449. Then at the Maidstone Assizes you got six months?—Maidstone Quarter Sessions.

28450. 19th October, 1905?—Yes.

28451. Who was the Judge, do you remember?—I could not tell you who he was.

28452. Was it a Judge of the High Court?—I could not tell you who he was.

28453. Had he a red gown?—I know he had a white wig.

28454. And a red gown?—No; no red gown, I believe.

28455. At any rate, it was six months you got for that?—Yes.

28456. For an assault and attempted highway robbery?—Yes.

28457. What were you doing in this place on this night near Gravel Lane?—I was coming away from my home to go and pay the watchman.

28458. Where is your home?—6, Whitehorne Place.

28459. You were going down to Old Gravel Lane along Prusom Street?—Yes.

28460. You were on the left-hand side?—Yes; on the opposite side to where the prisoner was.

28461. Did you go up and speak to Riley at all?—That evening?

28462. Yes?—No.

28463. Or to the constable?—No.

28464. Were there any other people besides yourself who saw this assault?—A few people behind.

28465. Did you speak to any of them about it?—No; I went right away. They holloaed out "Shame!" when they saw the blow struck.

28466. You spoke to nobody?—No.

28467. You saw this cruel assault by a constable on an unoffending man, and you spoke to nobody?—No, to no one.

28468. How was it you happened to meet Riley the next morning?—I was coming out to go to another wharf, to see if I could get a day's work, as I lost a day's work. I paid the watchman to call me at 6 o'clock, and it was 7 o'clock as I walked along Prusom Street to look for work. I happened to see Riley in Old Gravel Lane.

28469. What time was that?—A little after 8, I think.

28470. In Old Gravel Lane?—In Old Gravel Lane.

28471. Whereabouts in Old Gravel Lane, a little after 8?—Just by the "Angel."

28472. Just by the public-house where he was arrested?—I could not tell you where he was arrested—I never saw him arrested.

28473. Did he speak to you, or did you speak to him?—I spoke to him.

28474. What did you say to him?—I said, "Hallo! is that what you got last night?" He said, "Yes; did you see it?" I said, "Yes." He said, "Are you doing anything at all?" I said, "No." He said, "Do you mind coming up with me to-day and telling the magistrate what you saw?" I said, "Certainly I will; I have lost my day's work." I saw nothing else of Riley until I saw him outside Arbour Square.

28475. That was about 8 o'clock in the morning?—It was about that time.

28476. At what time did you go to Arbour Square?—I went down home to tell my mother——

28477. At what time did you go to Arbour Square?—Started away about half-past 9.

28478. The Court does not sit until about 10 or half-past 10 at the very earliest, does it?—About 10 o'clock. I did not hurry myself. I took my time going up.

28479. At what time did you get to Arbour Square?—I got there when the court was open.

28480. The court was open when you got there?—Yes; I saw people walking in and out.

28481. What time was that? It was not half-past 9?—I started away at half-past 9 to go there.

28482. When did you get to Arbour Square?—About 10 o'clock, or a little after 10.

28483. Was Riley there then?—Yes.

28484. Had you seen him at all from the time you parted from him outside the "Angel" and meeting him at Arbour Square?—No.

28485. How did you spend your time between 8 o'clock, when you parted from him at the Angel, and 10 o'clock, when you got to Arbour Square?—I went down home and sat against the fire—went down to tell my mother there was no work about that day.

28486. Do you know a Mr. Sedgwick?—Yes.

28487. How do you know Mr. Sedgwick?—From living in the parish. He belongs to the church there, and he is always walking backwards and forwards.

28488. On the 22nd November—the morning we were talking about—he was a candidate for the Borough Council, was he not?—I cannot tell you. I know he put up for it a little while ago—a couple of weeks back.

28489. Did you see him that morning?—Yes, I did see him that morning.

28490. You have told us that you parted from Riley at 8 o'clock in the morning, outside the Angel; then you went home, and then you went to Arbour Square. That is how you spent your time, you said?—I went to Mr. Sedgwick's first, with Riley, and then I left him and went home.

28491. Why did you not tell us that?—I did not think it would come to this. I did not take any notice of it.

28492. Why did you not tell us that you went to Mr. Sedgwick's with Riley on that morning? You pretended to the Commission you were accounting for all your time that morning, and how you had seen Riley that morning. Why did you not tell the Commission you had been to Mr. Sedgwick?—It was my mistake.

28493. Did you hear Riley give evidence?—Where?

28494. In the box, this morning?—Yes.

28495. Did you hear Riley say all he knew of you was that he had met you outside the police-court at Arbour Square, seeing you that morning?—I did not listen.

28496. But that is the fact. You met him, and then you went to Mr. Sedgwick. Where does Mr. Sedgwick live?—In High Street, Wapping.

28497. What time did you go to Mr. Sedgwick?—We went there just as I met Riley.

28498. How long did you stay at Mr. Sedgwick's?—A couple of minutes.

28499. Did you ask Mr. Sedgwick to write a letter to the magistrate?—No.

28500. Did you not?—No.

28501. What did you ask Mr. Sedgwick to do?—If he could go up for him. But he said he could not speak for him; but he would write a note to send to the magistrate, if he would give it to him.

28502. Was it you or Riley who asked Mr. Sedgwick to come for him?—Riley asked Mr. Sedgwick.

28503. Are you clear about it? Was it you or Riley who asked him to come up and speak for him?—Riley asked him to go up there.

28504. Did Mr. Sedgwick tell you that he thought the constable was quite justified in arresting Riley?—I did not hear him say so.

28505. That Riley was drunk and fighting?—I did not hear him say so.

28506. What did Riley say to Mr. Sedgwick about the matter? How would Mr. Sedgwick know anything at all about it?—I was not there when Mr. Sedgwick saw anything of it.

28507. What did Riley say to Mr. Sedgwick?—I could not tell you. Riley stood by himself. I did not interfere with the business, or with what they had to say.

28508. You were not near enough to hear what was said?—No.

E. Sweeney.
28 Jan. 1907.

28509. After you left Mr. Sedgwick, where did you go?—I just went round Old Gravel Lane again, and then I went home.

28510. Still with Riley?—When I told him what I had seen, he asked me if I could go round with him. We went round then. Then we came back again; I went back with him.

28511. Did you go into the Angel that morning?—I had been in there myself.

28512. Did you go into the Angel that morning?—Yes.

28513. Was Riley there?—No, not in my presence.

28514. Are you sure about that?—Positive.

28515. How long had you been in the Angel.—Was it before or after you saw Riley that you were in the Angel?—I was not in there long, I only went in there to get a glass of ale and a pennyworth of tobacco.

28516. Was that before or after you left Riley?—After I left him, he went away after we came away from Mr. Sedgwick's and I went into the Angel to have a glass of ale and a pennyworth of tobacco, and then went down home.

28517. Were you in the Angel before you met Riley?—No.

28518. Where does Riley live?—I believe he lives in Lowder Street.

28519. That is close by the White Swan, is it not?—Yes.

(Chairman.) I do not think I have had the names given of the police court and of the police station.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) It is Arbour Square.

(Chairman.) And the police court?

28520. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) The police court is the Thames Police Court in Arbour Square. Shadwell Police Station is north of the plan. Coming from Shadwell Police Station down to his home Riley would reach his home before he reached the Angel, would he not?—Which way from?

28521. Going home from Shadwell Police Station if he went the nearest way would he not reach his home before he reached the Angel?—If he went down New Gravel Lane.

28522. Where does New Gravel Lane take you into?—New Gravel Lane would be the one from Shadwell. Old Gravel Lane would be the farthest.

28523. How did you go after you got out into New Gravel Lane?—I went round High Street, Wapping, and then down Old Gravel Lane. I did not go down New Gravel Lane at all.

28524. You would not get to the Angel going that way?—You can get to the Angel going both ways.

28525. You would not get as far as if you were going to Lowder Street?—I come to the Angel before I come to Lowder Street if I go the longer route. I can go down New Gravel Lane, or down Old Gravel Lane.

28526. Whereabouts on the path was Riley walking when the constable struck him on the eye?—On the pavement.

28527. Just on the edge of it, was he?—I should not say on the edge of it.

28528. Where should you say he was, was he near the wall, or far away from the wall?—The constable was against the wall, there is the wall, there is the constable, there would be Riley, and there would be the kerb, and those two men were on the pavement.

28529. So that the first man would have to be walking in the road?—He would have to be, or close to the kerb.

28530. Riley was struck in the eye. How did he fall?—He got knocked against the wall in that way.

28531. But the constable was between him and the wall, was he not?—The constable hit him from outside with his right hand, and he fell inways to the wall.

28532. There was another constable between him and the wall?—I know.

28533. Did not that prevent him striking the wall?—The constable prevented him from going harder than he would have as he held him.

28534. Did Riley strike the wall?—He could not have struck the wall. He went down by the wall.

28535. He did not strike the wall at all?—I should not think he did strike the wall—not hard enough to hurt on account of the other constable holding him.

28536. There was a constable between him and the wall, was there?—Yes.

28537. When you gave your evidence for the first time before the Police Magistrate did you say this: "I saw P.C. 134 H. strike the prisoner in the eye, knocking him against the wall." Did you say that?—I say now he knocked him against the wall, but the other constable saved him from hurting himself.

28538. You were called back again on the Saturday and gave your evidence again. Did you say there was only one blow struck?—Yes, that is all I say.

28539. But you saw him all the time, did you not?—I went away home. I only saw one blow struck there; whether the prisoner got another I could not say.

28540. The first blow you saw struck knocked the man down?—Knocked him against the wall.

28541. Then what happened to him?—He went down as if he was unconscious, and had no power over himself.

28542. Did he go down flat?—The constable tried to get him away.

28543. Did the constable fall?—I did not see him fall.

28544. How soon did you go after you saw the blow struck?—Just about a second, or a couple of seconds.

28545. What pace did you walk at?—Walked away very quiet.

28546. What direction did you go in?—In the same direction as I came from—back to my own home again.

28547. Towards High Street, or towards Old Gravel Lane?—Towards Whitethorne Place.

28548. So that you turned right round the moment you saw this blow and walked back in the direction you had come from?—Yes.

28549. Did you see another constable there?—No.

28550. Were you carrying anything?—No.

28551. Why did you turn round and go off like that?—As I said before at the police court I generally get a newspaper in on Sunday morning and generally read how many a man is taken in innocent through only looking at a row.

28552. I will not ask you to mention the name of the paper. That is why you turned round like that in a second and went off again?—And went away home.

28553. Why could not you go on. There was nothing to stop you?—When I saw the crowd I would not go—I went right home.

28554. There were no other constables there in your view except those two who were with this man on the other side of the way.—That is where I saw them.

28555. Why did you not go on?—The people halloed "Shame."

28556. Why did you not go down Clegg Street?—I did not want to go down Clegg Street.

28557. You could have gone down Clegg Street and have arrived at the same point away from the crowd altogether?—I went back and turned by the public-house.

28558. You were going to get a watchman to call you for a day's work next morning?—Yes, 6 o'clock.

28559. But because you saw this man knocked down by one of the two policemen you did not go on?—No. I turned back.

28560. What was there to prevent you going down Clegg Street and Hillards Court which would have taken you to Old Gravel Lane almost at the same spot that you meant to go to?—When you see a man get locked up by a constable one generally takes him and the other hunts the people back.

28561. How many people were in the crowd?—I should think about 20 or 25.

28562. One constable could not surround the whole 25 could he?—No, but he could hunt them back.

28563. If he hunted them back that would be towards Gravel Lane, would it not?—Yes.

28564. You could have gone down Clegg Street and Hillards Court and got into Gravel Lane where you wanted to go?—I did not wish to go; I thought I would get back again.

28565. That is your explanation of why you disappeared?—Yes.

28566. And you cannot name any person at all who saw you there?—No. There might have been people there to see me, but I did not take any notice of them.

28567. Did you see a man called Shepherd there?—No.

28568. You did not see Shepherd?—No.

28569. Did you hear Shepherd give his evidence?—No.

28570. You were out of court I suppose?—Yes.

28571. You say there was only one blow struck?—One blow.

28572. No provocation on the part of Riley at all?—I do not know what you mean by "provocation." I should like to have your understanding of it.

28573. Riley was saying nothing?—Said nothing in my presence.

28574. Doing nothing?—No, only walking along.

28575. Walking along quietly?—Yes.

28576. Soberly?—He looked so to me. I did not see much of him.

28577. And yet this constable, on a nice moonlight night, and under a lamppost, hit him in the eye?—It was not exactly under the lamppost.

28578. You told Lord Russell that it was a nice moonlight night, and there was a lamppost close by?—Yes.

28579. That is the only lamppost for some distance, is it not?—There is a lamppost just across the road against the court and Clegg Street.

28580. A very few yards away?—Yes.

28581. You cannot mention a single soul who saw you there?—No.

(Earl Russell.) I have no questions to ask.

28582. (Chairman.) What is your age?—About 29.

28583. What is your occupation?—A labourer.

28584. Have you ever been apprenticed to any trade?—No.

28585. Have you been living in this neighbourhood all your life?—Yes.

28586. How came you to be tried at Maidstone?—I was working there.

28587. You went to work there?—I went there every year for 25 years, and my mother and father before me. It is 50 or 60 years since they first started going there.

28588. Were you at school at all?—Yes, I went to school.

28589. Until what age were you at school?—Fourteen or fifteen, I believe.

28590. Why did you not go to the police station after seeing Riley badly treated?—It did not matter to me. I should not go to a police station. I beg your pardon. My convictions have been brought up against me, and they say if a dog has a bad name he always carries it. Mr. Sanders was good enough to give me a character for what I did about eight years ago, when a little boy about 16 stole half-a-crown off another child, and I ran after the boy and got the half-a-crown away from him. The constable told me to go to the station. I said: "I do not like to go there," but he said: "You come with us," and when I got there Mr. Sanders said if there were more people like me it would save people being robbed. E. Sweeney. 28 Jan. 1907.

28591. Mr. Sanders was the Magistrate, I suppose?—No, an Inspector. He spoke to the Magistrate and told him what I had done. I was only a coal boy then, and my father kept a shop. I have not heard anything about that. I think if they bring up a man's convictions they ought to bring up the other besides.

(Earl Russell.) There are three other witnesses, Thomas Tree, and Shepherd, and Mr. Sedgwick, who wrote the letter which has been mentioned. Tree and Shepherd are in the country, and as I am not in a position to have those witnesses here to-day, I am rather disposed to leave it to the Commissioners to tell me whether they think it necessary to call them.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Shepherd's evidence is in the depositions.

(Chairman.) We have Shepherd's deposition, and Mr. Sedgwick has written a letter.

(Earl Russell.) My friend has been good enough to show me the original.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) I understand Mr. Sedgwick was only present at the arrest; he was not present when the blow was struck.

(Chairman.) Would you like us to receive Mr. Sedgwick's letter?

(Earl Russell.) Yes.

(Chairman.) Then we will receive it. If he does not say anything about the blow I do not think it is necessary to trouble him to come here. Will the Secretary read Mr. Sedgwick's letter?

(Secretary.) "97, High Street, Wapping, E., 22nd November, 1906. Mr. F. W. D. Sedgwick wishes to state that when in the Old Gravel Lane last night, between 11 and 11.30 p.m., he saw the affair in connection with which James Riley was arrested. Riley was undoubtedly quarrelling with another man, and shouting, but he did not then have the injury to his face, which must have been caused later. Mr. Sedgwick would have liked to appear to give evidence for J. Riley, but has to be at the Stock Exchange this morning."

(Chairman.) There seems no use in troubling Mr. Sedgwick to come, Lord Russell.

(Earl Russell.) Nor the other two witnesses?

(Chairman.) No; we have got Shepherd's notes, or the evidence that he gave at the police court.

(Earl Russell.) If you please. I do not press the Commission to call them, only if they think it necessary.

(Chairman.) Very well.

(Earl Russell.) That is the case.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) I will now call the police witnesses.

P.C. Alfred Mizen (134 H), sworn.

28592. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) You are Police-constable 134 of the H Division, stationed at Shadwell?—Yes.

28593. How long have you been in the Force?—Three years.

28594. Before the night of the 21st November Riley has told us you never had anything to do with him?—No.

28595. Did you know him by sight at all?—No.

28596. On that night, about half-past 11, were you in Old Gravel Lane?—Yes.

28597. Did you see Riley there?—I saw Riley there.

28598. What was he doing?—Quarrelling with a man.

28599. What sort of language was he using?—Filthy language—obscene language.

28600. What state was he in with regard to sobriety?—Drunk.

28601. Did you speak to any of them?—Yes. P.C. A. Mizen.

28602. To which of them?—I spoke to both of them, requesting them to go away.

28603. What did the other man do?—He walked away, but Riley continued following him, and continued to use obscene language.

28604. To the man?—Yes. I then requested him again to go away, but he said: "I am doing no harm. I will go when I am f——g well ready."

28605. What was the point at which you arrested him?—By the corner of the Post Office.

28606. That is at the corner of a street?—Green Bank.

28607. You arrested him there. Where did you take him?—Along Old Gravel Lane and through Prusom Street.

28608. Did he go quietly?—Yes.

P.C. A. Mizen.
28 Jan. 1907.

28609. Was any other officer helping you at that point?—No.

28610. How far did you take him alone?—Ninety yards.

28611. Where to?—To the top of Choppin Court.

28612. Is that where there are posts?—Yes.

28613. And nearly opposite the end of Clegg Street, where there is a lamp?—Yes.

28614. Up to that point how had he been going?—Very quietly.

28615. At that point what happened?—He tripped me up, and we both fell in the road.

28616. Both of you?—Yes.

28617. What sort of a night was it?—A very wet night—very muddy.

28618. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) You both fell?—We both fell.

28619. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) In the road while you were down how did he behave?—We struggled for about two minutes.

28620. What was he trying to do?—He tried to get away from me.

28621. Is Choppin Court a well-lighted court or not?—No.

28622. If you get into Choppin Court you can turn two different ways at the end of it?—Yes.

28623. He did not get away, did he?—No.

28624. Then did another constable (Kemp) come up?—Yes.

28625. What was going on when Kemp came up?—Struggling.

(Chairman.) The statement that in Choppin Court you can get away is a little ambiguous. Choppin Court runs down out of Old Gravel Lane, and then it turns abruptly at right angles into another street. It is true that there is on the right-hand side further on another turning out, but Choppin Court does not appear to be a sort of place which you might run down and then turn to the right or left quickly.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) There is a street running at right angles at the end of Choppin Court, and therefore a person escaping down there could turn to the right or to the left.

(Chairman.) That is Raine Street.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes.

(Chairman.) When you go down Choppin Court you would only have one way to turn—to the left.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) I am told that all the part, including the elbow, and including the part marked with posts is Choppin Court. (To the witness.) The part I was referring to was the narrow part where you say it is not very well lighted.

(Witness.) Not very well lighted.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) All I meant was that persons going down there in the dark might turn to the right or to the left; and it might be difficult for a person following on to know which way they had gone.

(Chairman.) That is exactly what I said was a little ambiguous. If a constable is standing in Old Gravel Lane and a man runs down Choppin Court he can only turn to the left. It is perfectly true if he runs along Raine Street he can turn down a narrow road to a place where the posts are.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) The arrest took place at the Post Office, and the constable took his man through Prusom Street to that point where the posts are marked. At that point it is that the struggle took place.

(Chairman.) I follow it now, but on the plan the narrow roadway or posts is not described as "Choppin Court."

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) It is not, but I asked one of the witnesses whether it was Choppin Court and he said it was.

(Chairman.) It is all Choppin Court here, including the elbow.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) I understand it now.

(Witness.) At the end of Choppin Court is Raine Street.

28625.* (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) What we want to know is what is the name of the place where the posts are?—That is Choppin Court.

28626. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Choppin Court goes further along where it goes into Old Gravel Lane. Is that called Choppin Court?—Yes.

28627. So that the whole of the elbow is Choppin Court?—Yes.

28628-9. Raine Street begins at this point here?—Yes.

28630. It was at that point that the struggle took place, and you were still struggling on the ground when Kemp came up?—Yes.

28631. When Kemp came up what took place?—He assisted me to my feet, and then we both assisted Riley (he laid down in the footway), and got him on his feet, and he walked on the footway.

28632. He laid down in the footway?—Yes. P.C. Stokes, 313, came up, and I sent him for the ambulance.

28633. From what direction did P.C. Stokes come?—New Gravel Lane.

28634. That is from the north coming south?—Yes.

28635. Could Riley hear you telling P.C. Stokes to fetch the ambulance?—Yes. Shortly after that Riley got up and walked away quietly all the way to the station.

28636. Did you both go?—Yes.

28637. Did you see Stokes?—Yes.

28638. Where did you come up with Stokes?—In New Gravel Lane.

28639. When you got to the police station was there anything the matter with Riley's eye?—Yes.

28640. What was the matter with his eye?—It was swollen and discoloured.

28641. When did you first notice it?—I did not notice his eye was swollen until we got to the station. I noticed it was discoloured when I picked him up from the road.

28642. Before you had the struggle in the road did you notice anything the matter with his eye?—No.

28643. At the station did you speak to the inspector?—I preferred the charge to Inspector Sanders.

28644. What charge did you prefer against Riley?—Drunk and disorderly, and making use of obscene language.

28645. What took place at this point? What was said, and who said it?—Inspector Sanders said to Riley, "You have got an injury to your eye; how did you come by it?" He pointed over to me and said, "He did it." The divisional surgeon was then called and he examined his eye. I heard the divisional surgeon say, "It looks as if you have had a fall." He was then placed in the dock and the charge was taken.

28646. But no charge was preferred until after the opinion of the divisional surgeon was obtained?—I preferred the charge to Inspector Sanders.

28647. But the inspector did not take the charge until after the surgeon had come?—No.

28648. What was the state of your clothes?—Very muddy.

28649. I should have asked you this question. When the inspector asked Riley how he came by the injury to his eye he said "He did it," pointing to you?—Yes.

28650. What was said then?—Inspector Sanders asked me if I could account for his injury. I told him I did not strike him. I did not know whether it was done previously to arresting him or in the struggle.

28651. What do you say as to the state of Riley having regard to drunkenness?—He was very drunk.

28652. (Earl Russell.) You agree with Riley that when you first saw him he was quarrelling with another man?—Yes.

28653. And you say he was using bad language?—Yes.

28654. But not fighting?—Not fighting.

28655. Not using any violence with his fists?—No.

28656. Having a noisy argument?—Yes.

28657. How far off were you when you first saw him?—About 20 yards.

28658. Do you know who the other man was?—No.

28659. When did you make up your mind to arrest him?—After I had requested him several times to go away.

28660. That was after you came up with him?—Yes.

28661. How many men were there together when you first saw him?—About ten or a dozen.

28662. That was outside the Angel, was it?—Outside the Angel public-house.

28663. There were ten or a dozen men there?—Yes.

28664. Were they all quarrelling?—No, only these two.

28665. What were the others doing, making a ring round?—Yes.

28666. Looking on?—Looking on.

28667. Tell me exactly what you did when you came up to these men?—I requested them both to go away.

28668. What did you say? Did you say "Clear out of this"?—No, I said "Go away."

28669. Did you tell them why they were to go?—No.

28670. Did you say that to the quiet ones as well as to the ones that were quarrelling?—I said it to the ones that were quarrelling—"Go away."

28671. Not to the quiet ones?—No.

28672. You only told these two who were quarrelling?—That was all.

28673. What did they say? Did they say anything?—One man started to walk away, but Riley continued to follow him and continued to use obscene language, and I again requested him to go away. Then he turned round and said, "I am doing no harm; I will go when I am f——g well ready."

28674. Did you wish him to go in the opposite direction to that in which the man he was quarrelling with was going?—He could go which way he liked as long as he went away.

28675. He was walking away from you?—Yes. He was following him.

28676. When he said he would go when he liked you made up your mind to arrest him?—Yes.

28677. And you did arrest him?—Yes.

28678. What had happened to the rest of the crowd by the time you arrested him?—They remained at the top of Prusom Street.

28679. According to you, it was near the post-office where you arrested him?—Yes.

28680. When he started walking from the Angel, he walked in the direction towards Lowder Street, did he?—Yes.

28681. You say that these other people stood at the top of Prusom Street?—They followed down to Prusom Street.

28682. After you had arrested him?—Yes. They then remained there.

28683. When you arrested him and were taking him along, they came down Prusom Street behind you?—No; they remained at the top of Prusom Street.

28684. They closed up there and stood watching, you mean?—Yes.

28685. What did Riley do after you arrested him?—He walked quietly for about 90 yards down Prusom Street.

28686. Would that take you as far as the place which is marked with posts, where you say the entrance to Choppin Court is?—Yes.

28687. He walked quite quietly?—Quite quietly.

28688. No struggling at all?—No.

28689. Did he continue to use bad language all this time?—No.

28690. Said nothing?—Said nothing.

28691. When did he first begin to give trouble?—Opposite Choppin Court.

28692. What was it he did?—He tripped me up.

28693. He put his foot between your legs?—Yes, and we both fell in the roadway.

28694. He did trip you up?—Yes.

28695. You went down?—Yes.

28696. Still holding him?—Yes.

28697. How far from you was P.C. 322?—I could not say.

28698. You had not seen Kemp before this happened?—When I arrested him I saw Kemp coming towards me then.

28699. Was Kemp in Old Gravel Lane when you arrested Riley?—Yes.

28700. Coming from the other mouth of Choppin Court?—He went from Lowder Street.

28701. He was quite close when you arrested the man?—About 20 yards.

28702. Did he follow you down Prusom Street, do you know?—He must have followed down, but I did not see him.

28703. You did not ask him to?—No.

28704. You did not see Kemp again until you had got off the ground?—That is all—after the struggle in the road when he assisted me up.

28705. Did you know Riley by sight before?—No.

28706. Had you found out who he was when you arrested him?—No.

28707. When he tripped you up did he do anything to you besides tripping you up?—No.

28708. He was not violent in any other way?—He tried to get away.

28709. Did he strike at you, or anything of that sort?—No.

28710. After he tripped you up, when you were getting up was he struggling?—He was struggling to get away.

28711. But not hitting you?—No.

28712. And you were not hitting him?—No.

28713. You were not annoyed?—No.

28714. Do you say he was only quarrelling with one other man?—Only the two quarrelling. He was quarrelling with one other man.

28715. Only two together?—That is all.

28716. Was not Riley quarrelling with two other men?—No.

28717. Just let me read what I think you said at the police-court: "When I first saw him he was drunk, quarrelling with two other men, using obscene language. The other two men went away. There were thirty or forty people there, including children." Is not that what you said at the police-court?—I do not remember saying it. There were two men, but he was only quarrelling with one.

28718. Anyhow, it is not correct to say he was quarrelling with two other men?—No.

28719. Now about the mark on his eye. When you looked at it at the police-station you had not the slightest doubt, had you, that there was a mark there?—I could see a mark on his right eye, and there was also some mud on his right cheek.

28720. You cannot be sure whether he had that mark when you arrested him or not?—No.

28721. You cannot say that he did not have it when you arrested him?—No.

28722. You only noticed it after this struggle that you speak of?—Yes, when I noticed it first.

28723. When you first got into the police-station I suppose you spoke to Inspector Sanders before the prisoner did?—Yes.

28724. Did you call the Inspector's attention to the man's injury, or was anything said about it?—No.

28725. What did you charge him with?—Drunk and disorderly, and making use of obscene language.

28726. Did the Inspector take the charge at once?—No.

28727. What was the reason why he did not?—He noticed the injury to his eye, and he asked him how he had come by it. He pointed to me, and said, "He did it." The Inspector then telephoned for the divisional surgeon.

28728. What did you do when the prisoner said "He did it"?—The Inspector asked me if I could account for his injury. I told him I did not strike him. I did not know whether it was done previously to arresting him or in the struggle.

P.C. A. Mizen. 28 Jan. 1907.

28729. Had you told the Inspector about the struggle and falling on the ground before that?—No.

28730. You told the Inspector it might have been done after his arrest, did you not?—Yes.

28731. Did you tell the Inspector then that you had not hit the prisoner?—Yes.

28732. Did the prisoner say you had hit him?—Yes.

28733. By saying "He did it." Did he say how you had done it?—No, he did not say how I did it.

28734. He never said you had used your fists?—No.

28735. He did not tell the Inspector that?—No.

28736. Did you hear him tell the doctor that later, when he came?—Yes; I heard him tell the doctor I hit him with my fist.

28737. You were there all the time?—Yes.

28738. Did you make any answer to that?—I said I did not strike him.

28739. Did you hear the doctor say it might have been caused by a fall?—Yes.

28740. Did you then say, "Yes, that is what caused it"?—No.

28741. You did hear the doctor say, when he was examining him, it might have been caused by a fall?—Yes.

28742. When he said that, did you not make some answer?—No. I said I did not strike him.

28743. That was before, when he said you hit him. You heard the doctor say "This might have been caused by a fall"?—Yes.

28744. Did you not then say: "That is how it was done," or you thought that was how it was done?—No.

28745. Nothing of the kind?—No.

28746. I think Inspector Sanders agreed with you about his being drunk, did he not?—Yes.

28747. Was it after this struggle on the ground that Kemp took hold of him?—Yes. He assisted me up first.

28748. Whereabouts did you see Kemp when you got up from this struggle—not until he came up to you?—No.

28749. You did not see him approaching you?—No.

28750. Then you do not know where he came from?—No.

28751. Kemp took his other arm. That is right, is it?—Yes.

28752. And you went on the rest of the way to the station?—Yes.

28753. He went quietly?—All the way quietly after we had sent for the ambulance.

28754. He did not try to trip you up again?—No.

28755. Was the struggle between you and Riley quite quiet?—Yes.

28756. Did none of the people come round to see what was going on when the struggle was going on between you?—No. You cannot see from the top of Prusom Street.

28757. None of them came up to you?—No.

28758. I think you mentioned something about three children—two boys and a girl?—Two lads and a little girl.

28759. Were those the only people there during the whole of the struggle?—That is all.

28760. Sweeney was not there?—No, I am positive of it.

28761. And Shepherd was not there?—No.

28762. Could you see everybody in this narrow lane called Choppin Court?—Yes.

28763. How could you tell there was nobody in Choppin Court?—There was nobody in the vicinity of Choppin Court.

28764. Do you mean during all this scene you were able to look up and down Prusom Street and Choppin Court, and that there was nobody anywhere?—It is right opposite Choppin Court, and you could see.

28765. Where did Mr. Sedgwick see you?—I could not say.

28766. Do you think he did not see you?—I do not know

28767. Do you know Mr. Sedgwick by sight?—No.

28768. If Thomas Tree says he was passing through Choppin Court, are you quite clear he could not have been in Choppin Court?—No one came from Choppin Court.

28769. And nobody cried out "Shame"?—No.

28770. Do you say the whole of that story is imagination?—Yes.

28771. You did not drag him along?—No.

28772. After the other constable had got hold of him, did not a man say to you: "Let the man rest; he is in pain"?—No.

28773. Nothing of the sort happened?—No.

28774. The only explanation you can give us of this injury to his eye is that it must have happened when you were struggling on the ground?—I cannot say whether it happened then or previous to my arresting him.

28775. You are quite sure you did not notice it before?—Yes.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) No questions.

28776. (Chairman.) How long have you been in the Force?—Three years.

28777. Have you been all the time in the H Division?—No.

28778. How long have you been in the H Division?—Ten months.

28779. Where were you before?—In the W Division.

28780. How long had you been on your beat when this occurrence which you have described took place?—One hour and a half.

28781. Then you went on duty at 10 o'clock?—Yes.

28782. What first attracted your attention?—The shouting.

28783. The shouting of the crowd?—No, the shouting of Riley.

28784. How far off were you at the time?—About 20 yards.

28785. Will you kindly mark on the plan where you first saw them and when you heard the shouting (handing plan)?—That is where I first saw them.

28786. Will you put a cross where you first saw Riley and the other man quarrelling. (The witness marked the plan.) Where were you standing? I see the cross is put in Old Gravel Lane in front of the Angel publichouse?—Yes; I was standing close by Hillard's Court.

28787. You were standing in Old Gravel Lane close by Hillard's Court?—Yes.

28788. Could you from where you were standing distinguish the words that were being shouted out by Riley?—No.

28789. Then, I suppose, seeing the crowd and hearing shouting, you walked up?—Yes.

28790. Could you hear distinctly then what was being said?—Yes.

28791. What was the quarrel about, as far as you could gather?—I could not say. He did not say what the quarrel was about. He wanted to fight him.

28792. That is the first we have heard of that. I do not think you have said anything about wanting to fight before?—That is what he was trying to lead to.

28793. What were they doing?—He was pulling the other man, and using bad language—he was catching hold of him and pulling him.

28794. How came you to omit all mention of this before? The other man was not consenting to be pulled about?—He wanted to go away.

28795. Then they were struggling a little?—Yes.

28796. How came you not to mention this before?—I have mentioned it before.

28797. At the police court?—Yes.

28798. "I saw the prisoner in Old Gravel Lane, drunk. He was quarrelling and behaving in a disorderly manner." That was when you were first called. That was on the Thursday. Then you were re-called, I think, and you said: "He was not fighting, but quarrelling." I understand from you now that he was struggling with the other man?—He caught hold of his arm, and was pulling him.

28799. Then the real cause of your interference was that you thought there was going to be a breach of the peace?—Yes.

28800. I certainly gathered from what you told Mr. Muir the cause was because he was drunk, generally disorderly, and using obscene language?—Yes, and he was pulling the other man.

28801. You did not mention that when you answered Mr. Muir?—I mentioned it at the police court.

28802. I do not find that in the note "He was very drunk and using obscene language. He was not fighting, but quarrelling"?—He was not fighting.

28803. But you did not use specifically the word "pulling" the other man?—Yes, I did.

28804. At the police court?—Yes.

28805. You also made a report on the case, did you not?—Yes.

28806. Did you say anything about Riley pulling the other man, or anything of that sort, in the report?—No, not in the report.

28807. Why did you not give a more full account in the report?—I forgot it, I suppose.

28808. As I understand when you got to the charge room you simply used these words to the Inspector: "I charge him with being drunk and disorderly, and using obscene language"?—Yes.

28809. You used that general form?—Yes.

28810. Did the Inspector ask you what language he had been using?—Yes.

28811. He did ask you?—Yes.

28812. How came you not to tell us that before? I think Mr. Muir asked you, and I think Lord Russell asked you as to what took place in the charge-room, and I do not think you mentioned that fact. The Inspector asked you what the language was?—I was not asked the question.

28813. I think you were asked what the Inspector said to you?—With regard to this inquiry.

28814. I think you were asked what the Inspector said to you about the charge; however, we shall see it when we get the shorthand notes. You now say that the Inspector did in fact ask you?—Yes.

28815. What was the obscene language?—F——g.

(Chairman.) I do not quite understand, Mr. Muir, what section the charge is founded on. I see the charge-sheet is: "Drunk, disorderly, and using obscene language."

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) I think it is founded upon two sections, one of which is for disorderly conduct, and the other for using obscene language.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Obscene and filthy language, is it not?

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes.

28816. (Chairman.) Now will you kindly mark on this plan where you were tripped up by Riley, according to your account? (Handing plan.) (The Witness marked the plan.) This is I see close by the posts. That is, apparently, a post in the middle of the road?—In the middle of Choppin Court.

28817. In the roadway leading into Choppin Court?—Yes.

28818. When you were tripped up by Riley were you and he walking on the pavement?—Yes.

28819. Which of you was nearer the wall, or nearer the post?—Riley.

28820. Then he was on your left-hand side, I take it?—Yes.

28821. How had you got hold of him then?—I had got hold of him by his arm.

28822. Then I understand from your account that he suddenly tripped you up by putting one of his feet between your legs?—Yes.

28823. And you both fell?—We both fell.

28824. Tell me particularly, please, how you fell?—We both fell into the roadway.

28825. What kind of a roadway is it?—It is more like the pavement.

28826. Is it wood pavement?—No.

28827. Is it pitch?—Yes.

28828. Is it one of the old-fashioned pitched roads?—Yes.

28829. Then it is very much like the pavement?—Yes.

P.C. A. Mizen.

28830. When you fell did your hand come in contact with the road at all?—No. Riley went down first. I was on top of Riley. I went on my side.

28 Jan. 1907.

28831. Is the pavement higher than the road to any extent?—Yes.

28832. How many inches?—About four inches.

28833. I see your account is that when you had got just by the post——?—Right opposite the post.

28834. Riley put his foot in between your legs and jerked, I suppose, or made some movement. That alone would not trip you up?—Yes.

28835. And then you fell upwards, on to the roadway, and that is pitched. Did you hear Riley's head come in contact with the road?—No.

28836. (Mr. Dickinson.) Why did you send for the ambulance?—Because he refused to walk.

28837. You had gone some distance?—Yes, about ninety yards.

28838. Had he walked from there?—Quietly.

28839. I mean you got him up after this?—He did not walk after the struggle until I sent for the ambulance.

28840. Did you hold him while he was struggling?—Yes.

28841. You rolled together on the ground?—Yes.

28842. How did you get up?—With the assistance of P.C. 322.

28843. He came up at that moment?—Yes.

28844. Then you say he walked a certain number of yards. What did the prisoner then do?—No, he laid down on the footway and would not walk. I then sent for the ambulance.

28845. Had you not moved from the post?—Only just from the road on to the pavement.

28846. Did you try and make him get up?—Yes; we tried to make him walk; we picked him up, but he would not walk. He was very drunk.

28847. You say you did not notice any injury to his eye?—I did not notice any injury to his eye—only blood on his cheek.

28848. How soon after that did he consent to walk?—As soon as I sent for the ambulance, or shortly after I sent for the ambulance.

28849. When you saw his eye at the police station it was swollen, you say?—It was swollen a bit.

28850. Was there no blood?—Only just a little on his cheek—a little abrasion below his eye.

28851. Was the eye closed?—It was swollen; it was not closed.

28852. Although it was swollen he could see?—Yes, he could see.

28853. (Mr. Whitmore.) After he got up from the fall did he draw your attention to his eye?—No.

28854. And you did not notice it until you got to the station?—Only when I got to the station, and then I noticed the blood on his cheek.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) I find that the section is Section 54, Subsection 12, and the words are: "Every person who shall use any profane, indecent, or obscene language to the annoyance of the inhabitants or passengers." Then the other section is Section 58, which says that any person who shall be found drunk in any street or thoroughfare within the Metropolitan Police District or while drunk shall be guilty of any riotous or indecent behaviour shall be guilty of an offence. The word "Disorderly" is used in the marginal note. It is not used in the section itself.

(Chairman.) You see there are the words in Subsection 12: "To the annoyance of the public."

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes.

(Chairman.) If the public is not annoyed it is not clear that using bad language is an offence. What struck me was grouping in the charge sheet all the offences together.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I suppose it would be presumed that if indecent language is used in the public streets it is to the annoyance of the inhabitants.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) The words certainly do occur together very often in the charge sheet, and I suppose the two offences do very often occur in fact.

P.C. THOMAS KEMP (322 H.), sworn.

P.C. T. Kemp.

28 Jan. 1907.

28855. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Are you Police-constable 322 of the H Division stationed at Shadwell?—Yes.

28856. How long have you been in the force?—About two years and nine months.

28857. Have you been all the time in the H Division?—No.

28858. How long have you been there?—About thirteen months.

28859. Where were you before that?—In the G Division stationed at Hoxton station.

28860. Were you in Old Gravel Lane about half-past ten on the night of the 21st November last?—About half-past eleven.

28861. Did you see the crowd outside the Post-office?—Yes.

28862. Did you hear anything?—I heard some shouting.

28863. Did you see any other police officer there?—I saw P.C. 134 in the crowd.

28864. That is the last witness?—Yes.

28865. How far away were you from him?—Between twenty and thirty yards.

28866. Did you see him do anything?—I saw him arrest the prisoner Riley, and I saw him go round the corner at the end of Gravel Lane into Prusom Street.

28867. Whereabouts were you at that time?—I was at the corner of Lowder Street coming towards Prusom Street when I first saw the crowd.

28868. You were coming south along Old Gravel Lane?—Yes.

28869. When Mizen went round the corner with his prisoner what did you do?—I followed on behind, and I never saw any more of the last witness and the prisoner till I saw them struggling in the roadway in Prusom Street.

28870. Why did you follow down Prusom Street?—It is general when a constable takes a man into custody to follow on behind in case the prisoner is obstreperous.

28871. That is a common part of your duties, is it?—Yes.

28872. Where was he when you came up with him?—I saw him in Prusom Street struggling on the ground, and when I got up to him I helped him up to his feet and then we both helped the prisoner up, and we got him on the pavement and he refused to walk.

28873. How did he refuse—by words or by actions?—By actions.

28874. What did he do?—I got to one side of him and the last witness got to the other side and we tried to get him up on to his feet and he would not stand up at all. He refused to walk at all, and then P.C. 313 Stokes came up, and we sent him for the ambulance. Then after we sent him for the ambulance Riley got up on to his feet and walked quietly to the station.

28875. How far had Stokes gone when Riley got on to his feet and began to walk?—We caught him up on the New Gravel Lane Bridge.

28876. Did you notice Riley's eye?—After I helped him up to his feet I saw a little blood just on his right cheek.

28877. You noticed it then?—Yes.

28878. And at the station did you notice it?—Yes.

28879. This was not your charge, was it?—No.

28880. Mizen preferred the charge?—Yes.

28881. Did you hear what it was?—I heard him tell Inspector Sanders it was drunk and disorderly and using obscene language.

28882. What took place then?—The Inspector brought the charge-sheet into the charge-room, and he noticed the prisoner's eye was swollen. He asked him how he came by the injury to his eye, and Riley pointed to P.C. 134, the last witness, and said "He did it."

28883. What did Mizen say, if anything, or what was said then?—The Inspector asked P.C. 134 whether he could account for the injury, and the police-constable said he could not account for it at all, unless it was done previous to his arresting the prisoner, or unless it was done in the struggle. Then the Inspector telephoned for the divisional surgeon, and he came and dressed the eye, and he said it might have been done by a fall, and that he did not see how it could be done if anyone hit him with the fist.

28884. That is what the surgeon said, in Riley's hearing?—Yes.

28885. What did Riley say to that?—He never said anything then.

28886. Did you notice the state of Mizen's coat?—It was very muddy.

28887. What was the state of Riley's clothes?—He was covered with mud all on one side—all his trousers were covered.

28888. Were you on the ground at all?—No.

28889. Had you any mud on your clothes?—On this right side.

28890. How did you get that?—When I was walking by the side of the prisoner when I helped him up.

28891. (Earl Russell.) You only gave evidence on the first occasion at the police-court?—Yes.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) No, on both occasions.

28892. (Earl Russell.) Which was it: Did you give evidence on the one day or the two days at the police-court?—Both.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) He gave evidence on both occasions, according to the depositions.

28893. (Earl Russell.) When you saw the arrest outside the post-office, Riley went quite quietly?—Yes.

28894. You were quite close—within 20 or 30 yards?—Between 20 and 30 yards away.

28895. You saw no reason to interfere?—Not at the time. I walked up behind.

28896. But at the time of the arrest you did not think there was anything for you to interfere about?—It was my duty to follow on behind. It was not necessary to run up to them.

28897. Could you see Riley plainly before the police-constable arrested him?—I could not see him plainly.

28898. Because of the crowd round?—Yes.

28899. Could you hear what was going on plainly?—No; I could not hear what he was saying. I heard him shouting.

28900. You could not say what sort of language they were using at that distance?—No.

28901. But you saw him plainly after the arrest?—After he got him out of the crowd I saw them turn the corner into Prusom Street.

28902. And then you followed them down Prusom Street?—I followed on down Prusom Street.

28903. Did you get in front of the crowd and tell them to keep behind you?—The crowd all stopped at the top of Prusom Street in Gravel Lane.

28904. Without being told?—Yes.

28905. They stopped there themselves?—Yes.

28906. You did not have to tell them to keep back?—No.

28907. And none of them attempted to follow?—No, not that I saw.

28908. About how far behind Mizen were you as you went down Prusom Street?—Just over 20 yards.

28909. Just close behind?—About 20 yards, or just over 20 yards.

28910. Did you see the prisoner Riley trip him up?—No.

28911. Did you see him fall down?—No; I saw them struggling on the ground.

28912. And the place where they were struggling is the place marked "Post" on the plan?—Yes, right opposite Choppings Court.

28913. How was it that you did not see them fall down?—Because of the winding. There is a little winding in Prusom Street.

28914. You were shut off by that corner?—Yes.

28915. Is this what you told the magistrate the first day: "I saw the prisoner and Police-constable 134 in a crowd." Is that right?—I saw the constable arrest the prisoner in the crowd.

28916. That was outside the post-office?—Yes.

28917. Did you say that was outside the post-office?—I told them between the Angel and the Green Bank.

28918. "The prisoner tripped the police-constable up, and they struggled on the ground." Did you say that?—I do not remember saying tripping him up. I saw them struggling.

28919. You do not think you saw the prisoner trip the police-constable up?—No; I do not think I did say that.

28920. When you told the magistrate that on the first day, did you tell him that was in a different place to where the arrest took place?—Where the struggle was?

28921. Yes?—I told him where the struggle was in Prusom Street.

28922. Did you tell him it was in a different place from where you saw the prisoner in the crowd?—Yes.

28923. You mean, you said in the first place it was between the Angel and the Green Bank?—That is where he was arrested.

28924. And you told him the other thing was in Prusom Street?—Yes.

28925. You are quite sure you said that the first day?—Yes.

28926. Did you say anything at all about the ambulance the first time you gave evidence?—I said we sent an assistant for the ambulance, but the prisoner got up and walked to the station quietly.

28927. Did you say anything about the ambulance the first time you gave evidence at the police-court?—I said the ambulance was sent for.

28928. You may have said that the second time; but did you say it the first time you gave evidence?—I could not say.

28929. Did you hear Mizen give his evidence the first time?—No.

28930. You were out of court?—I was.

28931. The second time you did say something about an ambulance, did you?—I said we sent P.C. 313 for the ambulance, but I did not mention the police-constable's number.

28932. You did not give his number?—No, I do not think so. I said we sent a police-constable for the ambulance, but I do not think I mentioned the number.

28933. And P.C. Stokes did not give evidence then, did he?—No.

28934. Is it not true that you walked alongside the prisoner Riley all the way down Prusom Street?—It is not true.

28935. Even whether you were holding him or not, you were not alongside him?—No.

28936. You were quite a distance away?—Quite a distance away.

28937. If, at this entrance to Choppin Court, P.C. Mizen had struck him a blow in the eye, you could not have seen it, could you?—No, I could not.

28938. Anybody who was coming down Choppin Court might have seen it?—It was very dark at the court.

28939. But Choppin Court is quite straight, is it not?—Yes.

28940. And it is light at the mouth of it?—There is a lamp right opposite where they were struggling, but at the other end it is very dark.

28941. What position exactly did you find P.C. Mizen and the prisoner Riley in when you first saw them on the ground?—Riley was lying on his side, and Mizen was just trying to raise himself up on his knee.

28942. Were they in the street or on the pavement?—In the roadway.

28943. Which was on the top?—They were neither on the top.

28944. They were alongside each other?—They were alongside each other, as I saw.

28945. More or less parallel to the pavement?—About a yard, or a yard and a half away from the pavement.

P.C. T. Kemp.

28 Jan. 1907.

28946. You know what I mean by about parallel. Were they lying cross ways to the pavement, like that (describing), or alongside of it?—Close up to the pavement; they were lying lengthwise, with their feet to the kerb.

28947. Their heads were out in the street?—Yes, as if they tripped up and rolled like that.

28948. (Chairman.) Which way was their feet?—Their feet were in the roadway, at the edge of the kerb.

28949. (Earl Russell.) Lying side by side?—Yes.

28950. Had Mizen got hold of his prisoner?—He had hold of him still.

28951. With one hand, or both?—With both hands. One hand had hold of him, and he was raising himself up by the other one when I got up to them.

28952. Was the roadway dirty there?—Very dirty.

28953. Do you agree that it was made of pitch?—Yes, it was pitch just there.

28954. An asphalt road?—Yes.

28955. (Chairman.) That is not pitch, as I understand?—It is asphalt.

(Chairman.) I thought the witness meant it was made with the old-fashioned blocks of stone let in the roadway.

28956. (Earl Russell.) I took him to mean asphalt. (To the witness.) What sort of surface is it?—Asphalt.

28957. (Chairman.) Is it like the pavement? The other witness said it was like the pavement?—It is level like the pavement.

28958. (Mr. Whitmore.) How is the pavement made?—With these flags of stone.

28958* (Earl Russell.) It is not stone that the roadway is made of—it is asphalt?—Not just outside the court it is not.

28959. What sort of dirt was on it?—Mud—slushy.

28960. Is the whole of Prusom Street paved with asphalt?—No.

28961. You mean only a little bit near the mouth of Choppin Court?—From Choppin Court to the end of the workhouse. The workhouse runs along there, and that is put down to silence the sound of the traffic as it goes by.

28962. What is the rest of it paved with?—This end, towards Old Gravel Lane is paved with these stones.

28963. Hard stones—setts?—Square stones.

28964. None of it is macadam?—No.

28965. Who was the nearer to you of the two. You came from Old Gravel Lane down Prusom Street towards the place marked "post"?—Yes.

28966. And these two people were lying in the road with their feet towards the kerb, side by side?—Yes, when I got up to them.

28967. Who was the nearer to you of the two?—The prisoner Riley was lying the furthest away from me, and the police-constable was lying this side nearest to me.

28968. And the constable was in the act of getting up?—Yes, he was just raising himself on to his knee.

28969. Did you run up quickly when you saw him on the ground?—After I saw them struggling I slipped up quick.

28970. Were they struggling when you saw them?—They were struggling on the ground.

28971. I thought you said, when you first saw them, the constable was trying to raise himself?—The prisoner was struggling, and the constable was trying to raise himself up, as far as he could, to get himself on his feet again.

28972. While he was holding the struggling prisoner with one hand?—Yes.

28973. With which hand?—His left hand—according to what I could see.

28974. You are quite sure the prisoner was struggling?—Yes, he was struggling.

28975. But he could be controlled by the man's left hand while he was getting up with the other?—The

P.C. T. Kemp.
28 Jan. 1907.

last witness, Mizen, was trying to get up and holding to the prisoner at the same time, to prevent him getting away from him.

28976. He was using this hand to raise himself with, and holding the prisoner with the other?—Yes.

28977. And you say the prisoner was struggling?—Yes, trying to get away.

28978. But not enough to get from the constable's left hand?—No.

28979. Tell me how the prisoner was lying. Was he on his side or his back, or his face, or how?—He was lying on his face when I first got there, and then, after I helped the last witness up to his feet, he turned over and tried to get up.

28980. But, before you lifted him up, when you first saw him, he was lying on his face?—Yes.

28981. What was he struggling with—his feet or his hands?—He was trying to get up after I helped the last witness up.

28982. Before you helped him up, when you first saw them, you say they were struggling?—Yes.

28983. You say that Riley was lying on his face—is that right?—He was at the time.

28984. I want to know how he was struggling?—Kicking himself about, trying to get up to get away.

28985. Kicking his heels up in the air?—Yes.

28986. He could not be using his fists if he was lying on his face?—Not that I saw.

28987. Wriggling his body?—He was trying to get up.

28988. In fact, his struggling was to get to his feet again?—Yes, what I could see of it.

28989. Not a struggle to fight with the constable, but to get on his feet again?—No doubt the struggle was both ways.

28990. When you came to help Mizen how did you do it. Did you reach out your hand to him?—I stepped off the pavement and caught hold of his arm and helped him up, and we both got hold, one on each side of the prisoner, and lifted him up on the pavement.

28991. Did you lift him on to his feet again?—Yes, and then he refused to walk. He bent himself right down on his knee and refused to walk.

28992. Did you drag him along some distance to see if he would walk?—No.

28993. Do you mean he did nothing when he would not walk?—After he refused to walk, the other P.C. 313 came up, and we sent him for the ambulance, and we were going to make him stop there until the ambulance came back.

28994. Where was 313 when you gave him the message?—He came from towards the direction of New Gravel Lane when he came up to us.

28995. Where was he when you gave him the message?—Close by.

28996. Right up at the side of Choppin Court?—Just opposite there.

28997. Was it not 100 or 150 yards further on that you saw him?—No; it was just by the Court.

28998. Was it past the mouth of Clegg Street?—Just between Clegg Street and Choppin Court. I could not say to a foot or two.

28999. Not past the mouth of Clegg Street?—Between Clegg Street and Choppin Court. There are several yards between the two.

29000. It was not beyond Clegg Street?—It was this side of Clegg Street.

29001. You had not passed Clegg Street with your prisoner when you met Stokes?—We had not passed Clegg Street.

29002. You had not got as far as Clegg Street when you met Stokes?—No.

29003. Who was it that gave the message for the ambulance? Was it you?—No; the last witness asked him to fetch the ambulance, I think.

29004. The last witness, Mizen, spoke to Stokes?—Yes.

29005. Was Riley still on the ground?—He was sitting on the pavement.

29006. And is he not correct when he says that the other police-constable (that is you) said, "Go and get the ambulance"?—No, I never mentioned that.

29007. You did not say that?—No, I never mentioned it at all.

29008. Did not Mizen say, "No, he is my man"?—No.

29009. Did he not say he did not want the ambulance; it was his man?—No.

29010. Nothing of the sort happened?—When the last witness, Mizen, asked the other police-constable to get the ambulance, the other police-constable said, "You go and fetch it; I will stay here while you go," and Mizen said, "No, you fetch it, he is my prisoner." Those are the words he used.

29011. Something of the kind was said, and you say that is what happened—that P.C. 313 said he would stop by the prisoner while P.C. 134 got the ambulance?—Yes; he said, "This is my prisoner; you fetch the ambulance."

29012. After the other man had gone for the ambulance, Mizen made another effort to drag Riley along, did he not?—No.

29013. Did Riley at once get up on his feet?—He got up on his feet and walked quietly to the station then.

29014. How long after you sent for the ambulance?—Two or three minutes.

29015. About two or three minutes after Stokes had gone?—Two minutes.

29016. So soon after that you caught Stokes up before he reached the station?—We caught him up on the bridge.

29017. That is 200 yards away?—Quite that.

29018. A quarter of a mile away?—I would not say a quarter of a mile.

29019. You were walking with the prisoner, and you caught Stokes up a quarter of a mile away, on the way to fetch the ambulance?—We caught him up on the New Gravel Lane Bridge. After we got to the bridge he saw us; there is a curve out of Prusom Street into New Gravel Lane, and he stopped.

29020. He looked back and saw you coming?—Yes.

29021. What did Stokes do then? Did he come to the station or remain on duty?—He remained on duty.

29022. I notice that when you were called the second time, you say, "The prisoner lay flat on his face on the ground, and the police-constable was on his knees just raising himself up. P.C. 134 and I took hm to the station. The tripping up was in Prusom Street." But you did not see any tripping up?—I saw them struggling. I could not see the tripping up.

29023. Did you tell the magistrate on the second day that you did not see the tripping up?—I do not think I told him.

29024. Did you tell him on the first day that you had not seen the tripping up?—I would not be sure. I know I saw them in the struggle, but I could not say whether I said I saw the tripping up.

29026. Did you tell the magistrate that?—I told the magistrate that the crowd remained at the top of Old Gravel Lane. After the police-constable came up and was going to fetch the ambulance, a few gathered round.

29027. There were only two lads and a little girl at the corner of Clegg Street?—Yes, at the time I got to the police-constable's assistance.

29028. You did not say anything on the first day about there being no other crowd?—No, I do not think I did.

29029. Did the people up Prusom Street, who stood at the head of Prusom Street in Gravel Lane, make an attempt to follow you down Prusom Street?—No, not that I could see.

29030. Although the prisoner had been taken that way, and you were following after them, you did not see any of them come after you?—No.

29031. But there was a crowd afterwards at the place marked "post"?—Several came up after we got him to his feet, and he refused to walk.

29032. Did they come from Prusom Street or Choppin Court, or all round?—They came from Old Gravel Lane, where the crowd stopped at the top. Several of them came that way.

29033. They came in all directions?—I could not say whether they came the other way or not. I saw several came from the direction of Old Gravel Lane at the time we got Riley to his feet.

29034. Were there any people you knew among them?—No.

29035. On the second day that you gave evidence you were asked a good many questions by a solicitor on behalf of the police, were not you?—Yes.

29036. And by the Magistrate himself?—Yes.

29037. Did the Magistrate himself ask you whether you had seen the trippng up, on the second day?—I would not be sure whether he did or not.

29038. Did you say this: "The crowd was five or six yards from the corner, between me and P.C. 134 and the prisoner"—that is when you are speaking of the first arrest. Then: "I got round the corner into Prusom Street"—that is right. You went round the corner into Prusom Street?—Yes, out of Old Gravel Lane.

29039. "And saw the tripping up"?—No, I did not say anything about tripping up. I said the struggle.

29040. "And saw the tripping up." You never said that, you say?—No, I do not remember saying that.

29041. "The prisoner was going quietly round the corner."

29042. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I understand you to say you did not, in fact, see it?—No, not the tripping up.

29043. You are quite sure of that?—Yes; I saw both struggling on the ground.

29044. (Earl Russell.) Now let me read you something else you said, and tell me if it is correct: "I was on duty in Old Gravel Lane. My attention was called to the crowd. I looked up and saw P.C. 134 with prisoner in custody. I walked up, passed through the crowd, and went to the corner of Prusom Street. The crowd followed me to the corner." That is right, is it?—The corner of Prusom Street.

29045. "Then I saw, ten or twelve yards away, P.C. 134 and the prisoner on the ground. The others could not see, I do not think"?—That was ten or twelve yards from the winding in Prusom Street—from Choppin Court to the winding.

29046. "I was several yards in front of the crowd." You say you were several yards in front of the crowd when the prisoner was on the ground. Is that right?—The crowd remained at the top of Old Gravel Lane, and, after I saw the struggle and helped the police-constable to his feet, and got the prisoner to his feet, I saw several of the crowd around coming towards Old Gravel Lane.

29047. Before you sent for the ambulance?—Before we sent for the ambulance.

29048. I thought you told me just now that no crowd came until after you sent for the ambulance?—I saw the crowd, and we sent for the ambulance.

29049. Is it right to say you were only a few yards in front of the crowd when you saw them on the ground?—Not a few yards—about eighty to ninety yards from where they were.

29050. But can you tell me what you think this means: "Then I saw, ten or twelve yards away, P.C. 134 and the prisoner on the ground"? That would be when you turned the corner in Prusom Street, would it not?—There is a winding in from Choppin Court, as you come up to Old Gravel Lane, ten or a dozen yards.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) You must read a little before that in order to follow it. "I walked up, passed through the crowd, and went to the corner of Prusom Street. The crowd followed me to the corner. Then I saw, ten or twelve yards away, P.C. 134 and the prisoner on the ground."

29051. (Earl Russell.) I will read that, but I think that makes it more difficult to follow: "Then I saw ten or twelve yards away, P.C. 134 and the prisoner on the ground." You do not say you saw them ten or twelve yards from the corner of Prusom Street and Old Gravel Lane?—Not from the corner.

P.C. T. Kemp.

28 Jan. 1907.

(Chairman.) Prusom Street curves round so much that they must have walked some little distance up Prusom Street before he could see the constable and Riley.

(Earl Russell.) So I think, and that is why I was not confusing him by reading the first part.

(Chairman.) There are two crowds. The first is the crowd round Riley and the constable, and the other crowd is the crowd that gathered after the ambulance had been sent for.

29052. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) "The others could not see, I do not think. I was several yards in front of the crowd." That refers to when you came up, with the prisoner on the ground, does it not? Is that correct, that you were only several yards in front of the crowd?—Only several yards when I saw the prisoner struggling.

29053. (Chairman.) I think you went on your beat on this evening at 10 o'clock?—I was on Lowder Street point duty, and I was on at 9 o'clock.

29054. I was rather struck with the remark you made: "I was bound to follow on behind." What did you mean by that?—It is generally our duty to follow on behind after a police-constable takes a man into custody, in order to see that nothing occurs.

29055. Where do you find that?—It is generally the duty to follow on.

29056. To leave your point simply because you see that a constable has arrested a man, and that they are going quietly to the police station?—You never know how they are going to turn out after they are arrested. It is always best to follow on behind a little way.

29057. You were on point duty at Lowder Street?—Yes.

29058. That is a street turning out of Old Gravel Lane?—Yes.

29059. How far is that from the public-house called the Angel which I see on the plan?—It would be about thirty yards.

29060. What first attracted your attention so as to lead you to leave your point?—I saw the crowd.

29061. That was close to the Angel?—Yes.

29062. Did you hear, from where you were, any shouting or quarrelling?—I saw the crowd, and heard some shouting, and I walked towards them, and then I saw the police-constable Mizen, the last witness, arrest a prisoner, and turn the corner into Prusom Street before I got near the crowd.

29063. Let us be quite exact on the matter. Riley was going quietly with the P.C. round the corner?—When he turned the corner.

29064. Am I to understand that it was your duty to follow the two to the police station?—I should not have followed right down, not if anything had not occurred.

29065. That is not quite an answer to my question. You were thirty yards from your point, remember?—Yes.

29066. And the prisoner was going quietly. Do you say that it was your duty to follow Riley and the police-constable into Prusom Street?—It is part of the duty to follow.

29067. Where do you find that? Supposing you had been on beat duty, and not on point duty, would you say it was your duty to go into Prusom Street?—Yes.

29068. If you had been on night duty, and not on point duty, it would have been your duty to leave your beat?—Yes, to follow on, but I should not follow them right to the station—not if anything had not occurred.

29069. It may be so, but I should like to read you what is in the White Book about this: "Constables may leave their beats to act in cases of fire, accident, or other emergency." I do not know whether the same rule applies to point duty; but, even if you had been on beat duty, you think you would have been bound to go into Prusom Street after these other people?—It is generally the duty to follow to see if they go all right a little way.

29070. Even to leave your beat for that purpose? I am not suggesting that you are necessarily wrong in the matter. I only want to find out what your duty

P.C. T. Kemp.

28 Jan. 1907.

was?—It is to follow on to see whether the prisoner goes all right for the start.

29071. But the other constable was doing that. The other constable had arrested this man Riley, and Riley was going quietly to the station, as far as you saw?—I should not have followed on if he went all right after he got down Prusom Street.

29072. If you saw them struggling on the ground, and, as Prusom Street is a street that curves round a good deal you must have gone a good way from your point in order to see them struggling?—It was about 120 yards, no doubt, from where the point is to where they were struggling.

29073. The order as to the beat goes on to use terms which suggest that it is rather a serious thing for a constable to leave his beat unnecessarily: "Officers in charge of stations are to enter in the Occurrence Book at the expiration of their tour of duty, a list of constables who have been taken from their beats for any purpose and for however short a time." You voluntarily, I understand, left your point on this occasion, and you thought you were doing your duty in so doing?—Yes.

29074. Is that the general practice, that if a constable witnesses an arrest, and a prisoner goes quietly, it is customary for him to leave his beat or his point and follow on?—They generally make it a rule, to see if the prisoner goes quietly or not for a distance, and then come back again. If he does not go quietly, then they assist the constable.

29075. Has anybody told you that you ought to do that—any superior officer?—No; I have not been told that.

29076. Do you know it is the practice? Have you generally done it yourself?—Yes.

29077. Then there was absolutely no reason at all for your going into Prusom Street except that you were acting in accordance with what you thought was the general rule under the circumstances?—Yes.

29078. (Mr. Whitmore.) You heard the words read from the White Book about an emergency?—Yes.

29079. Do you understand these words to include the case of a man who has been arrested by a single constable, and is being taken to the station?—Would you not consider that to be an emergency?—Yes.

29080. (Chairman.) That seems to be the case. Prusom Street is in somebody's beat, I suppose?—Yes.

29081. Whose beat was Prusom Street in on this occasion?—I could not say who was on the beat then.

29082. Was it on Mizen's beat?—Yes, it was Mizen's beat on that night.

29083. Was another man on beat duty near your point?—On the side where the fixed point is.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) There is a paragraph in the White Book with regard to fixed points as well.

(Chairman.) Yes, I have seen that.

29084. (Mr. Dickinson.) I understand you are perfectly certain that you did not see the tripping up?—Yes.

29085. And, as Lord Russell has pointed out to you, you said before the magistrate, "I got round the corner into Prusom Street and saw the tripping up." You say you are not sure you said that before the magistrate?—That is so. I am not sure I said that.

29086. When did you first hear anything about tripping up, then, if you did not see it?—I suppose it was P.C. 134 who said so. It must have been put down to me by mistake I do not remember saying it.

29087. At all events, you did not see it?—No.

29088. Have you any idea when P.C. Mizen can have told you of that?—No.

29089. Do you remember writing down a report on the 22nd November?—Yes.

29090. That was the day after this occurrence?—Yes.

29091. Tell me the circumstances under which you wrote that report. Where were you?—I was in the library.

29092. What time of day was it?—About 3 or 4 in the afternoon.

29093. That was after the first hearing at the police court?—Yes.

29094. Who told you to write the report?—I had an order from Inspector Sanders to make a report out.

29095. You wrote it in the library?—Yes.

29096. Did you know that Mizen wrote a report?—I did not know until afterwards. I got mine written out before he came.

29097. In this report you say: "I beg to report that at 11.30 p.m., 20—11—06, I was on duty in Old Gravel Lane, when I saw a large crowd at the top of Prusom Street. On going towards them I saw P.C. 134 H. Mizen turn the corner into Prusom Street with prisoner, and then I next saw prisoner trip P.C. up, and they both fell to the ground and were struggling very violently." I ask you now, what made you write that? You have told us that you did not see Riley trip the police-constable up; and what made you say the day following, "I next saw the prisoner trip the constable up"?—I cannot make out how I put it down. I never saw him trip him up. I saw the struggle.

29098 "I then helped the P.C. to his feet, and both of us brought prisoner to the station. On way to the station I noticed that Riley's right eye was swollen. I did not strike him myself or see P.C. 134 H. Mizen strike him." Again, I ask you, when was it that you first thought of saying that you had seen Riley trip Mizen up, because you swear now definitely that you are certain you did not see Riley trip him up?—I am certain I did not see him trip him up. I saw them both struggling in the roadway the first time I saw them.

29099. What made you write this in your report the day afterwards?—I put it down there.

29100. It is clear you said you had seen something when you had not seen it?—I put it down there.

29101. Had you had any conversation with P.C. Mizen about it before you wrote this report?—No.

29102. You have no explanation as to why you put down what was not true in this report?—No.

29103. It was not true?—No; I did not see him at all trip Mizen up.

29104. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I do not quite understand that. Did you write your report before or after the evidence had been given in the police court?—After the evidence had been given in the police court at the first hearing.

29105. After the first hearing?—Yes.

29106. You are quite clear about that? Do you remember clearly about it whether it was after the hearing at the police court?—Yes, I remember clearly.

29107. You had sworn at the police court, before you wrote that report, that the prisoner tripped the police-constable up. On the first day, before you wrote the report, you had said this: "I saw the prisoner and P.C. 134 in the crowd. The prisoner tripped the P.C. up, and they struggled on the ground"?—I do not remember saying that.

29108. But that is what you said on your oath. That is in the depositions?—I saw them struggling on the ground, but I do not remember saying I saw Riley trip him up.

29109. Had you heard Mizen give his evidence when you gave yours?—No, I was outside at the time.

29110. Did you know that Mizen said Riley had tripped him up?—I heard Mizen say at the station Riley tripped him up.

29111. Before you went to the court to give evidence?—On the night when he was charged.

29112. You knew before he was charged that Mizen said it, but you had not seen it?—Yes.

29113. Did you mean to tell the Magistrate that you were only repeating what Mizen had told you, or what you had heard Mizen say?—I must have done, but I do not remember saying about tripping him up. I saw them struggling on the ground.

29114. These are the words taken down by the clerk of the police court in the depositions: "Prisoner tripped the police-constable up, and they struggled on the ground." You are the first person who says that the prisoner tripped the police-constable up. Mizen's words were "He threw me down." As far as I follow you—you will tell me if this is right—you had not seen it?—I never saw the tripping up.

29115. But you had heard Mizen say the night before the prisoner tripped him up?—Yes.

29116. And you repeated that the next day at the police court?—Yes, I must have done if they put it down, but I do not remember saying it.

29117. You apparently did not tell the Magistrate that that is what you heard Mizen say, and not what you had seen yourself. You gave an account to which Mr. Dickinson has called your attention on the very same day in the evening. You sent in your report on the 22nd November, which is the same day that you had given your evidence at the police court, and you wrote this report after you had come away from the police court?—Yes.

29118. You gave an account of it there, and you say "Then I next saw the prisoner trip the police constable up, and they both fell to the ground"?—I do not remember. I never saw the prisoner trip the police-constable up.

29119. Will you give me the original report, Mr. Muir. (Document handed.) Is that report all in your handwriting. (Handing report to Witness)?—Yes.

29120. Did you write that out by yourself?—Yes.

29121. Without assistance from anybody?—Yes.

29122. How came you to put in those words—just read it for yourself. "I next saw the prisoner trip the police-constable up"?—It is there, but I do not remember putting it in at the time. I saw the struggle but I never saw anything of the tripping up.

29123. Do you think you might be making a mistake, and that you did see the tripping up?—No, I never saw the tripping up. I saw the struggle on the ground in the roadway when I came up to the scene first in Prusom Street.

29124. There is no doubt about it—they are your words, "I next saw the prisoner trip the police-constable up." You cannot explain it?—No.

29125. Had you had any talk to Mizen at all after the police court proceedings?—We were talking when we came back to the station afterwards.

29126. Before you wrote the report?—Yes, after we left the police court we came back to the station.

29127. Did you have a talk about the tripping up?—We were talking about it as we came back.

29128. Did you both agree that Riley had tripped Mizen up?—No.

29129. What did Mizen say?—He said the prisoner had tripped him up.

29130. He told you that then?—Yes.

29131. Is that how you came to write it in your report?—I must have done like that, but I do not remember saying it at the police court.

29132. But apparently your explanation of how you came to write it in your report is because Mizen told you about it when you came back to the police station?—He was talking about Riley having tripped him up, but I do not remember putting it in the report.

29133. You say you saw it?—Not the tripping up.

29134. The report is in your own handwriting. Have you ever heard of that being done before in a report?—I could not say.

29135. Writing down by one police-constable that he saw something that another one told him had happened?—I could not say.

29136. Did it strike you as a very unusual thing at all when you were doing it that you should write in the report that you had seen a thing, a thing which you had not seen at all, but you had only been told by another police-constable did happen?—I do not remember putting it in. I saw the struggle, and that is all I saw.

29137. Had you told the Inspector at all what had happened. Did you tell him that you saw the tripping up?—I told him what I saw, but I do not remember telling him anything about the tripping up.

29138. This report would go before him, would it not?—Yes, he had to see all the reports after they were made out.

29139. Did you tell P.C. Mizen you had not seen the tripping up?—I could not say.

29140. I do not understand an expression you used. You said Mizen said to you "He is my prisoner—you go and get the ambulance"?—He said that to Stokes.

29141. That was because he had arrested Riley?—Yes.

29142. He was going to take him to the station?—Yes.

29143. And prefer the charge?—Yes.

29144. Is there any rule that police-constables must not leave a prisoner?—There is generally a rule that he must keep along with him. After you arrest a man the rule is that you are generally to keep with him until you get to the station.

29145. It rather looks as if he would not leave him because he thought it was some advantage in having a prisoner. Was that the idea at all?—No, not that I know of. P.C. 313 said "I will stop here while you go for the ambulance, and P.C. 134 said "No, I will stop here—you fetch the ambulance—he is my prisoner."

29146. "My prisoner, therefore I am going to stop to look after him"?—Yes.

29147. (Mr. Dickinson.) That is Mizen's original report. (Handing document to the Witness.) Have you ever seen that report before?—No.

29148. You are perfectly certain?—No, I have not seen it.

29149. Just read out that sentence from his report?—"I noticed that prisoner's right eye was swollen, but I am unable to say whether it was caused before I arrested him or when he fell with me in Prusom Street. I did not assault him, and neither did I see any other person do so."

29150. Now read out that sentence from your report?—"I noticed that Riley's right eye was swollen. I did not strike him myself or see P.C. 134 Mizen strike him."

29151. Do you notice in both those cases the word "swollen" is wrongly spelt and has been corrected?—Yes, it is.

29152. I again ask you have you never seen that report of Mizen's before?—No.

29153. (Chairman.) I see from a newspaper report that has been handed to me that Mr. Dickinson the Magistrate, asked you the same question that I asked you as to why you followed?—Yes, he did ask me.

29154. What did you tell him?—I told him it was generally the thing to follow on.

THIRTIETH DAY.

Tuesday, 29th January 1907.

PRESENT:

Sir DAVID BRYNMOR JONES, K.C., M.P. (Chairman).

RUFUS DANIEL ISAACS, Esq., K.C., M.P.

WILLOUGHBY HYETT DICKINSON, Esq., M.P. (Barrister-at-Law).

CHARLES ALGERNON WHITMORE, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law).

J. W. ST. LAWRENCE LESLIE, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law) (Secretary).

J. F. WALEY, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law) (Assistant Secretary).

P.C. JOHN STOKES, 313 H, sworn.

P.C. J. Stokes.

29 Jan. 1907.

29155. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) You are P.C. 313, H Division, stationed at Shadwell?—Yes.

29156. How long have you been in the Force?—Seven and a-half years.

29157. How long at Shadwell?—Three years at Shadwell.

29158. Where were you before then?—Bow Street.

29159. At half-past eleven on the night of the 21st November were you on duty in Prusom Street?—Yes.

29160. On beat duty?—Yes.

29161. Which way were you coming?—I was coming from New Gravel Lane up Prusom Street towards Old Gravel Lane.

29162. How far had you got?—I had got to the corner of Choppin Court, where I saw P.C. 134 and P.C. 322 with a man on the ground. I said to 134, "I will look after the prisoner, you go to the station for the ambulance." He said, "He is my prisoner, you go to the station." I said, "All right, I will go and fetch the ambulance."

29163. Is there any rule about that?—No particular rule.

29164. I do not mean a printed rule, but is there any practice with regard to the person who first arrests the prisoner?—He may be exhausted, and he might walk to the station, and the man who came up fresh would be able to cope with the prisoner better than the man who has been wrestling with him for some time. If he walked to the station it would give him more chance.

29165. But supposing he is quite competent to look after his prisoner himself, what is the practice? Does he hand him over to another officer or not?—No, there is no particular practice. He will stop with him or go for the ambulance.

29166. Why did you offer to remain with the prisoner on this occasion?—I thought P.C. 134 was somewhat exhausted.

29167. You went towards the police station for the ambulance?—Yes.

29168. On your way did you look back?—When I got up on New Gravel Lane Bridge I looked back and I saw coming about 100 yards behind me the prisoner and the two constables. They were walking comfortably and quietly then.

29169. What did you do then?—I stopped till they got past me, and then went back again on to my beat.

29170. At what pace were you coming down Prusom Street before you came to where the constables and the prisoner were?—The ordinary pace—about two and a-half or three miles an hour.

29171. Did you see anything of the man Sweeney?—No, I did not.

29172. Did you know him by sight or not?—Very well.

29173. You saw nothing of him at all?—Nothing whatever.

29174. (Earl Russell.) You say that you saw both the constables and the prisoner Riley when you first saw them?—Yes, they were both there when I got there.

29175. What position were they in?—Riley was lying on the ground and the other men were trying to get him up.

29176. Was he lying on the street or pavement?—On the footway then, or sitting on the footway.

29177. P.C. 134 Mizen was on his feet?—Yes, they were both on their feet.

29178. Both the constables were on their feet?—Yes, trying to get the prisoner on his feet.

29179. The prisoner was not struggling?—He was not struggling at the time I got there.

29180. Sitting?—Sitting on the footway.

29181. Quite quietly?—Yes.

29182. Did you notice any injury about Riley?—No, I never noticed Riley at all; only I just saw him on the footway.

29183. How close up to the group did you come—was it within a yard?—Quite close up—close enough to speak to P.C. 134.

29184. As close as you are to me or closer?—About as close, or it may be a little closer.

29185. You did not look at the prisoner Riley at all?—No, I had not time to look at him.

29186. You did not hear him say anything?—No.

29187. Was it your suggestion that you should go for the ambulance?—I suggested that the ambulance should be fetched.

29188. You were not asked to go for it by them?—No.

29189. Had you asked them what was the matter with their prisoner, and what the trouble was?—No, I saw him there, and I could see that he was drunk, and it is a general way with prisoners when they are drunk, if they think they will not go they will lay down and be put on the ambulance.

29190. The men who had Riley in charge never suggested he required an ambulance?—I could see that he required an ambulance, because he would not attempt to walk in any shape or form.

29191. But the men who had the prisoner in charge did not suggest it?—No.

29192. The suggestion came from you about the ambulance?—I suggested he should be put on the ambulance.

29193. You say there is no particular meaning in Mizen saying it was his prisoner?—No, there is nothing in that. It was only a remark that he passed.

29194. Did you have no conversation at all with either of these constables as to what had happened?—No, I did not see anything whatever of it, or did not speak to them about it any more than I saw them there trying to get this man on his feet to walk to the station, and he would not get on his feet, and I suggested they had better put him on the ambulance.

29195. Did you notice anything about the condition of their clothes?—Yes.

29196. Whose clothes did you notice?—They were all muddy. They had been down on the ground—the prisoner and P.C. 134 had been down on the ground. It was a very muddy night, and they were bound to be covered with mud.

29197. And Kemp?—I could not see much of Kemp. I did not notice him in particular. I only noticed 134.

29198. You could not say whether Kemp was muddy?—I could not say whether he was muddy or not.

29199. You say you noticed that Riley was muddy?—Yes.

29200. Where abouts?—He was muddy right down the front of him.

29201. Did you see any mud on his cheek?—No, I did not notice so particularly as that.

29202. How high up on his clothes did you notice the mud?—He was literally covered right down the front of him, like as if he had been down on his face.

29203. Did you notice the mud right up to his neck?—I could not say that I noticed it up to his neck, but I noticed it on his clothes.

29204. Within a few inches of his neck?—It may have been.

29205. I want to see if you can remember?—I did not take all that notice. I was only there a matter of two or three minutes.

29206. I thought you said he was muddy all the way up?—He was muddy as far as I could see him, or as far as I noticed him.

29207. Was he muddy above his knees?—Yes.

29208. Was he muddy above his waist?—Yes.

29209. You are quite sure about that?—Yes.

29210. Although you noticed all that mud on his clothes, you say you noticed nothing on his face?—No, I did not notice it. I knew who the man was, and what he was.

29211. Did you only look at his clothes?—That is all.

29212. You never looked at his face?—No.

29213. You say you saw the mud on his clothes, and yet you saw nothing on his eye?—No.

29214. Did you go to the station or not?—No.

29215. You continued on your duty?—Yes.

29216. Did you have any conversation before you made the report. You made a report some time or other, did you not?—No, I have not made a report.

29217. Never?—No.

29218. And you did not give evidence?—No.

29219. Did you have any conversation with the Inspector on duty in the station later on?—I told the Inspector that I had mentioned the ambulance to the other police-constables, and did start to come to the station for it, but I saw that it was not necessary after walking some distance to the station, as they were following me about 100 yards behind.

29220. When did you tell the Inspector that?—On the Saturday.

29221. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Is that Inspector Sanders?—Yes.

29222. (Earl Russell.) Saturday was the 24th, and this occurrence was on the night of the 21st?—Yes.

29223. When you told Inspector Sanders that, the case had been on in court?—Yes.

29224. You had heard by then, I suppose, that the prisoner had complained of an injury to his eye?—No, I had not heard anything at all about it.

29225. Did you not know the case had been up in court?—I knew the case had been up in court, but I did not know he had made any complaint whatever. I had not seen the other police-constables.

29226. You heard nothing about what had happened in court?—Only what Inspector Sanders told me that Riley had made a complaint after they had been in court.

29227. That was what I asked you, and I say you did know by then when you had your conversation with Inspector Sanders that Riley had made a complaint of being assaulted?—Yes, he had made some complaint.

P.C. J. Stokes.

29 Jan. 1907.

29228. Inspector Sanders told you that?—Yes.

29229. Did he tell you what the assault was that Riley complained of?—He complained of a bruised eye.

29230. Did Inspector Sanders tell you who he said had given him that eye?—Yes.

29231. How came Inspector Sanders to speak to you about it at all?—I spoke to him first.

29232. You spoke to him?—Yes.

29233. What did you tell him?—I said to him that in this case I saw the man on the footway and I was coming to the station for the ambulance, but I saw it was not necessary so I did not come.

29234. What was it made you speak to him about this case at all?—A cutting that I had out of the paper I showed Mr. Sanders first.

29235. You saw a report of the proceedings in court in the newspapers?—Yes.

29236. Did it say in that report that Riley complained of P.C. 134 having struck him?—Yes.

29237. Then did Inspector Sanders, when you mentioned it to him, ask you to tell him everything you knew about it?—He asked me if I knew anything about it, and I only told him I was coming to the station for the ambulance. I proposed putting the prisoner on the ambulance.

29238. Did you tell him you knew nothing more than that?—That is all.

29239. And that you noticed no injury?—That is quite right.

29240. Did you hear that Riley had disputed being drunk?—No.

29241. Did it not say so in the newspaper report?—I could not say whether it did say so or not.

29242. Did not Inspector Sanders tell you that he had asked the Divisional Surgeon whether the prisoner was drunk?—No, it was nothing to do with me.

29243. You knew the Divisional Surgeon was sent for, did you not?—No.

29244. This conversation with Inspector Sanders was quite short then?—Yes, I only told him I went to fetch the ambulance, and he said "That does not matter; it is a case of drunkenness." It is a thing that people generally do when they are drunk, they always bring an accusation against the police, especially the men we have to deal with in our neighbourhood.

29245. You heard nothing about what had happened at the station, and about the Divisional Surgeon coming?—No, I knew nothing about it at all.

29246. Did you know these other men were asked to make a written report about it?—No.

29247. You did not hear it?—No.

29248. Did you hear about the case when it came on the second time in the police court?—No, I did not hear anything more about it than that the man had been fined 2s. 6d. for drunkenness. It did not interest me. I had nothing at all to do with it, only proposing he should be put on the ambulance because he would not walk.

29249. But you could have given evidence to show that in your opinion he was drunk?—I could have done if it had been necessary.

29250. Did you tell Inspector Sanders about that?—It was not necessary. There were enough witnesses to prove he was drunk. There were the two officers who knew he was drunk, and the Inspector, and so did the doctor.

29251. Did you tell the Inspector that you knew he was drunk?—No, I do not suggest I did.

29252. (Chairman.) Where was your beat?—Prusom Street.

29253. Prusom Street only?—Prusom Street, New Gravel Lane, High Street Wapping, and through into Hilliards Court.

29254. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Supposing you had taken charge of the prisoner and P.C. 134 had then gone for the ambulance, which of you would have preferred the charge?—134.

P.C. J. Stokes.

29 Jan. 1907.

29255. The man who had arrested the prisoner?—Yes.

29256. It would not make any difference who stopped by the prisoner?—No.

29257. The man who arrested him is the man who would have to prefer the charge?—Certainly.

29258. (Mr. Dickinson.) I do not understand which way you came down to Prusom Street?—From New Gravel Lane.

29259. That is the way the two policemen were going?—They were coming from Old Gravel Lane, and I was coming up from New Gravel Lane.

29260. Which side of the road were you walking on?—On the right-hand side of the road.

29261. Your right-hand side?—Yes.

29262. That is to say, the same pavement they were on?—Yes.

29263. I think Sweeney said he was on the other pavement?—He may have said that.

29264. Was there nobody in the street at all?—I did not notice Sweeney in the street. There were several people there. If there is anything on there and Sweeney is anywhere about he has always something to do with it—if ever the police are in trouble of any sort.

29265. You did not notice him?—No.

29266. If he was there he said he would have been walking on the other side of the road and in front of you?—Yes, he should have been.

29267. Are you able to say he was not there?—I am quite positive he was not there when the man was lying on the ground during the time I was there.

29268. He might have turned back before that. How many people were there in the street at that time?—I should think there were eighteen to twenty, but they were mostly women.

29269. Walking about?—No; these that I saw stood round the prisoner.

29270. Then it is not correct to say that there were only two boys and two little girls there?—That was at the time the row commenced that the two boys and the little girls were there. After he had been lying on the footway some little time a crowd would naturally collect. When we take anybody into custody it is a rule for 200 or 300 to collect. It is a very rough neighbourhood, one of the roughest neighbourhoods in London, and if we take anyone into custody it is very rare that one policeman can take him to the station.

29271. How long have you known this man Sweeney?—Three years.

Dr. Charles Graham Grant, sworn.

Dr. C. G. Grant.

29272. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Are you the Divisional Surgeon of the H Division?—That is so.

29273. Were you called by the telephone to the Shadwell Police Station on the night of the 21st November last?—I was, at ten minutes to twelve.

29274. Did you see the man Riley there?—Yes.

29275. Was anything said to you in his presence by the Inspector?—I do not recollect.

29276. Did you examine him?—I did.

29277. What did you find?—I found a contused right eye, and an abrasion under the same, close to the nose, within three-quarters of an inch from the nose. I found that he was intoxicated, and various other particulars I remarked which I will give you if you desire them.

29278. You can tell us anything you said at the time in his presence?—I remarked on the first appearance of the injury: "Have you had a fall," or words to that effect. That was the impression I formed of the injury, knowing nothing whatever about the case or any complaint against anyone. He said No. I asked him how he got it. He said: "I cannot tell you while this constable is here," or words to that effect. I told him there was no reason why he should not say what he liked in the presence of the constable, and then he indicated that the constable had done it to him.

29279. In what way did he say that?—I have seen so many cases since then that I really cannot remember his exact words, but he blamed the constable for striking him on the eye with his fist. That was not consistent with my view of the appearance of the injury at all, nor did I attach any importance or credence to it, in view of the fact that the man was intoxicated, and further, that I had had experience of him before.

29280. This same man?—Yes.

29281. So far as this night of the 21st November is concerned, what did you do to his eye?—I put on a cold compress, fastened it on with a bandage, and told him to take it off in the morning.

29282. Did you examine the eye itself?—Yes, I did.

29283. Was there any injury to the eye?—There was no injury to the eye itself. It was, in my opinion—I think I used the words at the police court—a common black eye.

29284. Did you tell him how long he was to keep on the bandage?—I told him to remove it the next morning.

29285. In the ordinary course you would not come to the police court the next morning to give evidence unless sent for?—Quite so.

29286. You were not sent for to come to the police court the next morning, but on Saturday, the 24th, you were called upon to give evidence?—I was.

29287. Did you notice at that time whether he was still wearing any bandage?—He was.

29288. Was it your bandage or somebody else's bandage?—That I could not say. I was not close enough to see it.

29289. He has told us he went to the hospital?—Yes.

29290. From what you saw of it, was there any occasion for him to go to the hospital about his eye?—Oh, no, not that I saw. The Magistrate told him to remove the bandage after my evidence, and he did so, and then I had a rapid look at the eye from my position quite beside him, and I saw no reason for that bandage being there.

29291. You made an entry, as is customary, in the Occurrence Book?—Yes.

29292. Will you read it?—"Doctor called"—that is in the Inspector's writing, and this is the way it goes on: "I attended at 11.50 p.m. to see James Riley suffering from right contused eye; intoxicated; fit to be retained."

29293. What did the words "fit to be retained" mean?—It means that there is no reason why he should not be placed in the cells in the ordinary way—no ordinary reason.

29294. Fit to be retained in the cells as distinct from the infirmary?—Yes; all directions we give the police are placed in the Occurrence Book.

29295. You say you had experience of this man before?—Yes.

29296. Was that on the 23rd July, 1903?—Yes.

29297. You were called in then, were you?—Yes.

29298. What were you called in for on that occasion?—I was called in to see three constables who complained of injuries and to see the prisoner, who complained of pains in his abdomen.

29299. What was the condition of the prisoner Riley?—I do not know. What appeared to be his condition was that he was suffering from cramp—gripe.

29300. And as to sobriety?—Drunk.

29301. Was his behaviour quiet or otherwise?—I cannot recall that for the moment. Do you mean in my presence?

29302. Yes?—I do not recollect.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I do not think any of this was put to Riley.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Oh, yes, it was, sir.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) About the doctor examining him then.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes, sir.

(Chairman.) I think it was put, or some suggestion was made, but I do not see the relevancy of it.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) If you do not think it relevant, I will not pursue it. However, this doctor does not recollect what Riley's behaviour was, so it does not carry it any further.

29303. (Earl Russell.) When you were called by telephone do you recollect at all what was said to you?—Through the telephone?

29304. Yes?—Not the exact words.

29305. Would you simply be told that you were wanted at the police station, or would you be told what you were wanted for?—Only what I was wanted for.

29306. Would it be Inspector Sanders who called you up?—I do not know.

29307. You cannot say now?—No.

29308. Do you remember if you were told what you were wanted for on this occasion?—I am pretty certain I was, but I do not recollect. What do you mean "wanted for"?

29309. Would they say you were wanted because a man was supposed to be drunk, or would they tell you you were wanted because the man complained of the police assaulting him?—No, they told me nothing of the sort. I cannot, as I say, remember the exact wording, but I may say that at 1 o'clock this morning I was called by telephone, and I can tell you what was said to me then. I can recollect that, and it was on all fours with the message usually sent.

29310. I am perfectly willing you should say it.

(Chairman.) I do not think we can have that.

(Witness.) I do not remember what is said to me through the telephone at this distance of time. As a matter of fact, it would be something to this effect: "Come to Shadwell Station to see a man suffering from this, that, or the other," or a woman suffering from this, that, or the other, as the case may be.

29311. They told you something about the injury, but nothing about the circumstances?—Nothing about the circumstances at all.

29312. When you came into the station who would you see first?—I always go to the Inspector's office.

29313. And there, I suppose, you would be told what the nature of the trouble was?—I probably would have a replica of the messages sent through the telephone: "We have a man here suffering from an injury to his eye."

29314. "Which he says has been caused by a police-constable"?—Do you suggest it was said to me on this occasion?

29315. Would Inpector Sanders say that to you?—Inspector Sanders might or might not. He might not have. People do not always blame the police the moment they come in the station.

29316. But if he knew the circumstances he might mention them to you before your examination?—I do not know what he might mention.

29317. When you did examine Riley (I will not discuss his sobriety with you), you looked, I suppose, at his eye first?—I looked at his eye; I cannot say whether I did it first or not. I may have looked at his clothes first. Are you drawing any distinction on that?

29318. No, I mean you directed your attention to his eye?—Yes, I directed my attention to his eye.

29319. You say it was an ordinary black eye?—Yes.

29320. An ordinary black eye is generally caused by a fist, is it not?—Oh, no. It is frequently caused by a fist, or, I may say, generally.

29321. The Saturday night black eye in your district is generally caused by a fist?—A fist or an elbow or a knee or a boot or a blow, or a hundred other things.

29322. There was nothing in the appearance of the eye inconsistent with its having been caused by a fist?—Nothing. There were other appearances that were inconsistent, but you are not talking about the wound below on the cheek or the mud about him.

29323. The mud had some effect on your judgment, had it not?—Truly.

29324. You did ask him how it had been caused, did you not?—Yes, I think I did.

29325. You made a suggestion of this having been caused by a fall?—I did.

29326. You said, "Have you not had a fall"?—Yes, I did. That is the first thing I said to him.

29327. At that time there were present the prisoner Riley and P.C. Mizen?—The two police-constables.

29328. And P.C. Kemp?—I do not know the names; I know the men.

29329. Was Inspector Sanders present?—I think not. Inspector Sanders was in the office, I think.

29330. But not present during your examination?—I do not know. A number of people were present in and out during my examination, but I cannot say who they were.

29331. When you made the suggestion of a fall, did you hear Riley say, "Yes, that is what he did, he fell down," or anything of that kind?—No, he did not. He said it was not a fall. He said, "I cannot tell you how it happened in the presence of the constable."

29332. I mean P.C. Mizen. When you said you thought it had probably been a fall, did P.C. Mizen say, "Yes, it was a fall," or anything of that kind?—No, I do not think he did. I do not think I should allow him to interfere with my conduct of the case at all.

29333. Did he say anything at all?—I do not know. He may have said something, but my business was not with what he said at that time, but with what I had to do in connection with the man's eye.

29334. You would not be sure whether he said anything or not?—No, I would not be sure about that.

29335. When you asked Riley, the prisoner, he said, as you have told us, that he would like the police-constable to leave the room before he answered?—That is so.

29336. You said there was no reason for that?—Yes.

29337. This is what you said at the police court, and I think it is the same as you say now, "The prisoner said, 'He hit me with his fist'"?—Yes.

29338. That was Riley's account of it?—That was Riley's account of it.

29339. I just want to ask you something about what you said. You said you attached no credence to his statement because he was drunk. Is that right?—Did I say no credence?

29340. Very little credence?—Little credence—that is correct.

29341. It is the reason I am asking you about. Do you say that was because he was drunk?—That was because he was drunk.

29342. You do not agree that when the liquor is in, the truth will out?—There is a certain amount of truth in that, but not at a police station. Four ale is a different thing altogether.

29343. Do you find a man who is intoxicated is less given to being truthful than a man who is sober and has got his faculties under restraint?—It depends on the degree of intoxication, whether it is just a little over-stimulation or the absolute submergence of one's individuality.

29344. In this case the man was most undoubtedly drunk, was he not?—Yes. If you will allow me to interpose a remark, a woman fell off an electric tram-car this morning at 1 o'clock, and she blamed the police for inflicting the injuries to her head.

29345. Perhaps she was suffering from cerebral disturbance?—She was hysterical, and under the influence of drink.

29346. Did she happen to fall on a policeman?—No, she was picked up, and her head was dressed at the expense of the community, and she blamed the police for inflicting the injuries upon her.

29347. In the case of an injury to the head, that is rather a different thing?—This was an injury to the head.

29348. As far as the eye went there was nothing inconsistent with what Riley told you. It might have been caused by the constable's fist?—Yes.

29349. (Chairman.) How long have you been Police Surgeon in this division?—I cannot give you exactly the date, but I was anticipating that question as I came here this morning, and I should say, roughly, about ten years.

29350. It is nothing new for you to be called in to this police station?—No. I am, to put it in an Irish

Dr. C. G. Grant.
29 Jan. 1907.

way, two police surgeons. I have two sub-divisions, and they are in a very wild district of London. I have three stations that I am called to, and I have great experience of these cases.

29351. You, therefore, have had occasion to make many entries in the Occurrence Book, describing the injuries sustained by prisoners?—Oh, yes, about 1,000 a year.

29352. Am I right in supposing that it is your duty to make the entry of a full and accurate description?—It must be accurate, but not necessarily full, because all I have to do is to put remarks for the guidance of the police and the guidance of the Magistrate. I give instructions what the police are to do, and I put on my certificate, for the guidance of the Magistrate, the condition of the parties wherever I can.

29353. For the guidance of the Magistrate?—Yes.

29354. That means that the entry is made by you with reference to the possibility of some dispute taking place at the police court as to how the injuries were caused?—Certainly.

29355. Do not you think it is very important, then, that the entry should not only be accurate but full?—It is very important I should have the essential particulars.

29356. The entry ought to contain all the essential particulars?—Yes.

29357. Then I take it also, that, in your view, in making the entry in the following form:—"Suffering from contused right eye," you were entering all the essential particulars that you observed?—All that I considered essential for the Magistrate to know. Of course, you must understand that I did not know that significance was going to be given to this case that was not given to other similar cases. We have these charges against the police on many occasions, and when the prisoner goes before the Magistrate he says nothing about it. If the Magistrate had a wrong report from me it would irritate him rather than please him.

29358. The only thing you state in the entry is "Contused right eye"?—Yes, that is so.

29359. As a matter of fact, you seem to have said before the police Magistrate "There was a small lacerated wound near the nose"?—There was.

29360. This morning you describe it as "An abrasion under the same"?—Yes, that is so, Sir.

29361. Under the nose does not necessarily mean near the nose. However, we can solve the matter easily. Is Riley in Court?

(James Riley.) Yes, Sir.

29362. (Chairman.) Will you point out on Riley's face where this lacerated wound or slight abrasion was?—Close by this mark here. (Pointing to Riley's right eye.)

29363. What is the technical description of that—what muscle is it?—One would say on the orbital ridge cutting the bone underneath.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Where does Riley say it was?

(James Riley.) Just here. (Pointing.)

(The Witness.) He points to the same place.

(Chairman.) Very near to the same place.

29364. (Mr. Whitmore.) Is that independent of the black eye?—That I cannot say. It was a very trifling wound, and had no significance in itself, except as pointing to the method of infliction of the entire injury.

29365. (Chairman.) Was there any kind of abrasion about the eyebrow, on the forehead?—No.

29366. Or on the nose itself?—No, nor on the nose itself.

29367. Bearing those facts in mind let me tell you that according to the evidence we have the fall took place on the pavement or else on the asphalte road?—Yes.

29368. Do you think it likely that if a man fell upon the pavement or an asphalte road that he could have sustained this contused right eye?—And the abrasion under the eye—are you putting the two together?

29369. Yes?—No, I do not think so. There must have been some projection to cause it.

29370. Do you know Prusom Street yourself?—I know it roughly, but I cannot say I know it particularly.

29371. Do you know where the post is?—No, I do not know it so intimately as that.

29372. What was told to us yesterday was that the road was pitched. At first I thought that that meant that there were large blocks of stone put in in the old fashion, but it appears now that the witness who used the word "pitched" meant an asphalte road, and then we are told that the pavement was an ordinary flag pavement. In your judgment do you think it likely that if Riley was trying to trip up the policeman he could have got that bad eye by falling simply?—Falling on to this asphalte road?

29373. Yes?—I should expect a projection. I do not think it likely. He must have hit against something of a projecting character—an elbow or a knee or a boot or a stone standing out—some projection.

29374. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Or a fist?—Or a fist. Some projection.

29375. (Chairman.) If he accidentally came in contact with the police-constable's fist that would account for it, would it not?—As far as the injury per se is concerned.

29376. (Mr. Whitmore.) Or the kerb of the pavement?—A projecting portion of the kerb—not the kerb itself.

29377. (Mr. Dickinson.) When you were before the Magistrate you said "The injury was not one I should have been called to in the ordinary way." What was in your mind?—That is was not a severe injury, and that was explained to me subsequently by the knowledge that he blamed the police for inflicting it. They do call me to very trifling injuries where any charge is brought against the police of misbehaviour.

29378. This was not an injury that you would be called to in the ordinary way. When did you know the reason you were called to see it?—I cannot answer that absolutely, but I can tell you this, that I did not know the reason when I asked Riley if he had had a fall. It is so long ago that I cannot tell you particularly when I was told this fact. It was some time when I was in the station, but I think what you want to know is that I did know it when I asked him if he had had a fall. That is the case.

29379. I notice you said before the Magistrate that you saw the policeman's coat?—Yes, I did, with mud upon it.

29380. How did it come about that you saw the policeman's coat?—They were both standing there, and both policemen had mud on their coats, and so had the prisoner.

29381. At that time you realised there was some dispute as to the cause of this occurrence?—I take it it would be about then.

29382. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) When you were called in to examine did you not form the opinion that this blow might have been caused by a fist?—Oh, yes, I think so.

29383. It is quite clear that it might?—It is quite clear that it might.

29384. And indeed if Riley fell on the pavement, is it not far the most likely thing to have happened?—There was mud about them, and in a rough and tumble there generally is.

29385. Is it not most likely if there had been a struggle that he had got the blow in the course of the struggle from a fist?—Not necessarily from a fist—not more likely from a fist than from a knee or elbow.

29386. Something of that kind?—Something of that kind.

29387. I do not quite follow why you did not say so?—There was mud all over him, and he was drunk.

29388. That would only show that there had been a struggle?—Why I did not say so, where—in the station?

29389. In the station when you were called in to examine. You saw the condition in which his eye was?—Yes.

29390. And I should think from what you have told us that the condition in which you found it was quite consistent with his having had a blow in the eye with a fist, was it not?—It was to a certain extent consistent You might as well say to me, why did I not say it might have been done with the knee.

29391. Because this man was accusing the constable of having done it with his fist?—But the man was drunk.

29392. But you were called in to examine and report to the Magistrate officially what the injury was, and what your view of it was. On the one hand, it was alleged it was a fall, and on the other hand you were told it was a blow caused by a fist. Do not you think it was right to say it was consistent with either view?—No, I am not supposed to report to the Magistrate that the black eye was caused by a policeman's fist.

29393. You are not following the question I put to you?—I am sorry if I am not.

29394. Just consider it for a moment, and remember you are here to give your evidence perfectly impartially and fairly?—I will do my best if you will kindly repeat your question.

29395. If you examine a prisoner and find his eye is contused, and that the condition in which you find him is consistent with either a fall or a blow from a fist, would it not be your duty to tell the Magistrate that it might have been caused in either of those two ways?—No, because it might have been caused in a hundred other ways, all of which it would have been my duty to have reported to the Magistrate.

29396. You told us that you attributed this to a fall, and that is why I am asking you the question. You attributed it to a fall?—At first sight I did.

29397. I do not understand. You thought this man had had a fall. The condition in which you found him would not appear to have caused the black eye from the fall itself, would it. It must have been in a struggle?—The first thing that presented itself was that there had been a fall.

29398. That was the condition of the clothes?—And the condition of all parties concerned. There had been a struggle and a fall. They were all covered with mud. The man has a contusion on the eye. One's natural presumption is that this was caused by a fall. It might, as I say, be caused in many different ways.

29399. What is puzzling me is in view of the condition in which you found him, how did you think this black eye was caused by a fall. I do not quite follow what fall it was that would have caused this black eye. From the description it sounds as if it must have been done during the course of the struggle—falling, as you say, upon a knee, or an elbow, or a fist?—Or a stone.

29400. Do you think a stone would have done it?—Certainly.

29401. Would not there have been more marks if he had fallen on a stone sufficient to give a black eye like that?—It depends on the nature of the stone—if the stone is jagged or rough.

29402. If you fall upon a stone you would expect to find a greater abrasion than you did actually find, would you not?—I would not like to say that.

29403. It must have been a stone that fitted exactly in the eye, because there was no mark either on the nose or on the eyebrow?—There was a mark underneath.

29404. And it is an abrasion about three-quarters of an inch from the nose. If it was a stone you would expect to find some mark on the more prominent part of the face?—It would depend on the force of the fall, but, roughly speaking, you are correct.

29405. The force of the fall, so as to cause a black eye such as you found. You have said before, but I do not think that you take that view now, that what he said was not consistent with your view of the injury?—That the policeman had struck him with his fist. It was not consistent.

29406. I do not understand that from what you told me just now. You did say, either to Mr. Muir or to Earl Russell, that what Riley said to you about a blow from a fist was not consistent with your view of the injury, but you told us that it was consistent. It might have been caused by a blow from a fist?—Yes, as far as the injury to the eye itself was concerned. We have an abrasion underneath which is inconsistent, to my mind, with a blow from a fist. We have a large quantity of mud on the men's clothes, which is inconsistent with a blow from a fist. It suggests a fall. Then we have the reputation, and my knowledge of the police, which is more important still, to my mind.

29407. Listen to what you said when you were examined before the Magistrate: "The injury could have been caused by a blow from a fist"?—Yes.

29408. That is right, is it not?—The injury per se, unquestionably.

29409. You say the injury per se. Do you mean to draw a distinction between the black eye and the slight abrasion which you have told us about?—I do, and, further, the condition of the men's clothing.

29410. You were speaking at the police court about the condition in which you found him. There you describe it not as even an abrasion, but a black eye with a small lacerated wound?—An abrasion and a small lacerated wound is the difference between Tweedledum and Tweedledee.

29411. You treated it as one injury?—I gave it no treatment at all, as a matter of fact. I merely used it as a means of arriving at an opinion.

29412. As to the injury?—As to the cause of the injury.

29413. That is what you say to the court. You said then what I gather you say now to us: "The injury could have been caused by a blow from a fist or from falling in the street"?—Yes. With regard to the abrasion, it might be caused by a fall.

29414. Or from a blow from a fist—it might be either is what I am putting to you?—Yes, but it does not follow because what I say might cause injury that that must be my opinion as to what that injury was. Those are two entirely different things.

29415. I should have thought you might have given us credit for realising that?—I am sorry if I have misjudged you.

29416. I am not suggesting to you that you are attributing a cause, but giving evidence from which with the other evidence before the Magistrate he was to judge the cause. It was for him to judge the case?—That is so; it was for him to judge the cause.

29417. You could only tell the Magistrate what you found?—Quite so, but the Magistrate judges the cause very much by my opinion.

29418. That is what I should have thought, and you knew what the conflict was between the policeman and the man?—I did, very well, indeed.

29419. And it is quite plain now that your evidence really tended to show that it was caused in the struggle?—That was the intention of my evidence, and it was accepted as such, that it was caused in the struggle, but there may be falls and blows in a struggle.

29420. I only want to get one thing further. I do not understand why you told us to-day that what the prisoner Riley had said was not consistent with your view of the injury. That is why I am asking you this. What you said at the police court was pretty well what you have told us during the course of your examination in the last few minutes, that the injury could have been caused by a blow from the fist or from falling in the struggle?—Yes.

29421. I do not understand why you said before that what he had said, that is that the blow was from a fist, was not consistent with your view of the injury?—I can only say, as I said to you before, that although I admit these possibilities, my opinion cannot be that both did it. I must have an opinion one way or the other.

29422. Either might have done it?—Might have done it, but that still leaves a reservation for my opinion. I may lean more to one method of infliction than to the other from facts that I observe, or think that I observe.

29423. (Chairman.) I find that, among other things that have to be done when a divisional surgeon is called in by the police to a police station to visit a person suffering from injury, is that he is to be asked by the officer on duty at the station, or by the constable present, for directions as to the necessity for removing the injured person to the hospital, infirmary, or other place?—That is so.

29424. Did the Inspector formally ask for your directions as to what was to be done with the prisoner in this case?—With a man who is constantly in the police station like myself that would not apply, because I go automatically to the Occurrence Book and I write in directions, so that it would be superfluous to ask me the question.

29425. Then the regulation says: "If the person concerned is in custody, the surgeon is to be requested to state whether the prisoner should be detained in the police cells, or should be removed to the infirmary or hospital"?—Yes.

Dr. C. G. Grant.
29 Jan. 1907.

29426. Your answer to me saying that the words "fit to be detained" were put in in accordance with the practice was intended to comply with that regulation, I suppose?—Yes.

29427. "Fit to be detained" meant fit to be detained in the cells?—It had special reference to the man's intoxication.

29428. That is just what I was going to put to you, because let me call your attention to the form of the certificate: "Called at 11.50 p.m. to see James Riley, suffering from contused right eye; intoxicated; fit to be detained." Then the words "fit to be detained" there refer to his condition?—To his intoxication primarily, and to the contusion of his eye secondarily.

29429. There is not a word about cells in the Occurrence Book?—No, that would not be put in the Occurrence Book, because if he was detained anywhere he would be detained in the cells.

29430. "And special directions to the police for their future guidance in the case should be entered in the Occurrence Book by the surgeon before he leaves the station"?—Yes, that is always done. No special directions were necessary there, because he was fit to be detained.

29431. You say that meant, and they would understand it to mean, in the cells?—Certainly.

(Earl Russell.) Would you mind asking a question of the witness to clear up a point which I have not succeeded in getting clear from the doctor's answers. In the evidence at the police court it is said, "I saw the policeman's coat was covered with street debris mud, and dirt." In answer to me I understand Dr. Grant to say only one was muddy, but in answer to Mr. Dickinson he said both police-constables had mud on their clothes, and then in answer to Mr. Rufus Isaacs he said they were all covered with mud. I should like to clear that up.

(Witness.) It was the other way round. At the police court I was asked: "Did you see P.C. So-and-So's coat muddy," and I said: "Yes, I did." As a matter of fact, I was prepared to say all the police were muddy, but I was not asked.

29432. (Earl Russell.) You did mean that—that both police-constables' coats were covered with mud?—Unquestionably. I was not asked at the police court whether that was so.

29433. I only wanted that there should be no misapprehension?—Quite so.

Divisional-Inspector RICHARD SANDERS, sworn.

Divisional Inspector R. Sanders.

29434. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Are you a Sub-divisional Inspector of the H Division, stationed at Shadwell?—Yes.

29435. Were you in charge of the police station on the night of the 21st November, at a quarter to 12, when James Riley was brought in?—I was.

29436. Was he in the custody of P.C. Alfred Mizen and P.C. Thomas Kemp?—That is so.

29437. Tell us what took place when he was brought into the station?—P.C. 134 Mizen brought the prisoner into the station, and he informed me of the charge. He said it was a charge of drunkenness and disorder and use of obscene language. I left my office, and I went into the charge room to see the prisoner. I then saw that he had an injury to his eye. I said to him, "I see you have an injury to your eye." He said, "Yes, he did it," pointing to the constable.

29438. Which one?—134, Mizen.

29439. "I said I will send for the doctor and let him see it." I then telephoned Dr. Grant, and he attended and dressed Riley's eye. I asked the constable if he could account for it.

29440. Before the doctor came did you examine the eye yourself at all?—I did. I saw there was mud on the cheek and just a little abrasion on the cheek.

29441. There was some mud on his cheek?—Yes, his clothes were also muddy.

29442. When the doctor came what took place?—The doctor dressed the injury, and Riley also said in the doctor's presence that the constable did it. I asked the constable if he could account for it. He said, "He may have done it previous to my arresting him, or it might have been done in the struggle when he tripped me up."

29443. After the doctor had certified to his condition what did you do?—He was placed in the dock and the constable explained the charge to me—where he found him with a crowd round him, making use of obscene language, and as he would not go away he was obliged to take him into custody.

29444. Did you take the charge?—I took the charge. I read it over to him and he was then placed in the cells.

29445. According to my recollection, Riley said in the witness-box yesterday he was never put in the dock at all?—Oh, yes, he was.

29446. How long was he in the dock?—About five minutes perhaps, while the charge was being entered.

29447. Was the charge read to him in the usual way?—Yes.

29448. And did he make any reply, do you remember?—No further reply.

29449. The next day the matter came before the Magistrate, and evidence was given by Mizen and Kemp for the prosecution?—Yes.

29450. And by Edward Sweeney for the defendant?—That is so.

29451. Then you were called into the box by the Magistrate?—Yes.

29452. And you gave evidence?—Yes.

29453. On that occasion did the Magistrate read a letter that he had had from Mr. Sedgwick?—Yes.

29454. Having read the letter, did he say anything to the prisoner about it?—He asked whether he should settle the case then or whether he would have it put back till Saturday, with a view of Mr. Sedgwick attending to give evidence on his behalf. He directed me to see Mr. Sedgwick.

29455. What did the prisoner say to that?—He said he would have it put back.

29456. Then the Magistrate gave you directions?—Yes, to see Mr. Sedgwick and ask him to attend if he liked.

29457. And did you see Mr. Sedgwick?—I did.

29458. Did you ask him to attend?—Yes.

29459. On the following Saturday did Mr. Sedgwick attend?—He did not.

29460. Then the evidence was given that we know of, and that appears on the Notes of Evidence?—Yes.

29461. What do you say is the duty of a constable who takes a man into custody, as to keeping him in custody as long as he is physically fit to do so?—Yes, he would do so, but there are times, especially in the East End of London, when a man may be a quarter of an hour or 20 minutes with a prisoner, and in that time he would be exhausted somewhat, and his prisoner may escape, and if a man comes up fresh he would certainly tell the other man to stand on one side and take the prisoner on himself, but at the same time, when he got to the station, the original man would prefer the charge.

29462. If he was physically fit to do so?—If he was physically fit to do so.

29463. As to one constable following another who has a prisoner in custody, what do you say as to that with regard to your division?—He was obliged to.

29464. Why?—It is not safe for one constable to take a prisoner through the streets, especially in Wapping.

29465. Is it a common thing or an uncommon thing?—It is a common thing; it is nearly always done.

29466. I want to ask you with regard to the duties of the constable on the fixed point. What is the idea of having a constable on fixed point? Is it to keep him there in order that he may stay there, or in order that he may be found there if he is wanted?—In order that he may be found there or called when wanted by the inhabitants of the immediate vicinity.

29467. So that the people about there will always know where they can find a constable?—Yes.

29468. He is not tied to his point?—No, he is there for the purpose of being called away by the inhabitants if required.

29469. (Earl Russell.) When Riley was brought into the station he was accompannied by both Mizen and Kemp, was he not?—That is so.

29470. One on each side of him?—I could not say that, because I was in the Inspector's office.

29471. Was he quiet when he came in?—Oh, yes.

29472. Not violent in any way?—No.

29473. Not using bad language or shouting?—No.

29474. You came out to see him, I suppose, almost at once. As soon as I was told the charge I went out into the charge room and saw him.

29475. I suppose directly you did see him you saw the condition of his eye?—Yes.

29476. That struck you at once?—Yes.

29477. When you were told the charge in the first instance by Mizen, I understand he did not go into details, but he only said it is a charge of drunk and disorderly and using obscene language?—That is so.

29478. Then you were at once attracted by the eye, and you say you asked questions about it?—That is so.

29479. And Riley instantly said P.C. 134 had done it?—When I asked him how the injury was caused.

29480. Was it upon his saying that that you sent for the doctor?—No, I should have sent for the doctor if he had not mentioned that.

29481. If there had been no charge against the police you would have sent for the doctor?—Yes.

29482. On account of the injury to his eye?—Yes.

29483. You thought it was sufficiently serious to require the doctor's attendance?—Yes; if a prisoner is suffering from any injury at all we are entitled to call the doctor to attend to it.

29484. Riley did not ask for a doctor?—No.

29485. As to his drunkenness, were you quite clear that he was drunk?—Undoubtedly.

29486. Do you remember anything of the incident that Riley spoke of, having been asked to walk up and down the police station after the doctor came?—That is one of the doctor's tests as to a prisoner's state.

29487. Do you recollect whether he did that after the doctor had bandaged his eye?—I think he did.

29488. Riley himself denied that he was drunk?—Yes.

29489. Was that before you sent for the doctor that he denied that he was drunk?—No, after.

29490. You did not require the doctor to satisfy you that he was drunk?—No.

29491. It was not for that purpose that you wanted him?—No.

29492. When you were told of this charge against Mizen did you ask him to explain it at once or did you take him into your office?—At once.

29493. Before the prisoner?—Yes.

29494. You said, "How can you account for it," or something of that sort?—Yes.

29495. Your recollection is that he said that he could not account for it, and that it might have happened in various ways?—It might have happened before he took Riley into custody or in the struggle.

29496. He could not tell which?—No.

29497. When you asked him to account for it did he then go into the details of the arrest?—When the prisoner was put in the dock.

29498. Not when you asked him to account for the black eye?—No.

29499. He did not go into further details then?—No, he merely told me it was a charge of drunk and disorderly and using obscene language. Then the doctor attended to his eye, and after the eye was dressed, he explained the charge to me, and it was entered on the sheet.

29500. It was before the doctor came that you asked Mizen to account for the injury?—Yes.

29501. Did Mizen only say generally that he could not say when it had happened?—He said it at once that he might have got the injury before he took him into custody, or it might have been done in the struggle when he tripped him up.

29502. Did Mizen say anything to you about what he had been doing before he took him into custody that might have caused the injury?—I do not follow the question.

29503. Did Mizen tell you how it might have been done in some fighting that Riley had been doing before he took him into custody?—I think he said he was quarrelling with another man, and it might have been done before he took him into custody.

29504. Did Mizen make any suggestion that it might have been done in the course of the quarrel with this other man?—I think he did.

29505. You understood that a quarrel of that sort meant a quarrel where there were blows?—Just so.

29506. Did Mizen tell you then that that quarrel was one where there were only words?—I do not think anything was said, only that these men were quarrelling, and the other man went away and this one would not go away and he took him into custody.

29507. The impression on your mind was that there was a sort of quarrel in which there might have been blows?—Yes.

29508. Did Riley before the doctor came or after the doctor came give you any details as to how he had suffered this injury?—No, only that "He did it," pointing to the police constable.

29509. He did not tell you "He struck me with his fist"?—With his fist.

29510. He said it had been done with the police constable's fist?—Yes, he said "He struck me with his fist."

29511. What did Mizen tell you about the struggle at the mouth of Choppin Court?—He said he was bringing the prisoner up Prusom Street, and when he got as far as Choppin Court the prisoner Riley tripped him up and tried to get away, and then the other constable came to his assistance.

29512. Did he say that they both fell down when he was tripped up?—Yes.

29513. And that there was a struggle?—Yes.

29514. Did he tell you anything about the number of people who were present?—He said there were only two or three at first, but others came up afterwards, but there had been a crowd in Old Gravel Lane when he took him into custody.

29515. And then he told you that the other constable came up and assisted him?—Yes.

29516. What did he tell you happened after the struggle was at an end when Kemp came up to assist him?—He got up and walked quietly.

29517. He said he walked quietly to the station?—Yes.

29518. Did he tell you that police-constable Stokes had come up?—No, I did not know anything about police-constable Stokes being in the street or on the spot until a day or so afterwards when Stokes spoke to me.

29519. Mizen never mentioned to you that police-constable Stokes had come there at all?—No.

29520. He never told you that there had been any suggestion of sending for the ambulance?—No.

29521. Or that the prisoner had refused to walk?—No.

29522. He said that after this struggle the prisoner got up and came quietly?—Yes, assistance came.

29523. When Kemp came up to assist him the prisoner went quietly to the station?—Yes.

29524. Did you ask Kemp about these incidents?—No, I do not think I did; it was nothing to do with the charge; the charge was being drunk in Old Gravel Lane, and these developments have come out since.

29525. I know, but it was rather more serious than a charge of drunkenness?—But he was asked in the presence of Kemp.

29526. I know, but after you had asked Mizen to account for it did you not ask Kemp if he knew anything about it?—Yes.

Divisional Inspector R. Sanders.

29 Jan. 1907.

29527. That is what I meant. Was that before the doctor came or after?—I think while the doctor was there.

29528. Also in the presence of the prisoner?—Also in the presence of the prisoner.

29529. What did Kemp tell you about it?—Kemp said he did not know anything about it.

29530. He could not say how it had happened?—No.

29531. Did Kemp say anything to you about his being tripped up?—I am not certain on that point.

29532. But you understood from Kemp he was not present when they fell to the ground. Which way did you understand it?—I understood Kemp was not present when they fell to the ground, because Kemp was following on behind.

29533. And not in sight when they fell to the ground?—He may have been in sight—about 20 yards from them when Mizen was tripped up.

29534. Must I take it you do not remember exactly whether Kemp said he was in sight or was not?—No, I cannot remember that.

29535. You told us that when the doctor came Riley repeated the same story that he had been hit by the constable?—Yes.

29536. Did you call for other reports from these constables?—Yes.

29537. You yourself did?—Yes.

29538. From both Mizen and Kemp?—Yes.

29539. And had them made the same night or the next morning?—The afternoon of the Police Court proceedings of the 22nd.

29540. After they had been up to the Court?—After they had been up to the Court.

29541. And you did not attend Court in the first instance?—No.

29542. Until you were sent for?—That is so.

29543. On the first day I mean?—Yes.

29544. You agree with Dr. Grant that both constables were muddy?—Yes.

29545. It looked as if all three had been down on the ground?—That is so.

29546. Did you ask Kemp whether there had been any struggle after he came up or whether everything had been quiet after he came up?—I do not think I asked Kemp at all.

29547. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Was it Kemp whose clothes were said to be muddy, as well as Mizen's?—Yes, he may have got that from the prisoner's clothes or the other constable's clothes.

29548. (Earl Russell.) You did not really go into it very much beyond asking these questions, and then asking for a written report?—That is so.

29549. (Chairman.) Mr Muir asked you some questions about the duty of men on fixed point duty. Am I right in thinking from your answers that it was Kemp's duty to follow Mizen and his prisoner all the way to the station?—Yes, and assist him.

29550. Assist him if necessary?—Yes.

29551. It was his duty to go then some little distance behind into Prusom Street, and so on right to the police station?—Yes, and to give him assistance, and catch hold of the other side of the prisoner's arm.

29552. Were you here when Kemp gave his evidence yesterday?—Yes.

29553. Did you hear him say that he only intended to follow him a short distance just to see them get away, or use some expression of that kind?—Yes, he was rather nervous in answering the questions, I think, but he would undoubtedly have walked on and caught the other constable up and taken told of his arm.

29554. In any case?—Yes.

29555. Even if there had been no struggle and no particular violent conduct on the part of the prisoner?—Yes, in a neighbourhood of that description it is necessary for two constables to be with a prisoner.

29556. Very likely; I am not suggesting the contrary, but notwithstanding the constable is put on his fixed point in order that he may be easily found, and apparently easily go away to the assistance of any other constable, the leaving of his point is a matter of some little importance, is it not?—Yes, it is noted and entered.

29557. In this case Kemp did go all the way to the station?—Yes.

29558. Was Kemp's absence from his fixed point noted in this case?—Yes, the sergeant would make a note of it.

29559. In the Occurrence Book?—No, on the States.

29560. It would be mentioned in the Occurrence Book?—Not in this case, it would be put on the sergeant's States.

29561. The regulation says: "Police employed on fixed points are at all times to render assistance in every case in which police duties and powers require them to act, but whenever a constable leaves his fixed point he is to report as soon as practicable to his sergeant the reason for such action, the particulars of which are to be recorded by the sergeant on his State, and in the Occurrence Book at the station"?—Yes, that is so.

29562. Was that done in this case?—I think not. Only in the sergeants' State, I think.

29563. Whose duty was it to see that the regulation was carried out?—My own duty.

29564. Then you saw Kemp in the police station, did you not?—Yes.

29565. And you would know, I should take it, that Kemp had been on fixed point duty?—At the time I did not know whether he was on fixed point or on the beat.

29566. You did not know then?—No, not at the time of taking the charge.

29567. Who was the sergeant at the station to whom Kemp ought to have reported, according to the regulation?—He would make a report and give it to the sergeant, and the sergeant would enter it "being called away from the point." That is the practice.

29568. Who was the sergeant to whom Kemp ought to have reported his absence from the fixed point?—The sergeant on the section.

29569. Who was that sergeant?—I could not say.

29570. Whose duty is it to see that the fact is recorded in the Occurrence Book?—The Inspector's duty.

29571. How came it that it was omitted in this case?—I can hardly answer that.

29572. I only want to see how far the regulations are carried out. I am not saying there was any particular harm in the omission in this case?—It is entered in the sergeants' State, and the Divisional Inspector goes through the States, and it is very plain also to see how these things are entered.

29573. May I take it from you that it was not necessary to make any entry in the Occurrence Book of this incident?—There was no necessity.

29574. But the regulation says so?—It is placed on the sergeants' States for reference.

29575. But the regulation goes on, "and in the Occurrence Book at the station"?—Yes, it is noted in the Occurrence Book that he was there at the station by bringing the prisoner in.

29576. I dare say it might be inferred from that fact, but would the Occurrence Book show that Kemp was at the station?—Yes, it is entered.

29577. The entry is, "Prisoner was brought to the station, and suffering from a contused right eye, which the constable, P.C. 134 H Mizen, said might have been done prior to his arrest, or afterwards, as he, the prisoner, tripped him up at Prusom Street, and struggled violently to get away, when P.C. 322 H, Thomas Kemp, came to his assistance, and he was brought to the station. Dr. Grant was called," and so on. You say that is the entry that would be made in compliance with the regulation that I have read, and that it sufficiently complies with it?—Yes.

29578. I daresay it is so. It certainly shows that Kemp was there, and it accounts apparently by inference for his absence from his point, although it does not say so. However, I daresay that is sufficient. Did you think, after Dr. Grant had gone away, that there would be a complaint made by the prisoner Riley that he had been assaulted?—No.

29579. And that some trouble might arise?—No. It is frequent that people, when they are charged with drunkenness, make accusations against the police of having done this and that.

29580. On that evening you did not think that any thing more would be heard of the matter than the police court proceedings?—That is all.

29581. And you did not attend the police court proceedings on the Thursday?—No, not on the first hearing.

29582. When did you first attend at the police court to be questioned?—When the Magistrate sent for me.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) I do not think the witness understood your question, Sir, about attending.

29583. (Chairman.) Did you attend the police court on the first day?—Yes, after the Magistrate sent for me.

29584. Were the proceedings over and the case remanded when you arrived?—The case was put back for me to give evidence.

29585. Then the Magistrate, I understand, did remand the case until the Saturday?—Yes.

29586. Did you, when you left the police court, think that it was likely the police action would be questioned, and a question of assault arise?—Yes.

29587. When were the reports called for?—I asked the constables to make them out after the hearing before the Magistrate.

29588. And you made your report the same day, on the 22nd?—Yes, in the afternoon.

29589. You said in it "this appears a case where the police action may be questioned," and you thought that Messrs. Wontner ought to be asked to attend?—Yes.

29590. Where did the constables make out their reports?—In the station, in a side room, which is called the library.

29591. About what time, according to your recollection?—Kemp, I think, made his at 3 o'clock, and had gone before Mizen made his out. Mizen came there about half-past four. I looked over the reports after they were made out, and scratched one of the "o's" out in the word "swollen."

29592. The same mistake occurred in both reports?—In both reports, but neither of the constables were there together, and neither saw one another's reports. It is a word that may be mistaken by a good many, I think.

29593. May I look at those reports? In both the reports the word "swollen" is spelt originally "swoollen," and you knocked out the "o" in each case?—Yes.

29594. When the two reports were brought to you were they brought to you together, or left separately?—They were brought in to me singly. Kemp had gone before Mizen came.

29595. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Is it the practice for the reports to be brought to you?—Whoever was dealing with the case.

29596. You, being the Inspector dealing with the case, they would be brought to you?—Yes.

29597. Are they ever altered after you have seen them?—Oh, no, they are not altered. A word might be struck out if it is misspelt.

29598. That is correcting?—Yes, but they are not altered.

29599. Do you mean they are never sent back?—There might be further reports, but the original reports are not altered.

29600. Did you notice about them the similarity of language at all?—No.

29601. Did you notice that both of them had these words in, in identical language: "I noticed that Riley's eye was swollen"—spelt with two "o's"—that is in Kemp's, and in Mizen's it is: "I noticed the prisoner's right eye was swollen"—spelt with two "o's"?—Yes, I noticed that, and struck out the "o's" at the time, but I did not notice the similarity of language.

29602. It is not only the "o's," but the words are exactly the same—did you notice that?—Yes, but that might have been in their minds at the time. They had given evidence the same morning, and made out their reports in the afternoon.

29603. (Chairman.) Both the constables had been at the police court that morning—Kemp and Mizen?—Yes.

Divisional Inspector R. Sanders.
29 Jan. 1907.

29604. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) What would happen when the reports came before you, and you corrected them by striking out the "o's," as you have told us?—They would be sent on to the Superintendent.

29605. With yours?—Yes.

29606. Then would they come back to you at all?—In this case I might say that I took them to the Superintendent myself, and then on to the Commissioner. I was directed to take them on to Messrs. Wontner. If there is time they would be sent through to the Superintendent.

29607. When you saw this man Riley brought in you saw the condition of his eye?—Yes.

29608. He had a black eye?—Yes.

29609. There was a slight wound?—Yes, on the right cheek.

29610. Was there a little blood?—Just a little.

29611. What did you think had happened?—I thought it was a fall, by the state of the clothing and the abrasion on the cheek. It looked to me more like a fall than anything else.

29612. What did you think he had struck in the fall?—There is a post in the centre of Choppin Court, and, in trying to get away, he could have knocked against the post.

29613. Would it not make a much more distinct mark on the eye than a cut or abrasion?—It would account for the black eye, and it might have been a rough edge in the ironwork of the post that caused the abrasion.

29614. (Chairman.) Was it an iron post?—Yes.

29615. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) It would make more mark than that if there had been a struggle and his eye had struck against an iron post. There would not have been a slight abrasion?—Neither of the constables were wearing rings which would cause any abrasion.

29616. But the ring would have been much worse. There would not have been a slight cut. I suggest to you, when you saw him, the most likely thing to have happened was that in the struggle he had, somehow or other, come against the constable's fist, or his elbow, or something of that kind?—There was no motive for the policeman to strike him.

29617. I am not suggesting there was, but I am trying to find out what the injury was that was caused?—There is no doubt he tried to get away in Choppin Court.

29618. And I suppose it is quite possible that in the struggle his eye got blacked?—It may have been done in many ways, but I did not think for a moment that the policemen had struck him.

29619. Not deliberately?—No.

29620. (Mr. Whitmore.) Not in the way Riley alleged?—No.

29621. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) But I want to ask you a question upon that. There was blood, you say, upon Riley's eye. Did you notice Mizen's hand at all?—Yes.

29622. Was there any blood on Mizen's hand?—No.

29623. Was Mizen's hand bruised?—There was dirt on it; it was muddy all over.

29624. (Mr. Dickinson.) You have been Inspector for some years, I suppose?—Nearly eight years.

29625. I want to ask you about these reports. Is there any system under which the police are instructed in the drawing up of reports?—Not in particular, I think.

29626. They have lectures and instructions, do they not?—They are instructed to say all they know, and enter every detail in the report.

29627. But is not there some instruction as regards the form of a report, because most of the reports we have seem to have been drawn up in a common form?—There is a uniform style; they commence with the time and date, and such like.

29628. Are there any instructions given to the young policemen when they begin as to the form of reports?—Yes, to report occurrences. They are instructed how to report them.

29629. Are they made to make out reports?—They are shown how. Take the case of a collision in the street; they are told to take the names and enter them

Divisional Inspector R. Sanders.

29 Jan. 1907.

in a book, with the time and date, and they then are shown how to make a report.

29630. These reports that we have seen, do you know at all whether they are written straight out on the paper which is presented to you, or are they first of all written out roughly, and then copied out?—In some cases they may be written out roughly and copied out.

29631. I suppose you attach importance to their being written out neatly?—Yes.

29632. Is it customary for them to draft it out first?—No. If a man reports anything at all he would make it out forthwith on his report paper.

29633. He would write it straight out?—Yes, and the other man, who is not quite so well educated, might make out a rough one, and the words might not be spelt correctly.

29634. In this particular case when did you tell Kemp to write out his report?—I sent for him. He had gone home and had his dinner, and I sent for him and told him I should want him to make a report of the circumstances.

29635. That was immediately after dinner?—Yes, and he came there about 3 o'clock.

29636. And he wrote it out immediately?—Yes.

29637. Where was Mizen then?—He had gone home to his dinner. I sent for him, and he arrived about half-past four, or something after four.

29638. By that time you had already had Kemp's report, you think?—Yes.

29639. That you are certain of?—Yes, and he was gone.

29640. What was the reason why you asked for reports?—I thought the conduct of the police might be questioned on the Saturday, and if I had reports from the constables it would guide me somewhat for the information of the Superintendent as to whether he would recommend or not legal aid.

29641. Did you not think the conduct of the police would be questioned before that moment?—No, not before I had been to the Magistrate at the police court.

29642. But when the man came in in the evening and made this direct accusation against the police, did you not then think the conduct of the police would be questioned?—No. He was drunk, and no witness came on his behalf to say the police had done it, and I understand the man himself, Riley, did not make any accusation until I asked him how he came with the injury to his eye.

29643. But that was the very first thing you did when he came in?—Yes, and that was the first time he accused the constable of striking him.

29644. Do you say that you did not send for the doctor with reference to this accusation against the policeman?—No.

29645. What did you send for the doctor for?—To dress his eye.

29646. But the doctor said it was not a case in which he would be called in the ordinary course?—The officer on duty has a right to call a doctor if he sees an injury to a prisoner. It is always best to have medical advice as to an injury. It may get worse by the next morning, and if no doctor had dressed it it would be very wrong.

29647. I see that Mr. Mulvaney, the superintendent, in sending in your report, says that "the Divisional Surgeon's attention was drawn at the station to the prisoner's allegation that the police-constable had caused the injury to his face. The doctor examined him, and said he did not think the injury was caused by a blow from the fist." Was that an accurate account of what had taken place?—Yes.

29648. Then the Divisional Surgeon's attention was called to that?—There is no doubt it was, but I cannot remember every little thing.

29649. Was it not you who called his attention to that?—Yes, I did call his attention to that.

29650. Then, to your mind, this question was one that deserved attention?—Yes. There was no doubt I told the doctor that the prisoner accused the constable of striking him.

29651. And you thought that the doctor's advice on that point would be of importance?—Yes.

29652. Are you quite right in saying to us that you had not that in mind when you sent for the doctor?—I had not got that in my mind when I sent for the doctor, but it was the injury to the eye.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) He said he had not the case against the constable in his mind, but he had the injury in his mind.

29653. (Mr. Dickinson.) You only sent for the doctor to dress the injury?—Yes.

29654. Not to look at the injury and see what his view about the accusation was?—I do not quite follow you.

29655. Did not you want to know what the doctor's view about the cause of the injury was?—Yes.

29656. When you sent for him?—Yes.

29657. That is what I put to you before, and you rather said the opposite. I understood you to state that the only thing in your mind, when you sent for the doctor, was that you wanted this wound surgically attended to?—Yes.

29658. What I ask is whether it was not also that you wanted to have the doctor's view as to what the probable cause was, and you now say yes, but I should like to give you another opportunity of answering?—There is no doubt that that was in my mind, to have the doctor's view of the injury as well.

29659. I do not say you were wrong in the least. You had got in your mind the possibility of the police-constable's action being questioned on the following day?—Somewhat, but it is so frequent that prisoners make allegations of this sort against the police when they are drunk that it is quite common.

29660. You did not think it would be pressed until you went to the police court?—No.

29661. And after the proceedings at the police court, having seen it was pressed, you obtained these reports?—Yes.

29662. I have been looking at this book which the Chairman drew your attention to. When did you make this entry?—Directly after the doctor had made his entry.

29663. Then here you say, "The prisoner was suffering from a contused right eye, which the constable said may have been done prior to his arrest, or afterwards." I want to know why, if you make this entry, do you not put into that entry the fact that the prisoner alleged it had been caused by a blow with the fist?—The prisoner was drunk, and people, when they are drunk, do say anything.

29664. But you put here, "The constable said it might be done prior to his arrest or afterwards," but you do not put that the prisoner alleged it had been caused by the constable?—No.

29665. It was an important fact for your superior to know that an accusation like this had been brought against a constable?—Yes.

29666. And one that would be inquired into?—Yes.

29667. Why did you not mention it?—(No answer.)

29668. Your answer is because you say he was drunk?—He was drunk.

29669. That might have been a reason for mentioning nothing at all, but not for mentioning what the policeman said and omitting to mention what the prisoner said?—The entry underneath the doctor's entry is to explain where the doctor is called really.

29670. What is your entry put in for?—To explain why I have called in the doctor.

(Chairman.) The doctor gave a somewhat different account. He said it was done under the regulations.

29671. (Mr. Dickinson.) His entry was but with regard to the Inspector's entry which follows; his reason was he wanted to put in a reason to show why the doctor had been called, namely, that the prisoner had been wounded and required attention?—Yes, that is the explanation.

29672. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Would you have had any entry in the Occurrence Book at all if the doctor had not been called in in this case?—No.

29673. Your sole record would have been the charge sheet?—That is so.

29674. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Would you not make an entry supposing an accusation were made?—I should take a statement.

29675. But it would not go into the Occurrence Book?—No.

29676. (Chairman.) Did you make any note at all of anything said by this prisoner?—No, he was drunk.

29677. I will just call your attention to Regulation 209. I am not expressing any opinion as to whether the rule applies, but I will just read it: "The charge as entered upon the sheet is always to be read over to the prisoner, not with a view of extracting an answer, but to inform him of the nature of the offence with which he is charged, but any observation he makes is to be noted and attended to." You know that regulation?—Yes.

29678. I understand in this case that Riley, when you actually read the charge from the charge sheet, said nothing?—That is so.

29679. He denies that you read the charge sheet out to him?—He forgets, I suppose.

29680. Taking it that you are quite accurate in the matter, do you not think you ought to have made a note somewhere that he had complained of an assault by the constable? Do you read the words that the charge as entered upon the charge-sheet is to be read over as meaning that only the observations made after the charge is formally read over are to be noted? Do you read the regulation in that way?—Yes. He made no answer to the charge. Of course, he made the accusation previous to the charge being entered, but as he was drunk——

29681. I do not quite think that is so. The regulation says, "The charge as entered upon the sheet is always to be read over to the prisoner." It is headed: "General instructions as to charges." Sometimes there is a long conversation between you and the prisoner and the officer preferring the charge, and in the result you take the charge and enter the particulars in the charge sheet, and the prisoner says nothing, but surely, if he has been contesting his guilt before or making a charge against the constable, you ought to make a note of his observations, ought you not?—You would in an ordinary case, but he was drunk.

29682. Then I am right. If it is not a case of drunkenness, even although a charge of assault is not preferred by the prisoner after the charge is made against him, you would make an entry that he had averred that the police-constable had assaulted him?—Yes.

29683. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Had he contested his guilt? Did he say he was not drunk?—He did say he was not drunk.

29684. (Chairman.) According to Riley's story, he said he was not drunk?—He said he was not drunk. The doctor told him to walk in the room.

29685. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) The Commissioners would like to know, I think, how are the duties of fixed point men provided for when the fixed point man has to leave his point of police duty?—It is filled up by the man coming along on the beat; he remains there until the man comes back.

29686. When a fixed point man has gone the next man coming on the point from his beat remains there until he is relieved?—That is so.

29687. (Mr. Whitmore.) You say Riley was drunk?—Yes.

29688. And you did not attach importance to what he said when he was drunk?—No.

29689. Supposing a man is drunk, and he makes a statement, you do not take a note of it?—He was so drunk that you could not place much faith in it.

29690. You thought that perhaps the next day he would forget what he had said?—Yes.

29690.* (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Where would you make the entry if you did make one of any observation made by the prisoner?—In a pocket book. The man who prefers the charge, as to what the prisoner says in answer to the charge, would note it in the pocket book.

29691. The police-constable who prefers the charge?—Yes.

29692. It would not be made by you?—No, not unless he made a statement. I should take it down in writing and attend at the police court with it. The constable who prefers the charge would be expected to make a note of it.

29693. Supposing a man is charged with an offence, and he says he has not committed it, and that a mistake has been made, would any note be made of that?—Yes.

29694. Where?—If he made it in answer to the charge.

29695. I mean when he gets to the police station and when the charge is preferred, you, the Inspector, are taking the charge?—Yes.

29696. The police constable who has arrested him prefers the charge; then you read over the charge to him when you have taken it down?—Yes.

29697. Then suppose the accused says: "There is a mistake about this, you have got the wrong man, I did not do it, and I can prove it." That would be an observation of which you ought to take a note?—Yes. The constable that has the case would put it down in the book, and the Inspector who took the charge would initial it.

29698. That is what would happen?—Yes.

29699. In this case it would be Mizen who would make a note in his book, and then you would initial it?—Yes.

29700. Suppose a man simply says, "I am not guilty"?—That would be an answer to the charge. He would put it down.

29701. That is what the man Riley did say?—You cannot put any credence in what a drunken man says.

29702. If you think a man is drunk, and you take him to the station, and you read over the charge to him, it means whatever he says you still think he is drunk?—That does not really apply to drunkenness. It is more in felonies and serious cases.

29703. Is that so? Is not this relating to general instructions? I daresay you are familiar with it, and more familiar with it than we are. It is under the heading of "General Instructions." It is Rule 209. I am not suggesting that anybody is to blame at your station, but I want to know what the practice is?—The practice is with drunken people——

29704. To disregard that?—To disregard that in drunken cases, because they would not put down what a drunken man says.

29705. Is not a drunken case one of the most difficult cases to determine?—I do not quite follow you.

29706. I should have thought sometimes it is very difficult to say whether a man is drunk or not?—I think you can come to a conclusion at once with some people.

29707. There are cases in which that might be so, but in the case of some people there may be a doubt?—Yes.

29708. I should have thought that your experience would be that drunkenness is one of the things as to which there is most likely to be a doubt. I mean as to what takes place before you, because the evidence centres round what takes place when the charge-sheet is read over to him. That is the evidence of what the man's condition is at the time?—Yes.

29709. Therefore it would be much more important on a charge of drunkenness against a man to take down very carefully what he says?—I do not think so, in a case where a man is drunk he says all kinds of things, and he would forget all about it by the next morning.

29710. You are assuming that a man who is arrested by a constable for drunkenness is always drunk. Will you try to assume for once that a man who was arrested by a constable for drunkenness was not drunk?—Sometimes he may not be drunk, and the constable may be mistaken.

29711. We are all liable to mistakes. A constable may make a mistake in thinking a man is drunk when he is not drunk?—That is so.

29712. When a man is brought before you at the Station, and is charged, the man makes an answer?—Yes.

29713. I understand whatever his statement is, if he is charged with being drunk, you do not take a note of it.?—If he denies the drunkenness we send for the Divisional Surgeon.

29714. Do you take any notice of it?—If he says "I am not drunk"?

Divisional Inspector R. Sanders.

29 Jan. 1907.

29715. Yes. Supposing he says "I am not drunk, and in point of fact I have not had anything to eat for some hours, and I am not feeling well," do you take a note of those things?—Yes, we send for the doctor.

29716. That means you do not take a note?—We send for the doctor.

29717. You do not take a note of his statement?—No. That is, before the charge is made.

29718. I am speaking of when the charge is made and read over to him?—And he denies the drunkenness?

29719. Yes?—Then the doctor is sent for, and the doctor would make an entry, and we should explain under the doctor's entry why we called the doctor.

29720. Why you call the doctor to certify whether he was drunk or sober?—Yes.

29721. Does it depend in any way upon the accused as to whether you send for the doctor?—A drunken man can always have the doctor if he wishes.

29722. So I understand. If he asks for the doctor he is sent for?—Yes.

29723. He has to pay the fee, has he not?—It is put on the sheet.

29724. Usually?—The Magistrate can order him to pay the fee.

29725. You do not send for the Divisional Surgeon unless the prisoner asks for it, do you, in a case of drunkenness?—Unless he is so drunk that we may think it unsafe to keep him in the cell; that is so in the case of drunken people sometimes.

29726. You mean he is in such a condition that you do not think it safe to leave him alone?—That is so. We call the doctor for our guidance in that case.

29727. Still, I do not understand what your practice is. Suppose a man when brought before you says he is not drunk, and he does not ask for the doctor?—We send for the doctor.

29728. You send for him on your own initiative?—Yes.

29729. No note is made of any kind?—No. The constable would tell the Magistrate that the man denied drunkenness.

29730. Suppose this happened—that a man was arrested by a constable and brought before you, and the man said "I am not drunk; I have had something to drink, it is true, but I am not drunk, and the police-constable knocked me about and brought me here, and said he would charge me with drunkenness," would you take a note of that?—Yes, I should take notice of what he said, and send for the doctor.

29731. Would you take a note of his statement?—If he made an allegation that he was knocked about by the constable I should make a note to that effect to see if there was any truth in it.

29732. Where would you make a note?—I should take it down in writing.

29733. Do you mean you would make a note in some book?—Yes.

29734. What book would it be?—If he was drunk and said he was knocked about we should not take any note of that at all—not to make a note of it. It is not the custom to take that down in writing.

29735. Let me summarise the effect of what you are saying. If a man is brought before you on a charge of being drunk, and he disputes it you send for a doctor?—Yes.

29736. You do not take any other note, but you take what the doctor says as a note of what his condition is?—Yes.

29737. Then if he is drunk?—If the doctor thinks he is drunk, whatever he says is not taken down. The doctor put it in a book, and we put it in the book for the information of the Magistrate.

29738. If the doctor thinks he is drunk, and says he is drunk, then whatever the man says to you is not taken down?—No.

29739. No note is made of it?—No. The constable would tell the Magistrate.

29740. But no note is made of it?—No.

29741. That only applies to cases of drunkenness?—That is so.

29742. (Chairman.) Am I to understand that you never do take notes for your own protection of what is said by witnesses or of what is said by a prisoner in the charge-room?—Yes, in cases of crime, charges of felony and ordinary assaults on different people.

29743. The regulation has been read more than once in the course of the cases we have had before us. "The greatest care is to be exercised in the investigation of the charges; good order is to be strictly preserved while the witnesses are giving evidence, and their statements and any remarks made by the person charged are to be patiently and attentively heard." Do you mean that in the case of summary arrest you do not keep any note for your own protection. In a case, for instance, where you refuse a charge, do you make a note?—That is put in the refused charge-book.

29744. Do you not make any note in a book kept by yourself?—For your own sake.

29745. Yes, for your own safety?—We have a little book to put in little things.

29746. The regulations do not only apply to cases of felonies and misdemeanours, but the regulations apply to all cases in which a prisoner is brought before you and charged?—Yes.

29747. There would be no general distinction there between one class of case and another, and as far as I can see in a case such as that which Mr. Rufus Isaacs has been putting to you of a man charged with drunkenness and he denies it, there may be two or three police-constables telling the Inspector that this man is drunk, and there may be friends of his besides the accused saying he is not drunk. Am I to understand in a case like this which we suppose you patiently investigate, you would not take any note of the fact that the witnesses had come?—Yes, I should.

29748. I quite believe you would, and it is a very proper thing to do. Where do you put that entry in practice?—On ordinary loose paper, supplied for the purpose.

29749. There is another point in this case that I do not quite follow your evidence about, but I daresay you are quite right. I gather that you sent in this case for the doctor because the prisoner was injured?—Yes.

29750. But in some of the answers that you have been giving you were suggesting to me that you did not take a note of what the prisoner said about the assault, and about his not being drunk, because it was quite sufficient, as the doctor was coming, to rely upon the entry in the Occurrence Book?—That is so.

29751. It seems to me also that you were rather relying upon the doctor's opinion as to whether the man was drunk or not, as a thing that would be entered?—No, I was satisfied of his drunkenness. It was the injury to the eye.

29752. I rather thought you said supposing there had been no injury to the eye and the man denied that he was drunk you would have sent for the doctor?—Yes, he denied he was drunk after, and the doctor examined him.

29753. Take the question of the injury to the eye for a moment. Am I right in thinking you said that if the prisoner denied he was drunk you would have sent for the doctor in any case?—Yes.

29754. Without his asking for him?—Yes.

29755. That does not seem to me prescribed by the regulations. Let me read you the regulation which has been read more than once. It is regulation 233, at page 258: "If prisoners are insensible from drink or any other cause, or appear to be ill or injured in any way, although they do not complain the Divisional Surgeon is to be sent for immediately. This duty is imperative in all cases where a prisoner appears to be ill, whether or not he has recently been under medical treatment." That regulation does not seem to imply that because a man says he is not drunk a doctor shall be sent for. We have had it in more than one case, and this is the first time I have heard it suggested that the doctor is sent for the moment a man says he is not drunk?—That is only fair to the man charged.

29756. That may be, but where is it prescribed in the Regulations?—It is the custom I think if a man denies being drunk.

29757. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I want to understand this—If Riley had been brought before you by Police-Constable Mizen, and simply charged with drunkenness, and there had been no question about the eye at all—if Riley's case had been simply an ordinary case, and he was brought up and charged with drunkenness, and Riley said "I am not drunk, he is making a mistake"—would you send for the doctor?—If he denied the drunkenness.

29758. (Chairman.) You know the White Book, of course?—Yes.

29759. Do you rely upon anything in the White Book for that course of action?—That is the custom.

29760. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Then in every case when a man says he pleads not guilty to a charge of drunkenness before you we should find a doctor's certificate?—You should always do so.

29761. That you always put in your Occurrence Book?—Yes.

29762. That would account for your not taking a note?—Yes.

29763. You would get the doctor's statement. Does the same thing apply in cases of disorderly conduct?—In what way?

29764. Here he was charged with using obscene language, for example. He was charged with being drunk and disorderly, and using obscene language. Whatever he says is not taken down if he is charged with drunkenness it does not matter what the other charge is?—Not as a rule.

29765. Supposing he admitted the charge?—The doctor would not be sent for—not if he had not any injury.

29766. He might be charged with various things. Supposing he was very drunk he might admit anything you put to him. You read the charge sheet over?—Yes. Anything they say is noted, but in cases of drunkenness when they do not deny it it is not taken down.

29767. Sometimes they do not take the trouble to deny?—Yes.

29768. That would not be used against them?—No.

(Mr. Dickinson.) In the middle of page 258 there are these words: "The Commissioner desires that a liberal interpretation may be placed on all orders and regulations with respect to the attendance of divisional surgeons in cases of illness, accident, injury or drunkenness." That looks as if the drunkenness was dealt with by some separate regulation somewhere. It looks as if there was some regulation dealing with the divisional surgeon in cases of mere drunkenness.

29769. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Who pays the fee?—It is put against the prisoner as it were on the charge-sheet—the expense incurred.

29770. Then you mean to say it is part of the penalty supposing a man says he is not drunk. In the ordinary case if a man is found to be drunk he would have to pay the divisional surgeon's fee besides his fine?—Yes.

29771. I know that is so when the man asks for the divisional surgeon. When a man asks for the divisional surgeon to be sent for I can understand he has to pay the fee, but do you mean that is so even if he does not ask for him to be sent for but simply says he is not drunk? He might be so drunk as to say he was not drunk?—In a case of that sort I do not say that the divisional surgeon would be called if he was so drunk that there was no doubt.

29772. Now I begin to understand. I think we are coming back to where we started from. If you really think he is drunk you do not take any notice?—If he is so drunk——

29773. If you have no reasonable doubt that the man is drunk, and he says he is not drunk, you do not take any notice?—No.

29774. If you think there is some ground for doubt, if you are not free from reasonable doubt, you then send for the divisional surgeon. Is that right?—Yes.

29775. Now will you deal with the cases, and one would have thought there would have been a good many cases in which there is no room for reasonable doubt, but the prisoner nevertheless says he is not drunk; there is no record of any kind of that?—No.

29776. Supposing in such a case as that he said to you "I have been arrested by mistake," there would be no record of that?—In a charge of drunkenness the constable would inform the Magistrate.

Divisional Inspector R. Sanders.

29 Jan. 1907.

29777. Suppose a man was brought to the station and he said to you, "I came here to complain of brutal treatment by a policeman of a prisoner, and they have arrested me and charged me with drunkenness"?—That would be entered.

29778. That is a statement which under any circumstances would be entered?—Yes.

29779. Where ought that statement to be entered?—That ought to go into the Occurrence Book.

29780. Suppose in this case Riley is brought in and he says he is not drunk, or whatever the form is that he puts it in, and he conveys to you that he is charging Police-constable Mizen with having struck him in the eye with his fist—that is the case, is it not?—Yes, that is this case.

29781. As far as I understand the only reason why you do not make any entry of that is because you think there is no reasonable doubt as to his being drunk?—Yes.

29782. You mean it is a sort of common practice for people to make statements of that kind when they are drunk?—Yes, invariably; nine out of ten will make such statements.

29783. (Mr. Dickinson.) You told us that when a prisoner who is charged with drunkenness makes some observation with reference to it the constable who charges him puts down a note of that in a pocket book?—Yes, and the inspector initials the entry after he has put it down.

29784. But the duty of recording the observation falls upon the constable?—He is the only one who would be at the Police Court.

29785. That is what I want to get at. As a matter of fact if it is not put down it is the fault of the police-constable?—Yes.

29786. Therefore a police-constable may omit to put down an important thing?—The officer on duty who took the charge would see that it was put down.

29787. Would he?—Yes.

29788. When?—At the time.

29789. That it was put down in the constable's pocket-book?—He would see that it was put down at the time.

29790. Where?—In the charge room.

29791. But where put down?—In the pocket-book.

29792. In the constable's pocket-book?—Yes.

29793. Is that a common occurrence?—What the prisoner says in answer to the charge would be put down in the constable's pocket-book.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Let me see Police-constable Mizen's book.

(Witness.) He has no entry in it.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I understand he has no entry of this in it, but I want to see the book for another purpose.

29794. (Mr. Dickinson.) What course of procedure do you go through in order to ascertain, when a prisoner is charged with using insulting language and he is charged, and he makes an observation and is then sent to the cells, that the statement he has made has been properly put down in the constable's book?—The constable would read to the prisoner again what he said.

29795. That is the first time we have heard that. I asked what procedure was gone through in order to ascertain that the constable had put down the proper observation in his own book, and you tell me he would read it to the prisoner after he had been charged?—In some cases.

29796. Is that a common occurrence, because it is the first time we have heard of that?—It may not be a common occurrence. He would put it down in his pocket-book.

29797. I am asking what steps you, as an Inspector, would take in order to ensure that the entry had been properly made in the pocket-book. You say he would be asked to read it out to the prisoner?—If it was of very great importance he would.

29798. You mean if you were investigating some felony he would be asked to read it out?—Yes.

20799. You, I suppose, look upon it as the duty of the constable to bring all the facts before the Magis-

Divisional Inspector R. Sanders.

29 Jan. 1907.

trate. You have nothing to do with that as Inspector?—The Inspector would have to do with it.

29800. I want to know exactly what he has to do with it, because it seems to me the constable is looked upon as the person who has to bring the charge before the Magistrate and make it good?—Yes, if he gets a charge in the sheet.

29801. If he gets a charge in the sheet he brings it to you, he makes a note of it in his own book, and then he makes the charge before the Magistrate?—Yes.

29802. You, as Inspector, do not concern yourself with that charge at all?—Only to see that evidence is given to justify taking the charge.

29803. You have to satisfy yourself at the moment that the charge is sufficient to be made, but after that you have nothing to do with the proceedings at the Police Court?—Yes.

29804. You do not often attend there?—Not without it is something important.

29805. (Chairman.) In this case you only went when you were asked to go by the Magistrate?—Yes.

29806. (Mr. Dickinson.) Do you often refuse charges?—Yes.

29807. At the Police Station?—Yes, there are charges which are refused.

29808. How many?—There may be fifty in a year.

29809. How many charges do you get in a week at your station?—They fluctuate—perhaps 20 in a week.

29810. Can you give me an idea as to how many of them you would refuse?—In the 12 months there may be 50.

29811. About one a week?—Yes. There may be two one week and none the next. About fifty are refused in the 12 months.

29812. That is the number of cases that you think ought not to go before the Magistrate?—Yes.

29813. (Chairman.) I understand a Refused Charge-book is kept?—Yes.

29814. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) You sometimes refuse to take a charge unless the person charging signs the charge-sheet?—That is so.

29815. (Mr. Dickinson.) I am only speaking of charges which are brought forward by the police?—Sometimes at the Station if there is no evidence we should refuse it.

29816. Confine yourself to charges brought forward by policemen. I was not referring to charges brought forward by private individuals. Can you say that there are any considerable number refused?—No; there are very few.

29817. You proceed upon the principle that the constable must make it good before the Magistrate?—Yes.

29818. You do not think it part of your duty to investigate a charge made by a policeman?—Yes.

29819. To what extent do you investigate it?—If there is no sufficient evidence, the charge is not taken. In this case the constable saw him in the street quarrelling with another man. He refused to go away, he was using obscene language, and he was drunk. On those grounds the charge was taken.

29820. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Out of those fifty charges, one a week, you have told us of, would there be any but police charges, do you think?—There may be.

29821. You would not like to say there were, would you?—There may be one or two. A man may be brought in to the station as a suspected person, and he gives a good account of himself.

29822. You send sometimes to get information?—Yes, we make inquiries, and if we find his statement is true, then we liberate him.

29823. Suppose a constable were to bring a man in and to charge him with being drunk and disorderly, and you were to refuse the charge, would not that be a reflection upon the constable?—It would, and he would be reported for misconduct.

29824. (Chairman.) I suppose that would be entered in the Refused Charge-book, would it not?—Yes.

29825. Whether the charge refused is made by a police-constable or by a private individual, it would equally be entered in the book?—Yes.

29826. Have you the Refused Charge-book for your station here?—No, I have not.

29827. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I have been looking through Mizen's pocket-book. I should like also to see the pocket-books of the two other constables who were called before us, Kemp and Stokes. I cannot find any entry in Mizen's book of any such statement or observation made by a witness after the charge had been read over to him. Do you see what I mean?—Yes.

29828. I may have made a mistake, but I do not think I have. I have read through the book carefully; there are a number of witnesses of occurrences and statements, but I want to find some instances of the sort you suggested. I understand that Stokes was allowed to go, but perhaps Mizen would look through it during the adjournment and tell us about it.

(Chairman.) Will Kemp also look through his book?

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) To see if there is any instance of a note taken by a constable and initialled by an Inspector of any statement or observation made by an accused person in answer to the charge when read over to him.

(Earl Russell.) In this case the evidence has been very contradictory. I do not know whether the Commissioners think it would help us to arrive at the truth if the witnesses Tree and Shepherd were brought up from the country. The evidence has been rather conflicting.

(Chairman.) I think for the present, at any rate, that point must be taken as decided. We have nothing to add to what we said yesterday.

(Earl Russell.) I do not think you said you would not hear them.

(Chairman.) No.

(Earl Russell.) There are no previous convictions against those witnesses. They do not quite stand on the same footing as those whom I did call.

(Chairman.) I can only say that Shepherd's evidence is in the notes of evidence.

(Earl Russell.) Shepherd was not called at the Police Court.

(Chairman.) Yes, he was, and he made a very bad witness.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Shepherd was the witness who swore there were five blows struck, twice on the head and three in the ribs.

(Earl Russell.) That is not his evidence in the proof.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) But evidence in the proof is sometimes very different to what it is in Court.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) There is no statement in either of those note books that appears to have been taken at the Police Station, and none which is initialled by the Police Inspector of that nature.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Is there any book in Court that has such a statement?

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) We will inquire about that, sir.

(Chairman.) We will now proceed with Emms' case.

[Mr. Schultess Young and Mr. Ronald Livett appeared on behalf of the complainant.]

(Mr. Livett.) The witness George Measures is here, Sir. He was summoned by the Commission, but was not reached on the last hearing.

George Measures, sworn.

G. Measures.

29829. (Mr. Livett.) What is your occupation?—I am a carman.

29830. Where do you live?—My proper address is 15, Union Street, Woolwich.

29831. Do you remember the 22nd October last?—Yes.

29832. Where were you that evening?—I was working then for Mr. Muddle, and went into Mr. Ward's at half-past ten, and I stopped there until twenty-five past 12.

29833. You were working for somebody until when?—I finished about half-past seven.

29834. When did you leave your work?—About half-past seven.

29835. What did you do then?—I had a walk round and met a few friends, and then I went into Mr. Ward's house, which is a house I always use.

29836. Is that a public-house?—Yes.

29837. When did you come out?—I left at twenty-five minutes past 12.

29838. What happened then?—Then I was going on my way home. I was living then at No. 1, Henning Street, and, as I passed under the railway arch——

29839. What railway arch?—Brick Lane arch—I saw these few people standing round just on the corner—there were four or five persons looking down this passage, and as I got up, this policeman had this man down the side of the court. He had hold of him by one hand like that (describing), and the man said something which I did not quite hear, and the policeman turned round and hit him with his wood, and, as he went down on the floor the constable goes down with him, and has his knees on him. This was in the court by the side of the station.

29840. In the court, and not in Brick Lane at all?—No. Then after the constable had gone down with him the other people flocked down the court, and then the constable struck him again, and the constable stood up, and then after that all the people got round, and there he was lying there. So I came up, and I recognised the man then, and saw who it was.

29841. Who was it?—Emms. I got on my knees and supported him by the head, and I held his head for a long time until the stretcher was sent for. When the stretcher was fetched, I helped the man on to the stretcher.

29842. Were there many people by?—About eight or nine, or five or six anyway. There was an inspector there as well.

29843. Did you hear a whistle blown?—There was a whistle blown, but I was on the floor supporting the man's head. I got the man on to his feet.

29844. What was his state then?—It seemed as if he had had more than he really did have. The blood was very thick, and I went down there in the morning, but it had been washed away. You could see the blood on the woodwork, and on the wall as well, and it was all congested blood.

29845. Were you supporting him while the police were there?—Yes.

29846. They did not prevent you?—No. I had hold of the man properly to support him, and, when the stretcher was fetched, I got hold of him and he swooned right away again. We laid him on the stretcher, and the two constables took him to the station, and, when they were gone, I distinctly heard the Inspector turn round and say to the constable who struck the blow, "I think you have hit that man rather hard." Those are the words the Inspector used, and the constable said, "I had to do it."

29847. You were summoned here to give evidence before Christmas?—Yes.

29848. Have you had any communication from the police since then?—I have had two letters.

29849. From whom?—They are here.

29850. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Do you mean from the Commission?—Yes.

29851. Have you got them?—The ordinary letters to appear here.

(Chairman.) I do not think any recent summons has been issued. (Letters produced).

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) They come from the Society, and not from the Commission.

(Chairman.) Yes, they are signed by Mr. Timewell.

29852. (Mr. Livett.) Have the police interfered with you in any way since this matter first came up?—Since it first started, if I stand round there and try and get an honest shilling by work at a stall, or anything like that, these men will not allow me to stand at all; and if I am in anywhere, they come and look at me and point me out to everybody. I was talking to a friend of mine a fortnight ago on a Sunday evening, and a constable came up to me. It was a place where other people stand in fives and sixes on a Sunday afternoon in the hours after the public-houses are closed, and I was there with a friend of mine and a master man named Hill, and I was talking to them, and this constable came across to me and said "Go on, out of it," and pushed me out of it. They would not do that to other people. Then I was pushed about, and I said "I don't want to say anything, because I know what it will be"; so I tried to walk away from him, and the constable followed me right up to the turning where I was living.

29853. (Chairman.) What constable was that?—He is not here now, Sir.

29854. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Do you know his number?—No, I did not take his number, but I can easily find that out. Then another thing: That gentleman there, the Inspector on the right (Inspector Wright), came into a public-house where I was the other day—Mr. Smith's house—and Mrs. Smith was behind the bar; we were in there having a drink, and this Inspector came in with another officer, a police-constable, and had a look all round the house, and then went and spoke to Mrs. Smith. Then, after he came away from Mrs. Smith, I was the last one at the bar, and he came right up to me and said, turning round to the police-constable, "I suppose you know this man? This is Measures." I got up and spoke to the gentleman as far as I could. I said "I suppose I can go where I like to have a drink," and then the gentleman spoke to me in a fair manner, and I explained myself, and I said "If you mention my name I must answer you back." I do not see that it is right that they should come and pick me out like that. I have done 8 years and 65 days in the Service. I was four years in Africa, and was right through the Boer War. I was in the siege of Kimberley with Colonel Kekewich, who was the colonel of my regiment, and I had a bit of hard luck. I lost my father while I was out there, and I lost my young brother out there, and the consequence was I came home to my mother. My mother got married again shortly after I came home, and after that, of course, I went through what money I did have. I am a convicted man. I was convicted and had three months for gambling in Sclater Street. There were two constables in plain clothes who were supposed to have got knocked about, but they didn't, but I had to suffer for that. I could not move my hands. I will own that I had a struggle to get away, but these constables turned round, they were in plain clothes, and said they got knocked about, and the consequence was I got a month for each officer, and a month for playing the colours. Then I got six months for larceny in a dwelling, and then I got twelve months for felony from a van.

29855. What do you mean by "playing the colours"?—There are six colours on a sheet. It is a gambling game, but it is fair all over. There is nothing in it. It is just a man's luck if he finds a colour.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) With regard to the public-house, that is the matter that was mentioned yesterday. That house is under report at present for harboring thieves, which is a licensing offence.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) That is the one in respect of which we heard a complaint made about a raid?

29856. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) That is so. With regard to the larceny in a dwelling-house, was that stealing 72 skins, or is that another one?—That is the one.

29857. For which you got six months?—Yes.

29858. The date of that, at the North London Sessions, was the 14th June, 1904?—Yes.

29859. Then the second one, of twelve months, was for stealing eight dozen holland aprons from a van, and that was at the Sessions on the 22nd August, 1905?—Quite right.

29860. When did you come out from that? Did you get any remissions?—I got all my remissions. I forget the date now. I think I came out in July—about the 21st or 22nd.

29861. Where was this dwelling-house that you stole the skins from?—They did not come from any dwelling-house at all. They came from a van.

29862. The skins did?—Yes.

29863. Where was the van?—I could not tell you.

29864. What district was it in?—Bethnal Green way.

29865. About Sclater Street and Brick Lane?—In Bethnal Green.

29866. Was anybody else convicted with you at that time?—No, only me.

G. Measures.
29 Jan. 1907.

29867. Was anybody else working with you at that time?—No. This carman, that was supposed to have lost these skins, delivered them to this place where they had to go—I think it was Commercial Road way. He delivered what he had got on his van, and he got his invoice signed for everything he had in his van. They are signed for as being correct, and yet he is short. Afterwards this man finds out four or five dozen of these skins are short in his own shop. The consequence is they put it down as if the shop had been entered and the skins taken from the shop, which they were not at all.

29868. You know where they came from?—Certainly, and I got punished for that, but that is why they put it down as larceny in a dwelling, which was a mistake.

29869. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) How old are you?—Twenty-eight—going on for 29.

29870. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) With regard to the other larceny, also from a van, for which you were convicted on the 22nd August, 1905, where was the van that you stole the holland aprons from?—In Bethnal Green.

29871. Whereabouts? Sclater Street and Brick Lane—roundabout there?—Near there.

29872. Was anybody with you at the time?—No.

29873. Only you were convicted?—That is all.

29874. Nobody working with you?—No.

29875. How long have you known Emms?—I have known Emms before I went into the Service, but then he did not know me. He was only a lad then, but I have known him ever since I have been home, and I know his people as well.

29876. Can you give us the date when you came home?—That has quite slipped my memory, but I have been home turned four years.

29877. It would be in 1903?—Yes.

29878. How long had the war been over when you came home?—The latter part of the Boers had surrendered then. We were in Mafeking, but they had come in and settled down, most of them, about eight or nine days, and then the order came out that any men with eight years' service could get home.

29879. You came home?—Yes.

29880. That is longer ago than 1903?—I have been home turned four years.

29881. Since you have been home, have you seen a good deal of Emms?—Yes.

29882. Have you been constantly in his company?—Yes; not to say in his company, but I use the house now and then where they all are, and we have a drink together, and all like that.

29883. And Norrey, too?—No, that is a man's company I have never been in.

29884. Do you know him?—Just by sight.

29885. Do you know Harding?—Only by sight.

29886. Do you know Andrews?—I do know a Jack Andrews, but I do not know whether it would be the same man. This man is a professional boxer.

29887. You have been in this public house of Ward's. What is the sign of it?—"The Duke's Motto."

29888. From half-past 7 until 25 minutes past 12?—No, I did not say I had been there from half-past 7. I said it was after 10 when I went in there.

29889. What were you doing between half-past 7 and 10 o'clock?—Casually going round on my walk and then having a drink here and a drink there.

29890. And at 10 o'clock you went into Ward's?—Yes.

29891. And you stayed until 25 minutes past 12?—Yes.

29892. You set off to go home up Brick Lane?—Yes, I was living then at No. 1, Henning Street.

29893. Were you quite sober?—Yes.

29894. What is that address that you were living at at that time?—A boarding house.

29895. A common lodging-house?—Yes.

29896. When you came to the end of this street which you looked down, what was going on. What was the first thing that you noticed?—About four or five people standing there.

29897. What was the first you saw of the constable?—Just down the side; he had hold of the man with one hand.

29898. Where were you standing?—At the corner, just passing by.

29899. How far down the court were they?—I should say two yards down.

29900. Not more than that?—No, not much more.

29901. What position was the constable in at that time?—He had hold of Emms by the coat like that. (Describing.)

29902. Was the constable on his feet?—He was then.

29903. And Emms?—Emms was on his feet, too.

29904. Was it while the constable was holding him that he struck Emms?—Yes, he struck him then.

29905. Was he standing beside Emms or behind him?—Standing like that—facing him.

29906. Was Emms facing him?—Yes.

29907. And the constable had hold of Emm's collar?—Somewhere about here. (Pointing to the neck.)

29908. The front of his coat or waistcoat?—Yes.

29909. And Emms was right facing him?—Just turned slightly.

29910. And the constable hit him with his wood?—Yes.

29911. What was the effect of that blow on Emms?—I should think it was enough to knock any ordinary man insensible.

29912. Did it knock Emms down?—Yes, Emms went right down, and the constable went down with him.

29913. The constable went down with him?—Yes.

29914. How did Emms go down—right flat?—No, on the side.

29915. On his side, full length?—Yes, and then he rolled over.

29916. On to his back?—He was on his back all the time; he was unconscious.

29917. He went down at full length on his side and then rolled over on his back?—Yes.

29918. Was any other blow struck?—The people had got round then and they were going down the court then. All the people were collecting. I do not as a rule poke my nose into any of these things.

29919. I want to know whether you saw any other blow struck?—Yes, a blow was struck again.

29920. You saw it?—Yes.

29921. What position was the constable in when the second blow was struck?—He was then on the top of Emms.

29922. Kneeling on his chest?—Somewhere about there. I could not say whether it was on his chest or where.

29923. But kneeling on him?—Yes, and after he gave him the second blow he got up, and left him lying there.

29924. He was kneeling on him when he gave him the second blow?—Yes.

29925. What position was Emms in when the second blow was struck?—On the ground.

29926. Lying flat on the ground and the constable kneeling on him, and the blow was given him with the truncheon on the head?—Yes.

29927. After that second blow, did Emms try to get up?—No, he was unconscious to the world.

29928. Did he try to get up before the second blow?—No.

29929. There was no rising up of Emms at all?—No, not till they were all round him, and when I saw who it was I recognised him, and I held his head.

29930. When you went up to raise his head and hold him up, was there anybody else holding him?—No.

29931. Did you continue to hold his head until the ambulance came, and you helped him on the ambulance?—I was the man who got him on his feet, and he swooned away directly the ambulance came.

29932. Was there any woman there holding his head?—No. There was a woman at the side of me.

29933. But you were holding his head all the time? I had hold of his head. All my coat was covered with blood where I had his head on my arm.

29934. There was no woman there holding his head?—No, there was a woman kneeling down by the side of me.

29935. When did you first know there was any charge against Emms?—The next morning, and then he got remanded.

29936. Did you give evidence before the Magistrate?—No, I was not called upon. He was remanded, and on the remand, when he came up from his remand, or before his remand was finished, I was asked by Mr. Timewell, or one of the people, if I saw it done. I told the gentleman yes. Then I went to the police court, and I was not called upon. I was there all the morning, and this gentleman said to me, "I do not think they will call on you." They called on Thompson and the other lady.

29937. You were there ready to give evidence, but was not called?—Yes, I was asked to go up, and I went up.

29938. Was Norrey in court at the same time?—Yes.

29939. Did you know Norrey at all?—No, only just by sight.

29940. Did you have any conversation with him about this case?—No.

29941. Never at any time?—No.

29942. You knew he was charged with being with Emms at this time?—No, nothing of the kind.

29943. Did not you know he was charged with that?—When this gentleman asked me, I told him that I would give evidence for Emms, as I had seen him, and as I stood there.

29944. Had you seen Emms at all during that night that you were speaking of?—No, I had not seen him, not all that day, or a week previously. I had not seen him for about a week.

29945. It was quite a chance thing that you happened to be passing at the end of this court at this hour?—Yes, I was right on my way home.

29946. How far is Ward's public-house from the railway arch?—Fifty yards from one end of the arch to Ward's, between 50 and 60 yards, and then through the arch, so that is another 30 yards.

29947. To the place where you saw Emms on the ground with the constable, how far is it from Ward's public-house?—I should say between 130 and 140 yards.

29948. Did you walk straight away from Ward's towards your lodgings when you left at 12.25?—Yes.

29949. It would not take you five minutes to get to this spot?—Oh, dear, no.

29950. It is about three minutes?—Two or three minutes. It would not take two minutes.

29951. So that, according to you, you were there before half-past 12?—Yes. I go by Ward's clock.

29952. Which is generally a little fast?—Sometimes they are. G. Measures. 29 Jan. 1907.

29953. They are never slow?—Not as a rule, I do not think.

29954. So you would be there before half-past 12?—Yes.

29955. And you saw those two blows struck?—Yes.

29956. (Mr. Livett.) Do you know William Andrews?—No, I only know this Andrews, the professional boxer.

29957. (Chairman.) Do you know Mrs. Bloom?—Only by keeping a stall in Brick Lane.

29958. You know the lady?—Just by sight.

29959. You told Mr. Muir, I think, that there was a woman standing near by you when you came up to the man lying on the ground?—Yes, and there were other women besides her.

29960. Was Mrs. Bloom one of them?—I did not recognise Mrs. Bloom till the ambulance had gone away, and then Mrs. Bloom spoke to me under the arch.

29961. Did any woman at all lift up Emms's head or pay any attention of a friendly kind to him?—Oh, yes, one was knocking his hair back like that (describing), while I had him all the time.

29962. When you came up, both the constable and Emms were in the court, were they not?—Yes.

29963. Then you did not see the commencement of the affray?—No; just down the court at the side.

29964. Was the Constable Jeffrey pushing Emms back into the court when you first saw them?—Yes.

29965. And Emms was resisting?—No, he did not seem to be doing anything except pushing him off, like.

29966. It is clear, from your account, that you did not see, as some of the other witnesses did, what took place before Emms and the constable got into the court?—No, I only saw down the court.

29967. You did not see them under the archway at all?—No.

29968. You did not see the affair commence?—No.

29969. The first thing you saw was the constable pushing Emms and striking him?—Yes.

29970. (Mr. Dickinson.) Which way were you coming up towards the arch?—Supposing this is Bethnal Green Road, I was coming across here. If you come down Brick Lane, Ward's house is on the right-hand side, as it were, coming down Brick Lane. There is the archway facing us. I came down on the right and crossed the road on the left-hand side of the arch. Then I hurried on when I saw the people there.

29971. You saw a crowd before you got there?—Yes, just before I got there.

P.C. William Clark, 279 H, sworn.

29972. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Are you P.C. 279 of the H Division?—Yes.

29973. At half-past 12 on the 23rd October last year were you standing at the corner of Hanbury Street, Brick Lane?—Yes.

29974. Did you have a communication from some strange man?—Yes.

29975. With regard to a police-constable in Pedley Street?—Yes.

29976. What did you do?—I ran from Hanbury Street to Pedley Street.

29977. How long would it take you to get there?—Less than a minute—a distance, I suppose of 200 yards. I saw Jeffery leaning against a hoarding in an exhausted condition. I asked him what was the matter. He said, "I have been assaulted by this man," pointing to Emms lying on the ground, "and Ginger Norrey; Ginger Norrey has got away." I saw Emms was bleeding from the head. I went down on my knee with the intention of rendering first aid if necessary. I picked his head from the ground. He said, "I will make some of you f——g well sit up for this." Another man that I knew by sight then said, "Guvnor, here is his wife, let her have a look at him." I said, "Certainly." With that the woman stepped forward and said, "Let me take him home, will you." I said, "That is impossible. He is in custody now." With that I raised him to his feet and asked him if he would walk to the station. He said no, and threw himself down again, and was in a reclining position against the hoarding when the ambulance arrived. With that I assisted to put him on the ambulance and stayed with Inspector Macmillan and Sergeant Duffin and went to see if I could find this Ginger Norrey. P.C. W. Clark.

29978. You have just heard a detailed account given by the witness Measures—how he came up and raised Emms's head and held it on his arm all the time until the ambulance came?—It is absolutely false. He was not there at all as far as I know. There were not so many people. I know him well, and this place is well lighted, so it is almost impossible that I should have missed him.

29979. (Mr. Livett.) When you picked up Emms you say he said, "I will make some of you sit up for this." Who was there at that time?—The police do you mean?

29980. I saw P.C. Jeffery and P.C. 409 Death, and P.C. 285 I believe arrived shortly afterwards. I saw him there after I got up again off my knees, and there were twenty or thirty people there.

29981. P.C. Death was there at the time?—Yes.

P.C. W. Clark.

29 Jan. 1907.

29982. Did you hear Police-constable Death give his evidence?—No.

29983. You do not know that he said nothing at all of this statement you allege the prisoner to have made?—I do not suppose he could have heard it.

29984. Do you say he was there?—He was there, but I do not suppose he could have heard it, because I was on my knee. I was kneeling down when I picked Emms' head up, and he was lying on his side.

29985. Did he whisper it?—No, he spoke, but I do not suppose it was loud enough for Death to hear or anyone else, really.

29986. How far away was Death?—Not so far as I am from you—about half that distance. There were people in between. He was standing at the back. I asked him whether anyone had gone for an ambulance. He said "Yes." I said "You had better go and see if it is coming," and he was at the back of the people who were standing at Emms' head then.

29987. Do you know Emms' wife?—Yes, I have seen him assault her.

29988. When was that—before this?—Yes, some months ago I saw him assault her one night when she had a baby in her arms.

29989. You recognised her?—No, it was not his wife that stepped forward.

29990. Did you see her at all that night?—No. The woman who the man referred to when he said "Guvnor, here is his wife" not his wife.

29991Do you know who it was?—I believe as far as I know her name is Hoy.

29992. (Chairman.) Did you hear any whistle blown before you came up?—No.

29993. It was a message from some man you did not know that brought you to this place?—Yes.

29994. When you arrived there what was the exact thing that you saw?—I saw a small crowd there, about twenty or thirty.

29995. That was in Pedley Street?—Yes, about three yards down. This place is well lighted, so that you can see everything by the arc lamps from the Great Eastern goods station.

29996. Were you coming from the direction of the archway?—No, I was running towards the archway. I ran from Hanbury Street, which is in Spitalfields, and it divides in Buxton Street between Spitalfields and Bethnal Green.

29997. Where you got to was where Pedley Street runs into Brick Lane, and that was three yards up Pedley Street?—Yes.

29998. What was the relative position of the constable and Emms at the time?—The constable was standing at Emms' feet; his head was further down Pedley Street, and he was lying on his side with his face to the hoarding and Jeffery was leaning up against the hoarding when I asked him what was the matter, and he was in an exhausted condition then.

29999. You were the first constable who came up after Jeffery had struck Emms down?—No; Death was there before me, but I went into the crowd and asked what was the matter, and seeing Emms was bleeding from the head I noticed I was the senior constable there, and that I should have to answer to the Commissioner if anything of a serious nature happened to Emms, and I went down on my knee with the idea of rendering first aid if necessary. Then as soon as I put my hand under his head and lifted his head from the ground that was the remark he passed to me.

30000. Did you see Mrs. Bloom or any of the other women who gave evidence here?—I did not notice them. I saw one woman. A man that I know—I do not know his name, but I know him by sight—said to me as I was on my knee, "Guvnor, here is his wife—let her have a look at him." I said "Certainly," and then this woman stepped forward and said, "Let me take him home." I said "It is impossible." When I looked again I knew that it was not Emms' wife, but I believe it is a woman of the name of Hoy.

30001. It seems to be common ground in everybody's story that Emms' wife was not there, but there was a Mrs. Hoy who did go to the police station?—I do not know. I did not go to the police station.

30002. You did not give evidence at the Police Court?—No.

30003. And no report was called for from you?—No.

30004. (Mr. Dickinson.) Where is Hanbury Street that you speak of?—Hanbury Street going from Pedley Street would be in the direction of Whitechapel.

30005. Down Brick Lane?—Down Brick Lane. Brick Lane extends from Columbia Road right through almost into Whitechapel. There is a short street, Osborne Street, which takes it right through to Whitechapel.

30006. You ran towards this place?—Yes.

30007. Where were you wanting to get to?—I wanted to get to Pedley Street from Hanbury Street.

30008. Why Pedley Street?—Because I was told by this man a policeman was being assaulted there.

30009. How far away were you?—About 200 yards.

30010. Pedley Street is a street that extends from Brick Lane to Commercial Street?—Yes, and Pedley Street is a street about 200 yards long.

30011. (Chairman.) Are you quite certain that you alone lifted up the man's head?—Yes.

30012. No woman did so?—She never touched him; she only stepped forward and said, "Will you let me take him home," and I said "That is impossible."

30013. That may be quite another woman from the woman I am thinking of. I am asking you now whether you are perfectly certain that no woman at all during the time you were there lifted up his head?—I am positively certain of that.

30014. Did you know Mrs. Martha Allen?—I cannot say I know her by name.

30015. She is a woman who lives at Bacon Street in that neighbourhood?—No, I cannot say that I know her by name.

30016. She says that she saw a lady raise Emms' head and say, "Do you know me"?—There was no one who touched him as far as I know during the time I was there till those other constables and me lifted him on to the ambulance, and he was not insensible at all during the whole of the time I was there.

30017. At any rate he was lying down when you came up?—Yes.

30018. And as far as your evidence goes nobody except yourself lifted up his head?—I am certain of that.

30019. It is possible, I suppose, that the lady who Mrs. Allen has spoken about may have lifted up his head before you came?—It is possible, but not during the time I was there.

30020. That is what I am speaking of. You did not see the man fall, and did not see Jeffery strike any blow?—No.

30021. And Jeffery was leaning against the hoarding when you first came up?—Yes, and as far as I know it may have been two or three minutes from the time the blow was struck to the time I was there. It is possible a woman did lift his head, but not during the time I was there, and Measures did not help to assist Emms on to the ambulance.

30022. (Mr. Dickinson.) How long were you there before the ambulance came?—A little over ten minutes.

Police-constable SAMUEL WHITE, 225 H, sworn.

P.C. S. White.

30023. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Are you P.C. 225 of the H Division?—Yes.

30024. How long have you been in the force?—Eight years and ten months.

30025. How long in the H Division?—All the time.

30026. On the night of the 22nd October last were you at the door of the station in Commercial Street?—Yes.

30027. For how long were you there?—All the night.

30028. When did you come off duty?—Six a.m.

30029. Did you see a man called Emms brought to the station on the ambulance?—Yes.

30030. After that did you see any women come there?—Several women.

30031. Did any of them enquire of you about Emms?—No.

30032. After Emms had come did you go for the divisional surgeon?—Yes.

30033. Who was left to do your duty at the door?—P.C. 422, Wood.

30034. How long were you away?—About ten minutes.

30035. And after that did you continue on duty up to the end of your time?—Until six in the morning.

30036. Was any woman thrown down the steps while you were there?—No.

30037. The story is that one woman was thrown down the steps by a police officer, and another woman was thrown on the top of her at the bottom. Did that take place?—No, nothing of the kind.

(Mr. Livett.) I have no questions to ask.

30038. (Chairman.) Do you know Mrs. Murtha Allen by name?—No.

30039. Were you in Court when she gave evidence here?—I did not attend the Court. This is my first appearance here.

30040. Then you did not hear the story she told about her going with another young woman who had been in Pedley Street when this occurrence took place, and going to the police station?—No.

30041. Do you remember the two coming together and going in and seeing the Inspector or seeing the sergeant or somebody inside the station?—Not that particular night. There were not two women who came together, and only one woman spoke to me.

30042. You say that several women came there. Why are you so clear about these two women?—Standing there, you would be able to tell whether two or three came in or not, because there is only just room for them to pass in and out of the station, and I am positive and sure there were not two women that particular night.

30043. But Mrs. Allen has sworn to us that she and another woman went into the station and had a conversation inside?—Not while I was there.

30044. During what hours were you there?—I was there from 10 until the time I went for the Divisional Surgeon, and from that time afterwards till 6 a.m.

30045. How long were you away going for the Divitional Surgeon?—About ten minutes.

30046. Do you mean to say that no women at all entered that police station during the time that you were there?—Several women entered singly.

30047. How do you mean entering singly?—I mean to say two women did not enter at one time.

30048. I am not suggesting they were arm-in-arm?—They may have been inside together, but they did not come in together.

30049. Do you really pledge your recollection that two women did not come to the police-station about this Emms case on that night?—I could not say whether they came about the same case. P.C. S. White. 29 Jan. 1907.

30050. As far as I understand it, then, two women may have gone and each gone in separately and had a conversation about the Emms case?—It may be.

30051. Then I do not think your evidence carries it much further?——

30052. (Mr. Dickinson.) I understand you were away for ten minutes?—Yes.

30053. Emms was already in the station before you went?—Yes.

30054. And when you came back where was Emms?—I could not say. I did not go into the station. I did not enter the charge room.

30055. When you went away you say you gave up your position to Wood?—Yes.

30056. And was Wood there when you came back?—Yes.

30057. Wood said, when he was asked about being at the door, "Yes, I was there, but I was only there a minute," and then he went away for the matron. Is it absolutely necessary there should be someone at the door?—Yes.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Does he not say on returning he remained at the door till the return of White?

(Mr. Dickinson.) Yes, but he went for the matron, and there must have been an interval when there was no one at the door.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes, Sir.

30058. (Chairman.) Mrs. Allen appears to have said, "We got to the station and saw Emms in the chair," so I presume she did not have any difficulty in getting in. Would it be your duty to ask any woman who was going into the police station why she was going in?—No, it would be my duty not to ask her.

30059. You are simply standing on guard there?—Yes.

30060. (Mr. Dickinson.) Is the door open?—Yes, always.

30061. Where do you stand in the door?—The doorway projects. There are about three steps, and there is room enough to stand and room enough for people to pass in. It is a double door, but one side is closed and the other side is open. There is room enough to stand without interfering with anyone entering or leaving the station.

30062. When were you first asked what you remembered about this?—I think it was the day after the second hearing at the police court.

(Chairman.) Your report is dated the 31st October.

(Mr. Dickinson.) That is later.

30063. (Chairman.) I understand that you are now perfectly clear that no woman spoke to you at all?—Only one woman spoke to me. She wished to see the Inspector.

30064. (Mr. Dickinson.) And she saw the Inspector?—I could not say. She went in, and, as far as I know, she saw the Inspector.

Police-constable THOMAS HAWKER, 420 H, sworn.

30065. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Are you Police-constable 420 of the H Division?—Yes.

30066. How long have you been in the Force?—Fourteen and a half years.

30067. During that time how long have you been in the H Division?—The whole of my service at Commercial Street.

30068. Were you on reserve duty at the Commercial Street Police Station on the 22nd October last year?—I was.

30069. Do you remember Edward Emms being brought there on the ambulance?—Yes.

30070. Did you see him inside the station?—I did.

30071. What was his condition inside the station?—He was violent.

30072. In what way was he violent?—When he came in he sat down in a chair first and he buried his face in his hands, and all at once he jumped up, and he said—these were the words, I think—"This is what you b——— well get for not doing anything." I could see he was very violent. Police-constable 409 Death came over and led him back to the chair, and he sat down again. Several times he jumped up, and he was sitting at the time they went for the doctor. P.C. T. Hawker.

30073. Did the surgeon come in?—The surgeon came in.

30074. What took place then?—He was told he would have to have his head dressed, and he jumped up and said, "I do not want my head dressed. I want the magistrate to see it." I was in front of him then. I placed my hand on each shoulder, and Police-constable 422 Wood was then behind the chair, and I forced him down with my hands, and Wood pulled him down by the back.

30075. Were you the only officer in front of him?—I was the only officer in front of him.

30076. Is there any truth in the story that you kneed him in the stomach?—No truth at all.

30077. Or that any other officer kneed him in the stomach?—Certainly not.

P.C. T. Hawker.
29 Jan. 1907.

30078. Do you know Emms?—Very well.

30079. How long have you known him?—I have known him in the gang for four or five years.

30080. And Norrey?—And Norrey also. I know him as well.

30081. Have you ever seen them together?—Yes, on frequent occasions.

30082. On this night of the 22nd October did you see them?—I saw them together.

30083. Where were they?—High Street, Shoreditch.

30084. What time?—About half past 6, I should think.

30085. In the evening?—In the evening.

30086. (Mr. Livett.) Were you at the station all the evening?—From 10 to 6.

30087. You saw nothing of the affray?—I saw nothing of the actual affray.

30088. You say Emms made a remark to you, "This is what you get for doing nothing"?—Yes, words to that effect. He did not address it to me, but that is what he shouted. He was sitting in a chair.

30089. What did you understand by his saying that?—I understood it only as a passing remark. I laid no stress at all on it.

30090. You did not take it to mean that the constable had attacked him unnecessarily?—No.

30091. Were you at the police court?—No, I was not.

30092. Who else was in the room when he said that?—Police-constable 409, I think, was there with a woman drunk.

30093. That had nothing to do with this case?—No, nothing to do with this case.

30094. Was the Inspector there?—Not in the room at the time, I think. I think he was in the inspector's office.

30095. (Chairman.) You went on duty, I suppose, at 10 o'clock?—At 10 o'clock at night.

30096. What day of the week was this, the 22nd October?—It was on a Monday, I think.

30097. Do you not remember?—I think it was on a Monday.

30098. You were going out on duty, I suppose, the whole of the week on night duty?—For a month.

30099. Where do you live?—I live in Culvert Road, Kingsland.

30100. How far is that from the police station?—A mile and a half.

30101. Had you been at home all that afternoon till you went on duty?—No. I went out in the afternoon, I think it was as far as I remember to a committee meeting of a club that I belong to. It took me to the station, and I saw the six o'clock relief come off.

30102. That took you to the police station earlier in the day?—Yes.

30103. When you had finished the business of the committee where did you go?—I went home.

30104. When did you leave your home?—About quarter past nine.

30105. Then did you walk to the station?—I walked to the station.

30106. I suppose that is what you generally do, do you not, walk from your home to the station?—If I have time, but sometimes when I start late I ride sometimes by train and sometimes by bus.

30107. Where did you see these two men together that day?—In High Street, Shoreditch.

30108. Did you come through High Street, Shoreditch, coming from your home?—No, I was going home.

30109. I thought you said it was in the evening?—It was in the evening. I had plain clothes on.

30110. Had you had any conversation with Emms or Norrey before this?—Not conversation.

30111. It seems rather odd that you should have seen them together on this very night?—They generally work in Sclater Street, or in the vicinity of Brick Lane, and by seeing them there and the position they were in I expected there would be a loss of something. They are generally there for that purpose

30112. But it is more likely that they would be in Sclater Street and Brick Lane than in High Street, Shoreditch. This is the first time you appear to have said you saw them together that night?—I mentioned it that night, I mentioned it to P.C. 369 that night.

30113. Why? Was it of any importance?—I said I saw them together in High Street, Shoreditch. When he said Norrey got away then it suddenly occurred to me that I saw him in High Street, Shoreditch.

30114. Important as it was you did not mention it in your report?—No. He had not denied knowing Emms then. The only time it occurred to me as important.

30115. It only occurred to you when your attention was called to the fact?—The reason I reported it was because I saw the report in the paper.

30116. What I understand is that the reason you have for this very clear recollection that you saw Emms and Norrey together on that evening is that you had a conversation with a police-constable on that very evening about these two men?—Not a conversation.

30117. You reported that you had seen them together?—Jeffery said Norrey got away, and I said I saw them both together at Shoreditch. I mentioned it to the station sergeant.

30118. Are you aware it has been said on oath that Norrey and Emms had quarrelled some months before?—I am aware of it. I heard it, and that is why I was surprised at seeing them together that night.

30119. That does not shake your belief that it was on that evening you saw them together?—I am positive.

30120. (Mr. Dickinson.) You were looking after Emms when he was brought into the charge room?—Shortly after he was brought in.

30121. Did you hold him there until the divisional surgeon came in?—Yes.

30122. The divisional surgeon did come?—Yes, he came.

30123. Can you give me any idea as to how long elapsed between the time at which Emms was brought in and the time he was sent to the cells?—I should say ten minutes to quarter of an hour.

30124. The divisional surgeon had to be sent for?—Yes.

30125. And he examined him?—Yes.

30126. Where was Emms sitting?—It was on the left of the charge room—a little past the centre of the charge room—on the left as you come in at the main door.

30127. You say it was a little to the left of the centre of the charge room?—Yes.

30128. Is there a table in the charge room?—At that time the furniture was shifted in the station, and I really could not say whether there was a table there or not. There may have been, but the next day it may have been shifted, and there may have been two tables there.

30129. There may have been a table?—There may have been.

30130. I ask you, because we have had a very minute description of what Mrs. Allen saw at the police station, and I want to test it. She said he was seated on a chair in front of a table?—I expect she took that table for the counter. During the reconstruction of the station there was a counter there where people making inquiries go, and the Inspector comes to the counter and deals with them.

30131. On that evening when you had Emms sitting down in a chair you cannot say for certain, but you think it not unlikely the chair was in front of the counter?—It might have been.

30132. Then that seems to be an accurate description?—Yes—on the other side.

30133. It is an accurate description that Emms was sitting on a chair in front of something that looked like a table?—Yes.

30134. And that would be in the middle of the room, would it?—Yes.

30135. Where he was sitting?—That would be near the middle of the room.

30136. You had some trouble with Emms, had you not?—Yes.

30137. He tried to get up, did he not?—Yes; he tried to get up.

30138. Do you remember at all what he tried to get up for?—He could not control himself. He seemed to be wild.

30139. Do you remember his trying to get up to speak to somebody?—No.

30140. Did you see any woman at the door?—No, not at the time.

30141. Why do you say "not at the time"?—Not while Emms was in the charge room.

30142. Of course, you were busy with Emms?—Yes.

30143. Your recollection is that Emms and Norrey were together that day, and you say that was impressed on your mind first of all because you saw them in Shoreditch?—Yes.

30144. You say you saw them together then, but you had not seen them often together before?—Not often, but I had seen them. They work in pairs. They were not shoulder to shoulder. I think Emms was behind Norrey some few yards.

30145. Did you know that Norrey and Emms had had a quarrel?—I did not know that until Norrey or Emms in his evidence said they had a quarrel some six or eight months ago.

30146. You did not know it at that time?—I did not know it at that time.

30147. (Chairman.) Do you mean to say that they were walking together?—They were walking six or eight feet away from each other—two yards. P.C. T. Hawker. 29 Jan. 1907.

30148. You did not see them walking together?—No.

30149. Then in that case I do not quite understand why you say they were together?—They were what I call together. If two men work shoulder to shoulder you invariably see them about as I have said.

30150. If I were asked whether I walked together with a man up St. James Street I should not say I did so if I walked eight feet behind him?—No, and the same with me if I was walking with a friend, but people of this description invariably walk like that. They very seldom walk shoulder to shoulder when they are working.

30151. Your suggestion is that they were at their business?—That is the conclusion I came to.

30152. Then you were in plain clothes, and you had nothing more to do than to note the fact I suppose in your mind?—That was really all.

(Mr. Livett.) I do not know whether you will allow P.C. Clark to be recalled. It is with regard to seeing Emms on the ground and a statement made by Mrs. Hoy in reply to Q. 27719.

(Chairman.) Yes.

P.C. Clark (279 H.), recalled.

30153. (Mr. Livett.) You say you saw Mrs. Hoy there?—I saw a woman I believed to be Mrs. Hoy. P.C. Clark.

30154. You were not certain?—Yes, I believed she was Mrs. Hoy.

30155. Why did you think she was Mrs. Hoy?—Because I had seen her with a man named Tommy Hoy, and I had been told that she was his wife.

30156. Did she say anything to you at all?—No.

30157. She never spoke to you at all?—Nothing whatever.

30158. How many constables do you say were with you at the time?—I saw Death, 409; Jeffery, 369; and I saw Payne, 285, there, and after I saw several more.

30159. They came up with the ambulance, I suppose?—With the ambulance. I saw Wood, 422, there. I saw another man, who is not here. I saw Inspector McMillan, Sergeant Duffin, and Sergeant Doyle.

30160. Have you got your case book here?—No.

30161. You did not speak to Mrs. Hoy?—No.

30162. And she did not say anything to you?—All I said in the way of speaking to her was when a man said to me, "Gov'ner, here's his wife, let her have a look at him." I said, "Certainly." Then she said, "Let me take him home." I said, "That is impossible; he is in custody." That is the only conversation I had with her.

30163. Did you say anything to her about that he ought to have been killed years ago?—No.

Inspector William McMillan, sworn.

30164. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Are you Divisional-Inspector of the H Division, stationed at Commercial Street?—Yes. Inspector W. McMillan.

30165. About twenty minutes to one, in the early morning of the 23rd October, 1906, did you see a crowd of people at the corner of Brick Lane and Pedley Street?—Yes.

30166. Did you go there?—Yes.

30167. Did you find several police-constables with the ambulance?—Yes.

30168. Is that time right—quarter to one in the morning, or is it quarter to twelve?—I believe it was about twenty minutes to one—about that time.

30169. Did you see Jeffery there?—Yes.

30170. Did he tell you what the occurrence was?—Yes.

30171. What did he say?—He told me he had been assaulted by this man they were just moving on the ambulance, and that Norrey had escaped.

30172. Did he tell you what had happened to Emms?—No. I never spoke to him.

30173. Did Jeffery tell you how Emms had come by his injury?—Yes; he told me that he had struck him on his head.

30174. Did you go to the station about 2 o'clock in the morning?—Yes.

30175. Did you see Emms there?—Yes.

30176. Did Emms say anything to you?—He said, "You see I am not drunk, Inspector."

30177. On the 27th October were you in charge of the station when Norrey was brought in by P.C. Greenfield?—Yes.

30178. Was he brought in on a warrant?—Yes.

30179. What is the practice when a man is brought in on a warrant?—The warrant is read over to him if it has not been read over to him before.

30180. Was it read over to him then?—Yes.

30181. Did he say anything?—He wanted to be put up for identification.

30182. Was that done?—No. I told him he was the man named in the warrant, that I knew it for a fact, and that there was no necessity for it.

30183. You told him he was the man named in the warrant, and no question of identification arose on the warrant?—Quite so.

30184. Did he make any reply to that charge?—No.

30185. (Chairman.) On what date was that?—When Norrey was charged?

30186. Yes?—The 27th.

(Mr. Livett.) I do not ask you anything.

30187. (Chairman.) With regard to a charge of this kind on a warrant, is there a charge sheet made up?—Yes, and the warrant is attached to the sheet and goes to the police court.

30188. Practically, the proceedings are the same in the case of an arrest effected under a warrant as in a case of summary arrest?—Yes.

30189. All that takes place is that the prisoner is brought in custody by the officer who has executed the warrant into the charge room?—That is so.

30190. Then the charge is made in his presence?—Yes, and the warrant is read over to him if it has not been done before.

30191. Is he asked whether he has anything to say?—No, he is not asked.

30192. That is in accordance with Regulation 209?—It is in accordance with the General Regulations.

Inspector W. McMillan.
29 Jan. 1907.

30193. (Mr. Dickinson.) When you were told by the constable that Norrey had assaulted him, did you know who he referred to?—Yes.

30194. Did you know Norrey?—Yes.

30195. Have you known him for some time?—Yes.

P.S. ALBERT ANDERSON (41 H), sworn.

P.S. A. Anderson.

30196. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) You are Station-sergeant 41 of the H Division, stationed at Commercial Street Station?—Yes.

30197. How long have you been in the Force?—Eighteen years and 11 months.

30198. How long have you been station sergeant?—Three years.

30199. For some time before that, I suppose, you were sergeant?—Yes, for 7 years.

30200. At 5 minutes to 1 in the early morning of the 23rd October, 1906, were you in charge of the station?—Yes.

30201. When Edward Emms was brought in?—Yes.

30202. Was he placed in the charge room?—The first I saw of him was when he was in the charge room.

30203. How did he behave?—He was very violent, and I directed the constable on reserve to restrain him.

30204. Did you see the constable restrain him?—I did.

30205. Is it true that any of them "kneed" him in the stomach?—Quite false.

30206. With regard to persons coming into the station we have heard that the door is open?—Always.

30207. And anyone can walk in without asking any questions?—They are usually asked by the constable what they want, and if they want to see the Inspector they are ushered into the waiting room.

30208. So far as the constable outside is concerned they walk into the building without any questions?—Yes.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Have the Commissioners the plan of the station, and if so, may I see it?

(Chairman.) Yes, we have the plan, but as far as the writing is concerned, that seems to have been altered.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) The alterations are mine.

(Chairman.) I have some marks in red ink, some in pencil, and some in black ink.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) There has been an alteration in the building itself.

(Chairman.) So I gathered.

30209. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Just look at that plan. (A plan was handed to the witness.) There is a place marked there "Old door," in red pencil. Was that the existing door on the 23rd October last?—Yes.

30210. That was the only door?—That was the only door.

30211. Could a person walking in there into the passage see into the charge room as it then was?—Yes.

30212. Would they be able to see a person sitting on a chair near the desk, or counter?—Yes.

30213. You could look in and see all that was taking place there, and might go away again without being asked any questions at all?—That is right.

30214. After the Divisional Surgeon had seen Emms, and had attended to him, did any woman come in and see you at all?—There was no woman came to the station——

30215. About Emms's case?—Not until after he was placed in the cell.

30216. After he was placed in the cell?—A woman came.

30217. Did you see her?—I did.

30218. Do you know her name?—No.

30219. Was it either of the women who gave evidence here?—No.

30220. You were present, and heard them give evidence?—Neither of those women. A man came to the station and asked about bail during the time Emms was sitting in the chair, and that was Harding.

30221. What did Harding want?—Harding came to ask what he was charged with, and whether there was bail. I said "Yes, if there was substantial bail forthcoming I would take it," but no bail came during the night.

30222. And Harding went away?—Yes.

30223. The woman who came and spoke to you was not either of those women who gave evidence here?—No.

30224. Was she thrown on to the street?—No.

30225. As far as you know, did any other woman come there inquiring about Emms at all?—They never came to me.

30226. And you were the officer in charge of the station?—I was.

30227. (Mr. Livett.) Did you say only one woman spoke to you on that night?—No, I did not.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) About Emms' case.

30228. (Mr. Livett.) Only one woman spoke to you about Emms' case?—That is all.

30229. How was it at the Police Court you said afterwards two women came to the station and asked for bail?—Yes, but not in Emms' case. Several women came during the night. I dare say there may have been twenty come, but not to ask about Emms himself.

30230. But you were being asked about Emms' case?—I said only one woman came with reference to Emms' case. Another woman came shortly afterwards; I have an entry in the Occurrence Book to that effect.

30231. Do you not think your evidence here has the effect of giving people to understand that two women came about Emms' case?—No, not at all.

30232. You did not say one of those women had nothing to do with this case at all?—No, I was not asked the question. I said two women came after Emms was charged—one woman came about Emms, and the other woman—there is an entry to that effect.

30233. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Who came and asked for bail in Emms' case?—Only the man Harding came during the time Emms was sitting in the chair in the charge room, and shortly after Emms was placed in the cell. I believe the first woman who came in afterwards came to ask for bail for Emms. A second or two afterwards another woman came in.

30234. (Chairman.) Do you say it was only Harding who came and offered to bail out Emms?—And one woman. After Emms was placed in the cell there was a woman came to the police station, but she was neither Mrs. Allen nor Mrs. Hoy.

30235. As I understand, in Mrs. Allen's evidence she does not say she saw you?—In the Police Court I was asked to stand up, and she said it was not me.

30236. And here, too, Mrs. Allen does not allege that she saw you, but I am rather surprised to hear you say that only Harding came to bail Emms out?—And a woman afterwards.

30237. I am surprised for this reason, that according to the notes at the Police Court you said "Two or three men came to bail him"?—No, that is not right.

30238. Those are the notes of the evidence supplied to us. (Handing.) It is very important to be accurate in these cases?—No, I do not think I said that at the Police Court—to bail him. I said several people came to the police station.

30239. There was an inquiry as to whether two women had been pushed away from the police station, and treated roughly there?—Yes.

30240. That is one thing, but the Police Court proceedings about Emms form another matter, do they not?—Yes.

30241. It seems to me rather odd that you should have told me that only Harding, and one woman, came to bail him?—When I said that at the Police Court I did not refer to Emms' bail.

30242. As to two women, you are right. You said, "Afterwards two women came to the station and asked for bail." That may or not be in reference to Emms. I should take it to refer to Emms, but you are quite right in saying that it may not refer to Emms?—My idea is, there were several people came to the station, men and women, during my term of duty, but no one came—only one man.

30243. If my recollection is accurate, we have evidence that Harding and one or two other people did come.?—Harding did come.

30244. With one or two people, if I remember aright?—No.

30245. Who did bail him out?—No one bailed him out. I told Harding that if bail was forthcoming I would bail him out, but no one came to bail him.

30246. (Mr. Livett.) Is that all you told Harding?—I told him we could not take his bail, but if any substantial bail was forthcoming I would take it. He asked me what he was charged with, and I told him he was charged with assaulting a constable. He said "Any bail?" I said "Yes, if substantial bail is forthcoming I will take it."

30247. Did he ask to see Emms?—No, he saw him; he was sitting about five yards from him.

30248. Did you see Emms when he was brought to the station?—Certainly, I took the charge.

30249. Did he make any statement?—None whatever.

30250. Not when he was charged?—No, he made no answer to the charge at all.

30251. Had he said anything before that?—He said something. When the constable pointed out to him where Emms had knocked one of his false teeth out, he said "I did not do that," or something to that effect, when he was in the dock, but after the charge was read over to him he made no reply at all.

30252. Had he said anything to lead you to believe that he disputed the legality of his arrest?—He did not deny the charge.

30253. Did he say anything before the charge was taken?—He said nothing at all.

30254. Before the charge, I am speaking of?—Before the charge he did. When I directed a constable to fetch the doctor he said he b—— well was not going to have his head dressed; he was going to the Court with his head as it was. I said no, I was responsible for him while he was there, and I should have his head dressed.

30255. Did you hear him say "This is what you get for doing nothing"?—No, I heard nothing of the sort. I was in the Inspector's office.

30256. Jeffery was well enough to make a report, was he not?—After he had had about half an hour's rest. I directed him to sit down in my office, he was in such an exhausted state. I got him to unbotton his tunic, and after he had about half an hour's rest I got him to make a report.

30257. Are you sure that Emms accepted the charge without any demur?—He never made any answer to the charge at all.

30258. Did he make any statement at all?—He never made any statement about the charge until after he had been before the Magistrate. I was at the police court.

30259. I am talking of the time when he was charged?—He made no answer to the charge, as far as I can recollect now.

30260. As far as you can recollect he never made any statement that he had done nothing?—No, not at the station; he did at the police court, I believe. I do not quite recollect, but I believe he did.

30261. The doctor told us, you remember, that Emms made a great many statements to him?—Very likely.

30262. Were you in the room then?—No, I was in the Inspector's office.

30263. In fact, you only just came on the scene?—I directed the constables to look after him until the doctor had dressed his head, and when the doctor had dressed his head he was placed in the dock and charged in the usual way.

30264. Would it be anybody's duty to take a note of what he said at any time in the station?—Yes, if he made a statement it would be taken down, but he made no statement to me at all.

30265. Who would take the statement down?—If he made any answer to the charge it would be put down in the pocket book of the police-constable who was in charge of the case. When I charged him if he made any statement it would be put down in the constable's pocket book, and I should initial it.

30266. Supposing he made a statement before he was charged?—It is not usual to make notes of statements before he is charged. This man was in a very violent temper, and it was not much use taking much notice of what he was saying then. When his head was dressed, if he had made a statement to me I should have taken it down.

30267. You were not there?—I was there afterwards. If he wanted to see me to make a statement, I could have gone up and seen him.

30268. (Chairman.) You made up the charge sheet, did you not?—Yes, and I put my entry in the occurrence book at the time.

30269. (Mr. Livett.) He was not drunk at all, was he?—No—sober.

30270. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) You gave your evidence first of all before the magistrate on the 23rd October?—Yes, I attended the police court.

30271. And you gave a description then of the state that Jeffery was in when he got to the station?—Yes.

30272. Among other things that he complained of was that Emms had knocked a tooth out?—Yes.

30273. What took place about that before Emms when you were taking the charge?—While Emms was in the dock the constable pointed to his tooth like this (illustrating), and said, "This is what Emms did." It was a false tooth.

30274. What did Emms say?—He made no remark, I believe; I do not believe he made any reply to it at all.

30275. Then you gave your evidence on the 30th in more detail, including the statement about the people who came to the station to bail Emms?—Yes.

30276. Then on the 1st November you made your report?—Yes.

30277. In the note of your evidence given before the magistrate on the 30th, it is taken down in this way: "Then Emms was put in a cell. At the time Emms did not say that he had done nothing. Afterwards the two women came to the station and asked for bail, and I said it would be accepted. Two or three men came to bail him. Emms was not bailed as it was not forthcoming." That is what is written down as being your evidence before the magistrate?—Yes.

30278. On the 1st November, in your report, this is what you say about it: "During the time Emms' injuries were being dressed by the Divisional Surgeon no female entered the station, but a man known as Arthur Tresedern, alias Harding, an associate of Emms and Norrey, came to the station and inquired as to bail for Emms, and I informed him that bail would be accepted if satisfactory surety was forthcoming. He then left the station, stating he would obtain same. After Emms had been charged and removed, a woman called and asked as to bail, and I informed her as above, when she left the station. No other woman accompanied her, and she did not give evidence at the police court on the 30th inst. The two women who gave evidence did not attend this station." There you say that only one man inquired as to bail, and one woman?—Yes.

30279. Which is correct—what has been taken down at the police station, or what you wrote down in your report?—I had several prisoners in the cells, and, of course, a lot of people calling as to bail, and my statement as regards bail in Emms' case is that Harding came, and a woman after he was put into the cells.

30280. You wrote your report on the 1st November?—Yes.

30281. According to that only Harding and one woman called for bail?—For Emms.

30282. According to what has been taken down by the clerk to the magistrate, it speaks of two or three men coming and two women coming. Which is correct?—My report. My meaning was when I said that, that a lot of people came for bail for different prisoners. I do not know whether I said that, but I did not intend to.

30283. (Chairman.) I understand it was you who

P.S. A. Anderson.

29 Jan. 1907.

made the entry in the occurrence book relating to this case of Emms?—Yes.

30284. Do you remember what constables came with Jeffery to the station accompanying Emms on the ambulance?—The first I saw was when Jeffery came into my office; he came to sit down in my office. I looked out in the charge room and I saw Emms was in the chair, and P.C. Wood 422 had his hand on him. I asked Jeffery what was the matter. He told me, and I went up to the charge room, saw Emms, and I found that P.C. Hawker 420 was holding him.

30285. I did not intend to ask further questions about what took place in the charge room. I simply want to know the names of the constables, if you have ascertained them, who came with Jeffery in charge of the ambulance?—I think it was Wood 422 and Death 409 was in the charge room with a woman suffering from a cut head.

30286. According to your recollection, Death had nothing to do with Emms' case, but you say he was in the charge room at the time?—That is all.

30287. What was Wood's duty on that night—to be on point duty or on beat?—Wood was in the station. He is what we call the second reserve man. He was in charge of the charge room, so that if any person came into the charge room and wanted to see me, he would come into the office and let me know, and I would go into the charge room and see them.

30288. I am afraid I have not quite made myself understood. Who pushed the ambulance from Pedley Street to the police station?—I could not say, I did not see Emms until he was brought into the station. There were several constables there. I called for reports from several of the constables who were there, but I could not tell you who pushed the ambulance, or how it came to the station, because I was in my office.

30289. You are not quite right in assenting to my suggestion about Death. Death had not been at the station all the time in charge of somebody else?—Not all the time, but there was a woman in the charge room suffering from a cut head, in fact, Death had brought her in.

30290. Death was one of the constables who had found Jeffery in Pedley Street?—That is right.

30291. What other constable had found him there, do you remember, who came to the station?—Payne 285 came to the station. I saw Payne at the station, and Wood.

30292. What had been Death's duty on that night? Upon which beat was he? He said he was on duty in Sclater Street?—I could not tell you what beat he was on; he was on Sclater Street somewhere.

30293. And Payne was also on his beat?—Yes, in the same neighbourhood.

30294. The reason why I am asking you these questions is this: They found it necessary to leave their beats?—Yes. I believe they were informed by some private person that a constable was in danger.

30295. I am not suggesting that they were at all wrong in acting as they did act, but seeing that they came to the police station, ought you not to have mentioned the fact in the occurrence book?—No.

30296. You think not?—No, we do not enter the constables leaving their beats or points in cases where they bring cases to the police station, because we know where they are employed. When constables are called away from their point by a publican or some tradesman for some purpose, when they leave their point the officers in charge, the sergeant and inspector in charge, do not know where they have been to, but if they come to the police station with a charge we know what they are doing.

30297. I rather gathered a different opinion as to the practice from the evidence given in Riley's case, where a similar point arose. There the Inspector seemed to think it ought to be mentioned if a man left the fixed point?—I think there are constables' numbers mentioned in my report.

30298. Perhaps you will look at your report. (Handing.) I do not find P.C. Death or P.C. Payne mentioned. This is the regulation I was thinking of: "Constables may leave their beats to act in case of fires, accidents, or other emergencies, but are to return to them as soon as possible. Officers in charge of stations are to enter in the Occurrence Book at the expiration of their tour of duty a list of constables who have been taken from their beats for any purpose and for however short a time"?—Yes. In my experience we do not enter the numbers of constables who assist to the station with any charge.

30299. You say it is not a case of a constable being taken from his beat, or being ordered from his beat, but it would be an act done in the ordinary execution of his duty, accompanying another constable with a prisoner to the police station?—Yes. If a private person came to a point man and asked him to go to his house he would have to go.

30300. As he comes to the station I understand you to say there is no need to make any note of it, because it is known at the station he has been there?—Yes.

30301. Although I accept the explanation, of course I must not be taken as saying I quite agree with your explanation about the rule. However, your view of the practice is what you have said?—Yes.

30302. (Mr. Dickinson.) I should like to ask you again about what took place at the station. You were here, were you not, when we took Mrs. Allen's evidence?—Yes.

30303. And also Mrs. Hoy's evidence?—Yes.

30304. They gave a very accurate description of the police station, did they not?—Yes.

30305. They were quite right in what they said it looked like so far as this station went?—Yes. A person getting on to the station doorstep could see right into the charge room.

30306. I should like to read to you what Mrs. Hoy said. It is very circumstantial: "The gentleman turned round and said, 'You come to see a man like him.' I said 'Yes.' As I said that he said 'Clear out of the station,' and he pushed Mrs. Allen and he pushed me and we both fell down." (Q.) You fell down? (A.) Yes, I fell down on Mrs. Allen, and he pushed me and we both fell down. (Q.) Who said that to you? (A.) That dark policeman there—the Inspector. (Q.) The one who put you in that little room? (A.) Yes. He said, 'You come to see a man like that?' I said 'Yes.' He said, 'Clear out of the station.' He pushed Mrs. Allen, and pushed me, and with that we both rolled out of the station. (Mr. Eldon Bankes.) Who is the man you say said 'You come to see a man like that?' (A.) I think it is that Inspector there (Station-Sergeant Anderson). (Q.) He said to you, 'You come to see a man like that?' (A.) Yes. (Q.) Who is the person who pushed you out? (A.) That man there (pointing). (Q.) The same man? (A.) Yes. (Q.) You are sure? (A.) Yes, quite sure. (Q.) You understand that you are on your oath? (A.) Yes. (Q.) It is not a joke? (A.) It is the truth. (Q.) He is the man who pushed you out? (A.) Yes. (Q.) Pushed you out of the charge room, was it? (A.) Yes. (Q.) You say he pushed you out of the charge room. That is the room Emms was in? (A.) No, I am speaking of the little room. We were put in a little room first to wait. He said, 'Wait there a few minutes; you will see him.' I think that fair policeman (P.C. Wood) came and opened the door, and that gentleman there (Station-Sergeant Anderson) said, 'Who do you wish to see?' I said, 'Mr. Emms.' He said, 'You come to see a man like him?' Emms, seeing me, beckoned to me; as he beckoned to me that fair policeman (P.C. Wood) pushed him back in the chair." Having read that to you, do you say that is absolutely incorrect?—I say that is an absolute fabrication. First of all, it would be impossible for Mrs. Hoy to come into the charge room, because there is a counter to prevent her.

30307. But she does not say she was in the charge room?—No, she says she was in a little room.

30308. When it was put to Mrs. Allen she explained that she was taken to the door and put in a little room in front?—In front.

30309. There was a little room?—Yes.

30310. That is the room where these two women allege they were put?—I could not see them, because I am in this office at this end.

30311. She says the fair policeman came and opened the door?—The door was not closed. The door was wide open.

30312. No doubt Wood was the man who was at the door?—He took the place of White.

30313. He took the place of White for about ten minutes while he was away?—For a few minutes.

30314. She said Wood opened the door. If anybody had opened the door it would have been Wood?—Yes, if anybody opened the door, but the door is never shut.

30315. You do not mean you are in a position to say that the door is never closed?—Yes, I am in a position to say the door is never closed—not the front entrance to the station.

30316. Now, let me take Mrs. Allen's statement. Mrs. Allen said this. I asked her to describe the police station, and I said, "Did you go up steps? (A.) Only one step"?—There are three steps to the police station.

30317. Then she is wrong there?—Yes.

30318. Then, pointing to the plan, she said, "We went by a lot of rooms. There is a room there, and a room there, and we went this side," and then she said there was a passage in front of you?—No, that is the only opening at the door.

30320. She did not say she passed through it?—There is a door.

30321. There is a room on the right and a room on the left. Then she was asked where did she go to, and she said, "On this side," on the left side. You say she was wrong there?—She cannot get in there.

30382. (Q.) Why did you go in on the left side? (A.) I think we were told to go there. I followed behind. (Q.) You think you were told to go in on the left? (A.) Yes. (Q.) Where was it you saw Emms? (A.) Sitting in a chair. (Q.) In which room? (A.) On this side. (Q.) On the right? (A.) Yes." That would be correct?—Yes.

30323. Then I asked her to tell me what she saw on the right side, and she said, "I went in the other room. There was no one else there except a young woman." I understand there was a waiting-room in there?—Directly in front of the station door there is a small room—a waiting-room—so that if anybody comes to the station and I am engaged, or the officer in charge of the prisoner is engaged in the office, they are asked to wait in there until we can see them.

30324. Then I asked her was the front door shut, and she said "Yes." That you say is not true?—Yes.

30325. "(Q.) Did you have to ring? (A.) No, I think we only just tapped, and went in. (Q.) You tapped and the Inspector opened that door? (A.) Yes. (Q.) You walked in? (A.) Yes; he said, 'Come in,' and we walked in. (Q.) Then he motioned you into the side room? (A.) Yes, the other room. (Q.) On the left-hand side? (A.) Yes. (Q.) Did he follow you in? (A.) Yes. (Q.) You were not going first? (A.) No, the other woman went first. (Q.) And you went second? (A.) Yes. (Q.) And he went in third, you say? (A.) Yes. (Q.) When you were in that room just tell us exactly what happened? (A.) The Inspector, as I say, came into the room. (Q.) Was that the same man who had admitted you? (A.) Yes. (Q.) Did he ask you what you wanted?" That you say you did not do?—No, I never went further than the charge room.

P.S. A. Anderson 29 Jan. 1907

30326. I suppose a good many people come into this station?—Commercial Street Station is a very busy station; we have a large number of charges there of all sorts, it is a very rough neighbourhood, and sometimes during the 24 hours we have 40 or 50 people there. It is a big thoroughfare.

30327. And yet you can charge your memory for the purpose of asserting that these women did not come in?—I knew the class of man Emms was, and I attended at the police court to give evidence as regards the constable's condition. I know Emms and the gang of thieves he is mixed up with, and I know they do try to prove an alibi if they can.

30328. This was no question of an alibi, but a question of whether these women were there. You would not pay much attention to that?—These men are known to obtain witnesses by some means, and they will have them at any cost. I know what the gang is concerned with, and I thought it my duty to attend the police court, because I knew there was a possibility that they would try to put up a witness to try to say something. I am well aware of these people.

30329. Do you know Mrs. Allen?—No, I never saw Mrs. Allen at all. I have only seen Mrs. Hoy twice, and that is the last time when she gave evidence here, and I saw her one Saturday night since that at quarter past one in the morning with a lot of rowdy men and women. Those are the only times I have seen Mrs. Hoy.

30330. Who was the woman who you say did come in to try to get bail?—I have been told since it is likely to have been Mrs. Emms. The woman was a short woman, rather well dressed, a woman of about 23 to 25 years of age. It is not the practice to ask people who they are. People come in to inquire about bail, or what a person is charged with, and we tell them, and if we will take bail, we always tell them that if they have substantial bail they can have it.

30331. What did she ask you?—Exactly the same question that Harding put to me she put. She came and asked what he was charged with, and whether we would take bail, and I said yes, but no bail was forthcoming.

30332. What amount of bail did you mean to take?—I should have taken a surety in £5 if he was a respectable tradesman, or any respectable man.

30333. You would not have taken her bail?—Mrs. Emms? No. I thought perhaps they would obtain bail for him.

30334. Do respectable tradesmen go bail in cases of assault?—There are cases where tradesmen do bail out these men.

THIRTY-FIRST DAY.

Wednesday, 30th January 1907.

PRESENT:

Sir David Brynmor Jones, K.C., M.P. (Chairman.)

Rufus Daniel Isaacs, Esq., K.C., M.P.

Willoughby Hyett Dickinson, Esq., M.P. (Barrister-at-Law).

Charles Algernon Whitmore, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law).

J. W. St. Lawrance Leslie, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law), (Secretary.)

J. F. Waley, Esq. (Barrister-at-Law) (Assistant Secretary).

(Mr. Livett.) Before my friend calls any further evidence may I draw your attention to the printed notes of P.C. Death's evidence, and may I ask you that you should recall Station-Sergeant Anderson in order that he may be questioned about the report?

(Chairman.) What is the reference to the evidence?

(Mr. Livett.) On the 28th Day, at Question 26811, the question is put with regard to the report made by Death in his note book on the 28th, that is five days after the occurrence, and at the end of Question 26831

there is a statement: "That report I made two or three days before the other one. (Q.) Why? (A.) I was asked to do so. (Q.) By whom? (A.) By Station-Sergeant Anderson." Then at Question 26838: "Is it customary at this police station or is it customary on the part of Station-Sergeant Anderson to ask you to make reports, and enter them in your note-book, between the time of the arrest and the Police Court proceedings? (A.) It has not occurred to me before." Then at Question 26876, and at Question 26900, the last paragraph but one, and the fourth paragraph from the end.

(Chairman.) You desire to recall Sergeant Anderson

(Mr. Livett.) If you would recall him and ask him upon that, because it nearly all arose on the Commissioners' examination.

(Chairman.) I do not think he was asked any question yesterday about that.

(Mr. Livett.) No, that is so. I could not find the reference to the passage.

(Chairman.) Then the sergeant had better come back into the witness box, and you can ask questions that suggest themselves to your mind.

Police-Sergeant ANDERSON, 41 H, recalled.

P.S. Anderson.

30 Jan. 1907.

30335. (Chairman.) Your name appears in the printed notes as Sergeant Andrews, but I understand the name should be Anderson?—Yes, Sir.

30336. (Mr. Livett.) Were you here when P.C. Death gave his evidence?—Yes.

30337. What is your custom with regard to reports made by police-constables?—It depends what they refer to.

30338. In an ordinary case?—Do you want to know why this police-constable's report is in the book in the middle of the week?

30339. I want to know why it was put in the book five days after the occurrence?—The reason of that is this. I attended the Police Court on the day following the charge and I told the Magistrate that I should apply for legal aid, and also apply for a warrant against the man Ginger Norrey; and, of course, I had to get statements for Messrs. Wontner's, therefore I asked for a report from each of the police-constables in the case, so that their statements could be handed to Messrs. Wontners, and when they made their reports I told them at the same time to put them in their pocket-book to refresh their memory in case it was required on the remand.

30340. You asked them for a statement?—Yes, and a statement was written out.

30341. Do you suggest the police-constable's note-book is the proper place to enter a statement of that sort?—The statement was put on paper, but the copy is in the constable's pocket-books. I told them to put it in their pocket-books to refresh their memory.

30342. You heard Death say that the entry was made on the night of the 28th?—Yes.

30343. What are those books intended to be used for?—To put reports in to refresh the constable's memory in case they are required at a later period.

30344. Is that so?—Yes.

30345. I put it to you, are they not intended to be used for the purpose of noting down things that have happened at the time of the occurrence?—Yes.

30346. Is it usual for you to instruct the constables to make entries in their books at so long a time after the event has occurred?—In this case I was asked for statements from the constables by my superior officer.

30347. And you got statements?—I got statements.

30348. Was there any particular reason why they should be put in the note-book?—Certainly, to refresh the constables' memories.

30349. But they could have refreshed their memories from the statement, could they not?—But we had not got the statement. The statement was in the possession of Messrs. Wontner.

30350. It never occurred to you to take a copy?—Messrs. Wontner had got the original statement, and the police-constables had got their copy in their note-books.

(Mr. Dickinson.) I do not think we saw the original. Have you got it there?

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) I will have it looked for, Sir.

30351. (Mr. Livett.) Was Death's report put in the Occurrence book?—No, the original reports were made, and I believe are in the possession of the solicitors. I have not got them.

(Chairman.) Do you wish to ask any question, Mr. Muir?

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) No, Sir.

30352. (Chairman.) It does appear that in this case P.C. Death did say that you asked him to make an entry in his note-book?—Yes, I did, to refresh his memory.

30353. You, of course, know the ordinary rule of evidence, do you not? That an entry can only be referred to by a witness to refresh his memory when it is an entry that has been made by him at the time in his own handwriting?—Yes.

30354. You know that rule, do you not?—Yes.

30355. The point that Mr. Livett is putting to you is, as I gather it, this: How came you, knowing that Death would have to be a witness, and that he had not made an entry in his note-book, to suggest that he should, after consideration, and after the events in question, make an entry in his note-book that he might refer to in Court apparently. That is the suggestion of the learned counsel?—I called for this statement on the instructions of my superior officer, and the statement that the constable made, as I say, I simply asked him to put in his pocket-book for future reference, or if it was required to refresh his memory. There is no doubt he would be called on the remand at the Police Court.

30356. It was certainly a proper course for you, having regard to the directions of your superior officer to direct him to make a statement or report. Your action is not in any way questioned with regard to that, but what is suggested to you is that you ought not to have told him to put it in his note-book to refresh his memory. You understand my point?—Yes, I understand, Sir, but I understood that I was doing right when I told him to put it in his pocket-book.

30357. Can you remember the day?—No, I cannot remember the day.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) It is dated in ink by the officer himself—the 28th October, five days after.

30358. (Chairman.) The look of the entry quite confirms what you say, and what the constable says—that it was not written in any haste at the time of the occurrence, but written out carefully afterwards?—Yes.

30359. The handwriting is excellent?—Yes.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) It begins also "The constable reports."

(Chairman.) Yes; but still that does not carry the matter very much further, because several of the other entries—in fact, the two other entries that immediately catch my eye begin in the same way.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) No doubt they were made in the same circumstances.

(Chairman.) No.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) I mean as copies of reports or statements that had been made.

(Mr. Whitmore.) They are not contemporaneous notes.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) They are not contemporaneous notes, and they do not purport to be contemporaneous notes.

(Chairman.) The words "P.C. Death, 409 H, reports" occurs again and again in this constable's note-book.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes, Sir.

30360. (Chairman.) For what purpose do you conceive a note-book to be given to a constable?—For the purpose of refreshing his memory if he is called to take particulars of an accident, for instance, or if he is called to a private house for some purpose, or he has to make a report of anything that occurs he puts it in his pocket-book simply to be produced in case it is wanted, or for the purpose of refreshing his memory in case it is required.

P.S. Anderson.
30 Jan. 1907.

30361. According to you the purpose of the book is this—that the constable should have something in his possession in which he may record any fact that occurs to him as important with regard to his duty, and as to which he may be called upon to testify in Court?—Yes.

30362. You know, of course, the rule that it is only an entry made at the time or practically at the time or so nearly after the occurrence as possible that can be referred to in Court?—Yes.

30363. You see it would be a very improper thing for a constable several days afterwards to make an entry in his note book, and when he is giving evidence in Court to refer to that as an entry made at the time?—That is not so in this case.

30364. But it would be an improper thing?—Yes, it would be, but in this case, as I said, I attended the Police Court and afterwards the statements were called for by the solicitor, and that was the reason.

30365. But do you recollect whether when P.C. Death gave his evidence in Court he used his note book?—I could not say that.

30366. (Mr. Dickinson.) These reports in the note book are evidently written out when the constable is sitting down somewhere?—Not always; sometimes they are written in the street.

30367. These reports that I am looking at are evidently written on a table, and carefully written?—I think the constable referred to (P.C. Death) is a fair scholar, and I think his writing there would be the same if he was standing up or whether he was sitting down.

(Chairman.) Yes, it is very good writing.

30368. (Mr. Dickinson.) Let me get at the bottom of this, because I hardly expected that answer from you. Take some of these other reports that you have got here. P.C. Death reports "10.25 p.m., 2nd instant, found padlock off," and so on. That is presented to you on the day after and initialled and confirmed. When he wrote that would he have written it on the 2nd or 3rd in the ordinary course? It is presented to you on the 3rd, and you sign it on the 3rd?—That was 10.25 p.m., and when he came off duty he would come off in the morning and I would be taking charge of the station at the time. If the constable has had anything happen in the street he hands his report in to the officer on duty when he comes off duty. He does not hand it in at once. Especially in the case of finding a padlock had been taken off a door or was missing off a door he would not give that report to his officer until he came off duty, and if it was on night duty, which no doubt he was in this case, as the padlock was found off at 10.25 p.m., he could not come off duty till 6 o'clock in the morning, and then he would hand me the report.

30369. Is that the ordinary course, that wherever the constables have anything to report they show it to you written in their books?—The instructions are that if a constable has anything to report he puts it in his pocket book, and the sergeant of the section reads the report before it is handed to the Inspector on duty.

30370. In the ordinary course it is written at the time the thing has taken place, and immediately reported to you?—Yes, immediately reported to me.

30371. Is that placed in the Occurrence Book?—Yes, a thing of that sort would be placed in the Occurrence Book—the padlock being off.

30372. When we asked him, "Has what you have written in this book ever been copied out in a formal report?" he says, "It may have been put in the Occurrence Book; I do not know." Then the next answer is, "I expect it is in the Occurrence Book"?—No, that is not in the Occurrence Book. That is simply a copy of the statement that was supplied to Messrs. Wontner.

30373. But you told us just now that you told him to put it into his book in order to keep it to refresh his memory?—Yes.

30374. He evidently by his answer thought that, having put it into that book, it was going then to be put in the Occurrence Book in the ordinary course?—Yes, he may have thought so, but it was not required for that purpose.

30375. He evidently does not seem to have realised it was required for the purpose you say you told him it was required for?—When we call for a report from a constable we do not always tell him what it is for.

30376. If I understand you rightly, just now you said he was told to make out a statement for the solicitors?—Yes.

30377. And that, having made out the statement, you asked him to copy it into his book so that he could refresh his memory by it?—Yes.

30378. He does not tell us that he made out this statement and copied it into the book. Is that made out by him?—That is written by me and signed by him.

30379. This statement is written by you?—Yes, I told you I asked him for a statement, and that is his statement written by me and signed by him.

30380. He dictated this to you?—Yes.

30381. And then you said, "Write that out in your book"?—Yes.

(Mr. Livett.) May I draw your attention to Question 26817 at the bottom of the page, "Which did you write first—the entry in the note-book or the report? (A.) I believe it was that one in the book."

(Mr. Dickinson.) Sergeant Anderson says the constable is mistaken in that.

30382. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) It is the only one he wrote, as a matter of fact?—Yes.

P.C. Arthur Greenfield 214 H, sworn.

P.C. Greenfield

30383. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Are you Police-constable 214 of the H Division?—Yes.

30384. How long have you been in the Force?—Five years and eleven months.

30385. All the time in the H Division?—Yes, all the time at the same station.

30386. At twenty minutes to 10 on the night of the 27th October did you see John Norrey?—Yes.

30387. Did you know him before then?—Yes.

30388. By what name had you known him?—Ginger Norrey.

30389. Did you have a warrant at that time for his arrest?—Yes.

30390. For an assault on P.C. Jeffery?—Yes.

30391. Where was Norrey when you saw him first?—He was in Virginia Road then.

30392. What did you do?—I went towards him to arrest him.

30393. In uniform?—Yes. He dodged round and ran up Mount Street. I ran after him about 80 or 90 yards, I should think it was, and he fell down, and he got up and he faced me and said "I am done," and he said "I am innocent, and can prove an alibi."

30394. Up to that time had you said anything to him at all?—No.

30395. You had merely run after him?—Yes.

30396. You first approached him in uniform, and then ran after him?—Yes. I told him I was going to take him into custody for assaulting that policeman the other night in Brick Lane. He said, "What policeman?" I said, "You know as well as I do." He then said, "I am innocent, and can prove an alibi." I took him to the station. I read the warrant to him at the station, and he made no reply.

30397. When was that warrant granted?—On the Thursday, the 25th, late in the afternoon

30398. Do you call this paper the "Police Gazette" (handing paper to witness)?—That is the police information.

30399. It is the issue of the 27th October, 12.30 p.m. Among other persons wanted for petty offences is "No. 88, John Norrey, alias Ginger Norrey," and then there is a description of him, "On a warrant for ass. on pol."—that means assault on police?—Yes.

30400. That is all the information that was given to the police about it—no date and no place?—No. That is for the information of all police forces.

30401. You read the warrant to him? Yes.

P.C. A. Greenfield. Jan. 1907.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) I have not got the warrant here, Sir, but I will send for it, and not ask this witness as to his recollection of the contents.

(Chairman.) I was going to ask for the warrant. I do not think it has been put in.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) No, Sir. The question arose before, but I am afraid it has been forgotten.

(Chairman.) Would the warrant be in a particular form, according to the general practice?

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) It would be for an assault on a particular person on a particular date, but according to my recollection it would not state the place or the hour.

30402. (Mr. Livett.) You say in that information there is nothing to tell you what Norrey was to be arrested for?—For an assault on the police.

30403. But no further particulars beyond that?—No; there is nothing else.

30404. You are stationed at Commercial Road?—Yes.

30405. And, of course, you knew very well what Norrey had been charged with?—I knew when he was charged what he was charged with.

30406. You did not know before?—I knew within a little that he was concerned with another man.

30407. Did you know what he was concerned in, or alleged to be concerned in?—Yes, I did know.

30408. You knew he was wanted for assaulting P.C. Jeffery?—After the warrant was granted, I knew.

30409. And you knew at the time you arrested him what he was wanted for?—Yes.

30410. How far was he away from you when he began to run away?—Not so far as I am from you.

30411. Was he coming towards you?—No, he was standing on the edge of the kerb.

30412. Did he turn round to look at you?—Yes.

30413. And then you say he started to run away?—Yes.

30414. Was he by himself?—No.

30415. Who else was there?—There were about six or seven of his friends—both his friends and Emms' friends.

30416. He slipped down when he was running away, did he not?—He did go down.

30417. That is how you came to catch him up?—I was almost on him at the time he went down.

30418. What were the first words you said to him?—I said I was going to take him into custody for assaulting a policeman in Brick Lane the other night.

30419. Is that all you said to him?—That is all.

30420. What did he say then?—He said, "What policeman."

30421. Are you sure he said anything to you before you spoke to him?—Yes.

30422. What did he say? What was the first thing he said?—He said, "I am done"—that is when he got up.

30423. What did he mean by that?—I suppose he was not going to have any more go for it, or a cut for it, or anything of that sort.

30424. That he could not run away any more?—That he was not going to fight for it.

30425. He had been running a good way, had he not?—About 80 or 90 yards.

30426. Was that all he said then?—He said, "I am innocent, and can prove an alibi."

30427. How many times did he say that?—Twice.

30428. Did Norrey know you?—Yes, I think he did. He said he did.

30429. Had you had anything to do with him before?—I had seen him before at the corners of the streets.

30430. You knew he had been in trouble on previous occasions?—I had heard that he had.

30431. It is not at all unlikely, is it, that he should want to go away if he saw a policeman?—They do not always where there is a crowd of them and only one policeman.

30432. How many people were there about?—At the time I should not think there were more than ten altogether.

30433. How many of those were friends of his?—About seven of them altogether.

30434. Was he the only one who ran away?—He was the only one who ran away.

30435. The rest stopped?—Yes.

30435. You heard Norrey give his evidence?—Yes, I was at the Police Court.

30437. You said he told you he was innocent?—Yes.

30438. Did he ask you when it took place?—No.

30439. He said nothing else but what you have told us to-day?—That is all.

30440. (Chairman.) When was the warrant handed to you for execution?—On the Saturday.

30441. At the time that you received the warrant, you had heard, I suppose, of this affray, in which Emms was alleged to have assaulted Jeffery?—Yes.

30442. And you knew that Norrey was also alleged to be concerned in the matter?—Yes, I had heard so.

30443. So when you saw Norrey and he fell down, as you have described, after he ran away from you, you knew what he was charged with?—I knew he was wanted for the assault on the policeman.

30444. Are you quite certain you did not speak before he spoke, after he said, "I am done"?—No, I did not speak to him.

30445. And he at once used the words, "I am done, I am innocent, I can prove an alibi"?—Yes.

P.C. Isaac Penney, 366 H, sworn.

P.C. J. Penney.

30446. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Are you P.C. 366 of the H Division?—Yes.

30447. How long have you been in the force?—Five years this April.

30448. All the time in the H Division?—Yes, at the same station.

30449. On the 28th October, Sunday, were you on reserve duty at the Commercial Street Station?—I was.

30450. From six in the morning till two in the afternoon?—Yes.

30451. Did a woman come into the charge room, accompanied by P.C. Philips?—Yes.

30452. And ask with regard to Norrey?—Yes.

30453. What did she say?—She asked me if a man named Norrey was locked up there, and I said "Yes." She said "Do you know what he is charged with?" I said "He is charged on a warrant with assaulting the police," and she said "Is there any bail?" I said "No." That is all that took place.

30454. Was she the only caller with regard to Norrey that day?—That is all.

30455. (Chairman.) Did you make any entry in your note-book of her call and of her conversation?—No.

30456. Was any entry made in the Occurrence Book?—No. On a Sunday morning we have a lot of people call about different people locked up at the station, and we generally oblige them, and satisfy them in the best way we can.

30457. Did you know who the woman was?—No.

30458. And she gave no name?—No. She mentioned the man's name, that is all.

30459. (Mr. Schultess Young.) You do not know who the woman was, do you?—No, I do not.

30460. Did you attend at the Police Court when this matter came before the Magistrate?—No.

30461. Did you know that it was coming before the Magistrate?—I knew this case would come before him.

30462. You heard it talked about?—I had heard something but not much mentioned. I had a different duty. This case was brought in on night duty, and I am on day duty.

30463. When did you first mention to anybody that this woman called?—I cannot say whether I mentioned it to the officer on duty or not; I am not quite sure.

30464. If you had done so, to whom would you have mentioned it?—At the time the officer was out looking at the prisoners, or something like that, and I was the first one that the woman saw, and she asked me the question and I simply answered her.

30465. You saw what kind of a woman she was, whether she was young or old?—She appeared to me a young woman.

30466. Have you given a description of that woman to the police officers in the case?—No, I have only described her as a woman who came asking about Norrey.

30467. You know some woman gave evidence on behalf of Norrey before the Magistrate. You do not suggest it was one of those women?—I was not before the Magistrate, so I could not say.

30468. You have given a description of this woman to the police, have you not?—No.

(Chairman.) Are you suggesting no one went on Norrey's behalf, because you remember Mrs. Gibbons gave a detailed account of the conversation on the Sunday morning.

30469. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) Yes. I wanted to know whether the witness recognised who the woman was.

30470. You did not think it was of enough importance to take down the matter in the report book?—No, I did not. We have a lot of people calling on Sunday morning about different people who are locked up, and we oblige them in the best way we can.

30471. Whatever was done was done verbally?—Yes, and I think she thanked me.

30472. There was nothing about her to call your attention to her?—No, nothing whatever.

30473. You told her he was locked up for an assault on the police?—Yes.

30474. You did not give her any particulars?—No.

30475. She did not ask for any particulars?—No, that was all she asked me.

30476. If she was a friend of Norrey's it would be a very reasonable thing to ask that question?—Quite so.

30477. The kind of thing that has been asked you before when prisoners have been locked up?—We have a lot of people calling in to ask if a certain person, calling him by name, is locked up, and we are requested to look through the charge book.

30478. I am not suggesting anything against you, but it is not unusual for friends of prisoners to ask what they are locked up for?—No, it is not.

30479. And nothing else was asked you but that?—No.

30480. No details of the assault?—No. I could not have answered if she had asked me, because there are a lot of things that come in there, and I cannot answer for every case.

P.C. I. Penney
30 Jan. 1907.

30481. She did not try to pump you?—No, not at all.

30482. (Chairman.) I do not quite understand why you are called if that is so. You say that you have told us everything that passed between you and the woman who was Norrey's friend, or was apparently interested in Norrey, and you, on the Sunday?—Yes.

30483. I will just put to you what she said according to my note. This was in cross-examination by Mr. Muir. "On Saturday someone said to me your George is locked up. I went to the police station, and the policeman gave me the information. The policeman behaved very nicely. I asked him when. He said last Monday night. I said he was at home all the time. He told me 11 o'clock was the time. They do not give you an answer."—I do not know what that means. "It was between 8 and 9 on the Sunday morning"?—That was about the time, but as for answering her that question I could not do it, because I think that is kept in the Occurrence Book, and it is not my duty to go in the office and turn up the Occurrence Book.

30484. No. Then you are perfectly clear that even if the woman with whom you had the conversation was Mrs. Gibbons you say you did not give all that information?—I did not.

30485. I understood that that cross-examination was directed to show that there were materials given to Mrs. Gibbons on the Sunday morning at the police station from which an alibi might have been got up.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) No, Sir, the opposite was the subject of the cross-examination, but the lady gave her evidence. She said she did get the information.

(Chairman.) I am not saying which I believe.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) I knew what our case was—that they had no information.

30486. (Chairman.) As far as you are concerned you did not give to Mrs. Gibbons or anybody else on behalf of Norrey any information as to the time and the place and the day on which the assault with which he was charged had taken place?—No, I could not have done so, and all I said was in the presence of P.C. Philips who is now in Court.

30487. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) You had not got the information yourself, and you were on day duty?—Yes.

30488. This was a night charge, and you know nothing about it?—No. You do not know all the particulars of the cases that occur at night. I am on early duty, and I could not tell you when that happened or any particulars about it.

P.C. Joseph Harry Philips, 363 H, sworn.

30489. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Are you P.C. 363 of the H Division?—Yes.

30490. How long have you been in the force?—Fifteen months.

30491. All the time in the H Division?—Yes.

30492. Were you on reserve duty on Sunday, the 28th October last?—I was on the day.

30493. From about 6 in the morning till 2 in the afternoon?—Yes.

30494. Did a woman come asking for Norrey?—Yes.

30495. What time was that?—8.30 in the morning.

30496. You were on the door?—Yes. She asked me if we had a man of the name of Norrey locked up. I said "Yes." She said "What is he locked up for?" I said "He is charged on a warrant with assaulting the police." Then she hesitated a moment or two, and then she said "Do you think he can have bail?" I said "No, I do not think he can, but step inside." I stepped inside with the woman, and I saw the last witness, and I said "This woman has come about Norrey." Then she asked the last witness the same as she had asked me, and he went to the prisoners' list that we keep on a Sunday morning, and he told her he could not have bail, and she then left the station satisfied.

30497. Were any questions asked as to the time or place or particulars of the crime alleged?—Nothing whatever about the time.

P.C. J. H. Philips

30498. (Mr. Schultess-Young.) When this woman came, you did not know her name?—No, I did not know the woman.

30499. Have you seen her since?—No, I could not say I have.

30500. She was the woman who asked you why he was locked up—"Why is Norrey locked up"?—No. She asked me what he was locked up for.

30501. She mentioned Norrey by name?—Yes; she asked me if we had a man named Norrey locked up there. I said yes.

30502. She did not tell you how she came to know?—No.

30503. You said yes, and then she said, "What is he locked up for," and you told her?—Yes—charged on a warrant with assaulting the police.

30504. On Monday night at 11 o'clock?—No, I did not know what time it was. I looked at the prisoners' list when I came on duty in case anyone should come to the door and ask me if we had so-and-so locked up, and I saw Norrey was locked up, and I knew he was wanted on a warrant.

30505. What do you mean by the prisoners' list?—

P.C. J.H.Philips. 30 Jan. 1907.

We have a prisoners' list, and in this list there is entered if they are allowed bail or not allowed bail, and if they have been bailed, and their friends are informed what is on this list.

30506. Besides you and Penney, who were there?—Sergeant Blayden was Acting Inspector; but previous to this woman coming in, a girl came in with a prisoner's breakfast, so evidently the sergeant was giving the prisoners their breakfast.

30507. Was anyone standing on the steps?—No.

30508. What time was this?—8.30 in the morning.

30509. When she heard what it was, did she not make any remark?—No, nothing whatever.

30510. Did she not say anything at all?—No, she only hesitated a moment, and then she asked me if there was any bail allowed, and I said, "No, I do not think there is."

30511. Did she make any other remark?—No.

30512. Did she seem surprised to find that he was locked up for assaulting the police?—No; evidently she knew.

30513. She knew all about it?—Yes, evidently.

30514. Wherever she got it from, she knew all about it?—Yes.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) That is all the evidence, Sir, that I propose to call in this case.

(Chairman.) That is all the evidence the police suggest is necessary in Emms' case. Is there any other witness you suggest calling, Mr. Young? The Commission are not inviting further evidence, but they only wish to know.

(Mr. Schultess-Young.) No, Sir. There was only the question of Jeffery, but I think at this distance of time it will not be necessary to go into that detail now.

(Chairman.) I should like the notebooks in Emms' case, as the point has been raised, and it seems there is some doubt as to the way in which constables do in fact use their notebooks. I should like the notebook of P.C. Death and the other constables. Can you tell me, Mr. Muir, whether there is any regulation about the notebooks? I do not find one.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) There is a regulation on page 16, and it is quite expressed that it is for the purpose of taking particulars of accidents and other occurrences at the time.

(Chairman.) "In order to enable each officer to speak with confidence, and prevent the possibility of his evidence being shaken, a pocket book in leather case is provided, in which he is to enter at the time dates and other particulars respecting accidents or occurrences, and to which he can easily refer. A report of such particulars is to be made as early as practicable, and will be entered in the Occurrence Book for information and reference. The station officer who makes this entry will be held responsible that it agrees with the particulars shown in the pocket book, which he will initial." That is the point to which the Commission wish to direct attention. It is evident that the note is to be made at the time, and the notebook is not intended as a mere convenient place in which by the direction of superior officers a constable can put in a report afterwards.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) No, that is not the primary intention of it, but in practice it is used for many other things, including statements of prisoners.

(Chairman.) Now we will continue the case of Platt.

ALFRED FRANCIS PLATT, recalled.

A. F. Platt.

(Witness.) May I say, Sir, I think it is most vital to my interests to make a further statement. I beg to draw the attention of this Commission to the inconsistencies of the police in conducting or, as I say, not conducting inquiries into complaints against police officers and the manner of the police in conducting inquiries into the case of Curtis and ex-Inspector McCarthy of the F Division.

30515. (Chairman.) This does not seem to have much to do with the particular complaints that you have been making as to which you have given evidence?—Yes.

30516. How do you make that out?—I think it vital to my interests and to the cross-examination I shall have to go through to show the manner it is conducted.

30517. (Chairman.) I think perhaps the best course will be for Mr. Muir to finish his cross-examination, and then by way of re-examination by me, or by way of statement by yourself, you can get out all the points that you wish to call our attention to?—I would very much prefer to do it in my own way.

30518. How long is the statement?—It would take about five minutes.

30519. What is it about? Is it to supplement the evidence you have given?—In the cross-examination I went through before from Mr. Muir I thought he took one or two unfair advantages of me, and as he conducted the case for the police in the case that I wish to quote now, I thought it was to my interest to have this read out first, so that I should know what questions to object to Mr. Muir asking me.

30520. I do not see how that would help you. It seems to me that this ought to come in re-examination; but when Mr. Muir has finished with you you will then be able to make what explanation you like in regard to any of the questions as to which you think he has unfairly taken advantage of you?—I think it would be more fair to myself to read it first.

(Chairman.) No, I think it is best to finish the cross-examination.

30521. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Do you remember giving evidence here for the first time on the 18th October?—You have got the date there.

30522. You were asked by the Chairman of the Commission for a book that you mentioned you had. Do you remember that?—Yes. The Chairman did not ask me for it; I voluntarily offered to bring one here.

30523. You said that you had not got it with you?—That is right.

30524. You undertook to bring it that day?—Yes.

30525. You did not bring it, and on the next day your wife was called to account for its absence?—Quite true.

30526. She said that she had been to a police Magistrate on the Wednesday, that was on the 17th October, for a protection order against you?—I believe so. I could not say what day it was.

30527. And in a fit of temper she had destroyed the book on the Thursday, the day you came here?—I could not say.

30528. That was the effect of her evidence?—I believe so.

30529. As a matter of fact, were you told by your wife that she had been before the police Magistrate?—No.

30530. Were you told by her that a police-officer was coming to caution you by direction of the Magistrate in the morning?—No.

30531. And that you had better go out before the police-officer came?—No.

30532. You are quite clear about that—your wife never told you that at all?—Not at all.

30533. Do you know that the day upon which your wife went before the police-magistrate was not the 17th, but the 10th October?—I could not say when she went.

30534. I want to call your attention to an answer that you gave on the 13th Day, the 26th October, at page 319, Question 13617:—"Have you any book at all that relates to the period between May and October, 1903? (A.) No. (Q.) Did you ever have any book relating to that period—May to October, 1903, which contained entries showing payments to police-officers? (A.) No." That is right, is it?—The book I told the Chairman I should bring here was a book relating to the G Division and not to the L Division, in 1903.

30535. I quite follow that, and those are questions relating to the L Division. Those answers are correct?—That answer relates to the L Division of 1903.

30536. May to October, 1903. "You never had? (A.) No, these are entries by one of our men, one of the agents." That is going on to 1906. Then question 13637:—"That is the form of the entry in 1906. I ask you whether you have any similar entries for 1903. You say 'No'? (A.) No, it was not necessary. (Q.) I ask you whether you ever had any book containing such entries. You say 'No'? (A.) No, it was not necessary. (Q.) Did you ever have any memorandum book with such entries? (A.) No. (Q.) Or any diaries with such entries? (A.) No. (Q.) Or any pocket-book with such entries? (A.) No. (Q.) Are you absolutely definite about that? (A.) About the L Division there? (Q.) Yes. Are you absolutely definite that you never had any book, pocket-book, diary, or memorandum book? (A.) I had books for betting purposes. (Q.) In which you had the names of constables to whom you had paid money? (A.) Not as regards the L Division. (Q.) You are quite clear about that? (A.) Yes." Do you adhere to those answers?—Yes.

30537. Now do you remember having an interview with Inspector Spencer with regard to Deed?—I had several, I think.

30538. The first interview that you had with him—do you remember that?

(Chairman.) Is Inspector Spencer at Lambeth?

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes.

(Chairman.) What is his official position?

30539. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Sub-divisional Inspector at Kennington Road Police Station. (To the witness.) Do you remember that?— I remember being there, yes.

30540. Did he ask you whether you had any books containing any entries about the policeman?—It is quite possible he did.

30541. What did you say in answer?—I should have no diary or anything of that; I should certainly have my day betting book, and there may be something for expenses in that, but they are books I never keep. It is not needful for street betting men to keep diaries.

30542. That is the answer you gave him?—I do not know whether it was that, but it was something to that effect. I should have told him I had a book with something in it, or to that effect, but it would not be a book of any value that I should consider.

30543. Particulars of names and numbers of the officers whom you said you had bribed. Did you have any book of that kind?—I may have made an entry in some odd book or other, but not in a book I should keep.

30544. In the answers that I have just read to you you have sworn most positively and directly that you had never had any such book. What do you say now?—I may have had books with some entries of some description in, but knowing the police were watching the house I may have destroyed every betting book and slip that was in my house.

30545. The question is what you told Inspector Spencer. Did you tell him you had such a book or you had not such a book?—At that particular time if I answered him that I had an entry in a book there is no doubt I had, but I also know the question you put to me here would be in a different way.

30546. What sort of book did you have?—A small betting book—the book I pay out from day to day.

30547. Any diary?—I should not say any diary, but just a list of the names and expenses.

30548. Did you say this to Inspector Spencer, that you kept a diary in which the particulars were entered of the weekly wage that you had paid to police-officers?—I should not think I could give that answer.

30549. Will you swear you did not give it?—I think I could with safety.

(Chairman.) What are the words?

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) That you kept a diary in which the particulars were entered of the weekly wage that you paid to various police-officers?—I do not think I could have given that answer, because, not keeping diaries, I do not see how I could do it.

30550. If you had given it would it have been true?—If I had given it it would not be true that I kept a diary for that special thing, but there is no doubt I would have books that would have had some entry in of some description. There is no doubt in the way the question was put to me I answered it.

30551. (Chairman.) You heard those words read by Mr. Muir. Do you say that you used those words in the conversation with Inspector Spencer or not?—I should say not, Sir.

30552. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Did Inspector Spencer ask you to produce the diary so that the necessary particulars as to the numbers, names, etc., might be copied for investigation?—No. A. F. Platt. 30 Jan. 1907.

30553. He did not ask you to do that?—No. With regard to the list of officers and the numbers that I required to let him have I asked him to get the charge books down for certain dates, and then the numbers were taken out of that charge book of the officers that I made a complaint against.

30554. And you declined to produce the diary?—No.

30555. (Chairman.) You mean by that that you did not use the words "I decline to produce the diary"?——Yes.

30556. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Did you refuse to produce the diary you had mentioned?—To the best of my belief I was never asked. I have to trust my memory over three years back. I told him if he wanted the officers I made the complaints against to get the charge books down and take them out, and he did so in my presence.

30557. Did you see Superintendent Noviss?—When?

30558. About the same time when you were complaining?—

(Chairman.) We have not got any date for that interview with Sub-divisional Inspector Spencer. Mr. Muir put it to you all this took place at the first interview you had with him.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) The 19th or 20th October, 1903.

30559. (Chairman.) Was the 19th or the 20th October, 1903, the time at which you first saw Inspector Spencer on this matter?—I will not be positive to the 19th or the 20th, but before I saw Sub-divisional Inspector Spencer I had seen Superintendent Noviss, after making three personal applications at the station.

30560. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) There is no difficulty about the date. The date can be absolutely fixed. The 17th October was the date when Deed made the bet with you?—I believe so.

30561. And the 19th was the date you first complained. The 20th was the date on which you made the statement in front of Deed?—It was the morning after I saw Superintendent Noviss.

30562. (Chairman.) Then you did see Superintendent Noviss?—Previous to seeing Sub-divisional Inspector Spencer.

30563. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) We have got the signed statement, with the date upon it, so there is no difficulty about the date. You saw Superintendent Noviss at the same station?—At Kennington Lane Station, I believe it is.

30564. Kennington Road—the same division. You saw him on the 20th October?—I believe so.

30565. Is it true that you made allegations against the police generally, stating that it cost you £3 10s. a week to pay them all?—I may have used those words.

30566. That is the effect of it?—Something to that effect.

30567. Did Superintendent Noviss invite you to mention any case other than Deed's?—No. I had mentioned the four officers who I incriminated at the time the previous evening.

30568. I will put it in another way in order to get a plain answer. Did Superintendent Noviss invite you to mention any case and did you refuse to do so?—Not to the best of my recollection.

30569. Did you then say "I have notes in my pocket book"?—I would not have the book on me then—a day book perhaps I would have had with a note in then.

30570. Did you say to Superintendent Noviss "I have notes in my pocket-book"?—I do not know that those would be the exact words. I may have made a note in the book, or an entry, to the effect.

30571. Did Superintendent Noviss say to you "Let me see it"?—No.

30572. Did you say "No, I have no further complaint to make"?—No. I should have shown it at once if he had asked me for it. I could have produced it within ten minutes.

30573. Let there be no mistake about it. The evidence that I will call is that you complained against Deed by name, and that you complained against no other officer at all by name or number at that time?—I did, Sir. I complained against those four officers

A. F. Platt.

30 Jan. 1907.

because they were four of the worst officers I had ever dealt with.

30574. You have mentioned about taking down the charge book. I cross-examined you last time about a statement that you made to Inspector Spencer, "He also said that when charged on the 13th October he handed 10s. to two police constables in the charge room." That is correct, is it?—To one. I think you will find you asked me one.

30575. Did you make that statement with regard to one police officer, or with regard to two police officers?—I think it was shouted outside the station that they would find a half-sovereign on them.

30576. Let us try to talk about the same thing. When you were before Inspector Spencer did you tell Inspector Spencer that you had when charged on the 13th October handed 10s. to two police constables in the charge room?—I gave money in the charge room which you called to my recollection the last time.

30577. Did you tell Inspector Spencer that?—I told him I gave money in the charge room.

30578. To two police constables?—I would not swear that I gave it in the charge room to two constables. One I gave the money to.

30579. The question is not what you did in fact in the charge room, but what you said to Inspector Spencer. Did you tell Inspector Spencer that you gave money to two police constables in the charge room when you were arrested on the 13th October, 1903?—I told Inspector Spencer that I gave money in the charge room.

30580. Did Inspector Spencer at that time take down the charge book to see who the officers were?—I do not think so.

30581. Is not that the only time that he took down the charge book at all?—No.

30582. (Chairman.) Do you mean that he never took down the charge book?—He took the charge book down previous to that.

30583. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) You told us on the last occasion, and on all the previous occasions, that your arrests were all arranged for?—Yes.

30584. I want to test that. Your first arrest was not arranged for?—No. After the first one; after I first got in contact with them.

30585. That leaves three. When did you arrange that your future arrests should all be made to suit your convenience?—Shortly within paying them on my first arrest.

30586. The same day?—The same day, I should think.

30587. That was the 29th May?—I should think so.

30588. That was the date?—Yes.

30589. How long had you been betting before the 29th in this place?—In that particular spot six or seven weeks, I should thnk.

30590. No arrangement as to arrest or non-arrest was made up to then?—No, they did not know where I was.

30591. Is that the only reason that you can give for your not being arrested during those six weeks?—They did not particularly know where I was.

30592. That is the only reason you can give?—One of the reasons.

30593. Give us some more if there are any more?—I do not know that it is necessary to give any more reason than that.

30594. Can you account for your not being arrested during those six weeks when you had no arrangement with the police at all?—For the simple reason that I must have done my business very quietly.

30595. Had you any scouts?—Not that I paid for.

30596. That anybody paid for?—Yes, that somebody else paid for.

30597. Had you a convenient doorway that you might go into?—Yes.

30598. Was it a fact that the police could not get within 100 yards of you, you were so well protected?—Fifty or sixty yards.

30599. Now, you say you arranged on the 9th July for your future arrests to suit your convenience?—I think within a fortnight of my previous arrest I said.

30600. Did the police make an attempt to arrest you on the 9th July?—I could not say to the date.

30601. An attempt that was not successful?—Not to my knowledge.

30602. Do you know a man called Forbes?—Yes, I do know a man named Forbes.

30603. Do you remember Forbes being arrested at this pitch of yours?—No, Sir, I cannot say that I do. I do not know that he ever paid a fine there.

30604. Do not you remember an occasion when Forbes was there with you—the 9th July was the date—when Soer and Gunn rushed down from the little wicket gate and arrested Forbes, and you bolted and got away clean?—Not to the best of my knowledge, Sir.

30605. If that happened it does not look much like an arrangement for collusive arrest made on the 29th May, does it?—It is quite possible for one bookmaker to pay for another bookmaker to be arrested to suit his own convenience.

30606-7. But the question is whether you ran away on the 9th July. Did you run away?—Not to the best of my recollection. I do not remember any time.

30608. Do you think it in the least likely you could have forgotten it if it took place? You had made an arrangement, according to you, for which you paid handsomely, that you should only be arrested when convenient on the 29th May?—(No answer.)

30609. On the 9th July, I put it to you, Soer, one of the officers you had bribed, and Gunn, another of the officers you had subsequently bribed, according to you, came to arrest you, and you ran away?—No.

30610. Is it true or not?—I should say I never ran away from them after the first time, bar the last arrest that was made of me.

30611. Will you swear that you did not run away?—I will swear that Forbes and I never stood together when these two officers came along to arrest us.

30612. Will you swear that you did not run away at the time when Forbes was arrested by one of those officers, and you were pursued by the other?—I will swear Forbes was never in my company when those two officers had us under observation, and then arrested Forbes and not me.

30613. You have no doubt about it?—I have no doubt about it. He could never have been in my company if the officers were there.

30614. Did you ever run away after the 29th May when a police officer came to arrest you?—I did after he had already taken one of my men down, or a friend I had there for that purpose, that day, and he knows he chased me.

30615. The 9th July, I put it to you, was the first time you ran away?—I never ran away. The only time I ran away was in October. That is when I thought it was wicked, and he took two of us, which he had never done before.

30616. On the 1st August, when you were arrested by Soer and Gunn, did those two officers rush down the steps from the little wicket gate leading into Robert Street and arrest you?—Would that be the second arrest?

30617. Yes, the second arrest?—No.

30618. That is untrue?—Yes.

30619. There would be no necessity at all for them to rush down the steps if they were coming to arrest you by arrangement, would there?—No; but still if that was the second arrest there might be a reason why if they came through that way. I have to trust to my memory for what they did, but I can tell why I was arrested that day, and why I was taken earlier that day than I was the third time.

30620. Why were you taken earlier that day, as you say?—Because I believe there had been a complaint lodged against me at Kennington Road Police Station, and I really believe they came to me a little earlier in the day, and told me I should have to go earlier that day, and that is the reason I was taken a little earlier that day.

30621. You know it happened that you were not taken earlier that day?—It might be perhaps ten minutes. I think you told me of it last time.

30622. It was not so. You were taken at 2.45, the latest hour at which you were ever taken?—On that particular day?

30623. Yes, on that particular day?—It is quite possible. It might be the third arrest I am thinking of.

30624. On the third occasion did you run away?—No.

30625. Did you bolt into a doorway, through a passage, out again through a workshop, and jump out of a first floor window?—No, not the third occasion.

30626. Run away, pursued by Gunn, and not captured until you got to the door of the Hero public-house?—I was taken out of the Hero public-house. The time you say I ran away was the time when two of us were arrested on the one day.

30627. That was the third arrest. Was that the doorway that you found so convenient to pop into when the police came round?—That I ran through.

30628. Yes?—It was.

30629. It was most convenient, because you could run in, round to the back, up the stairs, and jump out of the window?—I only had occasion to use it after the first six weeks I had been betting there.

30630. But you did use it on that occasion?—I did use it on that occasion.

30631. Does that look like a collusive arrest?—No. He had already taken the man I had placed there for him to take down that day.

30632. You ran away?—I did run away. I did not want to pay £10 in fines one day when I had only arranged for one.

30633. I put it to you that it was the second time you ran away?—I promised to go down the day before, and because I did not go the day before they came and took two of us the following day.

30634. You ran away?—I did run away that time because they had already taken one.

30635. I put it to you that that was the second time you had run away?—No.

30636. The other time you were arrested you were arrested by Soer and Deed on the 13th October?—You have got the date there.

30637. Did they again capture you by running down the steps from the wicket gate?—No.

30638. Will you look, please, at that photograph (handing)?—I must tell you you have not got the full length of the street here. You have not got the extreme corner.

30639. We will get the full length before we have done. Is that background the street approaching the Waterloo main line station from Waterloo Road?—Where the steps are where the man is entering.

30640. Then there is a wicket gate there, where the man is entering, and some steps. Was your usual pitch close by that door—not the one that has got the lamp over it, but the one this side of it?—For the first six weeks up to my first arrest, yes.

30641. And that is the door that you bolted through on the day of the third arrest?—When he had previously taken my friend.

30642. You got round the back, and then you jumped out of the big window you see there?—Quite true, on my third arrest.

30643. Pursued by Gunn?—No.

30644. By whom?—Soer.

30645. Soer and Gunn were together on that occasion?—I do not know where Gunn was. I did not see him until I was halfway to the station.

30646. He captured you in the Hero public-house?—He took me out of the bar of the Hero public-house after I had attempted to strike him.

30647. You did, did you?—Yes.

30648. That looks very collusive. Just look at that other photograph (handing). That is looking the other way from Robert Street into Meopham Street. Do you see that?—Yes.

30649. There is a raised footway just under the railway bridge there?—I believe so.

30650. Did you use to have a scout standing there on that raised approach?—The man I worked for, the first six or seven weeks had scouts there.

30651. Who was the man you worked for?—The man whose name you mentioned first.

30652. Forbes?—Yes.

30653. From that spot they would be able to see the police coming either way?—It was not necessary to look either way. It was only necessary for him to look one way.

30654. The police could come both ways, and he could see either way?—By going on private ground, yes.

30655. Then he could give you a hint, and you could pop in the door?—He was only engaged to look one way. I could always keep my eye on the other the first six weeks.

30656. Down to what date do you say you worked for Forbes?—I could not say.

30657. How long after your first conviction?—I could not say.

30658. Was it down to the end of August?—I should not think so.

30659. Was it down to the end of July?—No, I should not think so.

30660. Were you working for Forbes for wages?—Well, we had no particular understanding; that was the cause of our disagreement; as the business progressed, so I should be paid.

30661. Were you not working for Forbes for weekly wages?—No, there were no specific wages mentioned.

30662. At first £2 a week, and then £3 a week?—No, there was no specific sum mentioned; it was left to see how the business progressed

30663. Did he pay you first £2 a week and then £3 a week?—The first week I worked for him he gave me two sovereigns, and I was not taking sufficient money then to ask for more; but as the business grew I asked for more, but I did not succeed in getting it. I may have had a little more at times, but that was our bother, that was my cause of leaving him.

30664. There would not be much margin left after paying four constables £1 a week out of £2 or £3, would there?—That was my reason for rowing with him. I was working for nothing.

30665. Less than nothing?—Yes, I was out of pocket.

30666. You were really paying the constables more than you were receiving yourself?—No doubt of that.

30667. Did Forbes complain that you had defrauded him?—I do not know whether he complained about my defrauding him; there might be two sides to the question.

30668. Quite; but did he in fact complain that you had defrauded him?—I do not know what his complaint was. I know that he went to Kennington Road Police Station, or I believe so, but what satisfaction he got I do not know.

30669. He lodged a complaint against you?—I believe so—that is what he went there for.

30670. You were hand and glove with the police, and they told you what his complaint was?—They told me what he had been there for, something about money matters. He could give his version; I had mine.

30671. His version no doubt you were told was that you had defrauded him?—I do not know that those words were ever used.

30672. Perhaps he said swindled?—I do not know what he said.

30673. Now I want to get from you some dates in connection with Chapman's affair. How long had you known Chapman?—It is very hard to say.

30674. In 1903?—It is very hard to say how long I had known him.

30675. Give us some idea?—Personally I should not know Chapman, but I should know his stepfather.

30676. What was his stepfather's name?—Frank Ettwell, who the last time I appeared here fell dead, or he was found dead in bed. He was one of my best witnesses in this case, which the police well know.

30677. What is the suggestion?—You are asking me for the dates of certain summonses, but I am not in a position now to give them to you.

30678. Chapman you had known for years?—I do not say Chapman. I had known his stepfather.

30679. What was his stepfather?—A street bookmaker like myself.

30680. Was he working with Chapman?—No, I believe Chapman was working for him. I do not know on what terms they were.

30681. Did you ever work with Chapman?—No.

30682. Or for Chapman?—No.

A. F. Platt.
30 Jan. 1907.

30683. Or were you in any way connected with Chapman?—Only as a friend talking over business.

30684. Did you ever have any sort of business relations with Chapman?—No, not myself; I always did it through his stepfather.

30685. Through his stepfather you have had business relations with Chapman?—No, because the stepfather was the fountain head.

30686. Did you know that Chapman was summoned for street betting in October, 1903?—Yes.

30687. Did you know that Chapman was warned on the 9th October that he would be summoned for betting on the 5th to the 8th October?—Quite possible.

30688. From whom did you hear that—from Chapman or his stepfather?—I cannot say who I heard it from. Possibly I heard from some scout they engaged or some bookmaker who knew they were going to be summoned.

30689. Did you know that the two officers who had been watching him with Soer and Deed?—Quite possible.

30690. (Chairman.) Do you mean that it was quite possible you knew?—Yes.

30691. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) The 13th October was the date of your last arrest?—You have the date there.

30692. The 17th October was the date of the bet made by Deed with you?—You have the date there.

30693. The 19th October was the date that you first complained to the police officers about Deed's conduct?—I had written a letter the day between—I think it was a Sunday.

30694. On the 20th October you gave evidence before Superintendent Noviss in respect of your complaint against Deed. Is not that so?—If the 17th fell on a Saturday, and the 18th on a Sunday, it would be the 19th I first made my complaint—in the evening.

30695. Yes, and it was taken down in writing on the 20th in the presence of Deed himself, who cross-examined you?—I do not think there were any questions asked.

30696. Yes, but they were very few?—I believe from the time I left Superintendent Noviss' office on the Monday evening I had been kept under observation from the time I left the police office until I entered my own door that night, as I told them that Deed would be at my house with others for the money.

30697. Perhaps it will be convenient for reference to complete the dates. On the 23rd October Deed was dismissed from the force?—I could not say the date.

30698. That was about the date?—I believe he was dismissed within a week of my complaint.

30699. Within three days?—I think not.

30700. On the 24th Chapman was convicted and fined £20?—Would that be the date Deed was dismissed from the force?

30701. The day after. Were you in court when Chapman's case was heard before the Magistrates?—I do not think I was. I am rather positive I was not. I do not think the time I was betting would allow me to be there.

30702. On the 29th October, do you know that Chapman gave notice of appeal against that conviction?—I knew within a quarter of an hour of the Magistrate's decision that he would appeal.

30703. On the 29th he did appeal. On the 19th November did you write your first letter to the Commissioner of Police?—It must have been earlier than that.

30704. I put it to you that the first letter that you wrote to the Commissioner of Police was on the 19th November, and when Chapman's appeal was pending?—No, I should think it would be within a few days of Deed's dismissal—after he had entered Kennington Road Police Station, and, I believe, had been interviewed by Inspector Spencer after being dismissed the Force—it must have been the day following that date that he entered the police station.

30705. Just look at that (handing). Is not that your first letter to the Commissioner of Police?—I should think not.

30706. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) I have a copy of correspondence and reports relating to the whole matter that will have to be referred to from time to time, and it would be convenient that the Commissioners should have copies of them. At page 26 is the document I am referring to. (Copies of the correspondence and reports were handed in to the Commissioners.) I put it to you that was your first letter, but you say you think not: "Sir,—Respecting the statement I made of P.C. 180 L"—that is Deed?—That is Deed.

30707. "Who has been dismissed from the Force through the facts of my statement"—again you do not refer to any previous letters here?—Perhaps I should not have referred to any previous letters. I do not think you will find my letters would go that way.

30708. "Respecting the statement I made of P.C. 180 L who has been dismissed from the Force through the facts of my statement, I beg to state the complaint I made against the other three P.C.'s—namely, 204 L, 203 L, and 209 L—which was in the presence of Superintendent Noviss and Inspector Spencer at Kennington Lane, the above officers were in the habit of receiving of me a weekly wage, and moreover they never fairly arrested me in my occupation as a street bookmaker; that was always pre-arranged as to what time they should come and take me into custody, which, in the charge book, will prove I was only charged between the hours of 2.30 p.m. to 3 o'clock p.m. It moreover has come to my knowledge the other three officers as above-mentioned have not been punished or reprimanded, so I am sure you will give the matter your kind investigations, and act as you may think proper in the matter as regards the truth of my statements. Apologising for occupying your valuable time." Is not that the first time you ever gave the numbers of the three other police officers, as you call them?—No.

30709. At that time did you know their names?—Yes, I think I can say I knew their names.

30710. Why did you not give them?—Because numbers come more fluently.

30711. Is that your only reason?—I might have been a little excited at the time I made the statements.

30712. According to you, for months you had been hand in glove with the police, paying them weekly. You must have known their names if that is true?—I knew their names.

30713. Why did you not give them?—I thought the numbers were better. One of the reasons why I gave the numbers would be that we knew them better by their numbers.

30714. With policemen walking about with numbers on their collars anybody can get their numbers, but they do not have their names painted on?—We do not give constables' names who come out to arrest us bookmakers. We either give them the nicknames or else the numbers.

30715. Let me call your attention to this:—"They never fairly arrested me; it was always pre-arranged." That is not true, is it?—Not in the first instance, nor in the last instance.

30716. Nor in the third instance. You ran away that time?—I never ran away. The only occasion I ran away was when I bolted through the doorway.

30717. So that when you say in this letter, "They never fairly arrested me, it was always pre-arranged," you are referring to four arrests, three of which were not by pre-arrangement at all?—If the promise had been kept they would have been pre-arranged, but you will find a letter there where I say I could speak better than I could write.

(Chairman.) I see the language of the letter is somewhat ambiguous:—"They never fairly arrested me in my occupation as a street bookmaker; that was always pre-arranged as to what time they should come and take me into custody." You are rather making a point to the witness of that. Do you not think it may amount to a complaint that although there may have been a pre-arrangement as to arrest the police had not carried out the bargain. I only suggest that.

30718. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) It appears to be capable of that, but that, of course, is a question for the Commission. The next letter is on the 24th November, at page 33:—"Dear Sir,—I beg to state that on the 19th October, 1903, I made a complaint to Superintendent Noviss and Inspector Spencer" (that fixes the date of your complaint) "concerning Police-constable Deed 180 L" (so that you give the name there of Deed) "on a charge of backing a horse that had already won a race. I am a bookmaker, and the said constable gave me a betting paper on a race twenty-five minutes after that race had been won. He called at my house, and demanded the money during the evening. My statement was taken down by Inspector Spencer in the presence of P.C. 180 L. At the same time I lodged a complaint respecting P.C. 180 L, P.C. 204, P.C. 203, and P.C. 209, all of the L Division"?—Previous to that I told them in the presence of one another that after the morning I had been followed and kept under observation by Inspector Spencer I gave these officers bribes, and Superintendent Noviss made the explanation that he knew that sort of thing was going on.

30719. He made that observation to you?—In the presence of Inspector Spencer and myself.

30720. Anybody else?—No, we were the only three in the office, including the Chief Superintendent. That is when I was asked if it would be convenient to be at Kennington Police Station at 11 o'clock.

30721. Your letter goes on to say:—"To whom I had been in the habit of giving a weekly wage. I have never been caught betting fairly, as I was always taken into custody at a fixed time by previous arrangement with the above officers"?—Why I should give that explanation of not being caught fairly was I was never caught the first time—I was caught by myself.

30722. "To whom I have been in the habit of giving a weekly wage. I have never been caught betting fairly, as I was always taken into custody at a fixed time by previous arrangement with the above officers. This took place between 2.30 and 3 o'clock p.m., so as to take me before the Magistrates the same day. A reference to the charge-book will prove the above assertion. Mine is not an isolated case, as I know several bookmakers who give a regular weekly salary, and who made the same arrangements as myself with regard to being taken into custody. In writing you this letter acquainting you with the above facts, I feel confident you are not aware of such conduct in the Police Force. Hoping you will make special inquiries into the truth of my allegations." Then you sign the letter, and then you say, "Postscript.—P.C. 180 L has been dismissed the Police Force, but the other officers have not been punished in any way up to the present." On the 28th November was a man named Farringdon fined £15 at the Police Court?—I could not say.

30723. And did you not, in fact, pay his fine?—No.

30724. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) The officer is not here at present, but we will endeavour to secure his attendance. On the 28th November, 1903, about half-past 3 in the afternoon, at Southwark Police Court, did you ask the police constable what time Thomas Farringdon would be taken away by the van in the event of the fine not being paid?—No.

30725. Were you told that he would be taken away at 4.45?—No.

30726. Did you say, "Thank you; this is another bit of their wickedness"?—No.

30727. "But I shall want to know from the Commissioner yet why 204 and 'another number' are still wearing that uniform" (pointing to the officer's uniform)?—No.

30728. "I am in communication with my member of Parliament"?—No.

30729. Were you in communication with your member of Parliament?—I should think so.

30730. Who was your member of Parliament?—A grand one—Fred Horner, M.P.

30731. Was not Farringdon a man who was employed by Chapman after Chapman's conviction?—I believe so.

30732. Did you not pay the fine—£15, and 6s. costs?—No.

30733. I do not say with your own money, but with your own hand?—No.

30734. Did you make those inquiries?—No.

30735. Did you know about Farringdon being fined?—I knew. From what you tell me I can remember now that he was the man who took the place of Chapman and was appearing on the summons on that day. As for anything further, I should not know until he was fined, but I believe under the circumstances the runner came from the Court—from Mr. Ettwell—and told them the amount of the fine, because they had great hope of having the summons dismissed, and that is why the money was not on his person at the time he was fined.

30736. Where did the runner come from?—From Mr. Ettwell.

30737. Where was Mr. Ettwell?—In the street, betting.

30738. Where were you?—I should be in the street, betting, up to a certain time.

30739. How did you know the runner came from Mr. Attwell?—We can telegraph very quick to one another.

30740. So that you knew it very soon after the fine was inflicted?—Possibly I did.

30741. Who paid the fine, do you know?—I know I did not.

30742. Do you know who did?—I cannot say.

30743. On the 2nd December did you write to the Commissioner again?—Yes.

30744. "I beg to acknowledge the receipt of reply to my letter of the 19th inst., but I did not receive a reply to mine of the 25th inst., as I am now determined to have the matter fully investigated and the officers punished, as they ought to be; if they are not, I shall certainly expose the facts in the Press, as I think it is a great scandal to the Force and the public. I have no ambition to in any way dictate to you, but doubtless you will fully agree with me in having the matter fully investigated." Did you write that letter to the Commissioner of Police?—Yes.

30745. Did you know that one of the officers, namely, Soar, was a witness against Chapman in the appeal that was pending?—Yes, I believe he summoned him.

30476. Deed was the only other person who was concerned in Chapman's case?—As far as I know.

30747. He had already been dismissed?—Yes.

30748. And because of his dismissal was not called as a witness?—I do not know about that.

30749. As a fact he was not called?—The police know best why he was not called.

30750. Quite right, but as a fact he was not called as a witness?—Not on the summons.

30751. Nor at all?—I believe not. Whether he was called or not I do not know.

30752. If Soer could have been placed in the same category as Deed there would have been no witness left against Chapman at all?—True.

30753. On the 8th December you wrote again to the Commissioner—"I wrote to you on the 2nd inst. and also on the 24th inst. respecting my complaint relative to the conduct of certain constables of the L Division, and have received no reply thereto on the first-mentioned date, and registered my first letter. I also wrote on the 19th inst. ("instant" is written by mistake; it means November), "and received a formal reply simply acknowledging receipt of that letter, and giving the number quoted at the head of this. I have to say I fully intend that my complaint is properly investigated, and if I do not receive a prompt reply to that effect from you I shall lay the whole facts before the Home Secretary"?—Yes.

30754. Then did you get a letter in reply to that, saying it was open to you to take any course you deemed advisable?—I could not say from memory.

30755. That was this letter: "I am directed by the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 8th instant, and to acquaint you that it is open to you to take any course you deem advisable in the matter."

30756. (Chairman.) Did you receive a letter to that effect?—It is quite possible.

30757. Just look at the letter. Is that the original of the letter of the 10th December that you received?—It looks like it, but I could not remember the contents from memory.

30758. No, but is not that the document itself?—Yes.

30759. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) On the 14th December you wrote acknowledging the receipt of that letter. "I beg to acknowledge receipt of your communication of the 10th inst., and with further reference to my complaint against the constables of the L Division, whose numbers are therein, before I take any other steps, such as laying the whole case before the Home Secretary and writing to the Press, I would ask if you would be good enough to accord me an interview, when

A. F. Platt. 30 Jan. 1907.

I can enlighten as to the whole merits of the case most likely to the better effect than by correspondence. I presume you are acquainted with the fact that an appeal will be heard at Newington Sessions early in January next, when the whole of the circumstances will be gone through. Should you see fit to grant me an interview, I shall be pleased to wait on you at any time. Waiting the favour of your reply, I am, Sir, yours most obediently, A. Platt, P.C.'s 203, 204, 209 L Division." What was the object of all this correspondence at this time?—I did not consider these men fit and proper persons to wear the uniform.

30760. At this time Chapman's appeal was pending?—I believe so.

30761. Was your object to get Soer dismissed, so that Chapman's appeal would be thereby affected?—My object was to have them all thrown out.

30762. Had you no thought in your mind as to the effect which this might have upon Chapman's appeal?—That would not be in my mind.

30763. Why did you refer to Chapman's appeal in that matter?—Knowing that Soer was a witness on it.

30764. Did you get a reply to that letter of the 19th December: "With reference to your letter of the 14th inst., I am directed by the Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis to acquaint you that he regrets that he is unable to comply with your request, as it does not appear that an interview would serve any useful purpose."

30765. (Chairman.) Is that the letter?—I expect so.

30766. Look at it. Did you receive that letter of the 19th December?—No doubt I did.

30767. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Was that your last attempt to get Soer dismissed before the appeal was heard?—I could not say.

30768. I suggest to you that it was. There is no further letter addressed to the Commissioner of Police after that date until we come to the year 1904?—I could not say; I was writing so many letters at the time to so many different people that I could not say from memory.

30769. You took a great interest in Chapman's appeal, did you not?—I cannot say that I took a great interest in the appeal.

30770. Did you not?—Not in the appeal itself.

30771. Were you the only witness who was called on behalf of Chapman?—I could not say, I was not in Court.

30772. You were called as a witness on behalf of Chapman?—Yes.

30773. And you gave in evidence before the Bench of Magistrates there the statement that you have given before this Commission with regard to Soer and the other police officers named?—As near as possible.

30774. I put it to you that you were the only witness called for the defence?—I could not say.

30775. At any rate, Chapman himself was not called as a witness?—I could not say from memory.

30776. Chapman, whose appeal this was, did not go into the witness box, but you did?—I could not say.

30777. Was the whole of your evidence directed to this attack upon the police?—I believe I know, if I remember correctly, if I was the only witness, why no one else was put in the box. It would be the first time that a man would be convicted for betting on uncorroborated evidence.

30778. Chapman was not put into the witness box?—I could not say from memory.

30779. Was your next letter one of the 14th March, 1904? Did you write a letter to the Home Secretary on the 14th March, 1904?—I could not say the date.

30780. As I understand, up to this time your sole complaint against those three other officers was that they had been receiving bribes?—Quite right.

30781. I want to call your particular attention to the terms of this letter to the Home Secretary: "I wish to bring to your notice a complaint I made against four constables of the L Division on the 19th October, 1903, respecting their endeavouring to obtain moneys of me by fraud." Did you mean the Home Secretary to understand that those three officers had been party to an attempt to obtain money from you by fraud?—I do not know that I meant all three officers in that sense.

30782. Let me read it to you again.

(Chairman.) Perhaps you had better show him the original letter.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) The Home Office will not part with the original, and we have only a copy.

(Chairman.) Show him a copy.

30783. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes. (A copy of the letter was shown to the witness.) "I wish to bring to your notice a complaint I made against four constables of the L Division on the 19th October, 1903, respecting their endeavouring to obtain moneys of me by fraud." Did you not mean the Home Secretary to understand that those three constables had been party to the same fraud that you alleged against Deed?—I should not think I meant it in that sense.

30784. What could anybody understand reading that letter except that?—Perhaps it was meant to call the Home Secretary's attention more to the fact.

30785. By telling a lie?—No.

30786. Is not that a lie?—Would there not be a fraud in Soar taking money from me before I was arrested on the last arrest, and then taking two of us down the day after?

30787. Soar obtained that money, did he not?—Yes.

30788. This is a charge of endeavouring to obtain money by fraud, which you allege you made on the 19th October against four officers?—My first complaint would probably read that the complaint was lodged aginst the four officers at the time.

30789. Have you any other explanation to offer of that?—I cannot say I have.

30790. Then I will go on.

30791. (Chairman.) The complaint you made against Deed was made on the 19th October, if I remember rightly, was it not?—On the 19th October, I think that is the date.

30792. This is your letter to the Home Secretary: "I wish to bring to your notice a complaint I made against four constables of the L Division on the 19th October, 1903"?—That is when I said Deed had been trying to ramp me, and these others had taken money from me. That is the sense in which I mean it.

30793. We shall be able to see what your actual complaint was on the 19th October?—Yes.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) "One of the said constables has been dismissed from the force, the other three being allowed to remain in uniform instead of being punished. I wish to state I was street betting, and was convicted of the offence. Since lodging my complaint I had to follow my original occupation at hackney carriage driver, as I have a young family of five to support. At the expiration of my licence I applied for its renewal, and am refused by the Commissioner of Police, with no reason only I should know what for. I am steady and respectable, and desire to support my family, which now I am totally at a loss to know what course to pursue to do so. I think if I am, in the estimation of the police, an unfit party to hold a licence, those constables are not fit and proper men to wear the uniform which the ratepayers pay for. I trust, Sir, you will, at your convenience, cause the matter to be investigated as to the harsh treatment I am now receiving at the hands of the Commissioner of Police, who is preventing me from earning support for my young family. I may mention I have also laid the facts of my case before the Hon. Member for North Lambeth (F. Horner, Esq.)."

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) In Emms' and Norrey's case I have got the warrant now. These are the particulars that are given in it. "For that he"—that is Ginger Norrey—"the said defendant, on the 23rd day of October, 1906, at Brick Lane in the said county and district, did unlawfully assault and beat one Harry Jeffery, a constable belonging to the Metropolitan Police Force, then and there in the execution of his duty as such constable." No hour is mentioned at all. Then, Sir, I am told there is a man named Ward who desires to make a statement in connection with Emms' and Norrey's case. I have no proof, and therefore I cannot examine him. He was called as a witness on a previous occasion.

(Mr. Ward.) Owing to my having come here to give evidence on behalf of the police in connection with Emms' and Norrey's case I have been threatened to have my "bleeding life" taken from me by some of the mob in this neighbourhood.

(Chairman.) By some of the mob?

(Mr. Ward.) Yes. Four times on the 8th January, the Tuesday evening, they came round and annoyed me at my place.

(Chairman.) Do you know who did that?

(Mr. Ward.) Yes, I know the man who came in first, only I do not know his name; I only know him by sight. It is not myself I am afraid of, it is what they may do when I am absent from my premises. Personally I have no fear of them at all, but it is my wife and family that I am looking after.

(Chairman.) I daresay the authorities will take notice of the fact that you have made this public statement, and no doubt such steps as can be taken to protect you will be taken. I am afraid we can do nothing as Commissioners.

(Mr. Ward.) When I went round to the station to complain of the annoyance they came, about twenty of them, and threatened to smash the front of my shop in.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) When was that?

(Mr. Ward.) On Tuesday, the 8th January, between 8 and 9 o'clock in the evening.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Do you know who it was who did it?

(Mr. Ward.) Yes, I know the man by sight, but I do not know his name

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) You can point him out and then ascertain his name, can you not? A. F. Platt. 30 Jan. 1907.

(Mr. Ward.) Yes, certainly, if I can see him, but I have not seen him since I went round to the station and complained, because they have placed a policeman regularly on the watch at my premises.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) If you can point out who the man is, there is no difficulty, because you will lay your information at the Police Court, and then ample protection will be given to you.

(Mr. Ward.) I may say since the Commission has been sitting it has had the desired effect of clearing the street of these loafer and thieves. We have not had nearly the number of snatches taking place round there, and it has made a vast improvement in the neighbourhood.

(Chairman.) Very well, you will go to the Police Court, and lay your information if it becomes necessary to do so.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) In all probability your statement will be sufficient, and you will probably find you will not be annoyed at all.

(Mr. Ward.) Personally I do not go in fear.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I quite understand. It is those who are left behind in your absence.

(Mr. Ward.) Quite right, Sir.

ALFRED FRANCIS PLATT, recalled.

30794. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Was your object in writing that letter of the 14th March to the Home Secretary to get back your cab licence?—That was one of the objects. A. F. Platt.

30795. What other object had you?—A possible interview with the Commissioner.

30796. With what object in view?—To state certain matters which I have come to say here.

30797. And get back your licence?—I hoped so.

30798. Did you write again on the 24th March to the Home Secretary: "I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your reply 116,732 in answer to mine. I wish to bring to your notice the facts of the lately dismissed constable of the L Division named Deed is permitted to bet in the streets within a few yards of Kennington Road Police Station, and not yet been apprehended, and myself with a young family of five to support am denied my licence to drive a cab. I think, Sir, you will concur with me, and conclude I am very harshly treated at the hands of the Commissioner of Police. I do trust that you will fully investigate my appeal, and cause me to be granted my licence to support my family." Was that the object of that letter also, that you should get your licence back?—One of the objects.

30799. What was the other object?—To try and obtain an interview with the Commissioner of Police.

30800. Did you write on the same day to the Commissioner of Police practically to the same effect: "I wish to bring to your notice that the lately dismissed constable of the L Division named Deed is permitted to bet in the streets within a few yards of Kennington Road Police Station, and not yet been apprehended, while myself you refuse me the renewal of my hackney carriage licence to support my young family of five, and trust you will reconsider my case, and permit me to secure my licence." Had you seen Deed betting yourself?—I had. The two days I wrote those letters I watched myself.

30801. What hours?—From 12 to 1, I presume.

30802. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Does that mean receiving slips?—Yes.

30803. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Where did you see him doing that?—Outside a greengrocer's shop situated in Hercules Road, Kennington.

30804. Do you know that at that time Deed was working as a porter in Farringdon Market in the early morning?—I do not know whether he was working in the morning. All I know is he was betting the days I wrote those letters.

30805. And that in the day time he worked for a greengrocer named Leader in Hercules Road, near the police-station?—That was his explanation to the Inspector who visited me after I wrote those letters.

30806. Was he, in fact, employed by the greengrocer?—It was a fact he was betting, but whether he was employed by the greengrocer or not I do not know.

30807. Do you know that observation was kept for the purpose of seeing whether he was betting after the receipt of your letter?—I do not know.

30808. Did you get a reply to your letter from the Home Secretary dated the 29th March?—I cannot say.

30809. "I am directed by the Secretary of State to say that he has made inquiry in the matter of your letters of the 14th and 24th instant, complaining of the refusal of the Commissioner of Police to grant you a hackney carriage licence, and finds no grounds for any action on his part"?—There are plenty of those answers from the Home Secretary.

30810. Did you write again to Mr. Akers Douglas on the 5th June, 1905. (Letter handed to witness)?—I believe so.

30811. Is that your letter or a copy of it?—Yes.

30812. "Sir, I most respectfully beg to call to your notice that P.C. Soar 204 L is doing duty similar to those he was engaged in when in 1903 serious charges were brought against him at the Newington Sessions. I beg to say that I do not consider it fair to the public that such an officer is a proper person to have been reinstated to these duties after what transpired at that inquiry, and am notifying the Chief Commissioner of Police and the member of Parliament for this district to the same effect. I herewith beg to enclose a cutting from the paper reporting the case referred to." That was Chapman's appeal, was it?—I believe so.

30813. When Soer gave evidence on one side and you gave evidence on the other?—I do not know how many people gave evidence on my side.

30814. But you did, anyhow?—Yes.

30815. And the magistrates unanimously dismissed the appeal?—Yes.

30816. How did you know that Soer was employed on the same duties again?—All I know is that he was out in plain clothes.

30817. After you gave up betting in Lambeth did you do some betting in Tooting?—I was betting in Tooting previous to Lambeth, and after I had been betting at Lambeth.

30818. What name did you use when you were betting in Tooting?—I could not tell you.

30819. Was it Davis?—No.

30820. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I should like to get a date. Was the date when you gave up betting in Lambeth 1903?—I never really gave up betting in Lambeth, sir—personally taking slips, yes.

A. F. Platt.

30 Jan. 1907.

30821. You have told us other people did for you, but you personally gave it up in 1903?—Yes.

30822. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Just look at that betting card. (Handing card to witness.) Was that used by you or by one of your men?—At the present time I could not answer that question, but I believe I have a card of every man who has ever betted for me, but I could not answer that question right away. (After examining the card.) No, that was never my card, the odds are wrong altogether, and that was never my card.

30823. Was that used by a man with whom you were acting in street betting?—Not to my knowledge, and if I answer the question right away I should say from the rate of odds that a man had never used that card for me; but I could tell better after I examined my cards, because I have kept a card of everyone I have had printed.

30824. (Chairman.) You can speak more positively when you have compared that card with other cards in your possession?—Yes. (Card put in and marked "A. P. 12.")

30825. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I thought Mr. Muir's question was whether you personally had used that card?—No, I have never used that card personally.

30826. That is the point of Mr. Muir's question.

30827. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) That is the first question, then I asked you whether it was used for any man who was betting for you or with you?—I could not say positively, but looking at the card at the present time, and seeing the rate of odds, I should say no, but I could be more positive after comparing the card with the initials I have at home.

30828. When other people are working for you I want to know what the method is; do you sometimes put a new man on a pitch who has not had a pitch there before?—Very, very rare.

30829. The usual method is to get some man who has already got a pitch?—No, I could not say that would be the proper method.

30830. What do you say the usual method is?—I should simply find out the man who was best known and start him.

30831. And then you would be called the governor?—In some cases yes, or else not known at all.

30832. And you would come either personally or by deputy and collect the slips?—Yes.

30833. And the money?—Not always.

30834. When you could?—No, not always.

30835. Ordinarily?—No, I would not say ordinarily.

30836. What is the method with regard to the money in each case?—It is according to what sort of men you have to deal with.

30837. Just tell us what the ordinary method is with the ordinary sort of man?—I could not tell you any ordinary method.

30838. What are the different methods?—That would be according to how I would read the man.

30839. Cannot you give us any idea how you deal with the question of money with men who are betting for you?—Sometimes I would have money with the papers and sometimes I would have a settling up the same evening; as regards money matters, sometimes the following day, and sometimes it would last a week or a month, or never get paid at all.

30840. But supposing you had a good day, your method would be, would it not, where you settled daily, to take from the man who made the bets all the money except what it was necessary for him to pay out on the following day?—If the man had received the moneys that were supposed to have been won in a day-to-day case—yes.

30841. And in the case of a bad day, what you ought to do would be to pay him some additional money in order to pay the losses?—Yes.

30842. Have you heard the expression "A greased-lightning bookie"?—I cannot say that I have.

30843. Have you any doubt what it means?—Not having heard the expression I cannot say I know what it means.

30844. You know what a welsher means on a racecourse?—Yes.

30845. Is not the expression used for the street bookie who does the same as the welsher on a racecourse—"a greased-lightning bookie"?—I cannot say; all I know is that in many instances of welshing on a racecourse there are plenty of people who get so excited that they really do not know what they do back, and they demand money off the bookie over a horse they say they have backed, when they have never really put the money on. There are many instances where police officers who have retired, and who take charge of the rings, are called upon, and they understand the people in that way who say they have won a certain sum of money, and therefore the bookmaker is called a welsher.

30846. You understand what the street bookmaker's equivalent of a welsher would be—he would be a man who would have a bad day, and he would not turn up with the money to pay out the next day?—That would be very hard to say.

30847. That would be the equivalent of a welsher?—No.

30848. You think not?—No.

30849. Has that happened to you on several occasions?—What has happened to me?

30850. That you have had a bad day and not turned up to pay out to the man who was responsible for taking your bets?—In what way are you going to say it is a bad day—money that has been lost, or money that I have been done for?

30851. Where you have lost more money than you have taken. I call that a bad day?—I cannot answer that question in the way you put it.

30852. Has it happened to you several times that men you have employed have been left to face backers and you have not turned up with the money to pay them?—It has happened to me several times that I have had dishonest persons who have tried to do me, and I have refused to liquidate their debts.

30853. How often has that happened to you since 1903?—I think it has happened once.

30854. Oh, really! Try again?—I should like to know the names.

30855. That would be telling you exactly how much I know; I want to know how much you know?—I should like you to put the men in this box afterward.

30856. Will you tell me?—I have told you—I think once.

30857. Will you swear it was not more than once?—In which way do you want me to answer that question—in the way that I have had dishonest men, or in the way that I have not paid myself?

30858. Where people with whom your agent made bets have not been paid—that is what I want to know? How many times has that happened to you since 1903?—I have repudiated agents who have still continued betting. I have myself been apprehended at half-past one in the afternoon, and men have come on that same pitch, and betted in my name or some other person's name wherever that bookmaker was who was apprehended, and they have used the man's name who used that street for the purpose of betting, and of course they have taken moneys in that man's name, and that man gets the benefit of not having paid his clients, and there are cases to prove that at Bow Street, where there are instances of men having been charged for doing that.

30859. That is not what I am talking about at all. I put it perfectly plain to you, if you will kindly listen. Take the Tooting case, where I suggest you were betting in the name of Davis through another man; you went on for some time having good days—that is, more money coming in than you had to pay out—and then you came upon a bad day, and you disappeared, and left the backers to look after themselves?—With regard to bad days and good days, 1903 was one of the worst years in 20 years for a street bookmaker, and 1906 is something similar.

30860. I am talking of the number of times that that has happened to you—that you have disappeared when the bad day came, and taken the moneys on the good days, and left the backers to look after themselves?—I cannot say that I have ever disappeared, because I have given every one of the men who worked for me my address.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Mr. Muir is putting to you a specific instance of this having happened at Tooting.

30861. (Chairman.) Do you admit that the man called Davis acted as your agent or employee at Tooting?—No, I cannot answer that question off-hand. I do not believe that card was ever used by any agent or myself at Tooting.

30862. I understand that you did bet at Tooting; you have told us that more than once?—Yes.

30863. Just apply your mind to Mr. Muir's question?—In the name of Davis, I say no.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Mr. Muir's question is not confined to Davis.

30864. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) I am putting that question to you quite generally, having described the sort of transaction I am referring to. On a few good days you took the money, and when a bad day came along you did not turn up and pay. How often has that happened to you since 1903?—If you ask me if I had an agent there who was an employee, I can say yes, but not in the way you wish me to answer the question.

30865. Do you say that has never happened to you?—I do not say that.

(Chairman.) I thought you were putting the question to him of betting in Tooting.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes, I put that one; but I put it quite generally also.

(Chairman.) Do you admit that, after betting at Tooting for some time, you found you had a bad day, and discontinued betting at Tooting without having paid what you owed?—No; I do not say that. I say I discontinued at Tooting, and the agent continued.

30866. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) You left him to pay as best he could?—I left him to pay the papers that he took, but not in my name.

30867. For which you had taken the money?—No.

30868. That is what is put to you. You go there and take the money on the good days, and then a bad day comes along, and you do not turn up with the money, but leave the agent to face the backers; and I put it to you that that has happened to you many times since 1903?—No.

30869. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Has it happened to you at all?—Oh, yes. But at the same time I would not be the only man in London that it has happened to, because I could always get some consideration from the people. Some people I would pay, and some people I would be unable to pay.

30870. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) I put to you the plain case. Did you employ a man who was selling papers in the High Street, Tooting, to take bets for you?—I did.

30871. Did you take the money for several days?—I did.

30873. A newspaper man in Tooting. Did you take the money from him as long as you had good days, and the first losing day did you go away and leave him to face the backers without the money?—No.

30874. What is the newspaper man's name?—I believe, if I remember accurately, Tanner.

30875. Do you know where he is now?—I could not tell you; I believe he is at Tooting.

30876. Still selling papers at Tooting?—I cannot tell you; he has visited my house several times since.

30877. To try and get the money?—No.

30878. Never asked you for the money?—No.

30879. Was there another man working for you at this time?—Yes.

30880. What was his name?—I could not say off-hand.

30881. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) At Tooting?—Yes.

30882. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) In connection with this very transaction?—Yes, he was a partner with me.

30883. Is he the man you put forward to act as the governor of this newspaper man?—No.

30884. Was he supposed to be the newspaper man's governor?—His governor in a sense.

30885. In what sense?—In the sense of taking money and papers off him.

30886. Did he bring you the moneys and papers which the newspaper man collected?—Not always, because the man was not always there to do the work.

30887. Whenever he got them, did he bring them to you?—Yes.

30888. Did you keep the money on the good days, and pay out what money there was to be paid out, and then when the first losing day came along did you leave the man in the lurch?—There were no good days that year, I am sorry to say.

30889. What year was that?—1904 I should think.

30890. What time of the year?—I could not say right away.

30891. Did you desert Tooting after that?—I have been there several times since.

30892. Did you desert Tooting immediately after that?—I cannot say that I did.

30893. Did you go any more to Tooting immediately after that incident?—Yes.

30894. Did you do any betting there?—No; I simply went round there to tell people that I was not betting after the bother that had arisen.

30895. There was a bother, was there?—Yes.

30896. Did you tell them that the man who was responsible was the man you had put forward as the governor?—No.

30897. You did not?—No; he was not responsible for moneys, if that is what you mean.

30898. For money—that is what I do mean. Did you tell the people that this fellow whom you had put forward as the governor, and whom you called your partner a few minutes ago, was a rascal and had absconded?—I do not know exactly in what sense you mean that.

30899. Let me point out what I say the transaction was: you employed this man—what is his name?—I cannot just say off-hand.

30900. Could you not really?—No, I could not.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) The man who was your partner is what Mr. Muir is asking you.

30901. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Jack Watts?—Yes, I think that was his name.

30902. Did you put forward Jack Watts to this newspaper man as the newspaper man's governor?—No.

30903. Who would pay him wages for taking the slips and the money?—No.

30904. And who would take the profits and be responsible for the losses?—No.

30905. Who was the newspaper man's governor in your transactions with him?—I was.

30906. Did you put yourself forward as the governor?—Yes.

30907. What I suggest to you is that you put forward Jack Watts as the guv'nor, and that you had taken the money on the good days, and when the bad day came along and you did not pay, you went round then telling the people who had made bets that Jack Watts was a rascal and had absconded with the money?—No.

30908. That is what I put to you?—Yes.

30909. What excuse did you make to the people who you went round and saw about the bets?—I do not know that I made any great excuse at all.

30910. You told us you went round and said you were not betting?—Yes.

30911. Did you make any excuse to them for those bets not being paid to them?—The man had been only betting for me for three or four days.

30912. Those were good days?—They were not good days.

30913. Is not that what is called a "greased light-

A. F. Platt.

30 Jan. 1907.

ning bookie," who appears on the pitch for three or four days?—No, I do not understand that term.

30914. And then disappears?—I do not understand that.

30915. Did you after that go to a pitch at Victoria Station?

30916. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) If you are passing away from that subject, there is something the witness said I did not follow, and I should like to clear it up. (To the witness.) You said you went to Tooting to tell the people about the bother that had arisen?—Yes.

30917. Why did you go to tell the people?—The fact of the matter was that partner, who was taking the papers off Tanner, I did not happen to time, and I would never recognise from any man any papers that I did not have before time. My strict injunction to each and every man I employed was that I would never take papers after time, and if they did they would always have to pay the bets themselves. That is the explanation I wanted to give in the first instance.

30918. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) That would be a matter that would be only known between you and your partner?—And the men who worked for me.

30919. The backers would not know anything about that?—I could not say that.

30920. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) That is why I ask you the question. I quite follow what you have said about your partner and the man who was selling newspapers who was working for you; but what had you to do with the people who were the backers? Why should you go to the people who were the backers and explain to them? Were the backers looking to you?—Some people might. It is very hard for me to go to many parts that I am not well known in, and people would know, if I was there, I was there for the purpose of betting, and I should simply say So-and-so is betting, and use a different name to mine, but I am virtually at the back of it. That would be the point.

30921. I did not want to interfere with the cross-examination, but before you passed from this point I wanted to understand what it was you were telling us. What was the bother that had arisen?—I had not received the papers to time, and then I repudiated the transactions.

30922. You mean the bother that had arisen was amongst the backers? Is that what you mean?—No; amongst my partner and Mr. Tanner.

30923. Between Mr. Tanner and the backers?—No.

30924. What was the bother amongst the people?—As far as Tanner was concerned it was amongst the people who knew him and would not know me.

30925. (Chairman.) Then there was a bother between the backers and Tanner?—From what I have been told, but not from any personal observation that I have had.

30926. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) And the bother was that the backers were not paid?—Some of them, no.

30927. And those who were paid were paid by Tanner out of his own moneys?—Not that I am aware of.

30928. You paid none of it, anyhow?—Oh, yes.

30929. To whom?—Various people that I should know.

30930. Did you go to a pitch in Victoria Railway Station after that?—Yes.

30931. Who was the man who took the slips there?—I could not say the name.

30932. What was he?—I believe the man was a commission agent, the same as I put myself.

30933. Cannot you tell us his name?—I cannot say. I could not tell you his name.

30934. This was 1905, was it not?—I think it was.

30935. Cannot you remember the name of the man who took slips for you in Victoria Railway Station?—No. I have had various men, and I should not perhaps always know them by their correct name. I may know them by their nicknames, or something like that.

30936. Can you describe the man?—The man at Victoria was a little fair fellow.

30937. That is all you can tell us about him?—Yes.

30938. Where is he now?—I could not tell you.

30939. When did you see him last?—In the past 12 months

30940. Where was he then?

(Chairman.) We have not any date for this.

30941. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) 1905?—The last time I saw him was promiscuously, about Blackfriars Road, London Road, or somewhere about there.

30942. Did you speak to him?—Yes.

30943. Did he tell you where he was living?—I cannot say that he did.

30944. You cannot help us to find him?—I cannot say that I can.

30945. Did he take bets for you for about a week?—I think it would be longer than that.

30946. No—this particular man about a week. Is that right?—It would be longer than that.

30947. What name were you using for the purpose of that pitch?—I think "J. R."

30948. Jack Russell?—I believe that would be the name.

30949. Who was Jack Russell?—I could not say off-hand. If I see the card I will soon tell you.

30950. Is that one of your cards (handing card to witness)?—Yes, that is one of the cards.

30951. Was there a real person, Jack Russell?—I could not say off-hand.

30952. Try. Was there a real person, Jack Russell?—I cannot say right away.

30953. Whose card is that?—I know the man well enough, but I cannot just recall whether that was the name he made use of.

(Chairman.) These cards ought to be treated as put in.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Certainly, Sir.

(Card put in, and marked "A. P. 13.")

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) "R. M. D." was the first one, and the other is "J. R." I suppose "R. M. D." is intended to be "Davis"

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes, that is so, Sir.

(Witness.) I cannot recall whether this is the man's real name or not.

30954. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) But there was a real person who used the name of Jack Russell?—There have been some Russells that I know.

30955. He gives an address, or I think he gives more than one address on that card?—Yes.

30956. Did he live at that address, or either of them?—I think you will find he lived at that address—the man who used this card lived at that address.

30957. Is that the same man who you carried on business under the name of?—The man who lived at this address would be the man who used to be Russell, if that was not Russell.

30958. Is that the small fair man who took the slips?—No.

30959. What part did Jack Russell take in this business?—He was the guvnor here.

30960. Did he abscond?—No, not that I know of.

30961. Did he go away, leaving the man who was taking the slips and the money on a bad day?—Not to my knowledge

30962. Did not he go away the day before the Cambridgeshire in 1905?—I could not say.

30963. Did you put him forward as the governor?—I cannot say that I put him forward as that. There may have been some introduction in some way or the other.

30964. I put it to you quite plainly, that you put forward this man, who used the name of Jack Russell, as the governor of the little fair man who took the slips at Victoria Station?—No, I cannot say that I did that.

30965. What were the relations between you and this man who used the name of Jack Russell?—No relations as regards monetary matters.

30966. What was your relation to this pitch at all?—I was only there for a day, or two days, I believe.

30967. You said more than a week?—You asked me how long that man had been there

30968. I am quite sure, Mr. Platt, with your intelligence, you understood what I was putting to you?—You are asking me how long that man was there, and when he absconded.

30969. I put it to you that you went to a pitch at Victoria Station, where a man took papers—a fair man—and you said that was so in 1905.

30970. (Chairman.) The exact words were, "He took bets for me longer than a week"?—Mr. Muir never asked me if I was there. He said did I go to Victoria, and I said yes, I did go to Victoria, but I do not say that I go to work there.

30971. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) That man took bets for you for more than a week?—He took bets longer than a week.

30972. For you?—Not for me.

30973. For whom?—For this man Russell.

30974. Was Jack Russell put forward by you?—No.

30975. Did not you tell the Commission that you were using the name of Jack Russell through another man?—No, I never said I was using the name of Russell.

30976. Whose card is that marked "J. R."?—That would be some man I perhaps knew in another name, and who worked in Victoria.

30977. What had you to do with that racing card marked "J. R."?—I cannot say offhand what I had to do with it.

30978. Is it your racing card?—I may be some card that I have seen.

30979. (Chairman.) You said, "That is mine" when it was put into your hands?—I have used a card at Waterloo in that name, and that is why I said that card was mine. I did not expect to be asked about that card at Victoria.

30980. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I understood you to say to Mr. Muir just now that at Victoria you employed a small fair man, whose name you could not give us, whom you had seen during the last twelve months, and you do not know now where he is?—No.

30981. That is right, is it not?—Yes.

30982. And that small fair man was the man who was betting for Jack Russell at Victoria?—Yes.

30983. You said first he was betting for you?—If I gave that answer, I did not wish to give that answer, that he was betting for me. I never made a book at Victoria then; I made a book at Victoria in 1897 or 1898.

30984. You said to Mr. Muir several times, "I went to a pitch at Victoria in 1905"?—I was there for two or three days.

30985. To a pitch?—He was giving me the words for me to answer, but I never received any money or papers at Victoria, if that is what he wants, to my memory, in 1905. I never took any papers or money in 1905 in Victoria.

30985*. (Chairman.) You told Mr. Muir: "Victoria Railway Station, 1905; took pitch here, employed a man, cannot say his name, a little fair fellow, cannot say where he is, and cannot help to find him. He took bets for me for longer than a week. Card handed up"?—If Mr. Muir said that, I did not quite catch the gist of his question to me. That is another point. He is asking me if "I betted in Victoria in 1905. I did not understand him in that way, at any rate.

30986. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Is it right or wrong to say there was a small fair man at Victoria who betted for you for longer than a week?—There was not a man betting for me for longer than a week at Victoria in 1905, but for Mr. Russell, yes; and I believe the man is to be found at that address now.

30986*. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Do you mean that Russell had nothing whatever to do with you?—No, not in monetary transactions.

30987. (Mr. Dickinson.) I took down your words: "I was using 'J. R.' for that pitch." What did you mean by saying that you were using the initials "J. R." for that pitch?—I do not quite follow what I meant myself.

30987*. At any rate, you said yes to the question?—Yes, but I did not quite catch the question.

30988. What did you mean by that?—I should know Russell was using the pitch, and perhaps I meant it in that way.

30989. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) In whose name was the small fair man betting, when he did bet for you?—He never betted for me—the little fair man did not bet for me.

30990. Just think for a moment. You have been cross-examined for some time, and just consider what you have said. You have told us several times that the small fair man was betting for you at Victoria?—I could not say he was betting for me. A. F. Platt. 30 Jan. 1907.

30991. You mean he may have been betting for somebody else, but you were his governor?—No, I was not his guv'nor in this instance. It was Russell who engaged him.

30992. Never mind about Russell for a moment. I want to understand what you have been saying to Mr. Muir. You did have somebody betting for you in Victoria?—That was in 1897.

30993. You were asked when you left Tooting and went to Victoria Station in 1905, and you went to a pitch at Victoria, and were betting there, and a small fair man was betting for you. I only want to understand what you mean. You have given several answers. Are they correct or not?—The little fair man at Victoria did not bet for me. I never received any money or slips off him in any way whatever.

30994. Do you mean you had nothing whatever to do with him?—No, not more than perhaps having a drink with him.

30995. Who was betting for you at Victoria?—I did not have a man there at the time they have specified, before the Cambridgeshire.

30996. Had you anything to do with Jack Russell, or with a card of "J. R.'s" in 1897?—"J. R." in 1897, no.

30997. You told us that that was your card with "J. R." on it. If it was not your card in 1897, when was it that you were using the card "J. R."?—I used the card in 1905. I used that card "J. R.," or a card somewhat similar.

30998. Then "J. R." means Jack Russell, does it not?—No.

30999. What does it mean?—That did not mean Jack Russell; that meant Jack Rowle.

31000. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Who is Jack Rowle?—A man who betted for me at Waterloo.

31001. Then this "J. R." has nothing whatever to do with Victoria?—I should say yes, it was to do with it.

31002. Who was "J. R." at Victoria?—Jack Russell.

31003. Is that his card?—Yes, that is his card (A. P. 13.)

31004. What was "J. R." at Waterloo?—Jack Rowle.

31005. Who employed Jack Rowle?—I did.

31006. Is that his card (handing Exhibit A. P. 13 to the witness)?—There are different cards to that.

31007. Is that Jack Rowle's card?—I should say so, from memory.

(Chairman.) That had better be handed in.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Is that another one?

31008. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) No, it is the same one. The one that he says is Jack Russell's is also Jack Rowle's. (To the witness.) When did you see Jack Russell last?—I could not say.

31009. To-day?—Within 12 months.

31010. Where did you see him?—Kennington Road or Westminster Bridge Road, if it is the man I take it to be.

31011. We will assume that for the purpose of my question. Did you have any conversation with him?—No, I cannot say that I did of any account.

31012. Are you sure it was he?—I should take it to be so.

31013. Did you speak to him at all?—We might have had a drink, as far as that is concerned, but I cannot say I have any recollection of any conversation.

31014. Did you have a drink?—It is possible. I could not say.

31015. Is that the highest you will put it?—Yes.

31016. Did he tell you where he was living?—No, I cannot say.

31017. Kennington Road and Westminster Bridge Road are on the way up from Balham, are they not?—From Balham—and Clapham, too.

31018. And Merton?—Yes, I should say so.

A. F. Platt.
30 Jan. 1907.

31019. Have you any doubt that it was the man Jack Russell?—If it is the man I think it is, no.

31020. Where had you last seen him before that?—I could not fix on a particular time. It must have been some months previously, I should say.

31021. Did you hear about Jack Russell having a pitch at Victoria?—No, I cannot say that I did.

31022. You never knew that he had one there?—I did not quite follow your argument.

31023. Did you hear of Jack Russell having a pitch at Victoria?—Yes.

31024. Did you hear how long he was there?—No, I cannot say.

31025. Did you hear that he had disappeared on the day before the Cambridgeshire, in 1905, leaving his backers unpaid?—I could not say.

31026. Did you never hear it?—It is possible I heard it.

31027. Did he employ a little fair man to take the papers for him on that pitch at Victoria?—Yes, that was the man.

31028. Did you have any conversation with that little fair man about Jack Russell disappearing?—Yes, when he came to my house.

31029. Did he come to your house wanting money?—He wanted to know where Mr. Russell was.

31030. With the money?—I do not know that he gave me that question.

31031. That was the size of it, was it not?—I could not answer.

31032. He was after Russell and the money?—It is quite possible. I cannot say.

31033. And he came to your house to find them both?—I cannot say that.

31034. Why should he come to you?—Because I am always in the habit of giving my address.

31035. But you had nothing to do with Jack Russell according to your last answer?—It is possible I gave him my card for some purpose or the other.

31036. Why should the little fair man come to your house looking after Jack Russell and the money?—I could not give any particular reason for that, except that I was nearer to Russell perhaps than the other man.

31037. Now that you have gone so far as that, do not you know that Jack Russell disappeared from that pitch and left his backers unpaid?—I cannot recollect everything.

31038. I am only asking you one thing. Do not you know that?—I cannot say.

31039. Is that the best answer you can give us?—You ask me if I know under what circumstances Jack Russell went away from Victoria?

31040. No, that was not my question. My question was, Do not you know that Jack Russell disappeared from his pitch in Victoria, leaving his backers unpaid?—I cannot say.

31041. The fair man came to your house?—Yes.

31042. Did he make a complaint to you about Jack Russell?—I cannot say he made a complaint. He wanted to know where he could find him that evening.

31043. Did he tell you why?—No, I do not know that he gave any particular reason why.

31044. Did he tell you why?—I cannot say that he did.

31045. Did you not tell him you would find him a new governor?—I cannot say I did.

31046. Will you say you did not?—He asked me to pay.

31047. Try to answer the question. You have told us several times that you have a good head?—I do not think I have made that remark.

31048. I may be wrong, and the shorthand writer may be wrong, but that is my impression. At any rate, try to answer the question. Did you not offer to find the fair man a new governor?—I may have done so, but I cannot say I did.

31049. And was not the new governor you found for him the man Jack Watts, who had absconded from Tooting?—No.

31050. Did you employ Jack Watts at that Victoria pitch?—No.

31051. What?—No.

31052. Think what you are saying. Did you employ Jack Watts to act as governor for the little fair man, or for any other man, at the Victoria pitch?—No.

31053. Perhaps I have given you the wrong name. Did you employ any other "Jack" as the new governor for this man at the Victoria pitch?—No, I cannot say that I did anything like that.

31054. There are a good many "Jacks," I dare say. Do you know Jack Callaghan?—Yes, I know a Jack Callaghan.

31055. Did you employ him in connection with this Victoria pitch?—No, I cannot say that I did.

31056. Can you say you did not?—No. I cannot say that I did.

31057. Will you swear you did not employ Jack Callaghan as a new governor for a man who had been left in the lurch by Jack Russell?—I think I can answer that question. I did not.

31058. You swear you did not?—Yes.

31059. Did you employ any man in connection with that pitch at Victoria as a governor for anybody?—No, I did not employ any man there for the man who was betting at Victoria.

31060. Did you employ any man at all in connection with a betting pitch at Victoria in 1905?—I did not quite catch the question.

31061. I will repeat it. Did you employ any man in connection with a betting pitch at Victoria Railway Station in 1905?—No.

31062. Not even the little fair man?—Not even the little fair man.

31063. What I put to you now is, that you employed Jack Callaghan (it was my mistake in saying Jack Watts) as a new Governor after Jack Russell had absconded, and that Jack Callaghan carried on the business for a few good days, and then absconded at the first bad day?—No.

31064. Leaving the little fair man in the lurch?—I could not say anything about that.

31065. Did this fair man who came to your house after Jack Russell come to you after Jack Callaghan, too?—No.

31066. Did he not come to your house?—No.

31067. Never asked you for any money?—No.

31068. Nor asked for Jack Callaghan?—No.

31068*. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Do you know a man called "Jack Callaghan"?—Yes; he is a very prominent bookmaker.

31069. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) In 1906 did you take up a street betting business in Clerkenwell?—I was connected with it. I cannot say I took it up.

31070. Was there a man there called "Fisher" who had a pitch?—Yes.

31071. Had his governor gone broke?—I do not know whether he had a governor at the time, but I know he owed money.

31072. Which he did not pay?—He did not pay.

31073. It is what they call "gone broke," is it?—There is a difference in what you term "gone broke." As long as a man continues betting he is never broke.

31074. Did you have a partner called Jack McCarthy?—I never had a partner called Jack McCarthy.

31075. What is his other name?—It might be Richard.

31076. Who is Richard McCarthy? What was Richard McCarthy?—Brother-in-law.

31077. Did you and your brother-in-law carry on Fisher's business for some time in Clerkenwell in partnership?—We paid between £50 and £60 bad debts for them, and continued it for some considerable time.

31078. Did you begin about the 7th May, and continue it in partnership down to the 23rd June?—I could not give you the exact dates.

31079. Would those be about the dates?—I think it would last over a longer period than that.

31080. At that date—the 23rd June—did Richard

McCarthy, your brother-in-law, retire from the partnership?—I am not positive of the date.

31081. Approximately. I am not tying you to dates at all. Is that how the business began? Did it begin about May, 1906, with you and your brother-in-law in partnership, and then after a time your brother-in-law went out?—After a time, yes.

31082. I put the date as the 23rd June. Was Fisher employed at £2 10s. a week, one of them, and his brother at £2 a week to take the slips?—Yes.

31083. And was the method there a daily settlement?—A nightly settlement.

31084. Every day?—Every day.

31085. From the 23rd June, or whenever the date was, when your brother-in-law went out, did you carry it on alone?—Yes.

31086. On the 30th June did you have a bad day?—No.

31087. I will give you the exact figures. £48 came in, and there were £47 to go out?—You would not call that a bad day, would you?

31088. I do not know; at any rate, those are the facts I give you. Is that accurate?—I think it is as near as possible.

31089. Did you give one of the Fisher's four bags, which you represented contained the money necessary to pay out the debts next day?—I gave him four bags, which represented a sum of money he could hope he would have got through with that night; but I came to the conclusion to discontinue the business as the expenses were too heavy there.

31090. Having come to that conclusion, and handed him the bags, without giving him an opportunity to count the contents, did you jump into a cab and go away?—No.

31091. And never come back again?—No.

31092. That is what I represent to you happened on the 30th June of last year?—No.

31093. And that when the contents of the bags were counted they amounted to £27 short of the £47 that had to be paid out, and no wages for Fisher, or his brother?—I am very pleased to hear that statement. That will show that I have not done other people.

31094. You accept that?—I accept the statement, but not in the way that you put it.

31095. How do you put it?—I gave him half the money to pay out, and told him I should come on later, as I had to arrange whether I should find further money to continue the business.

31096. (Mr. Whitmore.) Or discontinue it?—Or discontinue it.

31097. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) You gave him half the money to pay it?—Yes; sufficient to go on with till I came back.

31098. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Did you ever come back?—Not that night.

31099. At all?—Yes—not on the pitch, but I met him.

31100. Did you decide to discontinue the business?—When we met.

31101. When did you meet?—On the Sunday.

31102. The following Sunday?—Yes. I would not be positive whether it was Sunday or Monday.

31103. Did you supply Fisher with £27 necessary to pay the rest of the backers?—No; because it was mutually arranged that a friend should take them over, and find the difference in the money; which was done.

31104. What I suggest to you is that Fisher tried to find you, and never saw you except once, and then you made off?—No. He visited my house.

31105. I dare say?—It was arranged that a mutual friend should take the pitch over, and pay the money.

31106. Who was the mutual friend?—The man who took the business over was a man named Jones. Whether it was arranged through him or not I could not say.

31107. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Do you know anything more about Mr. Jones?—Not any more than that he is a bookmaker.

31108. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Did you pay anything to Jones?—No. There was no need for it.

31109. According to the figures that I put to you you had got in £48 that day, and you only paid him £20.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) You put to him that there was £27 in the bag. His answer was that he gave him half the money. We have had no figure of £20 so far.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) There was £27 short, which, of course, would leave £20.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Yes, but it was not put so. You put four bags containing £27.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) There were four bags with £27 short.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) The witness said he gave him half.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes, which would be £23 10s.

31110. What I want to know is whether you ever gave Jones any part of the money, the £47, to pay out to the backers?—I simply discontinued the business. I had paid out, or caused to be paid out, nearly £60 in bad debts for the Fishers when I took the pitches over; and in consideration of the man liquidating the deficiency of what I owed he took over the pitches.

31111. Was it you or your brother-in-law who paid over the deficiencies for the Fishers at the starting of this business?—It is rather a hard thing to say.

31112. Was there another man who complained of being defrauded by you in connection with betting transactions—a man called "Horner"?—Not to my knowledge.

31113. What?—I do not know of any complaint that he made.

31114. Frederick Horner. You cannot have forgotten the case of Frederick Horner, the market porter at Covent Garden?—Quite true.

31115. Did you employ him to make bets for you among his mates, and undertook to settle them?—Yes; and when I found he was a returned convict I discontinued him working for me.

31116. Did that leave him in this position, that he had £22 to pay which never was paid at all?—That I could not say anything whatever about. He had been out of work a long time before he was employed by me, and as soon as I found out his character I discharged him.

31117. And did not pay the bets?—He was not betting for me at that time.

31118. Did you discontinue the business then?—Yes, I discontinued it.

31119. Did Horner follow you about?—No.

31120. Demanding money from you?—No.

31121. At your house?—No.

31122. In various public-houses?—No.

31123. Did you employ men to protect you?—No.

31124. Did you ever employ men to protect you from the violence of people who were claiming money from you which they said you owed them?—No.

31125. Never?—No.

31126. Horner took extreme measures, did he not, to try to get this money out of you?—The man was drunk, and he was a madman when in drink, capable of doing anything.

31127. He claimed £20 from you, did he not?—That was his excuse; but people who knew his character——

31128. He followed you about?—No.

31129. And finally stabbed you in a public-house?—He stabbed me, but not after following me about.

31130. And you prosecuted him at the Old Bailey?—Yes.

31131. He was convicted, and sentenced to four months' hard labour for stabbing you?—I believe so.

31132. Was it an officer named "Herbert Milton" who arrested him?—Yes.

31133. Did you hear the officer give his evidence?—No.

31134. Not at the Central Criminal Court?—No.

31135. Nor at the Petty Sessions?—No; there were no Petty Sessions.

A. F. Platt.
30 Jan. 1907.

31136. At the police court. That is the same thing. You gave your evidence first at the Central Criminal Court?—Yes.

31137. Then you would remain in court and hear the other witnesses give their evidence?—I do not know that I did at the Lambeth Police Court.

31138. At the Central Criminal Court, before Judge Lumley Smith?—It was a very small room you were taken in, and as you gave your evidence you passed out.

31139. A great many of us know something about the Central Criminal Court. Were you in court while the other witnesses gave their evidence?—No.

31140. Did you hear from anybody that what the prisoner said when he was arrested was, "Yes, he owes me £20; he will not pay me, so I done it on to him"?—No.

31141. At the station he said, "Yes, he owes me £20; he will not pay me, so I paid him"?—No, I cannot say I ever heard that.

31142. Do you not know that that man accused you of going away and leaving him in the lurch to pay those persons he had been making bets with?—He might have said anything.

31143. Was it not the fact that you discontinued the business?—I discharged him several days previously.

31144. Did you have a card for him?—Yes.

31145. He was Jack Horner, was he not?—Yes.

31146. Is that the card (handing)?—That is right.

31147. A twin brother of the other one?—The same printer did them. I do not know about twin brothers.

31148. Do you now say that Jack Russell was not betting for you at Victoria?—I do say so.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I do not find the printer's name on the cards.

(Witness.) In some instances they do not put them.

(Mr Rufus Isaacs.) There may be a very good reason why they do not put them. The cards "J. R." and "J. H." seem to me to be exactly the same. The card "R. M. D." is not the same.

31149. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) No. A number of books were produced by you that have been put in and marked "A. P. 1" to "A. P. 6." Will you look at "A. P. 1," please? (The book was handed to the witness.) There is a place there where the word "Coppers 4s." is to be found. At the place which has been pointed out to you there is "Chandler 14s."?—Yes.

31150. Who is "Chandler"?—One of the scouts.

31151. "Darby 9s." Who is Darby?—One of the scouts.

31152. "Scouts 2s. 6d. Com."—(that is commission, I suppose)—"2s."?—Yes.

31153. "Coppers 4s., money £19 10s."—giving a total of £21 1s. 6d. Was that at a time when you were in partnership with Richard McCarthy, your brother-in-law?—I could not say, because none of the books are dated.

31154. That was made for the purpose of showing what you had to charge against somebody?—It would not be necessary for that. It would be necessary to show the expenses.

31155. Expenses which, if you were in partnership with your brother-in-law, you would be entitled to charge?—The same thing would be put down whether it was in the presence of my brother-in-law or behind his back.

31156. But it is not a question of its being put down in your brother-in-law's presence. It is a question of account between you and your brother-in-law?—No, a question of account between the men who have to account for the money——

31157. And you primarily, and then between you and your brother-in-law?—This might have been done in the presence of my brother-in-law.

31158. (Chairman.) In whose handwriting is it?—Robert Fisher's.

31159. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) What I put to you is that those items were put down at your dictation by Robert Fisher?—No.

31160. At your suggestion by Robert Fisher?—No. That would be to account for moneys that he would have to account to me for.

31161. And when you only had to account to your brother-in-law those items would go into the account?—They are always entered in the books. You will find in the books all the entries have been done by Robert Fisher or William Fisher.

31162. At this time when you were making those entries you were making them in order that they might be used in evidence?—No, not these.

31163. What entry were you making in order that it might be used in evidence?—An entry about every particle of money I saw handed to the officers.

31164. That is the book that has been burnt?—Yes.

31165. This entry was made purely for the purposes of account?—Yes.

31166. And the same thing applies to the other entries in the same book—"Coppers"?—There are other entries of "Coppers" besides this.

31167. With regard to those moneys, how did you get them from Fisher?—I do not quite understand your question.

31168. You say: "Coppers 4s.—money £19 10s." Was any part of that money handed over to you by Fisher?—It would be very hard to say whether I had to pay him any money on that day or not.

31169. What does "Money £19 10s." mean?—That would be perhaps what he had taken.

31170. £21 1s. 6d. would be what he had taken, would it not?—It would work out at that, yes.

31171. And £19 10s. would be what he handed over?—No.

31172. What does "£19 10s." mean?—That would be perhaps the money he held; whether he had to hand it over to me, or whether I had to hand him further sums.

31173. It was money that was available for being handed over?—That would be hard to say.

31174. "Coppers 4s." What is that?—For a policeman that was on the beat round that particular street.

31175. It is not always the same. Sometimes it is 1s.?—I cannot say it is always the same. I think you will find it is sometimes 8s.

31176. Was that money never handed over to you—the coppers?—The coppers were never handed over—he always retained them in his pocket, because there was rather a large list to pay out at night, and coppers would always meet them.

31177. What would he take a day in coppers?—He might take 5s. or 6s. a day in coppers.

31178. What did he do with them?—Kept them.

31179. He always kept the coppers?—Perhaps not always kept the coppers; but if there were coppers they would be included in the list of money. So that if he had £19 2s. in silver there would be 8s. in coppers, and that would be £19 10s.

31180. Now let me ask you another question. Did you employ scouts in Clerkenwell?—The agent who was under me did.

31181. For the purpose of your street betting business?—Or of collecting bets.

31182. Do you suggest that the police in G Division were bribed at the rate of 4s.? How many policemen were bribed by 4s.?—It might be for one, or it might be for two that particular day.

31183. Or for four?—I should not say for four.

31184. Let me call your attention to an entry—"Copper 1s."?—Yes, that might be a man who was going round on patrol that day, or else a relief man for that one day.

31185. In the former case it is "Coppers," and in this case it is "Copper"?—That would be one individual one.

31186. "Copper 1s."?—In that particular instance, yes; because he was the only one that came round—perhaps a relief one.

31187. That would be the scale of fee?—Not a scale at all.

31188. "One Copper 1s."?—No.

31189. It is in the singular there—"Copper 1s."?—Yes. It might possibly have been a patrol policeman through the street that day.

31190. You do not suggest it was more than one?—No.

31191. They were cheaper, were they, in Clerkenwell than in Lambeth?—I cannot say anything about that.

31192. But it looks as if they were, does it not?—Yes.

31193. £1 a week a Copper in Lambeth, and 1s. a day in Clerkenwell?—Different clothes different duties.

31194. But it seems to me to be a very great reduction in price?—Different clothes different prices.

31195. It was not sale time?—Not that I know of. You can buy them cheap sometimes—with a mild-and-bitter, sometimes, some of them.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) There is no entry of money there.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) No, there is not.

31196. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) The first one has money, but this one has the word "Copper' in, and has not the word "money"; and it says "Short 2s."?—I should say he might account for it in that way—it might be 2s. short.

31197. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Who is L——g?—Laing.

31198. Who is he?—A plain clothes detective.

31199. What is his rank?—I could not tell you. I have made no inquiries about his rank, but I believe a sergeant.

31200. 10s. seems rather high, judged by the other fees paid. "Coppers 4s., Copper 1s., and L——g 10s." That is a considerable advance. What was Mr. Laing's rank?—I believe a sergeant; I am not positive.

31201. What do you mean—plain clothes, or uniform?—The C.I.D.

31202. You know it is years since the C.I.D. had anything at all to do with street bookmaking?—A matter of two or three years, I believe.

31203. It is now four years. You were aware when the change took place in 1903?—Yes.

31204. What purpose could be served by the street bookmaker bribing a C.I.D. man?—The officer would possibly know who was coming out doing that duty, and he very likely would be employed in some work with him, and very likely he could straighten the bookmaker with that officer.

31205. You and your men are being watched, as I understand, by uniform men in plain clothes?—Yes.

31206. Those are men who according to you are included in the term "Copper," or "Coppers," and those are men to whom you paid money and entered it as "Copper," or "Coppers"?—The uniform men would be the men who had been entered in these books under the name of "Copper," or "Coppers."

31207. Those were the men who had to watch you?—In plain clothes, yes.

31208. What had the C.I.D. to do with it?—The C.I.D. men would be in a position to know these men were sent out, and very likely they would be engaged with it in some work or another, and they could pass the word on that he was all right.

31209. Who paid the 10s. which is entered, "L——g"?

31210. (Chairman.) In whose handwriting is it?—William Fisher's.

31211. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Or it may be Robert Fisher's?—It is quite possible.

31212. Who paid the 10s.?—I would not say which one of the brothers paid this identical 10s., but in counting the money one brother would enter it and the other paid it.

31213. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Whose handwriting is it?—William Fisher's.

31214. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) I suggest to you it is Robert Fisher's handwriting as a matter of fact?—It was very rare that Robert made any entry whatever.

31215. Are not nearly all the entries in that book in Robert Fisher's handwriting?—No.

31216. I thought you just said so?—There are some of both in each one.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) The entry we are dealing with before the £21 1s. 6d. is an entry made, I understand, by Robert Fisher.

(Chairman.) Yes, he said it was Robert Fisher's handwriting.

31217. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) I suggest to you that this one also, "L——g," is Robert Fisher's?—No. I think it is William's.

31218. You could not be certain?—I would sooner say it was William's than Robert's.

31219. You think it is William's?—Yes.

31220. Who do you suggest paid that 10s.?—I would not be positive who paid the 10s.; I rather think it was William.

31221. Do you suggest that either one or the other of the Fishers paid that 10s.?—I rather think it was William.

31222. Are you speaking from recollection or from the handwriting?—I am speaking from recollection of how these entries would be made. This man who made this entry would possibly have moneys on him that he would have to pay out, and if there was any deficiency he would account for that 10s. in the way he has done it.

31223. Do you know Laing?—I have never spoken to him to my knowledge.

31224. Do you know him by sight at all?—Quite possible.

31225. Do you know Laing by sight even?—Quite possible.

31226. Do you say you do know him by sight?—I have seen him.

31227. To recognise him as Laing?—Yes.

31228. Can you pick him out in court to-day?—I would like to have a nearer look.

31229. (Chairman.) Walk nearer. Walk round the court?—I should say it would be the second gentleman at the back.

31230. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Is that the man you mean (pointing)?—Yes. (The man referred to stood up in court.) I think that is the man from the position I looked at him.

31231. That gentleman tells me his name is Woodley?—He had a moustache. I have never seen the man sitting down.

31232. Will Mr. Woodley and also Mr. Laing stand up? (The men referred to stood up.) What do you say now? Which do you say is Laing?—I would not be positive. My eyes deceived me that much.

31233. They are so much alike, is that it?—No, I do not say that.

31234. Would you be certain that either of them was Laing?—I do not know that I would.

31235. Or do you put so much distrust in me that you are not certain about it?—I should not like to answer as to either of them now.

31236. Did you ever see Laing paid any money?—I cannot say positively that I saw it pass, but the action would be enough for me.

31237. You would see the action. How often have you seen the action of money passing to Laing?—Once, in the particular instance of Laing.

31238. When did that take place?—It would be in Bury Street or Redding Street.

31239. Cannot you make up your mind which it was?—No; they are close together—one turning runs into the other.

31240. Who was the person who passed the money to him?—Robert Fisher.

31241. Do you know how much it was?—Half a sovereign, I think.

31242. Was it this one?—No.

31243. Was that a regular thing—half a sovereign for Laing?—I should say so.

31244. Once a week?—I do not know about once a week.

31245. How often?—As often as Fisher could make it convenient to see him

31246. Is there any other entry in those books relating to Laing which shows a payment of 10s.?—I could not say.

31247. How often have you seen the action of money passed to Laing?—Only once.

31248. How often have you seen the man Laing altogether?—I should say I have seen Laing at a distance three or four times.

31249. Just look at that same page. You will see immediately underneath the entry L——g" the words, "Spent 5s. 6d." Will you look at that, and tell me in whose handwriting that is?—I should think that would be in Robert's.

31250. Is not that your own?—No. This money was given in the evening, and they spent 5s. 6d. At the time that 10s. was given the expenses ran to 5s. 6d.

31251. Perhaps I put the wrong item to you. Is it the next item that is in your handwriting—6s. immediately under £1 9s.?—Yes. I think the 6s., £1 15s., £18, and £6 5s. are in my handwriting.

31252. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) Making £24 5s.?—Yes.

31253. (Chairman.) That is in your handwriting too?—Yes.

31254. (Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) The £18 and the £6 5s. are separate from the others. They make a total of £24 5s. As I understand, the £1 9s. is not in your handwriting?—No.

31255. That is the total, including 10s. to Laing, and "Spent 5s. 6d."?—Yes.

31256. Then you put in the item of 6s.?—Yes.

31257. Then you add that up, and make it £1 15s.?—Quite true.

31258. Then you draw a line under that and the £18 and the £6 5s., making a total of £24 5s.?—That is so.

31259. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) Will you now look at the slip marked "A.P. 6"? (A.P. 6 was handed to the witness.) Is it a betting slip on one side?—Yes.

31260. And has it some writing in your own hand on the other?—Yes.

31261. Entirely in your own handwriting?—Yes.

31262. Do you find there these words: "Leach" and "Police"?—Yes.

31263. And opposite to Leach "10s." and opposite to Police "4s."?—Yes.

31264. That is entirely in your own handwriting?—Quite true.

31265. Who was Leach?—A detective officer.

31266. Again a C.I.D. man?—Yes.

31267. What rank?—A sergeant, I believe.

31268. How long had you known him?—About three or four months, I suppose, or something like that.

31269. What months were those?—The months that are referred to in those books.

31270. While you were carrying on business with Fisher?—Yes.

31271. May and June?—It would be a longer period than that.

31272. You knew him longer than that, did you?—I cannot say I did; I knew him no longer than the time I was betting with the Fishers.

31273. While you were working with the Fishers?—Yes.

31274. How often did you see him during that time?—Four or five times.

31275. You described to us on a previous occasion the circumstances in which you actually saw this money paid?—Yes.

31276. How often was Leach paid 10s.?—I could not say how often.

31277. Is there any entry in any of your books showing a payment of 10s. to Leach?—I think there are other payments in the book relating to Leach.

31278. I suggest to you that there are no other payments at all to Leach except this one on this loose slip of paper. How often do you say he was paid?—The books would tell you better; I think it is in the books.

31279. I cannot vouch for it myself, because I have not examined them, but I am instructed there is no entry at all with regard to Leach in any of the books. How do you account for that?—At times it may have been worked out on other pieces of paper like this, and they may have been destroyed afterwards. This slip of paper has been kept quite promiscuously.

31280. That is your handwriting on that piece of paper?—Yes.

31281. (Chairman.) Do you say that any of the entries in the books that have been put in relate to Leach as the recipient of money?—I would not be positive; I do not know whether it was him or not; I cannot recollect that it is so.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I have only come across his name in one book.

(Chairman.) I know we went over every one of the books, and I think we could not find Leach's name.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I have been through this book again, and I cannot find it.

31282. (Chairman.) That we can ascertain. It is said that Leach's name does not occur in that book. Do you suggest that a payment to Leach might come in under some other entry?—I would not be positive; the expenses were not always put down in the book; I might do it on odd occasions, like I have in this instance.

31283. I know, but do you suggest that there are payments to Leach which are accounted for under any entry in the book which Mr. Rufus Isaacs has got there?—I think it might be possible.

31284. Look at the book. (The book was handed to the witness.)

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I think last time when we went into it that slip was produced from A.P. 5. The slip was marked A.P. 6, and then we looked through A.P. 5 to see if we could find the name. I have now looked through A.P. 1, but I have not looked through the others.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Mr. Muskett has been through it, but he is unwilling to pledge himself as to that, because there are hundreds of names.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) But he has not come across one.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) He has not come across one.

(Witness.) I am not positive.

31285. (Mr. R. D. Muir.) That is a simple matter, and that can be done at any time. How often do you suggest that Leach was paid 10s.?—I should say, on the average, weekly.

31286. Can you pick Mr. Leach out in Court to-day?—Yes.

31287. Which is he?—The gentleman next to the one who was just asked to get up.

31288. There are two next to that gentleman?—The dark-moustached gentleman. (The man referred to stood up.)

31289. That is Mr. Leach. Do you know him? Do you say you have seen money paid to him?—Yes.

(Mr. Rufus Isaacs.) I understand the identification is right.

(Mr. R. D. Muir.) Yes. I shall call him, of course.
